LICENSES.

While I am in thorough sympathy with the spirit of the times, which seeks to welcome the Sabbath as a day of relief to the tired laborer, and would accord to him every opportunity to get away from the crowded and perhaps "dismal surroundings" of every-day life, and get rest and recreation in the beauty and freedom of the open country, yet I am more strengthened as I grow older in the belief that the welfare of this nation, and the sure measure of its power and glory is in the closeness with which it is held to the belief of an all-supreme power which we call God, and that the welfare of man is best secured by his faithfulness to that belief and by the constancy with which he adheres to the faith that service to Him is man's crown ing glory.

When we lose sight of the importance which should attach to the conscientious observance of the Sabbath, I feel sure that we cut loose from the mighty influences which have made New England and the power that it has been in the past in the advancement and glory of this nation, and that we shall then begin on that course which will end in our forgetting God and bring upon us as a people that dark and dismal night when God has forgotten us, and the glorious beauty of the land of the free and the home of the brave shall be eclipsed. I charge you therefore that when you come to legislate on licenses concerning the observance of the Sabbath, free from bigotry and superstition, but with a firm reliance on Divine Providence, you weigh the subject carefully and do not let the seeming advantage of the individual work to the injury of the whole community. In your desire to give the individual the thing he wishes, you sow the seeds which in time will spring up into a harvest of tears and distress to one and all.

We should be thankful in the highest measure that we have not to consider the granting of licenses for the sale of liquors in our borders, yet I cannot let this occasion pass without calling attention to the fact that we have many in our community who would sacrifice the public good and the safety of the individual to the gain of the few, and to urge upon you by every act and word and deed to set your strong disapproval against its every encroachment.

FRANCHISES.

While we recognize the benefits to the public which come from the telegraph, the telephone and the street railway, and would in every way assist the citizens to secure the benefits resulting therefrom, I believe it to be your duty to exercise extreme care in the grants to these agencies, and see that the community is in every way protected. The importance of this matter cannot be overstated.

In this connection I wish to call your attention to the need of your joining with the executive in guarding against the wanton destruction of shade trees and to carefully consider whether it is not time to require that wires should so far as possible be placed in conduits underground.

STREET WATERING AND STREET LIGHTING.

A matter which seems to me of great importance is the sprinkling of streets, and while this is maintained to a greater degree than formerly, it is still regarded as a luxury and is so rated in the statutes.

To my mind it is far from a luxury, it is certainly a safeguard to health, and to my mind should be regarded as a necessity.

The sprinkling of streets instead of being an expense is an economy and I am desirous that this branch of the city's expenditure shall be extended in its application.

As with the sprinkling, so with the the lighting of our streets. To my way of thinking, the money spent for lighting contributes perhaps more than almost any other expenditure to the happiness if not the protection of the people.

Streets well sprinkled during the day and well lighted at night bring many other things in the way of improvment of the public welfare.

Here let me say that I think the citizens can and should join with the authorities in caring for and beautifying walks, streets and ways of the city and their door yards adjoining in order that our city may have that general air of thrift and comfort, and that general indication of public spirit which is characteristic of many cities and towns.

LINES AND GRADES.

I wish to call the attention of the Council to the need of joint action with the Executive in bringing about harmony in the extensions of the limits of our city, so that as it grows it may have that growth guided into symmetry in the laying out of its streets, and the establishing of grades.

As has been, houses have been set at all heights above the ground, lands have been laid out without regard to adjoining sections and walks have been constructed uphill and downhill to conform to the caprice or lack of design of those who erect houses and built walks in front of them. This has resulted in lack of beauty in the general make-up of the city and in inconvenience and danger to those who pass over its walks and ways.

BUILDING INSPECTOR AND INSPECTOR OF PLUMBING.

While I do not want to see an elaborate department or building inspection established in our city, because I have seen such a display of ignorance and abuse of power in these departments, yet I am of the opinion that there should be a very careful and thorough inspection of plumbing by an experienced and fair minded man, and an ordinance established requiring some safeguards against weakness and fire damage in the construction of buildings. I think we should have fire stops and that the of construction which is called slow burning in all buildings which are to be built in our city.

Regard must be had to the cost of buildings and deprecate any ordinance in this department which would to the cost of construction as to bring rents beyond the tenants to pay and thus fail to give a fair return to

While this is the case in larger cities near at that in whatever action may be taken in this regard shall be avoided.

It does not seem to me to be necessary to of an inspector, making an additional officer to salaries and to the labor of appointment but if fully prepared ordinance, the insurance companies that it be complied with under penalty cancellation of policy. The expense to the same, as he pays in the one case an increase for the expense of inspection by the to the city in his tax for the salary of the

TO ASSIST THE BOERS.

Brothers From Many Places Give Evidence That They Have No Love For Eng

[illegible] is Peter's opportunity" [illegible] organizations of the city, [illegible] and the Blackstone Val[illegible] last [illegible] for the purpose organizing a movement to give assistance to the Boers. The meeting was held behind closed doors, and at its close the secretary stated that resolutions of sympathy with the Boers in their struggle for liberty were unanimously adopted. The threatened invasion of Canada was also considered. A committee was appointed to arrange for an immense mass meeting. The question of sending an organized ambulance corps to the Transvaal was discussed.

Toledo, Jan. 1.—The Robert Emmet Club, a leading Irish society of Toledo, has inaugurated a movement to assist the Boers. This club, in 1888, organized the Emmet guards and offered their services for the war with Spain. At a secret meeting last night resolutions were adopted pledging financial and moral support to the Boers and offering assistance of men if required. Fifty-five volunteers offered their services "in any emergency in which England is involved." Only single men, with no one dependent upon them for support, are accepted. Edward Waters, president of the club, is authority for the statement that the organization has arms for all the volunteer should arms be needed.

New York, Jan. 1.—The united Irish societies of New York and vicinity filled the Academy of Music last night at a mass meeting called to express sympathy with the Boers and opposition to England in consequence of the South African war. Senator Mason of Illinois, Congressman Sulzer, Congressman Cummings of New York and others addressed the meeting. Justice Fitzgerald of the supreme court presided. The house was packed. The audience became enthusiastic and indulged in cheering for "Oom Paul," the Boers and the South African republics. Justice Fitzgerald had to wait several minutes for quiet before evidence could be induced to stop cheering. Every point scored against the British brought forth rounds of applause.

Omaha, Jan. 1.—At a public meeting of the Irish-Americans last night, the announcement was made that a secret organization of Irishmen had been effected for practical work on behalf of the Boers.

Opposition to Trusts.

Fort Wayne, Jan. 1.—William Hoge, secretary of the Commercial Travelers' Protective Association's Anti-Trust league, has issued a letter to the members, urging the need of anti-trust legislation and suggesting that they get pledges to elect only such delegates to the state political conventions as will favor anti-trust planks. He says it ought to be easy to get "a goodly number of delegates in the Republican national convention pledged to an anti-trust plank, and that it ought not to be difficult to have the Democratic convention unanimously declare against trusts."

Increase in Miners' Wages.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 1.—The Pittsburg White Coal Mining company has posted notices of increases of 18 percent to all employes April 1, in this and other districts of central Pennsylvania. About 4,000 employes will be benefited.

Fairmont, W. Va., Jan. 1.—The two leading factories in this field today advanced the miners' wages 10 cents. Over 3,000 are effected.

Success in a large measure to Mayor Hall. May the city flourish under his administration, and the tax rate be materially reduced.

The elaborate review of the finances of the city by Mayor Hall is the strong part of his inaugural address Several summaries are given which will all be of interest to the student of the city's economic affairs. It shows that, although maturing municipal debt to the amount of $81,-950.25 was paid during 1899, that $130,-950.98 new municipal debt was authorized, so that the municipal debt instead of being decreased, was alarmingly increased from $2[illegible],505.86 to [illegible]06.59. ARMY OF THE BOERS

Being Strengthened by Americans, Europeans and Dutch.

British Feeling of Suspense Is Fast Deepening.

Further Attempts by Buller to Move Forward Meet With Failure.

Twenty-Five Thousand Boers Said to Be Between Colenso and Ladysmith.

London, Jan. 1.—A large number of Americans are said to be finding their way into the various volunteer regiments being raised in Cape Colony. It is also reporter that many Africans are arriving at Delagoa Bay, having been expelled from the Rand because they had refused to work the Johannesburg mines for the government.

The Daily Mail publishes the following dispatch from Cape Town: Ninety-five percent of the Bechuana farmers in the Vryburg district joined the Boers, helping them to loot the stores throughout the country north of Orange river. They also undertook to invest Mafeking, while General Cronje's men went south to meet Lord Methuen. The government of Bechuanaland is being administered just as if the Dutch had been in possession for ages.

The proofs of contraband traffic increase daily. It is alleged that European officers arrive at Delagoa Bay every week and proceed to the Boer lines. The Cape Argus asserts that the latest importations by way of Lourenzo Marques are six large Armstrong guns and 16 cases of ammunition, all of which have arrived at Pretoria.

The imperial authorities at the Cape have seized at Adelaide an immense consignment of arms and ammunition, marked "biscuits," sent by Boers to Dutch farmers in that neighborhood.

It is feared that the British reconnaisance north of Dordrecht, described in a dispatch to the war office, may turn out to have been a rather serious affair.

A correspondent of the Associated Press at Sterkstroom, telegraphing Dec. 31, says: Captain Montmorency of the Twenty-first Lancers, with a patrol of 120, was reconnoitering eight miles north of Dordrecht. He met the Boers at Labuschagnos Nek. They opened fire, and the British replied. The fighting continued for six hours, when the Boers received strong reinforcements, including artillery. Captain Montmorency retired and took a defensive position at Dordrecht. The Boers did not pursue him. It is believed that they retired on their main body. Their losses are not known.

In the absence of confirmation of a reported sortie from Ladysmith, that story is discredited. No such hopeful view can be taken as a Boer account of a Mafeking sortie seems designed to convey. No word regarding any such movement has yet arrived from British sources, and the feeling of suspense is deepening, as it is feared Colonel Baden-Powell's silence indicates that his position is becoming desperate.

The dispatches from the front breathe a confident spirit which is by no means echoed here. The latest Ladysmith advices show that the Boer shelling is becoming deadly, while sickness and ennui must also be telling strongly on the garrison. The news of the spread of a rebellion among the Dutch colonists and of the attempts of Boers to cut the railway at widely different points is very disquieting as bearing upon the safety of the extended lines of communication.

All the correspondents are beginning to hint of a forward movement on the part of General Buller, the danger of which is indicated in a dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Frere recording the unfortunate failure of two reconnaisances. In one case the Boer lines at Colenso were to have been bombarded by night. Mounted men drew the Boer fire, and it was intended that the naval guns should bombard. This, however, the latter failed to do, owing to some misunderstanding, and the reconnoitering party was compelled to flounder back to camp, through the wet and stormy night, marching in mud and water and with the greatest discomfort.

According to the same correspondent, a similar fate awaited another reconnaissance in the opposite direction. Two detachments, says the dispatch, lost their way in the darkness. They were unable to effect a junction for attack; they stumbled into water holes and were out all night, only to return drenched and disappointed in the morning.

It is roughly estimated that there are 25,000 Boers between Ladysmith and Colenso, some 400 being on the south side of the Tugela river. At all points the enemy shows ceaseless activity.

The Boers are actively bombarding the town. One shell struck the Devonshire mess tent, killing Captain Dalzel and wounding seven lieutenants—Dent, Twiss, Tringham, Caffyn, Byrne, Scafe and Kane.

A later dispatch from Ladysmith, by way of Weenen, dated Dec. 29, says: All well. The Boers have been firing plugged shells, containing plum pudding and the compliments of the season. They are still fortifying their positions, and are evidently determined to make a firm stand.

SEWERS.

At the beginning of the year there were two unfinished contracts for laying sewers, and, owing to financial difficulties with the contractors, the work was completed by the city.

With the appropriation of this year, sewers have been laid in Wards 1, 2, 3 and 5, both main and lateral.

About 6 3-4 miles of sewers have been laid this year.

Of the total amount expended by the Sewer Commissioners about $59,000 has been paid to the citizens of Quincy.

The assessments for the sewers have been levied.

The total amount of the assessments thus far made, $83,762.79.

The amount of money available for sewers is only $2,000 Of the amount of $400,000.00 authorized by the legislature of Massachusetts for this purpose, $398,000.00 has been appropriated and expended.

The pumps at the Pumping Station were started May 8, and have been run daily since that date.

Three hundred and six house connections have been made with the sewers.

We now have in successful operation a system of about 23 miles of sewers. It comprises a Pumping Station, well equipped with pumps and boilers of capacity sufficient to care for the sewage till about the year 1915, and room for additional pumping machinery and boilers when increased capacity is necessary; a 24-inch cast iron outfall sewer or force main connected with the Boston outfall sewer at Squantum; an intercepting main sewer extending from the Pumping Station to Elm street and another main extending to Brewer's Corner. These mains are designated to carry the sewage of Quincy Centre, Quincy Point, South Quincy and part of West Quincy.

Connected with the main sewers are lateral sewers covering a large part of Quincy Centre and South Quincy and a small portion of Wards 2 and 4. There is also a main sewer extending from the intercepting sewer first mentioned westerly to Newport avenue in the valley of Furnace brook; tributary to this are the lateral sewers draining the south side of Wollaston hill. From the Pumping Station northerly is an intercepting or main sewer extending through Hancock street to Woodbine street. At this point it will eventually receive the sewage from Norfolk Downs and Atlantic, thence it extends westerly through Woodbine, Brook street and northerly through Farrington street to Central avenue. This sewer may later be extended to provide for Montclair and adjacent lands. Draining into this main sewer are lateral sewers providing for the larger part of the thickly settled portion of Wollaston, west of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., and some of the lands between Hancock street and the railroad.

A comparison of the cost of the work completed, with the original estimate, shows that the actual cost has been very close to that of the estimate, the variance on the whole work will probably not exceed five per cent.

There have been some petitions for the extension of the system that the board has not been able to grant, and there are large and thickly settled sections of the city that have as yet no sewers. If it is thought best by the Council to continue sewer construction during the coming year, prompt measures should be taken for securing authority from the Legislature to borrow money for this purpose.

There was passed by the last General Court an act authorizing the construction of the so-called "high level sewer" for the South Metropolitan District; the sewer to be built through Quincy with outlet between Nut island and Paddock's island. After consultation with the board, the City Solicitor succeeded in having introduced into the act a provision that no part of this sewer below Hyde Park be built until the outlet is approved by the State Board of Health, or before the year 1900. The report of the State Board of Health will be made to the next General Court, and as the location of an outlet for this sewer is of great importance to Quincy's interests, the city should be represented before the Legislature when the report is being considered.

WATER SERVICE.

The sum of $30,000 has been expended the past year and we now have 80.63 miles of pipes, supplying our citizens with water. There are 1389 services and 496 hydrants distributed through the city. The demand for service is still urgent and I think that the further extension of this supply is a wise and needed expenditure of money.

Along all our shore line there is no place where the public can enjoy sea bathing without violating an ordinance or encroaching on private property.

It would seem wise that a public bath should be established in Ward 5 or 6, and one in Ward 2, where this healthful enjoyment might be secured,

A charge could be made for service and room, which would not be burdensome, and yet which would be sufficient for the payment of the care of the premises, and the expense of maintenance and the interest on the money invested.

A matter in connection with the water supply and the sewer service is the establishment of a toilet retreat for men and women in the public square. The thousands who occupy the square in the summer months make this accommodation a necessity.

POLICE.

There seems to me to be a need of better accommodation for the officers who are obliged to be on duty at the station and this matter can be provided for in the remodelling of the present city building.

A police signal service is a matter worthy of consideration, but this cannot be arranged in the present crowded condition of the police quarters.

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

During the year permanent men have been placed in the Hose houses in the city, so that now there is a man and a horse at each house ready to respond at once to an alarm.

The department has maintained its efficiency through the year, and I am informed by the Chief that the loss with the greater number of alarms which have occurred this year is not larger than last year with a smaller number.

The hydrant service of the city should be extended and the hydrants should be under the care of the chief and should be tested by the department and every man in the department should be familiar with their construction and use.

There should be a greater number of hydrants throughout the city and in the appropriation for the extension of the water service a certain specified amount should be expended in the location of hydrants under the direction of the Chief Engineer.

An order passed the Council of last year for the purchase of land in Ward 5 for the location of a fire station. On this lot I would recommend the erection of a three-way house this building also to include a ward room and voting booth, independent of the fire quarters.

The pressure of water under the Metropolitan service is excellent but for three story buildings it is not sufficient and ere long a steamer will be needed in the northern section of the city.

STREETS.

A constant source of comment and subject for criticism is the streets of the city.

Subject to the severest demands they need constant watchfulness and continuous repair.

In my judgment the mistake which we made in this regard is in the neglect of this element of timely repair or renewal. We spend a considerable sum in constructing a section or an entire roadway and then totally neglect it until it is completely destroyed and has practically to be rebuilt entire.

By maintaining unbroken a surface crust of a few inches in thickness the under structure will remain in tact for years, but once allow the surface to be broken and neglected and the entire construction becomes broken and damaged and soon the under surface is turned to the top by the heavy traffic and the road is mined. The largest amount ever appropriated has been expended during the last year and the streets should be in the very best of condition. Coddington street widening is in progress but the work was delayed so long that it is now in an uncompleted condition and will require a considerable expenditure to put it in proper shape.

Before this work progresses further the feasibility of relocating the road where it passes by the Cemetery in order to furnish additional land for the latter should be carefully considered.

I do not believe it is wise to further consider the widening or extensive extensions of streets on the basis of long loans for the next two or three years, as the burden of the sewers and sidewalk assessments will be quite heavy on the tax payer for the next two or three years.

If allowed a release from the burden of any extra taxation I think the majority of the tax payers will during this period clear up these taxes and then we can see our way clear to engage in some larger expenditure within the provisions of the regular debt limit.

When our charter was arranged and submitted to the people the limit of our indebtedness was set at one per cent. of our valuation. This was afterward raised to two and one half per cent., the general rate for cities other than the city of Boston and last year the most unwise act of all our legislation places a large amount at the disposal of the government outside the regular limit of indebtedness. I trust that the disapproval of the citizens against the contraction of any debt under this provision will be so strongly manifested that this and succeeding councils will give heed to it.

SCHOOLS.

The largest item in our list of expenses is the amount required for the support of our schools. The chairman of the Board of School Committee informs me that not less than $102,500.00 will be required for school expenses for the year 1900, and this amount does not include the amount which will be needed for the new schoolhouse which is to be erected in the Cranch hill section.

This seems a large amount when compared with our entire annual appropriation for current expense, and yet when the entire subject is examined carefully I do not think we can in any way reduce the amount.

We must bear in mind that the State sets the standard of education for its towns and cities. This to my mind is a very wise arrangement.

Some towns or communities, less progressive and less wise than its neighbors, might insist that a small sum should be expended on educational matters, and thus its children would be deprived of the advantages which should come to them and which would come to adjoining communities.

Consequently, our Commonwealth sets a high standard for the school privileges, and the statutes give the School Committees chosen by the people by popular vote large powers and privileges that they may carry out the laws in this regard without let or hindrance.

It is true there is abroad a large measure of criticism of school committees, school teachers and school methods, but we must all admit that a great force of brain power is expended in the search for the best methods of imparting knowledge and the simplest ways of securing the best practical results.

While we complain that the vast amounts of money which are expended for the education of the youth of the land are not producing the practical results which in our judgment they should, we must remember that like processes in chemical compounding results are slow in appearing and require time to fully develop their merit.

In our efforts to reach a certain product in chemistry we must allow the time needed for the elements to assimilate and come to that stage when they are in a condition ripe for the addition of other compounds. During all this process we have a compound which has neither name nor merit it may be, but all the same the process and the time are needed to get the compound to that state when with the injection of the final element the whole matter in an instant is resolved into the sought for compound.

CLOSING BANQUET.

City Council of 1899 With Guests.

Music, Song and Flow of Oratory at the United States Hotel.

The twenty-three gentlemen who, for twelve months, have sat behind the semi-circle row of desks in the City Council chamber and smiled or glanced at some fellow member, who favored or opposed some scheme, as the case might be, that would mould the affairs of the city, more to the liking of the citizens at large, or more frequently to some particular ward said their last adieus Saturday evening, while seated around the festive board in one of the parlors of the United States hotel.

There was many a tearless eye, and ruby cheek as they were seen, through the clouds of thick smoke, from the two for a penny cigarette and fifteen cent Havana that somewhat obscured the vision, to grasp each other by the hand and express a wish of a Happy New Year.

MAYOR KEITH.

The table was arranged in the shape of a horse shoe, which was taken to be an omen of good luck to the thirteen luckless chaps who had been chosen, from out of the multitude of aspirants, to serve the city for another year.

At the toe of the shoe sat President Sidelinger in a chair, of a kind that came nearer being of the size to fit than the massive chair that adorns the platform behind the President's desk at City Hall. At his right hand sat Mayor Keith, Commissioner of Public Works Cavanagh, and City Treasurer Burke. On his left was City Auditor and Mayor-elect Hall, Clerk of Committees Spear and City Messenger Tirrell.

At the heel of the shoe sat the three reporters: Collins, Parker and Magee, who for countless nights have faced this Council and listened to the lengthy debates, where he same argument was made over and over again. As the debaters tried hard to hammer their ideas into the heads of those members, who believed silence to be a virtue, and who like the reporters were saying nothing, but were keeping up a lot of thinking, only wishing, as they saw the hands of the clock, slowly creeping toward the hour of midnight, that the President would only refer to them for a solution to the perplexing question, that they might quickly dispose of it.

The remaining seats around the shoe were filled with the members of the City Council, and the roll call showed all present but Councilman Johnson, Dupee, Hogan and Blanchard.

In front of President Sidelinger was a cluster of American beauty roses, while at each cover was a Lawson, or a Packard pink; experts differed as to this point.

A quorum being present the order was given to proceed with the business of the evening.

JOHN SWITHIN.

No second invitation was needed and for the next hour the meeting was given up entirely to the discussion of the following menu, the only interruption being the witticisms that were thrown promiscuously about.

"MOTION TO ADJOURN IS IN ORDER.

During the enacting of the above Mr. John F. Gutterson of Weymouth, and Mr. John E. McGowen of Boston, entertained the company with vocal and instrumental selections; the diners at times joining in the singing of some popular air.

Then came the "Oratorical bouquets and exhibition of mind reading." President Sidelinger presided and took occasion to extend his thanks for the courtesy shown him during the past year and to assure them that it was a pleasure to retire from the Council, after his five years' service.

MAYOR KEITH

Spoke briefly of his reign as Mayor and of the perplexing matters that, come to that official. All owe a debt of gratitude to the one who suggested the idea of a closing banquet. He had been asked to sing but after practicing "The Poor Old Slave Has Gone to Rest" and "The Dying Soldier," unsuccessfully, he had given it up. He could entertain the company for half an hour with stories of the campaign and the difficulty he had in explaining how it had been done.

MAYOR-ELECT HALL

Said he might also tell some stories that would be interesting. He spoke of his term of service as City Auditor, during the years of Quincy's city government and thanked the Council for the many courtesies he had received at their hands. He also expressed his esteem for the retiring Mayor and of the pleasant and cordial relations that had always existed between them, and he hoped they would remain those of unbroken friendship.

E. E. JAMESON.

CITY TREASURER BURKE

Was sorry the charter did not permit him to pay the Councilmen a salary and also said it would perhaps relieve the incoming Mayor some if there were no salaries at all. As a member of the first Council he had taken an interest in all Councils. There will always be a difference of opinion but when we come here all are of one opinion.

COMMISSIONER CAVANAGH

Took it for granted his term of office was also near at hand. If he was taking a false position he would be glad to know it. There were many perplexities in his office. The past year had been one of record breakers. It had the hardest snow storm of the year, the dryest day, the hottest day, and the coldest day and the remarkable fact that the new year had been reached without a snow storm.

Clerk of Committees Spear and City Messenger Tirrell also spoke briefly and expressed their thanks for the courtesy shown them.

The chairman of the several committees were then called upon and each told of the work of the committees. The remaining Councilmen were then called upon and each spoke briefly.

Upon motions of Councilman Bryant thanks were extended to President Sidelinger, Clerk Spear, City Messenger Tirrell and the banquet committee.

Before the meeting closed Mr. Gutterson sang an original poem to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne," which will be published in Tuesday's Ledger.

It was a few minutes after 10 o'clock when the gathering adjourned by all uniting in singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Ivory Soap costs a little more, but it takes less to do the work, and how much whiter the clothes are when they have been washed with it.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

PEACEABLY SETTLED.

End of Controversy Between United States, Great Britain and France.

All Three Get Valuable Concessions at Shanghai.

Diplomats Had Considerable Trouble In Reaching Final Agreement.

Washington, Jan. 1.—The announcement that the extension of the foreign concessions at Shanghai has been finally approved brings to a close a diplomatic controversy between Great Britain, the United States and France, which has at times become rather acute, France taking the position at one stage of the negotiations that the American cooperation with the British in opposing the French plans of extension was an unfriendly act toward France. This and the other differences have been happily adjusted, according to announcements from China, which are borne out by the information of officials here.

The controversy assumed an international scope when the three colonies at Shanghai—British, French and American—sought to extend their limits. The concessions are just outside of the old native city, and lie along the river Whang Poo, near the point where it joins the Yang-Tse-Kiang. They are chiefly important because Shanghai is the great port of entry for foreign trade in the Chinese empire.

The British settlement is nearest the city, and lies on the river. Next to the British settlements, so as to include the area back of the old city, the American missionary influence and the British government opposed taxation quite vigorously. The French plan of extension was for an international settlement, running from the rear of the British concession up to the native city." France in turn protested against this, on the ground that she would be entirely surrounded, without exit except by the river, the native city, or over British territory.

The United States approved the plan of an international settlement, as the American interests were substantially similiar to those of the British, but the American attitude did not include an endorsement of all the contentions made by the British. It was to this course of the American government that France took exceptions, on the ground that it was an unfriendly act to France.

The negotiations, while showing no outward show of warmth, were carried on with some briskness, Ambassador Cambon of France presenting the French side up to a few months ago. The adjustment finally reached is satisfactory to all parties concerned. The French concession is extended without including any American missions. The British and American settlements are extended, and to some extent merged in the international settlement, but the British-American extension does not so envelop the French colony as to place it in a pocket.

The value of these central concessions is considerable, as the population of Shanghai is about 600,000, of which the greater part is in the foreign settlement. Here the foreigners have the right to carry on trade and to control property, and also have their own courts, police and an organized military establishment.

Disastrous Hotel Fire.

Fairmount, W. Va., Jan. 1.—An explosion of gas in the Kinkead hotel caused a destructive fire and probably the loss of four lives. An unknown man leaped from the fourth story window of the hostelry when the fire was at its height and received probably fatal injuries. Three other persons, inmates of the hotel, are missing and a search is being made in the ruins for their bodies. Besides the hotel a large tenement, a dry goods store, grocery and the armory building were ruined. The total loss will approximate $60,000.

Will Become a Bishop.

Boston, Jan. 1.—Rev. Robert Codman, Jr., rector of St. John's church (Episcopal), in the Roxbury district, has announced his acceptance of the election to the bishopic of the Maine diocese. Mr. Codman said that he had thoroughly considered the matter and felt that the hand of God directed him to accept. It was his duty, he said, to respond to the call of God. During his remarks many in the congregation were moved to tears. Mr. Codman has been very successful in his work at St. John's.

Belated Vessels Reach Port.

San Francisco, Jan. 1.—Two vessels of the overdue fleet on which reinsurance has been offered arrived yesterday. They were the British ships Australian and Godiva. The Australian was 163 days from Cardiff, and the reinsurance on her was 15 percent. The Godiva was 169 days from Newcastle and the reinsurance was 7 percent. The vessels were delayed by unfavorable weather.

Complete Recovery Expected.

Bangor, Me., Jan. 1.—A letter from the physicians who are treating Congressman Boutelle in Boston, states that there is strong hope of his complete recovery in the near future. The interview alleged to have been given out to the effect that Dr. Robinson had stated that Mr. Boutelle may never be the same again mentally, is pronounced to have been incorrect.

King Humbert Forgives.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

It is much the same with the education of youth. Time and conditions are to work together with human agencies and though seemingly barren of results with faithful service and the cooperation of the community, the final result will be satisfactory in the extreme and generations yet unborn shall testify to our wisdom and our generosity.

While the amount expended for our schools is large as compared with our other expenses, yet we shall find on examination that the cost of instructing a pupil in Quincy compares favorably with the cost in other cities and towns in the State.

We have a large school population. This is not a misfortune, although it certainly is a burden. Do not let us complain that the children are born into our city in goodly numbers. Children bring burdens, but they are the light and joy of life, they gladden the present generation, and they carry rich promise for the safety and the worth of the future.

While they throng the portals of our schoolhouses let us bid them a hearty welcome, and provide for them with generous hand. For if we do this we shall surely bless our declining years, and furnish coming generations whose power and usefulness shall be beyond the scope of words to describe.

I think there are many things that can be improved in the management of our school business, not so much in the committee's management of the schools, as in the relations between the committee and the legislative and administrative departments of the city government. I am of the opinion that it would be an improvement if the Mayor were ex-officio chairman of the School Committee in as much as this would be likely to bring about unity of action in all matters of legislation for school purposes.

We shall build a new school house in the Cranch hill district this coming year, and I very much regret that this building is not altogether what is required either in location or construction.

I believe no school building should be constructed without an assembly room.

It seems to me that we make a mistake in our public buildings in not providing so much ornamention as will make them of merit and objects of approval ten or fifteen years from now. Our public buildings are, more than anything else, permanent improvements. They are likely to be in good condition thirty or forty years from now, and we should so construct them that they would be modern buildings twenty years hence.

I believe that all schoolhouse construction should be at the recommendation of the school committee both as concerns plans and size and location of building. I firmly believe that all schoolhouse constructions should be on a basis of at least twenty years forecast by the School Committee, and then all extensions should be on the line of a well considered plan and would result in a complete system.

I think it a great mistake to antagonize the School Committee on building or location, finally obliging them to accept what is far from satisfactory and then holding them responsible for results that seem to be unsatisfactory.

All our school buildings should be connected with the sewer the coming season in those sections where the sewers have been laid.

In this connection although not a matter which concerns the Council, let me allude to the provision in the will of Doctor Woodward which permits the attendance at the Woodward Seminary of only those girls born in Quincy. This prohibition I consider to be illegal and I shall at an early date call this question to the attention of the two boards in control of the school and of the fund.

If the courts should sustain the position that this prohibition is illegal, it will afford great relief to the High school. Otherwise an enlargement of the present High school building will be an immediate necessity.

CONCLUSION.

Now, gentlemen of the Council the work is before us. Let there be the utmost harmony and good feeling between all branches of the government so that when the year shall have ended we shall have the honest satisfaction of having labored together for the welfare of the city and have the hearty endorsement of all the citizens.

In my appointments I have tried to secure the best service to the city that was possible with the material at my disposal and I have selected such men as I have felt would work in harmony with me for the most faithful discharge of the trust committed to us.

That there may be some disappointments, I of course realize for there are not as many offices as applicants and naturally those who do not receive will feel disappointed. In making my selection I have eliminated from the question entirely what the effect on my future prospects may be when my term of office shall expire and the question of the selection of a candidate shall again come before the people. The advancement of the public good taking all things into account has alone been my guide in these matters.

Gentlemen, let us take up the work with an eye single to the public good and so bear ourselves that our fellow citizens will hold us in high regard for the work we have done and we shall have the consciousness of having royally served the highest and added to those elements in our own personal characters which shall make us kings among men and worthy of that time when the cycles of time being ended for us we stand before the Great King, our souls bare before his keen and just vision and clothed upon by that celestial body which he shall give us we obtain his divine approval and at his command we enter into and become citizens of that celestial city whose walls are jasper, whose gates are pearls and whose light and glory is the God of all grace.

Roundabout.

Editors Daily Ledger:

I think that if "H. L. T." is a resident of Ward One he will pardon me, if I point out to him that it would be just as easy for him to reach the High School building via the Beale street bridge and Old Colony avenue as his suggestion that the new parkway (which will follow the valley of Furnace brook) "will give Wollaston a new route to Merry Mount Park and the seashore."

If he will study the plan of the parkway he will find that it will either intersect Newport avenue at about 200 feet North of Adams' stable or else follow Bridge street and Adams street until the residence of William B. Rice is reached. In either case it will be a strong three-quarters of a mile from the proposed Warren avenue footway and will be of no benefit to the people of Wollaston, who wish to go from one side of the railroad to the other.

He Did His Duty.

Editors Daily Ledger:

I think that "Boulevard" was in partial error when in his interesting letter on the candidates for Tax Collector he referred to Mr. Baker as having opposition in his own ward. True, there is some opposition, but it comes mainly from a small faction who moved heaven and earth to defeat Mr. Hall and elect Mr. Keith. The only reason that they oppose Mr. Baker is because he did his duty. It is an axiom that "no tax collector can do his duty by the city and be popular."

At Wollaston a considerable amount of money has been bet by the Anti-Baker faction that he will not be re-appointed. It is hardly to be wondered at that strenuous efforts are being made by some in that [illegible] circumvent his appointment.

Stauncher Republican.

Bowdoin's Loss is Yale's Gain.

New Haven, Jan. 1.—The professorship of political economy at Yale, made vacant by the advancement of President Hadley, has been offered to Professor Henry C. Emery, Ph. D., professor of political economy and sociology at Bowdoin college for the past two years, and he has accepted. Professor Emery is a son of Judge Emery of the Maine supreme bench, and a member of the American and British Economic associations. He will enter upon his duties at Yale in August. Professor Emery is but 29 years of age, and will be the youngest full professor at Yale.

Cardinal Gotti May Become Pope.

Rome, Jan. 1.—It is asserted that the pope, after the recent ceremony of opening the holy door at St. Peter's cathedral, addressed his intimate entourage and clearly designated Cardinal Girolmo Maria Gotti, prefect of the congregation of indulgences and sacred relics, as his successor. Cardinal Gotti, the famous Genoese monk, is a man of great piety and modesty. He is now about 64 years of age. Despite the dignity of a prince of the church, he always sleeps in a cell and on a hard mattress.

Church Destroyed by Fire.

Weston, Mass., Jan. 1.—The Methodist Episcopal church, situated near the Kendall Green depot, was burned to the ground Sunday afternoon. The fire started around the furnace. The loss is about $7000. The church was one of the landmarks of Weston, having been erected more than 75 years ago, but during the past year it had been entirely remodeled.

Fine and Imprisonment.

Pittsburg, Jan. 1.—Robert J. Knox, alias J. B. Bennett, who was arrested in New York recently as a member of a gang of swindlers operating in various parts of the country, was sentenced to four years and a half in the Riverside penitentiary by Judge White. Knox who convicted of forgery on two counts. Knox was also fined $500 on each indictment.

WARREN AVE BRIDGE

Hearing Saturday Before County Commissioner.

After the County Commissioners had viewed the Hancock street bridge and the location of the proposed Warren avenue foot bridge they returned the Court room where the hearing was resumed.

Henry H. Faxon hoped they would dismiss the Hancock street petition but they took it under advisement.

The Warren avenue petition was then taken up. City Solicitor Blackmur read the vote of the meeting by Wollaston citizens which was that they should ask for a footbridge. Continuing he presented the plan which called for a steel footbridge ten feet wide; eighteen feet high and with a span of fifty feet. This would leave plenty of room for four tracks. The executive department of the city were not opposed to a footbridge that would not exceed $4,100 but were opposed to a street bridge that would cost $55,000.

HERBERT T. WHITMAN

Was satisfied that the bridge could be built for less than $4,100. With stairs on the east side it would be cheaper but Wollaston people were opposed to it. No changes in the present grades would be required.

COMMISSIONER CAVANAGH

Had examined the plans and thought it would be a proper bridge. In his opinion it could be built for the sum named. He did not favor a street bridge on account of the steep grades.

COUNCILMAN PINKHAM

Favored the foot bridge. In summer there was much travel over the tracks by people going to and from the park, and beaches, for social calls and going to church. People had a right of way over the private way on the east side and there would be no land damages.

GEORGE F. PINKHAM

Appeared in behalf of the citizens' meeting to favor a footbridge. It was a matter of necessity and he would be glad to take a contract to build it for $3,500.

A. L. BAKER

Said land on the west side of the track was worth from 15 to 25 cents per foot while that on the east side would not sell for ten and had been sold for three cents.

GEORGE E. THOMAS

Told of the inconvenience of people who lived on the east side. There was no question but what property value would be increased by a bridge.

In reply to a question one of the Commissioners, James Hewins, said that in towns part of the expense of such a bridge would come upon the [illegible] in city the whole expense would be born by the city. The Commissioners could not order the bridge built. They simply approved the plans and authorized the city to build. The matter of building would lay with the city.

HENRY H. FAXON

Opposed the whole scheme on the ground that no definite action could be taken by the city until it is known what the railroad is to do. He did not see why the whole matter did not lie with the Railroad Commissioners. Then the taxpayers should be considered. If you want to populate Quincy you must stop increasing valuation. Land could not be sold for anything unless the city wanted it for a hose house lot and paid twice what it was worth. Real estate will not sell for what it would ten years ago. He did not groan at his taxes but he had sympathy for other people who owned a small equity on a piece of property. Politicians have raised valuation to keep down the tax rate. This bridge will only accommodate Sunday excursionists who play ball. He had been down to Warren avenue many times but never saw any one cross the tracks. There had been men in Wollaston who had come to City Hall and wanted their valuation raised so as to get more for their land.

This brought George F. Pinkham to his feet to deny that he ever had done so. He was one of those to lay out Wollaston and he had repeatedly been to City Hall to get redress.

Mr. Faxon: I did not mean you. I don't think the benefit will warrant building the bridge.

Councilman Pinkham: Did you not appear before the Committee on Streets and advocate the expenditure of the largest expenditure this year for street widening—of Coddington street?

Mr. Faxon: I did.

Councilman Pinkham: You own land and live there.

Mr. Faxon: Yes.

Mr. Whitman: You can draw your own conclusion gentlemen. The hearing was then adjourned until some future date, which will be advertised.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS

What Abutters Must Pay Toward the Sewer.

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot if not given, but the assessment per front age at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

CONGRESSIONAL FORECAST.

The Quay Case Promises to Create Greater Discussion Than the Financial Bill.

Washington, Jan. 1.—This week in the house does not give promise of much business. The committees have not yet begun active work, and there has not been any legislation of pressing importance reported.

With the resumption of its sittings Wednesday, the senate will practically begin the real work of the session. After the present week longer daily sessions will be the rule, and very few more adjournments from Thursday to Monday are to be expected.

In the absence of Senator Aldrich, chairman of the committee on finance, who will have charge of the financial bill, no definite statement can be made as to how vigorously he will press that measure at the beginning of the business, but there is no doubt of his general determination to push it along as rapidly as possible after the present week. He has given notice that he will call the measure up on Thursday, and it is generally believed that he will then or on the following day make a statement in support of it.

It is the purpose of the supporters of the bill to make very few speeches, leaving the opposition to do the greater share of the talking, while its opponents on the other hand will use every endeavor to draw the friends of the bill into running debate. There is no present purpose on the part of the opposition to delay the passage of the bill unnecessarily and likewise none on the part of its supporters to press the measure to the personal inconvenience of opposing senators. Those senators who are antagonistic to the bill as a rule freely confess their inability to defeat it, saying that it will get practically the entire Republican vote if needed and probably one or two Democratic votes. With a session of unlimited duration before them they cannot hope to conduct a successful filibuster. Hence they will [illegible] to delay the measure beyond [illegible] necessary to discuss its provisions. [illegible] give the country the benefit of analysis of its provisions. [illegible] may take them to do this largely upon the length of sessions and the frequency of interruptions by other business.

At present there is [illegible] after which threatens to interfere with the continuity of the progress on the financial bill. That is the fight of Senator Quay to a seat in the senate. Senator Chandler, chairman of the committee on privileges and elections, has stated that a report will be made in the Quay case soon after the beginning of business. It now seems probable that there will be more debate over the Quay contest than over the financial measure.

Not a Candidate For Re-Election.

Washington, Jan. 1.—"My present term will end my career," says Senator Vest of Missouri. "I have written a letter to a friend of mine, in which I have said that this term will bring my public life to a close. In saying this, however, I am simply repeating the statement made to the Missouri legislature which last elected me, that I would not be a candidate for re-election." Senator Vest's term does not expire until 1903, so that he has three years yet to serve. At the expiration of that time he will have been in the senate four terms, a total of 24 years.

Struck the Breakwater.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 1.—The uncompleted Dog bar breakwater has picked up still another vessel, whose bones will undoubtedly find a resting place there. This time it is the lime laden schooner Carrie T. Hix of Rockland, Me., from that port for New York. She struck about 1 o'clock Sunday morning while endeavoring to make this harbor. The captain and crew of five men, realizing their perilous position, and getting benumbed by the intense cold, decided to launch their boat and secure their safety, which, after much trouble, was finally accomplished, they getting aboard another vessel inside the breakwater, where they were made welcome and received proper attention.

Gave Worthless Check.

New York, Jan. 1.—Henry Marcus, who gives his address as "Sanitarium, Stamford, Conn., was held in $300 bail for trial, on a charge of larceny, preferred by Mrs. Margaret Smith of this city, who had furnished him and his wife with board. Marcus owed Mrs. Smith $48, and tendered in payment a check for $53.75. Mrs. Smith gave him $5.75 change, and later found that the check was worthless, the signature having been forged. Marcus' counsel said that his client had just left a sanitarium, and was mentally irresponsible for his acts.

PICKLES vs. DRUG

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

A TURN IN THE TIDE.

French Gets Boers on Run and Occupies Colesberg.

Capture Considered of Great Strategic Importance.

Situation Virtually Unchanged Regarding Important Points of the Campaign.

London, Jan. 2.—The following dispatch, dated Jan. 1, has been received from Renstburg:

"Yesterday afternoon a big force of cavalry and infantry with 10 guns, under personal command of General French, moving by detour, occupied some hills three miles from Colesberg, where the Boers were in strength, confident in the natural aid afforded them by the hills around.

"The enemy's position extended six miles around the entire village. At daybreak our artillery opened the battle. The Boers were taken by surprise, but replied vigorously. An artillery duel was maintained for two hours. Then a Boer Hotchkiss collapsed and was abandoned. We captured it. A Boer big gun was silenced; but this and the other Boer guns were withdrawn to the northward, whither we are harrassing the Boer retreat by a damaging shell fire.

"Colesberg is in our hands; and the few remaining loyalists are jubilant. We have captured many wagons and a considerable quantity of stores.

"Our losses were quite light, but the Boers must have suffered heavily. They may stop at Achtertang or cross the river altogether at Norvals Pont, where the bridge is still intact."

GENERAL FRENCH.

Colesberg is an important strategic point on the railroad to Bloemfontein, not far from the Orange river frontier of the Free State, and commanding the line along which a British column of invasion would naturally advance. It was one of the earliest points in the north of Cape Colony to be occupied by the Boers. Its occupation by the British will materially assist in carrying out the new plan of campaign, said to have been adopted by the British, and of which a hint is given by a German physician living in Cairo, who sends to a Leipsic paper an account of a conversation with General Kitchener prior to his departure for South Africa. General Kitchener is reported to have said that the scattered British forces will be concentrated as soon as possible. General Gatacre, by the seizure of Dordrecht, has distinctly improved his position, both from a political and military point of view. He now commands some 30 miles of country in which he can prevent considerable disaffection, and he is also enabled to watch Stormberg, which is the Boers' chief stronghold in Cape Colony, from two sides.

The success of General French in driving the Boers from Colesberg has shot a welcome ray of light through the gloom of the campaign in South Africa. Everywhere it is commented upon as an example of sound tactics, and as an illustration of what may be done when the right methods are employed with the Boers. The government is urged to take the lesson to heart, and to see that no stone is left unturned in the endeavor to get the largest possible forces of cavalry and mounted infantry to the front.

Now that General French has the Boers on the run, the hope is expressed that he will give them no rest, but will harrass them until they have found their way across the Orange river, which is 12 miles distant. The old wagon route to the Free State traverses Colesberg, and crosses the river by a fine bridge, 1340 feet long. It is believed that the Boers retreated toward Norvals Pont, further east, and the question is whether General French will be able to secure these two bridges before the Boers destroy them.

One important effect of the success of General French is that it will probably have a deterrent influence upon Dutch disaffection. There is some disposition here to exaggerate the importance of small skirmishes and engagements. It should be borne in mind that General French has only 2000 men, and, so far as the important points of campaign are concerned, the situation is virtually unchanged.

At Modder river the Boers appear to be modifying somewhat their line of defense. General Buller's scouts have discovered a Boer camp established in the vicinity of Springfield southwest of Colenso, by a Free State commando. A similar movement has been made at Modder river. A large force of Boers, it is said, have formed a new laager about 15 miles down the stream, at Kameelhoek.

Heliograph reports from Ladysmith show that all was well on Dec. 31. The bombardment was being continued, but its intensity had relaxed. An official dispatch from Ladysmith confirms the report that several officers of the Devonshire regiment were severely wounded by the explosion of a Boer shell in the mess tent.

Ugly rumors are in circulation of a Dutch rising with the object of siezing Cape Town and the docks and capturing the governor of Cape Colony, Sir Alfred Milner. The center of the movement is said to be Paarl, a village about 30 miles from Cape Town, where a meeting of the Afrikander bund was held Sunday. A similar meeting was held at Richmond on Dec. 28; and it is reported that the members of the bund in these two towns are acting in concert. The members of the bund at Wellington and the Dutch in Clan William district are said to be armed with Mausers and to be anxious to use them in behalf of the Boers. Although the stories of a rising are discredited, the police and military of Cape Town are taking ample precautions.

The imperial mail steamer Bundesrath of the German East African line, which was seized by the British cruiser Magicienne on the ground that she was carrying contraband of war in Delagoa Bay, has been brought to the wharf at Durban and is now guarded by marines and bluejackets. The United States, German, Russian and Austrian military attaches, who spent the holidays in Durban, returned to the front last evening. The White Star line steamer Majestic, which left Liverpool on Dec. 13 with 2000 troops, arrived at Durban yesterday.

Snow Pleads Guilty of Murder.

Barnstable, Mass., Jan. 2.—Edwin Ray Snow, the murderer of James T. Whittemore, was arraigned at a special session of the superior court here on Monday before Judge Higgins. He retracted his previous plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty of murder in the first degree. He was sentenced to be executed by electricity March 18. The crime for which Snow was sentenced was committed on Sept. 13, 1899. The body of James F. Whittemore, aged 19, a driver of a bakery wagon, was found on the old Town House road, at a point midway between South Yarmouth and Yarmouth the following morning. He had been shot through the head. Whittemore was known to have had a considerable sum of money with him. None of this was found upon the body. It was learned after the body was found that Snow was the last person who was seen with Whittemore and he was arrested on suspicion. He was then arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

SECURES CONTROL OF ESTATE.

Boston, Jan. 2.—Mrs. Harriet Allen was declared by Justice McKim of the probate court yesterday to be the lawful wife of Elbridge G. Allen, former superintendent of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. This decision not only confirmed her in her claim of being the legal wife, but established the legitimacy of her son, Elbridge G. Allen, Jr., who is made heir to the estate, which amounts to about $30,000. Mrs. Allen is appointed administratrix. Mrs. Flora Allen, claimant of the estate, took the decision coolly. It is expected that her counsel will appeal from the decision. She was married to Allen in New York a year ago.

Superintendent Allen committed suicide by shooting in a New York hotel last September. Mrs. Harriet E. Allen of Portland last week petitioned the court to be appointed administratrix, claiming rights as the legal widow of the deceased for herself and 22-year-old son. She claimed that she had come from Portland to Boston with Mr. Allen and was married in 1872 by Rev. Mr. Murray at Park Street church, but had no records of the union, neither were any found in the public records of the city.

Opposing the petition of wife No. 1 was another entered by Mrs. Flora E. Allen, who was married publicly to Mr. Allen in New York last January. She claimed to be the lawful widow and declared that the woman from Maine had never been married to Mr. Allen.

In turn the first wife contended that as her husband had never received a divorce from her he had no right to marry a second time, and therefore she claimed that her rival had no claim, as her marriage was illegal.

It is thought likely that the case will be carried to the supreme court on an appeal. The Allen estate is estimated as being about $30,000.

Myers Men Are Confident.

Boston, Jan. 2.—While the state legislature does not assemble until Wednesday, nearly all the Republican members of the lower branch are in the city, intently watching the contest for speakership between James J. Myers of Cambridge, Frank D. Bennett of Saugus and Charles R. Saunders of this city. The caucus will be held this afternoon at the state house. The Myers adherents appear to be the most confident as to the outcome. The Democratic members of the house have made no effort to bring forward a candidate, and while the contest in the Republican ranks is very sharp, each candidate has agreed to abide by the decision of the caucus, so that there seems to be very little hope for a Democratic speaker. There will be no contest this year for the presidency of the senate, as Senator George E. Smith of Everett will be re-elected for the third time by a unanimous vote.

Family of Four Cremated.

Barboursville, W. Va., Jan. 2.—William Ellis, wife and two children were burned to death in their home near here yesterday. The origin of the fire is unknown.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Fire totally destroyed the Isham building at Elizabeth, N. J., causing a loss of $75,000. The lower floor of the building was occupied by five stores, and the upper stories were used as offices and a lodge room.

Colonel William Eldorkin, U. S. A., retired, died at Middletown, N. Y., aged 60 years. Colonel Elderkin graduated from West Point in 61. He married a daughter of Rev. P. D. Gurley of Washington, and President Lincoln gave the bride away.

General Edwin S. Osborne, an ex-representative from Pennsylvania in the Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first congresses, died at Washington of heart disease.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.
Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

It is surprising to what an extent men bet upon the appointment of city officials.

Ward One gets the Mayor, Ward Five the President of the City Council, Ward Two the City Auditor, and Ward One also the Clerk of Council and City Messenger. What will Wards Three, Four and Six get?

Commissioner Cavanagh told of only a few things at the banquet for which 1899 was a record breaker. No one had thought of holding him responsible for the coldest day, or the hottest day, or even the dryest day, but there was a day when he kicked up a terrible dust with the new street sweeper.

The City Council of 1900 should strive to prevent an increase of the maturing debt of 1901.

It is already $46,805.61 and as large as it should be. The maturing municipal debt should not require over $2 of the tax rate, and therefore on the present valuation should be less than $40,000.

Some witty things were said at the closing banquet of the City Council of 1899. None of the graduates of the High school ever recollect hearing Mr. Keith, while principal, attempt to sing. For the banquet he should have attempted some lively tune rather than those quoted in his speech. When he was elected as Mayor he is said to have compared his success to the poem "How the old horse won the bet."

There are many good reasons why ex-Collector A. L. Baker should be re-appointed Tax Collector. First, because he ably fills the position. In 1898 he was not content simply to receive the money brought to his office, but he persisted in collecting old assessments which would soon have been outlawed. The Salem Mayor reports that $50,000 in taxbs in that city have recently become outlawed. There is no good reason why taxes should not be collected and Quincy wants a collector who will do it without favor.

Then Mr. Baker seems to be the only candidate from Wollaston for a department office, and the ward is entitled to at least one; and we are told that what little opposition there is to Mr. Baker comes from those who voted against Mayor Hall.

Where some escape the payment of taxes, others must pay them, so it is the taxpayers and not those who have staked money on the result who should be considered.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Somerville has a peculiar monstrosity in the person of its mayor who absolutely refuses to accept an advance in salary from $2500 to $3500. This is a fact, so don't shake your head.—Milford Journal.

☞ Indiana telegrams say there are great fears of a natural gas famine in that state, and that the usual pressure is constantly diminishing. This is alarming, especially as a presidential campaign is coming on next spring.—Bangor Commercial.

A LIVING AISLE.

A Brilliant Reception by Bride's Parents.

Without exception the handsomest home wedding ever solemnized in Quincy was that on New Year's night of Miss Zayma King, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theophilus King, and Mr. Walter Edward Burke. Outside the broad avennes leading to the King homestead, were ablaze with electric lights while indoors their brilliancy was further enhanced by garlands of laurel and a lavish use of red and white flowers.

An immense dining hall had been built for the occasion which was entirely draped in red and white bunting and tops of laurel. No invitations had been issued for the wedding but there was quite a large gathering of relatives, neighbors and intimate friends. A pretty feature and a novel one was the living aisle composed of twenty-five friends of the bride and twenty-five friends of the groom. The girls were all in white and were given garlands of smilax which were thrown carelessly over their shoulders as the procession formed and came down the stairs, each escorted by a friend of the groom. On reaching the parlors the couples separated making two lines the length of the rooms, presenting the most beautiful aisle through which a bridal couple ever passed. The smilax garlands were held by the men, making continuous loops of green. Through this bower of beauty came the bride and groom, unattended, and the expressive words spoken by Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy the bride's pastor and by Rev. Walter Russell Breed rector of Christ church, where the groom is a constant attendant, soon made them man and wife.

The wedding and informal reception was followed by a large reception attended by nearly a thousand people.

Although so many attended, at no time did the house seem crowded as every little detail that would tend to the comfort and convenience of the guests was thought of and arranged for. Mr. and Mrs. King the bride's parents, and Dr. John A. Gordon and Mrs. J. L. Drake, uncle and aunt of the groom, received the guests near the entrance of the parlor and Mr. and Mrs. Burke received in the large bay window, unassisted by any one. The friends of the bride and groom who had assisted at the wedding were still active and acted as ushers at the reception, the ladies introducing the men, and the men the ladies. It was all very unique and pretty and was one of the jolliest and most social of the many good times at this hospitable home.

A buffet supper was served in the dining hall, by Dill and the young people's favorite orchestra, Peters, furnished music throughout the evening.

A very good joke was played on the guests, but it is one they will appreciate for many a day to come. As the guests were leaving they were handed the usual box tied with white ribbon. The young ladies who slept with their box under their pillow, and those who were not so superstitious, were surprised on opening the box in the morning to find, not wedding cake, but a perpetual calendar in a handsome red leather case with silver letters K. and B., a very pretty souvenir of the wedding, in fact a perpetual reminder.

There was another surprise for those who waited to see the couple start off for while expecting the bride to go upstairs to change her gown for her traveling suit she did nothing of the kind but quietly stepped to the hall threw her bouquet amidst her friends, glided out the door into the carriage and was away before anyone realized that she was gone.

Mr. and Mrs. Burke drove to Boston to their apartments where they are to spend the winter, but they will be at home to friends the first Saturdays in the month after February first at the King home on Adams street, this city.

New Years at Atlantic.

It is not an unusual sight in Atlantic on Sunday night to see darkness at most every house by eleven o'clock. But Sunday, as the witching hour of twelve drew near and 1899 drew breathlessly to a close, from almost every house there gleamed a bright light, and festivity, tempered by the reverence due to Sunday, could be seen through many a raised curtain. Men met each other on the street at 12.30, and in the absence of the electric lights, waited not to know to whom they spoke, but merrily wished each other a happy New Year as they met and passed. It was remarked by several that Atlantic had never wakened so fully to the delight and ghostliness of cozy little watch meetings as in this present. But we look for changes when we have the first day of the year the first day of the month and first day of the week all at once.

Gala Day for Masons.

The new lodge has proved very popular from the start and is making great gains in membership.

Did His Conscience Smite Him?

Jeremiah Sullivan of South Quincy had a piece of good luck Monday in finding a pocket book containing $25, which he at first supposed a one arm tramp had stolen. Early that morning the tramp came to his house asking for something to eat. The fellow was admitted and given a breakfast. After he had gone, the pocketbook which was on the table was missing. The police were notified and a description was telephone to Station 11 Harrison Square. The Boston police arrested the fellow and later locked him up.

Meanwhile Mrs. Sullivan in sweeping up found the pocketbook where it had been thrown, the supposition being, that after the fellow taking it had relented and thrown it on the floor. As no crime could be fixed upon the fellow he was released.

☞ There are some people who figure out that the city is taxed to protect insurance companies, and there is probably something worth considering in the idea. As a rule buildings, furniture and stocks are generally insured for their full value. Should they be destroyed by fire the loss will fall upon the insurance companies to a large extent. Therefore, it is urged if it is deemed wise and proper to own and operate a fire department, it is also claimed to be equally wise and proper to own and operate a municipal insurance department. While it is said that municipal fire insurance would not pay the entire cost of maintaining a fire department, it is said that it would pay a handsome profit and rates might be reduced 25 per cent.—Bridgeport Post.

☞ A greater degree of brevity must be cultivated by telephone subscribers according to the new rule of the Southern Massachusetts company three minutes intead of five constituting the time limit on and after Jan. 1. However a good deal of talking can be done in three minutes by one who is prepared to make the best possible use of the time.—Brockton Times.

Did you read Mayor Hall's inaugural address?

How many New Year's resolutions remain unbroken.

The edition of the Ledger was early exhausted yesterday.

The first sleighing of the season came New Year's day.

Ladies' minstrel show tomorrow night. It will be by local talent.

Installation of the Knights and Ladies of Honor tomorrow evening.

The New Year has started in with a light criminal business at the district court.

The annual meeting of the School Committee, for organization will be held tonight.

Work in the stone sheds which was practically suspended Christmas week has been resumed.

The two young old men of the City Council were elected on the board of Hospital Trustees.

Extra horses have been provided for the fire apparatus while the ground is covered with snow.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bevis of Squantum street are spending a few weeks with relatives in Halifax, N. S.

The street railway were fortunate in having no snow until they got their new plows in working order.

Mrs. Whittiker of Botolph street entertained the Botolph street whist club at her home on Friday afternoon.

The next in order will be Mayor Hall's appointments, and many will be on the anxious seat until these are made.

Mrs. Bradshaw of Billings street is ill with pneumonia. She is under the care of her daughter, Mrs. George Sherwin.

Miss Marion Macleod of Wollaston returned Monday from South Lyndeboro, N. H., where she has been spending the holidays.

And now the rubber dealers who have been patiently waiting for the snow, that did not come, can look pleasant once more.

Mr. Anderson will conduct the Friday evening prayer meeting at the usual hour at the Washington street Congregational church.

It is reported that ex-Mayor Keith, Commissioner Cavanagh and President Bryant of the City Council contemplate a trip to Cuba the first of February.

Alice Southworth Morrison of Braintree will lecture on novels and novelists at the residence of Mrs. Thayer, Willow street, Wollaston, Saturday afternoon.

Mayor Hall's recommendation, that a three way house should be built on the lot of land recently purchased at Wollaston, will please people of that section but not Atlantic.

The special committee appointed at the City Council meeting will probably be the new Finance Committee. All were members of the last City Council and legislators of experience.

The installation of Rev. Frand Wright Pratt, tonight, as pastor of the Wollaston Unitarian church will be a notable event, owing to the number of prominent clergymen who are to take part.

Mr. Charles E. Hunt of Johnson avenue was the recipient of a handsome New Year's gift in the shape of an oak Morris chair from the Commonwealth club of Weymouth of which Mr. Hunt has been a popular member.

City Clerk Harlow made a slight mistake Monday when administering the oath of office to C. A. Spear, and came very near swearing him in as City Clerk. He discovered his mistake in time however to substitute the words, Clerk of the Council.

The Journal says Quincy began on Monday her 11th year as a city, but its the 12th. Mayor Porter served two years, Mayor Fairbanks three years, Mayor Hodges two years, Mayor Adams two years, Mayor Sears and Keith one each, and now Mayor Hall the seventh Mayor is serving for the twelfth year.

Rev. Edward Anderson preached an interesting sermon on Sunday morning at Quincy Point, his subject was, "Enduring Temptation." The Christmas concert was given in the church in the evening. A duet was sung entitled "Come Ye Lotty, Come Ye Lowly," by Misses Etta French and Flora Smith.

Anniversary Club.

The Quincy Point Cribbage club held its anniversary banquet on Monday evening, Jan. 1. Owing to the increased membership of the club it was found necessary to limit the invited guests to a few friends. After a banquet which was a sumptuous one an entertainment, consisting of remarks by the guests, an original poem by a valued friend of the club, and a graphophone concert, Mr. Hosbery Sylvester was greatly enjoyed. The rooms were beautiful with their Christmas greens and the evening was a most enjoyable one for all. It is proving to be the best entertainment of the many given by this club.

BRITISHERS PLEASED

By the Minor Successes of Troops In South Africa.

Pilcher Follows the Example Set by French.

London, Dec. 3.—General French has been constantly manouvering, and has compelled the Dutch to evacuate two good positions by turning movements in place of frontal attacks. His success is due to good leadership and to the mobility of his forces. This success, in a measure, makes safer Methuen's communications, since the Colesberg Boers are pushed back to the east and no longer threaten the railroad up which Methuen's supplies must come. This line is also made safer by another British victory, just reported.

Colonel Pilcher, operating apparently from Belmont, on Methuen's line of communication, on Monday, defeated a force of Boers at Sunnyside laager, twenty odd miles northwest of Belmont and a trifle farther south of Modder River Camp, in the triangle formed by the convergence of the Reit and Orange rivers. Pilcher, with a loss of two killed and a lieutenant wounded, drove the Boers out, and took 40 prisoners, besides the wounded.

A dispatch from Dover Farm says: The colonial troops, who have been longing to be allowed to meet the Boers, have at last been given an opportunity to do so and scored a brilliant success. A raid conducted by Colonel Pilcher was very difficult, owing to the fact that the movements of the troops are usually communicated to the Boers by natives.

Upon ascertaining that the veldt on the right of the enemy was clear, Major De Rougemont ordered the guns to a trot. They arrived within 1500 yards of the laager, unlimbered and planted five shells, in as many minutes, within the laager.

Immediately the enemy could be seen streaming over the kopje. They were completely surprised, but quickly opened a well-directed fire. The British artillery shelled the position with wonderful accuracy, while Lieutenant Ryan, with mounted infantry, worked round and completely uncovered the fire of the Boers, who had been ensconced in the bushes.

Meanwhile Colonel Pilcher, with the Queenslanders, taking advantage of every cover, made a direct attack, the Australians moving slowly, but surely, and only shooting when they saw the enemy retiring under their steady fire. The Queenslanders behaved with great coolness.

During the advance the Boer fire suddenly ceased. Thirty-five Boers hoisted a white flag and surrendered. A portion of the Torontos moved across the front of the guns and entered the laager. The Boers had fled. Fourteen tents, three wagons, a great store of rifles, ammunition, forage, saddles and camp equipment and numerous incriminating papers were captured.

The Boers lost six killed and 12 wounded. The Torontos stood the galling fire with admirable patience, never wasting a shot.

General French, whose success in turning the Boer flank at Colesberg and compelling his retreat eastward, has already been chronicled, has been operating with a mobile force during the last month from Naauw Poort to protect General Methuen's line of communications by keeping the Free State force from Colesberg fully occupied. His force, while too feeble for frontal attacks upon strong positions, has been constantly in motion around Arundel, alternately advancing and falling back, but always maneuvering cautiously and skilfully.

After threatening the enemy's communication with Orange River and compelling the Dutch to retire from Rensberg, French decided upon a sudden stroke. As the story is told in late dispatches, he ordered the mounted force and artillery to advance rapidly Sunday night with the infantry in wagons behind them, and by daybreak had succeeded in turning the enemy's position at Colesberg. The infantry and batteries made a feint attack in front, while the light artillery and cavalry were massed on the right flank. The Boer camp was surprised by this unexpected night march of which it had not received warning. The Free Staters did not attempt to defend their positions, but retreated eastward, leaving Colesberg in possession of French's forces.

This exploit brings the British troops within striking distance of Norval's bridge and Bootha's drift. Apart from the occupation, Colesberg is an important border town, and if the town can be held and the bridge and drift secured, two gates leading into the Free State will be under British guard in advance of the arrival of General Roberts and the concentration of the Sixth and Seventh corps for the march upon Springfontein, the most important strategic point in the Orange republic.

The morning papers are unanimous in praising the gallantry of the Canadian and colonial troops. The Times says: The mother country will share with the Canadians and Australians in the pride and gratification they must feel at the fine qualities displayed by their troops in this dashing little engagement.

The Standard says: The Canadians and Australians had been spoiling for a fight. Now they have had their opportunity and they have greatly distinguished themselves by their coolness and discipline. From the view point of imperial unity, the little fight may be fairly described as one of the most gratifying events recorded in the recent history of the British race.

Although the continuance of minor successes gratifies the British public, it is not forgotten that the larger aspects of the campaign are unchanged. As The Daily News remarks, "It is a day of small mercies."

The importance of both General French's and Colonel Pilcher's victories lies in the effect they are likely to have upon the colonial Dutch. The latest dispatch from Douglass confirms the earlier report that the Boer laagers consisted chiefly of British subjects, who, on the arrival of the small Free State commando, accepted, probably, an invitation to throw in their lot with the Boers, thus terrorizing loyalists, who are now jubilant.

A Cape Town dispatch reports that "the rebels in the Barkly district are demoralized by the British occupation of Dordrecht." Should it turn out that the Dutch rebellion is thus being diminished, it will be a matter of great relief for the British campaign. The Standard, however, remarks: Until the Tugela has been crossed and Ladysmith relieved, it would be idle to deny that the political position in Cape Colony is one of very great danger, and, if, unhappily, General Buller is again defeated, it will be necessary to dispatch 100,000 additional men to keep the Dutch in order.

Mr. Winston Churchill's estimate that 250,000 men will be required to defeat the forces of the two republics, has been ridiculed in many quarters, but, as a matter of fact, this number is almost reached, without the extra 100,000, which The Standard foresees might be required.

Yesterday the admiralty chartered eight more large transports. When all the troops destined for South Africa join those already there, Lord Roberts will be in command of about 200,000 men. Thirty thousand are now afloat or ready to embark. Military observers, in view of what these figures mean, cannot see how the British can fail to crush the Boers by mere force of numbers.

The Lisbon correspondent of The Standard says: It is reported here that Great Britain officially acknowledged the correctness of the attitude of Portugal regarding Delagoa Bay. It is also asserted that inquiries instituted by the British consul at Lorenzo Marquez show that, since hostilities began, nothing contraband has been imported there, except barbed wire and breadstuffs.

Extra precautions have been adopted by the military authorities at Durban. The constabulary has been fully armed. The sentries from sundown to morning have been increased at the barracks. Patrols march around, and all leaves of absence are suspended.

Thanks of Congress Will Go to Every Man.

Conference on the Subject With Captains Who Squelched Cervera's Fleet.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The president has again taken up the question of rewarding the naval officers who participated in the destruction of Cervera's fleet off Santiago, and his final conclusions will be embodied shortly in recommendations to congress either in the form of a renewal of the advancement of Rear Admiral Sampson and the officers under him by numbers, with perhaps some modifications—the scheme which the senate refused to ratify last spring—or according to some other method. The secretary of the navy in his report recommended as an alternative proposition legislation on the line of a bill which provides for three classes of medals—one for conspicuous conduct in war, one for extraordinary heroism and one for general meritorious service, the first to carry with it a percentage of increase of pay, based upon the rank of the recipient and calculated to take the place of the increase which would be the result of promotion were that form of reward given.

Either method would contemplate in addition the thanks of congress to the commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron and the officers and men under his command. There also has been a suggestion of creating the grade of vice admiral for the benefit of Rear Admirals Sampson and Schley.

As a result of the Sampson-Schley controversy, the reward of all the subordinate officers in the North Atlantic squadron has been blocked up to this time, and it is the urgent desire of both the president and Secretary Long that justice be done to them, and that they obtain the rewards which they have earned.

Preliminary to the president's decision upon this course of action, the president and Secretary Long yesterday had a consultation with eight of the Santiago captains at the White House. The naval officers present were: Chadwick of the New York, Cook of the Brooklyn, Clark of the Oregon, Philip (now rear admiral) of the Texas, Evans of the Iowa, Higginson (now rear admiral) of the Massachusetts, Folger of the New Orleans and Lieutenant Commander Wainwright of the Gloucester. Rear Admiral Sampson was not present.

These commanding officers were especially invited by the president, who desired to hear from their own lips the story of the battle of Santiago, the general movements and difficulties of the campaign, including the cruise of the flying squadron in search of Cervera's fleet and their own ideas as to the method of conferring the rewards. For almost two hours the captains talked with the president, who manifested keen interest in their personal accounts of the stirring events of the south coast of Cuba. Some of the controverted questions were gone into at length.

The concensus of opinion of the naval officers, as developed at the conference, seemed to favor the method of reward recommended by Secretary Long—the conferring of medals which would carry with them a percentage of increase of pay in lieu of advancement by numbers. This would compensate for actual promotion both by giving increased pay and by giving to the recipients distinction which would mark them for future service. At the same time in some cases it would work hardship; as, for instance, in the case of Captain Clark. Despite his heroic service in bringing the Oregon around the Horn in such marvelous style and the gallant service of the Oregon in the Santiago fight, Captain Clark today is two numbers below his position at the opening of the war. This is due to the advancement of the Manila captains, whose promotions were confirmed by the senate. Captain Clark, at the conference, however, was willing that Secretary Long's plan should be adopted in order that justice might be done to the others.

The president, shortly after the reconvening of congress, will transmit his recommendations. It is not improbable that in doing so he will accompany them with a special message calling attention to the grave injustice that has been done to the commander-in-chief, officers and men of the North Atlantic squadron in so long withholding from them the rewards to which their gallant service entitles them.

Substantial Surplus Shown.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of December, 1899, the receipts were $46,759,104, as against $41,404,793 for December, 1898. The expenditures during last month were $39,145,559, as against $41,864,807 for December, 1898, which leaves a surplus for last month of $7,613,545, as against a deficit of $460,014 for December, 1898. The receipts from all sources during the last six months amount to $284,793,494, with expenditures amounting to $263,766,560, which leaves a surplus for the half year of $21,026,934, as against a deficit for the corresponding period of last year of $83,719,422.

Only Italy Has Not Replied.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Secretary Hay at the cabinet meeting yesterday made public the success of the notes which he addressed to the great powers of Europe in relation to an open door in China. He reported that all those powers, except Italy, had replied favorably, and have formally agreed to respect the Chinese treaty rights. As one cabinet officer expressed it, "the open door in China is a fact at last." Secretary Hay was warmly congratulated by the president and his colleagues on his success in this delicate diplomatic move. They regard it as a remarkable triumph for this country, and for the secretary personally.

Gallant Soldier Gone.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Major Zenas R. Bliss, U. S. A., retired, died here yesterday after an illness of some weeks. The deceased was a native of Rhode Island, and had a distinguished military service during the Civil war, being twice brevetted for gallant and meritorious services at Fredericksburg and the Wilderness. He reached the grade of major general in May, 1897, and retired a few days later at his own request, after 40 years' active service.

Big Gas Well Ablaze.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Jan. 3.—A big gas well belonging to the Mountain State Gas company of this city accidentally caught fire Monday night and all efforts to extinguish the flames have been futile. Millions upon millions of feet of gas is going to waste, and the financial loss will be enormous. The roar from the burning gas can be heard 12 miles, and the fire illuminates the whole surrounding country.

Majority Unfavorable to Roberts.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The report of the committee of the house of representatives which is investigating the case of Mr. Roberts of Utah will be made soon after congress reassembles, and there is reason to believe the majority report will recommend that Mr. Roberts be excluded from the house, and that he be not permitted under his credentials to exercise any prima facie right of being sworn in. Three of the committee are not counted on as positively favorable to the course indicated, and they may result in the submission of a minority report.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

The Ledger stated carelessly yesterday that Mr. A. L. Baker was the only Wollaston candidate for office. We overlooked ex-President Pinkham, who is prominently mentioned as a candidate for City Solicitor. He has given the city many years of valuable service, and if he is not recognized at this time it will not be long before he is.

It was a serious breach of good faith on the part of the Boston Transcript, which obtained its news from the Associated Press, to publish in advance a review of Mayor Hall's inaugural address. Mr. Hall did all he could to assist the newspapers, giving them an early copy or abstract of his address, and was entitled to better treatment.

The general impression in Quincy is that the city will be assessed heavily to meet the expense of Metropolitan parkway just taken in this city, but Park Commissioner W. B. de las Casas in his annual report to the Mayor of Boston said on Monday: The share which Boston will bear in the expenditures thus far incurred is fixed by law at fifty per cent. of the appropriation for reservations and of one-half the appropriations for boulevards and its proportionate part of the State tax, by which the remaining half of the boulevard appropriation is to be paid." It would appear from this, that Boston will pay one-half the expense of the Quincy boulevard and the State the other half. However, the Blue Hills reservation will be more accessible to Quincy, and will probably increase Quincy's portion of the cost of the reservations, which will be assessed this year.

No Mayor has shown a greater friendship for the public schools than did Mayor Hall in his inaugural address. Other Mayors have thought the appropriations for schools awfully large, and that it might be reduced, but Mr. Hall sees the necessity of increasing the amount some this year. He would provide for the school children with a generous hand. His recommendation for harmony is also worthy of consideration. He would amend the City Charter so that the Mayor should be ex-officio chairman of the School Committee. This is the situation in other cities, but it probably happens often in those cities that the Mayors have few of the qualifications necessary for chairmen of the School Committees. It would result in more changes in Quincy in the makeup of the School Board and possibly introduce politics which would be more objectionable than the financial differences. Then, again has not the Mayor of Quincy responsibilities enough?

Considerable has been heard relative to a two-way or three-way fire station. We had supposed that the terms were well understood, but the other day an ex-member of the Quincy fire department asked what was meant by three-way house?" It is simply one with three exits in front for the apparatus stationed there.

While the Beale street lot may not be the best site for central fire station on the north of City Square, it has been purchased, and we believe that the recommendation of Mayor Hall in favor of a three-way house rather than a two-way house, is a good one. We have seen in other cities too many engine houses where two pieces of apparatus had only one exit, and three or more pieces of apparatus had only two exits. In such cases, they were huddled together, and confusion and delay must have resulted, as it is not always possible for a certain piece of apparatus to be ready for fires first. Three-way houses can be erected for less than two-way houses.

The growth of Wards One, Five and Six, between City Square and Boston, will be marvelous in the next 20 years, if not in the next ten. If it was the intention to have but one piece of apparatus at Wollaston for two or three years, we believe it would be wise to build now a three-way house. If the ward room in the building is to be on the street floor, it also should have large doors in front, as it may be necessary in a few years to abandon it that the permanent district chief may be located there. A single polling place will not long suffice for a growing ward like Wollaston.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The trustees of the late D. L. Moody's schools require the modest sum of $3,000,000 to keep them going. That sum ought easily to be obtained. It will be lamentable if the life work of the dead evangelist be hampered by a lack of funds to carry it forward.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is paying liberally for a short experience in business. He has dropped some $10,000,000 in leather speculation the past few weeks, and still his paternal ancestor hasn't complained. When a young man lacks a balance wheel there is nothing more convenient for him than to be able to have his fun come C. O. D. (or, Call on Dad.—Beverly Times.

☞Colonel William J. Bryan has caught or been present at the catching of a live panther. If he isn't careful he may by and by catch a live Tartar, which is a more difficult animal to handle. Our readers will recollect the story of the soldier who called to his superior officer that he had caught a Tartar, and who when ordered to bring him in replied, "He won't let me."—New Bedford Standard.

☞Longfellow has said that "our unfinished tasks wait like mendicants at our gate." The procrastinating man expects to accomplish tomorrow the work of yesterday, and wastes today in vague plans for the future or allows himself to be turned from his work by callers or social pleasures. He has never felt the satisfaction of being abreast of his work or even of having his work well in hand. His desk is buried under an avalanche of unfinished business. He is reminded of something and wastes time in vainly looking for it. He puts off paying accounts as readily and easily as he puts off other matters, and as to paying accounts at the due date that is an act he is never guilty of. He intends to be honest, but delays the doing of it until it is too late. It seems to him that he is overwhelmed with business. He has, he complains, "no time to do anything." Not able to manage himself or his own affairs, he never becomes a successful manager of other men or the affairs of others.—Business.

Annual Meeting.

The report of the officers was encouraging and showed the lodge to be in a flourishing condition. After the regular business was transacted a number of friends of the members were admitted and were received by words of welcome by the W. M. A. Stewart; after which the State Grand Master, Arthur H. Bently, and staff was presented and installed the following officers:

After the installation speeches were made by Rev. David Kerr, Rev. W. W. Dornan, Rep. E. H. Sprague, George H. Wilson, Alexander Clark and Henry M. Storms. At 9.30 all retired to the banquet hall where tables were laden with good things for the inner man.

Reception.

Mr. Angus Beaton of Company A, 1st Infantry, is visiting his sister, Miss Sadie Beaton, and friends in Quincy.

A reception was given Mr. Beaton last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McPhee, Taber street, South Quincy, and a good time was enjoyed. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. George Main, Mr. and Mrs. John Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings, Miss Elsie Finleyson, Miss Katie McDonald, Miss Katie Bruce, Miss Mattie Campell, Miss Katie Cummings, Miss Cassie Forbes, William Soudan, Hector Gillis, D. PASTOR INSTALLED.

Mr. Horton preached an eloquent installation sermon on "The Church of the Living God" taking his text from 1 Timothy 3:15,—But if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth.

The ushers were Mr. W. E. Simmons, Mr. Charles T. Baker, Hon. H. O. Fairbanks, Mr. W. J. Wellington, Mr. W. M. Hatch, Mr. S. P. Moorhouse and Mr. E. H. Sprague.

A BAD PRECEDENT.

The Use of Schools Refused for Religious Meetings.

The organization of the School Committee of 1900 took place Tuesday evening. In the absence of Chairman Porter, Dr. Hallowell was elected temporary chairman and Miss Adams secretary.

The board then organized by the election of Charles H. Porter as chairman and Herbert W. Lull as secretary. Mr. Lull was also elected superintendent of schools for another year.

Dr. Dion was appointed as one of the temporary sub-committee of the Willard school and Mr. Merrick of the Massachusetts Fields school. Both will serve until Chairman Porter makes his appointments.

It was reported that owing to the condition of affairs near the Wollaston school building while connecting that building with the public sewer, it might be necessary to close the school for a few days.

Rev. K. T. Hendrickson, pastor of the Finnish Mission, sent in a petition asking for the use of a room on Sundays in the John Hancock or Willard school buildings, in which to hold religious services.

There was considerable opposition to the granting of the request, as it was believed it would establish a bad precedent.

The petitioner was given leave to withdraw.

Last Year in Dorchester.

If any old residents of Dorchester should visit there at the present time, standing on any high land they would find the old, familiar landmarks and farms which they knew in years past sub-divided, and in their place a large number of modern houses.

During the past year, Dorchester has kept up her wonderful record of being at the head of all Boston suburbs in the way of developing land, especially in that part devoted to private residences. In wards 20 and 24 there have been over 500 building permits issued, the greater part of which have been for private houses for business men of this city.

Practically all of the large tracts of land on which stood mansion houses, with names familiar to the old Dorchester citizens, have passed out of existence and given way to the land developer, who has generally built single or two family houses.

Dorchester is adding to her homes at the rate of 800 a year. Some of these are apartment buildings, but the greater demand is for single houses; and in many places the land is now restricted to either single or two family houses, the buildings to be certain distances apart, set back from the street, with no fences.

Speculators and cooperative banks have done much for Dorchester in the way of developing this property by assisting those unable to buy their home for cash, by making loans on properties to be paid in monthly or quarterly instalments.—Boston Globe.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

Ceremonies in the Afternoon and Evening.

Distinguished Masons Present and All Hospitably Entertained.

The M. W. Grand Lodge of Masons of Massachusetts, represented in the persons of the Grand Master M. W. Charles T. Gallagher and suite constituted Wollaston lodge, F. and A. M., and installed its officers Tuesday afternoon.

The lodge has been working the past year under the leadership of W. John F. Neill, a Past Master of the Massachusetts lodge of Boston. The charter recently issued by the Grand lodge bears the names as charter members of 36 prominent residents of Wollaston, the lodge now having 54 on its rolls.

The ceremonies of constituting the lodge commenced at 4 o'clock in the presence of a large assembly of brethren, and were conducted in accordance with the long established ritual and ceremonial of the Grand lodge.

At the installation of officers of the lodge, under the charter which followed its constitution there was inducted into office:

Worthy Master,—Albert W. Fay.
Senior Warden, — Eugene F. De Normandie.
Junior Warden,—Albert H. Sayward.
Treasurer,—Isaac W. Pinkham.
Secretary,—Alfred H. Richards.
Senior Deacon,—Theodore C. Gram.
Junior Deacon,—Henry G. Fay.
Chaplain,—Rev. Rufus B. Tobey.
Marshal,—Charles G. Farwell.
Senior Steward,—John H. Whitehead.
Junior Steward,—Samuel S. Delano.
Sentinel,—Sidney F. Copeland.
Organist,—Willie M. Wight.
Tyler,—William P. Chase.

Grand Master Gallagher, assisted by the Grand Secretary R. W. Bro. Nickerson; the Deputy Grand Master, R. W. Bro. Barbour, and the Grand Marshal, R. W. Bro. Lawrence, conducted the installation.

The vocal music incidental to both ceremonies was rendered by Bros. Jewell Boyd, L. M. Bartlett, W. B. Phillip and J. L. Thomas of the Harvard quartette.

Following the close of the lodge at 6 o'clock Wollaston lodge entertained its guests in the banquet hall.

City Hall Notes.

Mayor Hall announces that he will be at his office in City Hall every morning at 8 o'clock. He will also be at City Hall evenings. City Hall will also be open every evening. This will be a great accommodation to many citizens who desire to consult city officials but who are prevented from doing so during the regular office hours on account of their own business.

George A. Sidelinger, the newly elected City Auditor, has commenced his duties and all bills dating from January 1, will have to have his signature.

The excitement over inauguration has subsided and the business of the city is going on just as though there was no new chief executive.

In Boston Tomorrow.

Charles H. Cole, the ex-bank president of the Globe National Bank of Boston arrived in Chicago yesterday, on the California limited express. He is in the custody of Henry Z. Osborne, U. S. marshal from Los Angeles, and A. E. Brown, a U. S. secret service agent, whom the marshal has sworn as deputy.

Mrs. Cole and her son, Edward, are traveling with Mr. Cole, and the fact that the ex-bank president is under arrest has not been conspicuous enough to make the journey an unpleasant one.

Bassett—Pierce.

Mr. Will Fuller Bassett of Dorchester and Miss Mary Laura Pierce were united in marriage at the home of the bride Monday evening. The wedding was a quiet home affair and limited to the immediate family friends. Mr. and Mrs. Bassett will be at home Wednesdays in February at 1958 Dorchester avenue, Ashmont.

—The Boston Journal is earning well merited praise for its enterprise in the use of half-tone illustrations. The Journal's circulation has undoubtedly grown tremendously of late, as this new illustrated feature has been remarked by a great many people, who have until recently been constant readers of other Boston papers.

—Col. Henry A. Thomas, the ex-Postmaster of Boston, is reported to be himself again.

GOES TO NEW JERSEY

Rev. Robert Westly Peach Resigns His Pastorate.

Rev. Robert Westly Peach, pastor of the Water street Presbyterian church, took his people almost by surprise at the morning service last Sunday by reading a letter resigning his pastorate over the church and supplementing the letter with the request that his resignation take effect as early as possible, as he had received and accepted a call to a church in New Jersey. No action has as yet been taken by the church people on his resignation, but a meeting has been called for January 9, at which time it will be considered; and although they regret that he has surrendered his pastorship over the church, his resignation will probably be accepted.

Rev. Mr. Peach is a native of Illinois. He was educated in the University of Missouri, the United States Military Academy and Boston University and was graduated from the Philadelphia Divinity school. His first pastorate was the Trinity church, Ashtabula, Ohio, where he was ordained and settled in the pastorate in June 1891. In 1893 he accepted a call as associate pastor in active charge of the church on the corner of Dartmouth and Harwich streets, Boston, and remained there until he came to Quincy in December, 1894.

He is an earnest and successful worker, and has been always ready to cooperate with other clergymen in every union effort. He has done much toward the upbuilding of the Water Street church, which has thrived and prospered under his pastorate. He has been a faithful worker in the cause of temperance, and has done much toward securing a no-license vote.

Work For Cuban Commissions.

Havana, Jan. 3.—General Wood had a busy day yesterday with the public officials and the members of the conference of representative Cubans. The conference will be in session three days. General Wood believes that each department should have power to do a very important work. He will appoint a commission to deal with each subject requiring, in his judgment, special consideration. The duty of these commissions will be to get the affairs of the island upon a practical working basis of self-government.

—A fearful blizzard raged in western New York yesterday. There are drifts on the Pennsylvania road between Mayville and Silver Creek ten feet deep, and travel is blocked.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS

What Abutters Must Pay Toward the Sewer.

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

Men who are always in a hurry, and most men are, want a soap for the toilet that will lather quickly and freely in hot or cold water. Other soaps than Ivory may have this quality, but will likely contain alkali, which is injurious to the skin. Ivory Soap is made of pure vegetable oils, no alkali, produces a white, foamy lather, that cleanses thoroughly and rinses easily and quickly. Money cannot buy a better soap for the toilet.

The Magazines.

In order to adapt it more closely to the wants of the general public, and to make it more than ever before the medium of readable and trustworthy information on scientific subjects, the publishers of Appletons' Popular Science Monthly inaugurate with this number, several marked changes in the magazine which will commend themselves to all classes of readers. In the first place, the price is lowered to twenty-five cents. In the next place, the topics discussed are to be given a broader range. A third feature of the new departure will be the employment of distinguished specialists as writers. Prof. Charles E. Munroe treats of the applications of explosives, which in a variety of forms are now doing their deadly work in war; and there is also a timely article on the destructive effects of vagrant electricity, by Hubert S. Wynkoop, electrician to the Department of Municipal Lighting in Brooklyn.

The frontispiece of the New England Magazine for January is a reproduction of Smibert's portrait of Peter Faneuil, accompanying an article on Faneuil Hall, the gift of this wealthy Huguenot merchant to the town of Boston. The author of the article, Mr. Abram English Brown has here collected an abundance of interesting meterial concerning the historic associations clustering about the "Cradle of Liberty," and his paper is fully illustrated. Mrs. Isabel C. Barrows writes of "Ellen Johnson and the Sherborn Prison," and Mr. S. E. Bridgman describes the city of Northampton, Massachusetts.

Purchase of Bonds Decreased Debt.

Washington, Jan. 3.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business Dec. 30, 1899, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,134,300,007, a decrease for the month of $5,791,894. This decrease is largely accounted for by the purchase of bonds during the month.

A Mississippi Mixup.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 3.—News has just reached here of a fatal fight which occurred at a turkey shooting. Jim Noble and Irwin Pugate were killed, while Jerry Noble was shot in the mouth and seriously wounded. No arrests have been made.

No Water to Run Mills.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 3.—Six thousand operatives in the mills of this city were thrown out of employment yesterday because of the low water in the river.

An Exclusive Book.

The "Almanach de Gotha" is the most exclusive book of its kind, and perhaps of any kind in the world, and to get one's name in its pages implies that one is either an exalted personage or something very much like it. And of those whose names appear very few are able to boast of having a portrait between its select and scarlet covers.—London Letter.

Why He Hurried.

"Young man," said the old gentleman, "my daughter is too young to marry. A girl of her age cannot be sure of her own mind in a matter of such importance."

"I fully realize that," replied the young man, who had just secured the fair one's consent. "That's why I don't want to wait."—Chicago Post.

ORNISH'S PAST LIFE

ritated by Searching Questions by Counsel Weeks.

ced to Acknowledge Certain Discrepancies In His Previous Testimony.

New York, Jan. 3.—The trial of Roland Molineux opened yesterday with the oss-examination of Harry Cornish unished. Those interested in the case lieve that Bartow S. Weeks has some rprise in store for the prosecution. ssistant District Attorney Osborne es not admit that such can be the case, it it is apparent, nevertheless, that he more watchful of the legal tactics of e defense that he has been before. r. Weeks started in yesterday asking ornish about the hour of his return ome from the Knickerbocker Athletic ub on the night of Dec. 27, 1898. Corsh acknowledged he was mistaken in revious testimony as to the hour. The ithess was compelled to run a gauntlet questions regarding his relations with e various members of the household of rs. Adams.

Cornish testified that he could not remember who first told him that Mrs. ogers, the daughter of Mrs. Adams, ad separated from her husband. He aid that he went to Chicago in 1893, and hat his wife obtained a divorce from im in March, 1897. Under a severe ross-examination he admitted that he new a Mrs. Small; that she had died in 94; that her real name was Mrs. Patrson; that he had sent the woman to a ospital before she died, and that he had aid the expenses incurred in connection ith her burial. Cornish, apparently ritated by the searching questions sked by Mr. Weeks, retorted, "You ught to know all about that. The physician told your detectives all about it."

Mr. Weeks asked Cornish if he had one to Chicago to find out about what he detectives had done. Cornish acknowledged that he had. Cornish was losely questioned concerning his visit o the office of Mr. Yocum, whom Cornish tyled his "best friend." He was asked s to the route he took in going from focum's office uptown on Dec. 23. This ine of questioning was significant, as it leveloped the fact that Cornish passed he general postoffice, and that he had hus been given the opportunity of mailing the poison package himself. Cornish never flinched, but acknowledged being in that vicinity on the afternoon of the day before he received the fatal package.

Mr. Weeks next made the witness acknowledge discrepancies co[illegible] time of the re[illegible] concerning the [illegible] kept of the bromo seltzer, also errors in his statements to the newspapers as to the manner in which he was dressed at the Adams apartments on the morning of the murder. Cornish also acknowledged that at one time he thought Felix J. Gallagher wrote the Harpster letter. When interrogated regarding certain statements given out to the reporters Cornish said that he had searched for manifold copies and notes at the clubhouse, but they had been stolen. He denied offering to sell to a representative of the New York Journal for $1000 a story as to who sent the poison, but he acknowledged meeting the representative for the purpose of ascertaining who first gave Molineux's name to The Journal.

Mr. Weeks got the witness to acknowledge that in 1897 he wore a white alpine hat with a black band, but he denied wearing a hat of this character during 1898. These questions were regarded as significant chiefly because of the fact that a person wearing a hat of this description is known to have rented a private letter box and received letters which have figured in this case. Cornish testified that the connection between the poison package address and the handwriting of Molineux was first mentioned by John D. Adams. He denied purchasing works on chemistry in December, 1898.

Assistant District Attorney Osborne again took Cornish in hand, and asked him whether he had ever heard Mr. Carvalho, the handwriting expert, say that Cornish could not have written the poison package address. Cornish said that he could not remember. When Cornish said that the poison box had been tied with a string Juror Edgar remarked that it must have been transported as open mail matter. Mr. Osborne thanked the juror for the suggestion, and added that he would endeavor to follow it up.

Harry A. King, a broker, was next called to the stand. He testified that Cornish showed him the Christmas present which he thought had been sent by a friend, that he went to the watercooler, intending to take a dose of the bromo-seltzer; that he found no water in the cooler and gave up the attempt.

The day's proceedings wound up with medical testimony, which the prosecution had heretofore kept in the background. Coroner's Physician Albert T. Weston, who performed the autopsy upon the body of Mrs. Adams, told in detail the story of the post mortem. Mr. Weeks cross-examined the witness at great length. He elicited the fact that Dr. Weston had not made a microscopic examination of any part of the body of Mrs. Adams, though the physician himself acknowledged the importance of this.

Mr. Osborne, on the re-direct examination, took advantage of the cross-examination of Mr. Weeks to bring in the name of H. C. Barnet. Mr. Weeks strongly objected, but despite his efforts Recorder Goff allowed the witness to testify that the last hydrocyanic autopsy which he had performed had been upon the body of Henry Cressman Barnet at Greenwood cemetery on Feb. 28, 1899. Mr. Weeks continued his pleadings with the recorder and his objections until Mr. Osborne remarked that he would desist and let the witness go. Court

MILITARY OFFICIALS MISSING.

Alleged Crooked Deal in Michigan Has Assumed a Sensational Phase.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 3.—Neither ex-Quartermaster General White of Grand Rapids, nor Adjutant General Marsh of Allegan can be found, and it is alleged they have left the state. General White left his home in Grand Rapids last Friday, ostensibly for Chicago, to spend New Year's with his mother. He was expected back home yesterday. Instead White sent a letter to one of his associates, saying he might not be heard of for several months, and asking that his business affairs be settled up. In the letter he protested his innocence of anything wrong, but declared he was being made a scapegoat for others in the alleged crooked military deal, and could not hope to stand up under the burden. Sheriff Porter was in Allegan looking for General Marsh, and was informed by his family that he had gone to Battle Creek. Marsh, apparently, cannot be found there, but his attorney declares that he will be here soon, with bondsmen. White is bonded for $50,000 in the Fidelity Bond and Casualty company of Baltimore.

The alleged crooked deal was the alleged sale of over $50,000 worth of state property by the state military board to the "Illinois Supply company" for $10,000, and the alleged re-purchase of the same from the Henderson-Ames company of Kalamazoo, for about $50,000.

Stolen Diamonds Located.

Pittsburg, Jan. 3.—Jerome Doscio, a jeweler of Washington, came here yesterday and identified Charles E. Hoyt, now under arrest, as a member of the gang which robbed his store of a tray of diamonds valued at $3000. Hoyt was brought to Pittsburg from Boston last Saturday and is supposed to have been implicated in the diamond robbery at A. E. Seidle's store in this city, in which a tray of diamonds was stolen. Hoyt said the diamonds were in a "fence" in Brooklyn, but denied complicity in the robbery.

County Books Missing.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—A special to The Times-Herald from Indianapolis says: Sensational developments have come in Shelby county with the retirement of County Treasurer Wilson and the installation of Treasurer Lee as his successor. All the books of the office for three years and six months prior to last June are missing, and Mr. Wilson says he does not know what has become of them. The corresponding b[illegible]s of the auditor for the same period are missing. It is said $125,000 is unaccounted for.

Broker In Bad Scrape.

Montreal, Jan. 3.—James Baxter, a well-known money broker here, is under arrest, charged with aiding and abetting James Herbert, the defaulting teller of the defunct Ville Marie bank, to escape. Herbert was up for examination yesterday, and the evidence developed the fact that Baxter had been paying Herbert money to maintain himself in hiding. The case promises to be sensational.

To Appeal to America.

Brussels, Jan. 3.—Senator Lejeune, former minister of justice, and now member of the council of state; former Senator LaFontaine and other leading members of the Universal League of Peace have convoked a meeting in favor of appealing to the United States government to offer to mediate in the South African war.

But One Survivor.

St. John's, Jan. 3.—Schooner Puritan was driven ashore on Cabot island in a heavy gale Monday, and eight out of her crew of nine were lost. Six were married men with families. The survivor broke his arm. It is feared that other disasters will be chronicled within a day or two, as the results of the same gale.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The area of high pressure, central in Texas, covers nearly the whole United States, and will dominate the weather for the next 48 hours. Fair weather will prevail in all districts, with slowly rising temperatures. Fresh westerly winds, diminishing, will prevail on the north Atlantic coast.

Shortage In Postal Accounts.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 3.—John J. Whittier, superintendent of station A, a branch of the Worcester postoffice, has been suspended, pending an investigation into the receipts of the station. There is a shortage in his accounts which will amount to about $1000. Whittier has been in charge of the station since its foundation and was considered an honest, faithful man. The stealing has been going on for about three months. The defalcation was discovered by Postmaster Greene.

Democratic Discord.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The early meetings of the Boston common council are expected to be full of excitement owing to a division among the Democratic majority and the contention of one faction that Councilman Kiley was not legally chosen president of the body. Mr. Kiley expects a contest to oust him from the chair as presiding officer, and in his own behalf he says he has abundant authority to prove his right to sit there.

The Whallen Bribery Case.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 3.—John H. Whallen, who is accused by Senator Marrell of having attempted to bribe him by offering him $4500 to vote against Goebel in the gubernatorial contest, has given bond in $10,000. The Louisville Trust company officers refused to turn over to the authorities the safety box in which the money is said to be deposited, and Judge Cantrill issued attachments.

Portuguese Parliament Opened.

Lisbon, Jan. 3.—The cortes was opened yesterday. The message from the throne spoke of the cordiality of Portugal's relations with other powers. No mention was made of Great Britain and the Transvaal.

BAY STATE LEGISLATURE.

Members Meet and Are Sworn In—Adjournment Until Governor's Inauguration.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The state legislature of 1900 assembled at 11 o'clock this morning, the two branches meeting in their respective chambers, where the members were sworn in by Governor Wolcott. In the senate Rufus A. Soule of New Bedford, the senior senator, presided, while Samuel R. Twombly of Winchester, who was a member of the house of 1871, called that body to order.

After the oaths of office were administered, both branches proceeded to organize for the year, the senate electing George E. Smith of Everett as president, while James J. Myers of Cambridge, who received the nomination at the Republican caucus, was elected speaker of the house.

The election of the clerks of the respective bodies, as well as chaplains and sergeant-at-arms, followed, after which both bodies adjourned until tomorrow, when Governor-elect Crane will be inaugurated in the presence of a joint convention of both branches.

The legislature this year will have many important measures before it, the principal one being the approval of the lease of the Boston and Albany railroad to the New York Central.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about 1-4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

One Defendant Convicted.

Boston, Jan. 3.—Miss Nellie Hanlon was arrested by officers of division four, upon the charge of streetwalking, and was acquitted by the magistrate before whom she was arraigned. Miss Hanlon thereupon preferred charges against five officers, and produced a number of witnesses, who testified to her good character. The decision of the police board, announced yesterday, exonerates all the defendants except Patrolman James G. Hogsett, who is dismissed from the force, having been found guilty upon the fifth count of Miss Hanlon's complaint, which charges the officers with overstating certain circumstances and data, with a view to convicting her, and that "they did not tell the truth."

Blackburn Returned to the Senate.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 3.—After four years of retirement, former Senator Blackburn was chosen last night by the joint caucus of the Democratic members of the legislature as the successor of Senator William Lindsay in the United States senate. The caucus was called to order by Senator Goebel. Senator Thomas asked that the roll be called so that every Democratic member might have an opportunity to go on record for Blackburn. Senators Alexander and Hayes failed to respond to their names. Otherwise the vote was unanimous.

Death to Be Investigated.

Boston, Jan. 3.—The death of Mrs. Margaret Woods, 70 years of age, who, it is claimed, died at her home, 276 Bolton street, yesterday, under suspicious circumstances, is being investigated by the police, and Michael J. Spellane, son of the dead woman, is under detention, pending a thorough inquiry. A physician, who was called to Mrs. Woods' home found her in a dying condition, and his efforts to aid her were futile. Her face was badly bruised, and the police were notified that the case was one that should be investigated by the medical examiner. Spellane is a son by a former marriage.

Not a Presidential Candidate.

Washington, Jan. 3.—Senator Allen of Nebraska, in an interview last night, authorized an absolute denial of reports that he would be a candidate for the presidency of a part of the fusion forces. He said: "I would not accept the nomination if it were unanimously tendered to me. Mr. Bryan undoubtedly will be the candidate of the Democratic, Populist and Free Silver parties for the presidency. Nebraska will give him a united, active delegation to all three of the conventions."

Destruction of Coin Dies.

Philadelphia, Jan. 3.—The work of demolishing the steel dies that coined the output of the United States mints during 1899 was commenced yesterday in the blacksmith shop of the mint here. Exactly 1070 dies, representing the money coined in this city, were destroyed. The dies used at the New Orleans mint will be rendered useless today. Those from San Francisco have not yet arrived. Every die used by the United States mints is engraved and destroyed in this city.

TUG RESOLUTE SUNK

Government Boat Collided With Swatara In Boston Harbor.

Twenty-Five People Aboard When Disaster Came.

All Except Engineer Ottobine Were Picked Up by Boats Near at Hand.

Boston, Jan. 4.—The United States tug Resolute, which runs between this city and Fort Warren, was sunk in a collision with the Reading Coal company's tug Swatara in the harbor last night. All on board the Resolute were saved, except the engineer, Henry Ottobine, who was drowned.

When the Resolute left her berth on Atlantic avenue on her regular trip to Fort Warren there were 25 persons on board, including the crew. Captain Loring took the customary route and had proceeded as far as buoy 9. He passed the steamer Putnam, inward bound, from Lynn, on the starboard side, and was heading over to the other side of the channel next to Governor's island when he met the Swatara, which was adjusting compasses preparatory to taking a tow of three empty barges to Philadelphia.

The steel bow of the Swatara penetrated the wooden side of the Resolute, and the latter began to settle immediately. The Swatara succeeded in saving a number of the passengers and crew, while the tug Irving Ross, which chanced to be in the vicinity, hastened to the rescue and picked up the others. Tug Catawissa also went to the assistance of the Resolute's passengers, but they had all been rescued before her arrival, with the exception of Engineer Ottobine. The Ross transferred the rescued people to the Catawissa, and the latter boat conveyed them to Fort Warren.

When the Resolute went down 11 of the party were thrown into the water, including eight women, but none of them lost their presence of mind and so were easily assisted in keeping afloat by the men. They were rescued in a very few minutes, and word from the fort at a late hour was to the effect that none of them is likely to suffer from the immersion in the water.

Captain Day of the Putnam, which reached her berth at the Atlas stores at 6 p. m., brought the first intelligence of the disaster to the city. He stated that he passed the Resolute just inside of No. 9 buoy, after exchanging the usual salutes. He took his course inshore, while the Resolute headed for the farther side of the channel. The Putnam had hardly passed when the Resolute and Swatara came together with a terrific crash. The old wooden hull of the former was crushed in like paper. She went down within a few minutes just south of buoy 9, where she now lies entirely submerged.

An investigation into the circumstances leading up to the collision will probably be begun at once. Captain Loring is well known as a careful navigator and is perfectly familiar with the waters of the harbor and bay. The Swatara is commanded by Captain Beers, an old employe of the Philadelphia and Reading line.

Engineer Henry Ottobine, who was lost, had been on the Resolute since she entered the government service 20 years ago, and was a fireman on the boat for four years. He was 50 years old, and leaves an invalid wife and daughter, who live in Chelsea.

The Resolute was one of the oldest vessels in the service of the quartermaster's department. She was of wood, and registered 70 tons. Her dimensions were: Length, 87 feet 3 inches; beam, 18 feet 6 inches; depth, 8 feet. She was built in Philadelphia in 1875.

Bribery Case in Court.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 4.—The legislative bribery case was before Judge Cantrell yesterday. Officers of the Louisville Trust company had been ruled for contempt for refusing to turn over to the court the box said to contain $4500 to be paid by Whallen to Senator Harrell if he voted against Goebel in the contest case. President Loving of the trust company admitted that Whallen, Harrell and Ryan rented a box and put something in it, but alleged that this is private property. Judge Cantrell ruled that the box must be brought to court. The officers of the trust company were then ordered before the grand jury to give testimony in the case.

An Opponent of Imperialism.

New York, Jan. 4.—The World today quotes Andrew Carnegie as saying that he will not contribute a dollar to the Republican national campaign fund if the party declares for a policy of imperialism. Mr. Carnegie also is said to have remarked: "We have no business either in morals or politics to take and keep the Philippines."

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—Until all danger of a spread of the plague prevalent in Honolulu is past, the transports leaving this port for the Philippines will not stop there, as has been the general custom, but will go straight through to their destination, taking sufficient coal with them from here to last the entire trip.

GOVERNOR CRANE.

Inauguration Services Today at the State House.

Boston, Jan. 4.—At 11 o'clock today the two branches of the legislature—the house and the senate—assembled for the purpose of inaugurating Governor-elect Winthrop Murray Crane and Lieutenant Governor-elect John Lewis Bates. The house and senate assembled in their respective chambers, and the committees appointed to canvass the returns of the recent election then announced officially that Crane and Bates are governor and lieutenant governor for the year 1900. A committee of the house and senate was appointed, President Smith of the senate presiding over the two bodies in joint convention, notifying the governor and lieutenant governor of their election, and that the house and senate were awaiting their presence. The committee returned and reported, after which Captain Adams, with his staff of office, proceeded to the executive chamber and led the new state rulers to the hall of the house of representatives. They were accompanied by the justices of the supreme and superior courts, the staff, which this year is a military one, and following this pageant came the invited guests. Governor Crane read his inaugural address, after which both branches held separate sessions.

"A WIDE AWAKE RACE."

London, Jan. 4.—The Times, in an editorial this morning, dealing with the action of the United tSates government with regard to the "open door" in China, says:

In this matter America has shown her customary shrewdness. Nowhere will the result be hailed with greater satisfaction than in Great Britain. Nowhere will the particulars of the arrangement made be awaited with deeper interest than here.

Our cousins are a wide-awake race. They perceived that the trade privileges they enjoyed in Manchuria and the orders given by Russia for railway material and the like were for obvious reasons of a temporary nature. They recognized that the powers averse to the "open door" encouraged American trade only because they could not themselves supply the commodities needed.

The position of the United States was clearly precarious, and she sagaciously resolved to render it secure, or as secure as assurances could make it. America is the last power in the world to have gone to the trouble of getting paper assurances and then allowing them to remain paper assurances only. If she has obtained them, she will see that they are observed, and in this she will get the unfailing support of the country which initiated the "open-door" policy.

Profitable Raid on Mongolians.

Boston, Jan. 4.—The novelty about a raid on a "policy shop" on Harrison avenue yesterday was the seizure of the most extensive Chinese policy layout ever exhibited in the country, including a box containing 50,000 policy slips and 50,000 plays. The officers also found the block and mallet used to cut holes in the slips. This part of the parapharnalia has never before been seized in this country. Eight Chinese were arrested.

Challenge With Proviso.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 4.—Tom Sharkey last night received a challenge from James Jeffries to fight 20 rounds within 30 days, the winner to take all, provided Tom O'Rourke is excluded from Sharkey's corner. Sharkey said he was glad of an opportunity to fight Jeffries on the terms stated, but would insist that George Siler should not referee the fight.

Earthquake's Terrible Ravages.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 4.—The latest reports from Achalkalek, in the government of Tiflis, show that 600 lives were lost during the earthquakes which visited that district on Monday.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

It has been clearly proven in the past year that the jealously in the army and navy exceeds for virulence that of the country choir.—Norwich Bulletin.

It has been wisely remarked that the low value the Almighty places upon wealth is indicated by the kind of people he gives it to. Many a rascal has money, but ability and character, combined only come by years of attainment and culture.—Beverly Times.

The nation should raise a great and impressive monument over the 151 Maine martyrs who are entombed in Arlington National cemetery. From that fatal hour of doom in Havana harbor dates the most momentous change that has yet swept over the political system of the federal union—the transition from a continental republic to a world empire. — Philadelphia Record.

The efforts of the different church societies of Brockton to secure the best obtainable musical talent for special services is highly commendable. It is a noticeable fact that the churches where the best music is advertised draw the largest number of attendants, and anything which has a tendency to draw people to church on any pretext is certainly conducive of much good.—Brockton Times.

Sleighing and Skating.

It is a nice clear day after one of the coldest mornings of the season—two above zero. There are thousands in Boston and vicinity enjoying the snow and ice. The sleighing is very nice on the boulevards, in the Back Bay district and many are enjoying it. Commonwealth avenue and Blue Hill boulevard is so full of handsome turnouts one can scarcely move about.

The city of Boston had snow ploughs, sweepers and scrapers at work yesterday clearing the snow from the skating surfaces at Franklin Park, Jamaica Pond, Wood Island Park and Neponset, and this afternoon the crowds enjoying the glassy ice is estimated by thousands.

Franklin Park is the most popular place, where the crowd this afternoon was estimated at 5,000.

The skating area on Hancock street, Neponset, has been largely increased by the building of new dykes and now has nearly twice as much skating surface as last year. The ice is sound and hard.

—Rev. Merrill C. Ward has been appointed honorary secretary of the National Reform Bureau, which has headquarters at 210 Delaware avenue, N. E., Washington, D.C. The Reform Bureau has been the most effective agent in securing much of the moral legislation by Congress the past few years; such as, the abolition of the bar at the Capitol, the anti-canteen law, anti-lottery laws, anti-gambling law, restrictive divorce measures, raising age of consent in District of Columbia and the territories, etc. The work of the Reform Bureau under the admirable leadership of Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts merits the support of every Christian citizen.

Officers Elected.

The following were elected as directors of the Mt. Wollaston bank at the annual stockholders meeting Tuesday: Charles Howland, Horace B. Spear, Abner Packard, Herbert F. Doble, George H. Field, Lester M. Pratt, Henry M. Faxon, George J. Richards, George W. Morton.

—Real estate in Boston increased $36,575,800 in valuation the past year. Millions of dollars' worth of city property changed hands.

ANNUAL SUPPER.

Election of Officers and Financial Report of Christ Church.

The women of Christ church provided bountifully for the annual supper of the church on Wednesday evening, and a large number assembled in the parish house to enjoy the feast. Attendants of many of the other Quincy churches were included among the guests. The menu included turkey, tongue, ham and other cold meats all deliciously cooked, tempting salads, rolls, celery, pickles, etc., cake in great variety, coffee and chocolate, etc.

After the supper, Miss Thatcher of the School of Oratory was very successful in entertaining with readings, favoring her audience with a half dozen or more selections. Mr. Bradford interspersed these with instrumental music.

At the annual meeting of the corporation of Christ church held during the evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Wardens,—George H. Brown and C. Theodore Hardwick.

Treasurer,—John E. Sprague.

Clerk,—James Smith, Jr.,

Vestrymen,—Walter E. Burke, Frank F. Crane, Solomon Fuller, Thomas E. Furnald, Henry C. Hallowell, Evan E. Leigh, Lewis E. Lothrop, Edwin E. Newcomb, Elisha Packard and Hazen E. Ricker.

Delegates to Conventions—George H. Brown, Solomon Fuller and Stephen E. Wilson.

The annual report of John E. Sprague the treasurer shows receipts of $4,176.45 and expenditures of $4,106.17. The receipts included $1895.35 from pew rents, $1346.79 from weekly pledges and collections, and about $500 in dividends, interest and gifts. The expenditures included $1,500 to rector, $760.87 to organist, choir boys and for music, $300 to sexton, $306.96 for coal and wood, etc. The loans and unpaid bills amount to $1,148.60 which will be offset in part by unpaid pew rents, etc., leaving a deficit of $495.57.

Reception.

A vacant chair at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Neal of Braintree, and another in Quincy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Prescott Bigelow, was made Nov. 15, 1899, by the marriage of Ruby Carol Neal to John Prescott Bigelow, Jr. The knot was tied by the Rev. C. H. Pennoyer of the First Universalist church of Braintree.

Wednesday evening, Jan. 3, a wedding reception was held from eight until ten o'clock the home of the happy couple, 66 Sydney street, Savin Hill.

Hatch's orchestra of four pieces furnished music and the happy couple were assisted in receiving by their parents, and Shelley A. and Moulton Neal ushered the guests.

The house was completely filled with friends, who came from Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Randolph, Brockton, Jamaica Plain, Charlestown and Boston. Mr. Bigelow is a member of the Good Templars, of Quincy, and a large delegation from that lodge was present.

Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow were the recipients of a great many beautiful and costly presents among them being a handsome banquet lamp from the Good Templars.

Ices and cake were served during the evening and guests were presented with wedding cake on their departure. New Year's greetings and best wishes were extended to the happy couple.

SKINNER---SLADE.

Quincy Young Lady Becomes Bride of Western Gentleman.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Slade at Quincy Point was in holiday attire on Wednesday evening, Christmas greens and holly being profusely used in all the rooms. The occasion was the wedding of their eldest daughter, Miss Amy Florence and Mr. Wilhelm Ernest Skinner, of Chicago, son of the late Rev. George W. Skinner, at one time pastor of the First Universalist church of this city.

Only the immediate family were present at the ceremony which was solemnized at half-past seven by Rev. Ellery Channing Butler of the First Unitarian church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Helen Mildred Slade and the groom by his cousin, Mr. John Adams Thayer, of New York. The wedding march was from Lohengrin and was played by Mr. James Francis Harlow, organist of First church. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bride wore a very handsome gown of ivory satin, trimmed with duchesse lace, and her maid of honor looked charming in a rose crepe, with yoke of honiton lace.

A reception from eight to ten followed the ceremony, attended by the intimate friends of the family. Mr. and Mrs. Skinner were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Slade, parents of the bride and the bride's sister Miss Helen Slade. The ushers were, James H. Slade, Jr., and Charles P. Slade brothers of bride, and Walter W. Slade and Arthur W. Slade, cousins of the bride.

Hon. George Fred Williams of Dedham and Hon. and Mrs. Henry F. Naphen were expected to be present. Mr. Naphen is congressman from this district and was obliged to be at his post at Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Skinner are to reside at 1105 West Adams street, Chicago, where they will be at home after March first.

SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Gay of Newcomb Place Celebrate.

It was twenty-five years ago Wednesday that Miss Josie Lovell of North Weymouth became the bride of Mr. John S. Gay, a well known young man of Quincy. Time flies rapidly and as year after year slipped quietly by, the ties of love that bound these two young hearts together have been cemented more closely together.

It was to celebrate the passing of the silver milestone in their wedded life, that the near relatives gathered Wednesday evening, at their residence on Newcomb place. The air without was cold and cutting, but within all was warmth and sunshine, made more bright by the presence of the nieces, who were perhaps looking forward to the time when they too would be celebrating their silver anniversary.

A wedding supper was the first matter to demand the attention of the guests, who needed no second invitation to partake of the many good things that had been set before them. Then came music, both vocal and instrumental, games and other pastimes, which made the evening hours seem all too short, but as cars are said to wait for no man, and it was rather cold for a long walk, it was with reluctance that the guests bade their host and hostess good night with a wish of a Happy New Year and the hope that they might be spared to celebrate their golden anniversary twenty-five years hence.

Death of Mrs. McNish.

Sarah I. Allison was born in Quincy, Mass., on the first day of March 1867, where she spent the most of her life. She died, Tuesday, Dec. 26, 1899, at 11.30 A. M., near Bethel church, Logan county, Ill.

She was married at her new home in Illinois, April 7 1897, to William J. McNish, and leaves to mourn her loss, a kind and loving husband, an only child Jennie S., about 11 months old, two brothers William and James, who with their sister Kate, live in Quincy, Mass., and her sister Mary, living in New Haven, Conn.

Her last illness was of short duration, and perhaps caused by attending her mother's funeral at her old home in Massachusetts, five or six weeks ago.

The funeral occurred on Saturday morning Dec. 30, at 11 o'clock, Dr. Tinnon of Lincoln, officiating. Interment was in the Bethel cemetery.

Mrs. McNish spent a happy Christmas with her husband and child, little thinking that before another setting sun, she would be cold in death. Dr. Taylor and Dr. Higby did all in their power to save her from that cruel reaper, called death, but all in vain, as the case, sad in nature, was beyond the control of human hands.

The bereaved family and relatives have the entire sympathy of each and every one in this time of trouble and affliction.—Emden News.

CHEMIST YOCUM TESTIFIES.

Says the Process of Making Cyanide of Mercury Is Very Easy.

New York, Jan. 4.—Testifying in the trial of Cornish, who called in the Molineux trial yesterday. He said he had known Cornish since 1896. He had had a room in Mrs. Rogers' house at Sixty-sixth street and Park avenue. On Dec. 23, the day of Mrs. Adams' death, witness saw Cornish in his (witness') office. "He looked so pale that I made a remark about his appearance. He told me of Mrs. Adams' death. He stayed about half an hour and then we went out and had a drink. It did not set well on his stomach and he threw it off at once. It was milk and whisky. I gave him the key to my room and told him to go there and lie down."

Mr. Yocum, who is a chemist, told the court that any chemist could make cyanide of mercury, the poison which is alleged to have caused the death of Mrs. Adams. He had made it himself, and the process was easy. He took prussian blue and yellow oxide of mercury, boiled them together, filtered the mass and the precipitate contained cyanide of mercury. Still other drugs would yield cyanide of mercury. All of the drugs required were what is known as "dry colors." Molineux, it will be remembered, was superintendent of a dry color factory in Newark. Yocum testified that any man known as a chemist could procure the ingredients of cyanide of mercury, even without registering his name.

Alvin A. Harpster, who has figured in the case as a friend of Cornish and an object of Molineux's hate, had been expected to give important testimony as to Molineux's ill-will toward Cornish, but his examination yesterday developed nothing important.

Andre Bustanoby, an employe of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, and who had been, he said, "very friendly" with Molineux, testified that when the facsimile of the poison package address was published he recognized the handwriting as that of Molineux, and told Secretary Adams of the club of the discovery.

Other witnesses were policemen who were connected with the case after the murder; clerks in patent medicine houses who handled the "Cornish" and Barnet letters alleged to have been written by Molineux, and members of the Knickerbocker Athletic club to whom Cornish had shown his Christmas present, whose contents afterward killed Mrs. Adams. Their testimony built up the case of the prosecution. Some of them were not cross-examined.

Regarding a telegram received by Recorder Goff during the proceedings in the trial yesterday, The World says: Edward F. Rogers, husband of Mrs. Adams' daughter, sent the telegram from Jersey City to Recorder Goff. In it Mr. Rogers said that, while he does not volunteer as a witness, he resents and denies Cornish's statement under oath that he met Cornish in Hartford one day last week and bowed to him, or met him anywhere else and recognized his existence. Mr. Rogers declares that he has not laid eyes on Cornish for two years. Two years ago Rogers and his wife separated and have since been living apart.

GARRISON WEAKENING.

Colesberg Apparently Not Yet Occupied by French.

War Office and Headquarters In Danger of Tremendous Shaking Up.

London, Jan. 4.—There will be a deepened sense of anxiety respecting Ladysmith, whence most disheartening reports of the prevalence of sickness and shortage of food are received. General White reports a list of nearly 20 deaths from enteric fever and dysentery, and 71 serious cases in the hospital. Dr. Jameson has all the work he can do in that fever nest.

It seems evident that the garrison cannot hold out many weeks and that General Buller cannot allow many days to pass before striking a fresh blow for the relief of the beleaguered town. Transports with fresh battalions and batteries arrived at Durban Monday, and by the latter part of the week Buller ought to be able to make a supreme effort. As the Tugela river is again fordable and the stretcher-bearers have again been requisitioned at Durban and Pietermaritzburg, there is some reason to believe that the British advance will not be long delayed.

There are many dispatches of minor interest from General Buller's camp, but no details indicating the direction of the next attack. Scouting has evidently improved, for the Hussars, Thorneycroft's horse and other patrols are described as having brushes with the enemy. The naval guns remain in constant practice, but the Boer guns are silent.

There is a complete absence of anything new from the seat of war. The report of the Boer attack upon Molteno is not yet confirmed. Apparently General French holds nothing within five miles of Colesberg Junction. His request for reinforcements dispels any hope that he will be able to seize one of the crossings of the Orange river.

It appears that General French's clever surprise of the Boers and his successful skirmish with them near Colesberg was not the decisive victory that the dispatches of Tuesday would seem to indicate. The facts seem to be that the Boers did not suffer so severely as reported, but during the darkness rallied and turned on the British, attacking them the next day with their supposed crippled guns, some of which were evidently those that General Gatacre lost at Stormberg. The fighting continued all day Tuesday, and according to the latest dispatches, the Boers were again compelled to retreat, leaving the British in a position commanding Colesberg. General French's dispatch does not detail his movements later than 2 p. m., Jan. 1, and the final issue from the official view of the movement is unknown.

From a source which has many facilities for gaining inside news from South Africa, it is learned that Colonel Pilcher's occupation of Douglas is regarded as merely the first step of General Methuen's carefully matured plans to outflank the Boers. According to this authority it is probable Colonel Pilcher, in conjunction with General Babington's force from the Modder River, will proceed to the rear of those intrenchments which now prevent General Methuen from proceeding to Kimberley. Colonel Pilcher has only about 40 miles' travel before he achieves this end, and, if this understanding is correct, an attack by General Methuen and a determined effort to relieve Kimberley may be expected any day.

It is probable that when Lord Roberts arrives, General French will be ordered to quit his present unsupported position and to concentrate his command at De Aar or Orange river. As The Daily Telegraph says: "General French seems to be in the position of a man having a tiger cat in a trap, and unable to kill it for want of a stick."

A dispatch from Dover Farm announces that Lieutenant Colonel Pilcher has returned there safely from Douglas.

Since Commandant General Joubert's return to the front, the cannonade of Ladysmith by the Boers has been much livelier. Between Dec. 18 and Dec. 29 four shells killed one officer and 13 men, and wounded 13 officers and 11 men.

The war office acknowledges the inferiority of the regular artillery by authorizing the equipment of the new battery attached to the London volunteer corps with Vickers and Maxims, some of which the Boers use, and by ordering 100 of these 12½ pounder quick-firers built immediately. The officers and men of the new battery will be supplied from the Honorable Artillery company.

Eight additional militia regiments have been called out. Seven of these will serve in Ireland, replacing the regulars sent to South Africa.

Lord Wolseley is reported to be intensely irritated by the attacks upon him. His friends state that he was overruled last June, and repeatedly at the opening of hostilities, and that his advice was persistently neglected by the ministry in general and Lord Lansdowne in particular. The storm may blow over if General Buller wins the next battle on the Tugula and relieves Ladysmith, but another defeat in that quarter would be likely to be followed by a tremendous shaking up of the war office and headquarters.

The Vienna correspondent of The Standard says: Emperor Nicholas has assured the British ambassador at St. Petersburg that Great Britain need not fear intervention or any sort of difficulty from Russia in the present South African complications. This may fairly be interpreted as an assurance including an indirect promise that France will abstain from creating difficulties for England.

What Abutters Must Pay Toward the Sewer.

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

MINSTREL SHOW.

Ladies' Auxiliary, A. O. H. in the Circle.

There was a very large attendance at Music hall Wednesday evening at the minstrel show given under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Division 8, A. O. H. The show was given under the direction of Henry W. French who found the ladies who composed the semi-circle apt pupils and as a result a first class entertainment, brim full of local hits was given, which kept the laughter rolling about from the time the curtain was rung up until it fell for the last time.

Miss Julia F. Duffy was the interlocutor. The balance of the circle was made up as follows:

Bones: Miss Callahan, Katherine Hurley, Antoinette Sweeney, Katherine Fitzsimmons, Grace McCarthy, Cecelia Keegan, Josie Gunville, Etta Kearns, Nellie Horan, Jennie Hurley, Nellie McCarthy, Mary Coffey, Lena Murphy, Mrs. George Golar, Mrs. Taylor.

Part one included choruses by the company, selections by the A. O. H. quartette and songs by various members of the circle. Between each of these numbers, the jokes came quick and fast, and it is unnecessary to add that many were pointed and well directed.

Part two included vocal selections by the 5th regiment quartette composed of Alexander McIntosh, Alexander Rose, Thomas Gould and Leo Savoie; banjo solos by Bert Cook; buck and wing dancing by the Grant brothers and music by Lyons' orchestra.

Coffin, who has been the president for three years, and safely guided the society to a firm foundation, declined a reelection. Mrs. Wilson Marsh was elected as president, Mrs. C. T. Sherman as vice president, and Mrs. George E. Hatch as secretary.

The literary part of the programme was in charge of Mrs. C. T. Sherman, and "Fear among children" was discussed by Mrs. W. G. Shaw, Mrs. A. G. Coffin, Mrs. Wilson Marsh and Mrs. George E. Hatch in an interesting manner.

The committee for the February meeting will be Mrs. H. H. Hills and Mrs. Ezekiel Sampson, and the subject will be: "The best thing to have in a home."

QUARANTINE SYSTEM

Will Be Adopted to Keep Plague From the Philippine Islands.

Congressman Sulzer Would Investigate Treasury.

Senator Pettigrew Would Have Secretary of War Answer Certain Questions.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The war department is taking steps to prevent the introduction of the plague in the Philippines, and Secretary Root yesterday called into consultation Surgeon General Wyman of the marine hospital service to discuss the establishment of a quarantine system for the islands. It was decided that the war department should adopt towards the Philippines a policy like that it pursued towards Cuba in the matter of the protection of health, namely, confide the maintenance of a quarantine system to the marine hospital service.

The report received by both the state department and by Mr. Wyman from Honolulu confirm the Associated Press dispatches relative to the existence of the disease. Mr. Wyman does not feel apprehensive as to the possibility of the infection of San Francisco from Honolulu.

Surgeon General Wyman has no confirmation of the report that three suspected cases of bubonic plague have been discovered within the walled city of Manila, but no attempt will be made to conceal the gravity of the situation should the report prove true. Still, it is said, a few sporadic cases need not necessarily result in an epidemic in the islands. Mr. Wyman says the disease no longer creates the dread it once did, because it has been demonstrated that it can be handled by modern scientific work.

There was a little flurry in the house yesterday morning when Mr. Sulzer of New York carried out his threat of introducing a resolution "directing" that the secretary of the treasury furnish the house with all of the papers and facts relating to the depositing of public funds in the National City bank and Hanover National bank of New York city. Urgency was demanded, but the speaker ruled that the resolution must go to committee.

The resolution was referred to the committee on ways and means. Mr. Gaines of Tennessee rose to a question of privilege respecting his vote on the Roberts resolution. These events and the prayer of the chaplain occupied the brief time the house was in session.

Chairman Payne and some of his associates of the ways and means committee had an informal talk after the adjournment of the house relative to the Sulzer resolution, calling on the secretary of the treasury for information, which had been referred to the committee. A meeting of the committee will be held today, and a pretty thorough understanding was arrived at that at the meeting the resolution would be considered and probably reported at once to the house. Some changes are likely to be made in the resolution, however, by the omission of the two banks specifically named, thus making the inquiry relate generally to all banks. It is understood also that personal inferences are likely to be avoided in the amended resolution. In the form thus reported back to the house it is expected that the resolution will pass without objection, and that any debate on the question involved will be deferred until the secretary of the treasury has an opportunity to comply with the request for information.

The senate evinced a disposition to take up the work of the session in earnest, and while the sitting was of only a little more than an hour's duration, a large number of important bills were introduced, and a definite foundation laid for proceeding with the financial bill. The hour for the beginning of the debate on this measure was fixed for 2 o'clock today.

The most notable event of the day was an objection entered by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts to the summary disposition of resolutions asking for information about the conduct of the Philippine war. He indicated a purpose to demand consideration for such measures even at the expense of the financial bill.

One of the most important features of the senate was the list of nominations sent in by the president. Among them were those of Brigadier General J. C. Bates and Brigadier General and Colonel S. B. M. Young, Lieutenant Colonel Arthur MacArthur and Lieutenant Colonel William Ludlow to be brigadier generals in the regular service. It will be noticed that in the cases of MacArthur and Ludlow both were jumped over the place of colonel to the brigadiership.

Senator Pettigrew offered the following resolution, which went over under objection:

"Resolved, That the secretary of war be and he is hereby directed to inform the senate whether General Torres, one of the officers of the Philippine army, came to General Otis with a flag of truce on Feb. 5, 1899, the day after the fighting commenced between our forces and those of Aguinaldo, and stated to General Otis that Aguinaldo declared that fighting had been begun accidentally and was not authorized by Aguinaldo, and that Aguinaldo wished to have it stopped, and that to bring about a conclusion of hostilities he proposed the establishment of a neutral zone between the two armies of a width that would be agreeable to General Otis, so that during the peace negotiations there might be no further danger of conflict between the two armies; and whether General Otis replied that fighting having once begun must go on to the grim end. Was General Otis directed by the secretary of war to make such answer? Did General Otis telegraph the secretary of war on Feb. 9, 1899, as follows: 'Aguinaldo now applies for a cessation of hostilities and conference; have declined to answer,' and did General Otis afterwards reply that he was directed by the secretary of war; and what answer, if any, did he or the secretary of war make to the application to cease fighting?"

The senate committee on foreign relations presented a report upon Senator Hoar's resolution in regard to claims of citizens of the United States against Spain. The committee gave a schedule of claims amounting to over $1,000,000 and added: "It is impracticable to state even approximately the amount actually due on these claims, or to allege, in view of the state of records of the state department of that date, that there may not be others than those mentioned." As to the remedy of the claimants, the committee expressed the opinion that the only present remedy was by diplomatic negotiation.

Following are the more important bills introduced in the senate:

By Mr. Ross—Regulating appointments to civil offices in the outlying dependencies. It provides for appointments to such places regardless of political affiliations and without sectional favoritism, and for removal only upon written charges. No examination is required for appointment.

By Mr. Proctor—To amend the Chinese exclusion laws so as to commit their administration to the bureau of immigration of the treasury department.

By Mr. Lodge—Authorizing an investigation of the economic relations of the United States with China and the Orient generally by a commission to be appointed by the president, who is to fix its number and also the compensation of its members.

By Mr. McComas—Providing for a pension of $50 per month to the widow of Colonel Stotsenburg of the Nebraska regiment, who was killed in the Philippines.

By Mr. Perkins—Providing a fund for the pensioning of members of the life saving and revenue cutter service, and also providing for compensation for persons injured while employed in the government civil service.

Fears For Transport's Safety.

Chicago, Janu. 4.—A special to The Record from San Francisco says: The big transport Victoria is now 78 days out of this port for Manila, and shipping men fear that the vessel has gone to the bottom. Twenty percent re-insurance was made on the Victoria yesterday. She was spoken by the transport Tartar on Nov. 14, between this port and Honolulu, with a broken shaft. The Victoria refused tow, expecting to have the broken shaft repaired in a week at most. A few days later a terrible typhoon raged in the track of the Victoria. Nothing has been heard of the transport since spoken by the Tartar. The vessel left here for Manila, loaded with forage and supplies for the forces in the Philippines. Captain Blakely was in command. She carried a crew of 52 Europeans. The transport was of 1500 tons net, and valued at $150,000.

The French "Conspiracy" Trials.

Paris, Jan. 4.—The conspiracy trial before the senate sitting as the high court came to an end yesterday, except for the sentences in the cases of those convicted. Out of the 75 alleged conspirators who were thrown into prison five months ago, and who have been since released in batches, owing to want of evidence, only MM. Deroulede, Guerin and Buffet have been found guilty, and these three are accorded "extenuating circumstances," which reduces their punishment to detention in a fortress or banishment. Sentence will be pronounced later. All the nationalist organs describe the result of the trial as a fiasco for the government after the flourish of trumpets with which it announced the discovery of a great plot against the republic.

Charged With Murder.

Baltimore, Jan. 4.—Frederick B. Livingston, the blind veteran who confessed that he killed his wife by strangling her, and was released after arrest, was re-arrested yesterday. At the time the crime was committed Livingston was arrested on the charge of murder, but was released, on the ground that the commitment made out by the police justice was defective, and was different from that signed by the coroner's jury, which stated that Livingston had killed the woman in self-defense.

Social Season Opened.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The first of the formal dinners of the social season at the White House was given by President and Mrs. McKinley last night, the members of the cabinet and their wives being the guests of honor. Invited to meet them were members of the senate and house, and a few other persons. The east room and other public portions of the house were decorated for the occasion. The Marine band furnished the music. Covers were laid for over 70 persons.

Favors New Spelling.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—The University of Chicago will use and advocate the new spelling. By a vote of 20 to 16 the university congregation placed itself on record yesterday as favoring the use of the reformed spelling adopted by the National Educational association. The vote implies the use of reform spelling in a number of magazines and papers issued under the auspices of the university.

Had Seen Three Centuries.

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Cynthia Conant, 101 years of age, the oldest woman in Springfield, died yesterday morning. She remembered Lafayette, whom she met in Boston on his visit there, and she recalled incidents of the war of 1812, and the part her father, Jesse Lewis, took in capturing a British vessel in Hyannis harbor. She was born in Centerville, Sept. 15, 1798.

The new building of the General Society of Mechanics and Tradesmen was dedicated at New York. Andrew Carnegie made it a memorable occasion by giving $25,000 to equip the building with all the modern technical apparatus for mechanical design and instruction.

A general advance in the wages of the trainmen on the Pennsylvania lines seems assured, but the amount of the increase cannot be stated as yet.

The white ware potters have formed a combination to prevent the competition which has made the business unprofitable, taking in all but three or four of the tableware potteries of this country. A valuation of $12,000,000 has been placed on the property.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Southwell were found dead in bed at their home in Austin, Pa. They were asphyxiated by natural gas, which they used for heating and illuminating purposes.

The German government is making inquiries of Berlin manufacturers and traders as to the extent of their exports to the Transvaal, the view being that German trade with the Transvaal will increase after the war.

The general merchandise store of F. Mercier & Son at Princeton, Me., was burned, causing a loss of from $6000 to $8000.

President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn Baseball club has sent $500 to President Young of the National league in payment of the fine of $500 imposed upon the club for its action in the Wrigley case.

William H. Putnam, the undertaker who conducted the funeral of Henry Clay at Washington and Ashland, Ky., and that of Daniel Webster at Marshfield, Mass., died at New York, aged 81. He was a lineal descendant of General Israel Putnam, the revolutionary hero.

We thrill at the story of "Curfew shall not ring to-night." Yet it is melodramatic and commonplace beside the peril every woman runs who faces motherhood. Women are strangely self-forgetful. The exaltation of the fact of motherhood blinds them often to its peril. Yet the husband who can bear no tithe of the mother's pain or peril owes it to himself to see that his wife is in that condition of sound health which minimizes the risk both to mother and child. Many husbands have expressed their gratitude for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, because it makes the pain of motherhood practically nothing and reduces the risk to its lowest possible point.

"Five years my wife was in an almost helpless condition, suffering from female weakness," writes J. S. Everritt, Esq., of Hagerman, Washington Co., Fla. "Last September I decided to have her try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. She took several bottles of the medicine and gave birth to a ten pound son on January 31st, 1899. She is now sound and well and doing her housework."

MANY WITNESSES TESTIFIED.

Barnet's Sickness and Molineux's Marriage Certificate Are Touched Upon.

New York, Jan. 5.—Three of the witnesses called in the Molineux trial yesterday gave testimony concerning the sickness of Henry C. Barnet, who died at the Knickerbocker Athletic club in the fall of 1898, and who the prosecution claims was poisoned by cyanide of mercury, contained in Kutnow powders. The prosecution was also enabled to introduce the marriage certificate of Roland B. Molineux and Blanche Chesebrough, the alleged purpose of offering it being to fix the age of Molineux. In one of the letters asking for a patent medicine, signed "H. C. Barnet," the writer gave his age. It corresponded with that in the certificate, but did not answer for Barnet.

A witness testified yesterday as to the effort by Molineux to have Cornish disciplined by the Knickerbocker Athletic club, and a bank teller identified the poison package address and the Barnet and Cornish letters as all written by Molineux. All the testimony yesterday strengthened the prosecution's case, except that Barnet's attending physician, while conceding that there had been mercurial poisoning, insisted that the cause of death was heart failure, following diphtheria.

Guy E. Ellison, a chemist, testified that he had reserved some of the mysterious powder from the box in Barnet's room, and was sent to his office for the powder and for apparatus to analyze it. He made a demonstration before the jury, showing, he said, that mercury was present.

Charles C. Hughes, a member of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, testified that he had repeated to Molineux a statement made by Cornish that he (Molineux) had made money by selling liquor in a disreputable way.

"What did Molineux say?" asked Mr. Osborne.

"He said it was an outrage, and an employe should not be allowed to make such statements."

Witness then told how Molineux complained to the board of governors of the club of Cornish slandering him, and also complained of the condition of the baths, which were under Cornish's charge.

Joseph Farrell, a Newark policeman, testified to meeting and speaking to Molineux on Dec. 21, 1898, in Newark, near the store where the silver bottle holder that contained the poison received by Cornish is supposed to have been purchased.

Gilbert B. Sayres, paying teller of the National Shoe and Leather bank, was positive in his identification of the poison package address, the admitted Molineux letters and the Barnet and Cornish letters as having been written by the same person. He had studied the writing for two weeks, he said, and began the study believing Molineux innocent. "I have to be very, very careful," said the witness, "for the paying out of thousands of dollars rests on my judgment. I have examined these writings and am very sure that my opinion is correct. All the writings are very much alike. The disguises are very transparent."

Judge Wants $10.000 Taken Off.

Boston, Jan. 5.—Judge Bishop of the superior court has ordered that the verdict in the case of Charles W. Rugg vs. the Boston and Maine Railroad company for the plaintiff for $30,000 be set aside and a new trial granted, unless the plaintiff consents to remit $10,000 and leave the balance of $20,000 stand as his damages. The verdict was recovered for injuries which the plaintiff, a passenger, sustained in a collision of trains on the defendant railroad at Somerville.

TO TAKE COLESBERG.

French Asks For Reinforcements to Carry Out His Plans.

Seizure of Another German Steamer Has Caused Intense Bitterness.

London, Jan. 5.—The center of activity for the moment is apparently in the Colesberg district, where, so far as is ascertainable, there is a great deal of maneuvering and counter-maneuvering with little solid result. General J. D. P. French has asked for small reinforcements to enable him to capture Colesberg, which the Boers command, though some reports represent them as being in a tight corner with their line of retreat cut off.

These reinforcements have been dispatched from De Aar, and include both infantry and artillery. The Boers are said to have removed their laager out of range of the British guns, but are holding a strong position. The statement is made that two British guns command Norval's Pont, over the Orange river, and the Colesberg road bridge. As the Colesberg road bridge over the Orange river is put down on the maps as nearly 20 miles from Norval's Pont, the statement about the British guns is improbable.

It is fully expected that next week will see a heavy battle on the Tugela river, which is now the real pivot of the campaign. The Boers appear to be working incessantly with shovel and pick.

Lord Methuen's cavalry scouting has developed the fact that the Boer entrenchments extend some 40 miles, far overlapping the British positions and making flank attacks exceedingly difficult. Military analysis affirm that the Boer trenches confronting General Buller stretch away some 17 miles, and that work upon them is pushed unremittingly.

The estimated force of the Boers on Buller's front is 25,000, with 50 or 60 guns. Buller's reinforced strength amounts to upwards of 25,000 infantry, 4000 mounted men, half regular and half irregular, 50 field guns, 20 siege and naval guns and 2000 artillerymen.

While the advance is delayed, flank movements are rendered most difficult, because long marches are not done with celerity and it is hard to time an attack with certainty.

The extent of the Dutch rising may now be measured by taking a line from Prieska, on the west, to Herschel or Barkly, on the east. Along the whole of this line, except at points actually occupied by the British, the population seems for the most part hostile.

A dispatch from Berlin says: The imperial mail steamer General has been detained at Aden and occupied by British troops, with the object of searching her cargo, which is to be discharged. The General is owned by the German East African line, the owners of the Bundesrath, previously captured by the British cruiser Magicienne, off Delagoa bay.

The seizure of the General has considerably aggravated the situation here, and the indignation against England is intensified. The government is still earnestly endeavoring to preserve correct official relations, but England will do well to hasten to make amende honorable to Germany. On absolutely reliable authority the correspondent of the Associated Press learns that Emperor William is now thoroughly aroused by the repeated seizures of vessels, not one of which he has been assured, is guilty of carrying contraband. He regards the seizures as high-handed proceedings, which England would not have dared undertake if the German navy were more powerful than it is.

His majesty is said to be particularly incensed, because information has reached him showing that the seizures were not due to the blundering of British naval officers, but to strict orders from headquarters, which the officers are merely carrying out. He has, therefore, instructed Count Von Buelow, the foreign secretary, to demand exact and full reparation for the outrage done to the German flag.

No answer that is considered satisfactory has yet been received from London, and, according to advices here, none is to be expected for several days longer. The latest news, however, induced the German government to send another and more strongly worded protest to London. Significant of the intensity of Germany's indignation against England in this matter is a declaration published by the German Colonial society, among whose 80,000 members are a number of reigning German princes, which says:

"England's recent proceedings against German vessels are an outrage. The fact remains that the small respect which the English people feel for Germany, because of her deficiency in naval power, has taken such deep root that the commanders of English warships hasten to commit breaches of international rights so long as only Germany is thereby touched. This lack of fear to touch the German flag must be thoroughly and speedily cured."

Indignation meetings have been called by branches of the Colonial society. The German press, with hardly an exception, thunders against England.

SENSATIONAL AND TRAGIC.

New York, Jan. 5.—A most tragic occurrence took place yesterday in part 3 of general sessions court. The wife of a prisoner was stricken with apoplexy and cerebral hemorrhage while she was in the witness chair testifying to his innocence. She was carried unconscious and in a dying condition from the room.

The case was that of Louis Gordon, a Russian mechanic, charged by Abraham Joffe, a cloak maker, with the larceny of a chain valued at $90. When Gordon took the stand in his own behalf and vehemently denied the charge his wife, Mary, a small woman with a face that betokened suffering and pain, grew excited. Finally when she herself was called to testify she half arose from the chair, and as if declaiming, said: "It is not true, it is not true that my husband took the chain. We are honest people. God knows. I met Joffe on the street three days before he had my husband arrested. My husband was with me. He passed and bowed. Why did he not say something then? Why—why—why—"

There was a gurgle and the woman threw up her hands, fell back in the chair and slid off. The woman was borne from the courtroom with two tiny streams of blood issuing from her ears. Her eyes were closed and she was unconscious. Gordon wrung his hands and cried out that they had killed his wife and was prevented from rushing to her side. The judge, with the consent of the counsel, at once closed the case and it was given to the jury. The latter returned in a few minutes with a verdict of acquittal.

Mrs. Gordon was taken to a hospital, where the physician said she had had a stroke of apoplexy and a cerebral hemorrhage. She died at a late hour.

In a Precarious Condition.

Philadelphia, Jan. 5.—The friends of Roland Reed in this city have been advised that Dr. Bull, the famous surgeon, has performed a second operation upon the comedian in New York. The first operation, performed about a week ago, was supposed to have been made necessary by an attack of appendicitis. When the wound was explored, however, the surgeons discovered that Mr. Reed was suffering from an advanced attack of intestinal cancer. Mr. Reed was too weak to stand a radical operation at that time, and a delay was agreed upon. The radical operation was performed yesterday, and from its nature little hope is held out for Mr. Reed's recovery. Should he survive the shock of the operation, he will, in all probability, be an invalid for some time.

Not Complimentary to Negroes.

Washington, Jan. 5.—H. B. Frissell, principal of the Hampton, Va., normal and industrial institute, appeared before the industrial commission yesterday. He spoke of the condition of the colored people and industrial conditions in the south. He said that although the south had spent $100,000,000 on public education for negroes, one-third of the race had actually retrograded, one-third was where it was at the beginning of the war, and the remainder had advanced. Negroes, he said, had been taught that their salvation would be found through political means rather than by hard work.

Stock Gamblers "Squeal."

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Edward Boyle, whom his lawyer describes as a "reformer, philanthropist and philosopher," has instituted suit against John Robson, a board of trade operator, for $600,000 damages. Under the criminal code of Illinois, losses by "put and call" operations on the board of trade may be recovered by the loser or any one else to the amount of three times the original loss. Losses of $100,000 each, alleged to have been sustained by persons named in the suit, were not recovered by the losers, and Boyle accordingly sues for three times the loss.

"Open Door" by All the Powers.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Italy has returned a favorable response to the recent note of the state department respecting the "open door" in China. Italy was the last of the great powers remaining to be heard from. It is learned that although Italy was the last of the powers addressed to return an answer to Secretary Hay's overtures, that government really was more prompt than any other in the negotiations. The agreements have not yet been reduced to their final form, but the state department will now enter upon the task of putting them into shape.

Experienced Rough Weather.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 5.—Lightship No. 66 broke adrift from her moorings on Nantucket south shoal during the heavy gale on Tuesday. Captain Jorgensen and his crew headed No. 66 for New Bedford, where she arrived yesterday. Tremendous seas have been running out at South shoals ever since Christmas, making things decidedly uncomfortable on board the lightship.

Another Advance In Lumber.

Norfolk, Jan. 5.—Another advance in lumber prices has been ordered by the North Carolina Pine Lumber association, controlling all the mills throughout the great long-leaf section. The advances heretofore made have averaged 50 cents per 1000 feet, and aggregated an increase of $2 for the year until $1 was added to the present prices at a meeting of the association held here yesterday.

French Routed by Chinese.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 5.—News has reached here from Canton, China, that a battle occurred between natives near Wang Chaun and the French forces stationed there. It is said that the Chinese routed the French and pursued them for some distance. The French loss was 30 killed. The Chinese losses are not stated. The battle occurred on Dec. 10 and 11.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

City Ordinance 1899.

Good Afternoon.

The would-be candidates for city offices are being jollied to quite an extent because of a reference to them in Mayor Hall's inaugural address. His Honor probably intended no reflection upon them when he said: "In my appointments I have tried to secure the best service to the city that was possible with the material at my disposal." Mr. Hall has had the whole city at his disposal and further is allowed to go outside the city for a Commissioner of Public Works or a Chief of Police. We have heard of no one declining an office and it is well-known that Quincy does not take second place usually, so Mayor Hall has had the best of material from which to select his official family.

The inaugural address of Gov. Crane is generally regarded as a business document, and another great point in its favor was the brevity, so that it has had more than the usual number of readers. Over one-third was devoted to State finances. His Excellency found the total gross debt of the State Jan. 1 to be $63,837,500.00, made up of $21,312,000.00 for which the whole State is indebted, and $42,525,000.00 for which certain cities and towns in the Metropolitan district are liable. The sinking funds reduce the former to $16,869,171.04, and the latter to $35,012,816.58.

The Governor sums up the situation in the following paragraph which is timely and should be heeded:

"The lesson," he says, "which the figures of this debt statement teach, is that Masachusetts has reached a limit of indebtedness beyond which she should not go. It is time to call a halt. In looking over these items, it will be found in almost every instance that the object is a worthy one, and I have no doubt the Commonwealth has received full value for the money expended. The question for us to consider, however, is not the propriety of past expenditures, but to take heed of the conditions which now confront us. The Commonwealth needs a breathing spell for financial recuperation. This is doubly true of the metropolitan district. The cities and towns in that district are just beginning to feel the burdens in the way of taxation which the great enterprises undertaken for their benefit have thrown upon them. It was necessary that there should have been an increased water supply, improved drainage and sanitation, and it was a wise foresight that projected the great parks that now adorn the metropolitan district; but the time has come when no new work in these directions should be authorized. I recommend that a stop be made at once to the authorization of expenditures for new work in this district. I cannot too strongly urge this matter upon your attention. Rigid economy must be exercised in appropriations and expenditures."

Eight cities and eight towns, of which Quincy is one, must pay the Metropolitan water debt of $20,000,000. Thirty-seven cities and towns, of which Quincy is one, must pay the Metropolitan park loans of $8,075,000.00, beginning this year. Cities and towns in the North Metropolitan sewer system, the Charles River system, and the Neponset valley system, of which Quincy is one, must pay the sewerage loans of $7,999,000.00. With its own rapidly maturing debt, Quincy will probably feel this year the additional State tax, which will include Quincy's assessment for these improvements. It may be one of the years when a refunding of a portion of the Quincy debt is almost imperative. Our maturing municipal debt this year is $69,975.00, and the maturing water, sewer and playground debt of the city will be over $40,000 more.

More will also be required for interest than last year.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Some people talk about this world as a wicked cruel place, but if you'll take notice those same folks will pay a good sized doctor's bill rather than leave it. Consistency is still a jewel.—Beverly Times.

☞ Six million dollars' worth of property has been rescued by the members of the life-saving service during the last year. This would be reason enough for the continuation of that institution, but there is a further and finer service to mankind to its credit. Nearly 4,000 lives have been saved in the 12 months by the brave men employed in this noble work.—Newport News.

☞ What an everlasting affair is the trial of Molineux, now in progress in New York. Pity the jurymen who are compelled to take in the endless array of testimony, expert and otherwise, contradictory and confirmative, and to unravel, if possible, the real facts in the case. If they can always remember who is on trial and for what alleged crime, they must have clear heads and discriminating minds to an unusual degree.—Brockton Times.

☞ Many thinking men are seriously questioning the wisdom of refusing to swear in Roberts as a member of the house. At the very best it is a dangerous step—one which is quite likely in other cases to prove troublesome some day. But for 7,000,000 remonstrating signatures, a very large percentage of which could have been obtained asking that he be publicly executed, the house would have treated the case soberly, pronouncing judgment after ascertaining the truth, rather than yielding to popular pressure and declaring him guilty before they officially know it. We are as positive, perhaps, as most of these signers, that Roberts ought to be sent back to Utah, but we have moments when we feel that possibly the case has not been wisely handled.—Nashua Telegraph.

No Contests.

Stephen M. Marshall and Charles B. Woolley of Boston, prominent in the Barrows campaign, are no longer members of the Republican State Committee. They entered protests against John H. Means and ex-Senator Isaac P. Hutchinson, but withdrew the protests at the last minute. The committee of 1900 organized Thursday by reelecting Col. A. H. Goetting as chairman, and the reelection of most of the other officers.

CO. K MAY MOVE.

Members Favor an Armory In This City.

A movement is on foot among the members of Co. K, 5th Regt., to have the location moved from Braintree to Quincy. Of the sixty-one officers and men composing the company, forty-five are residents of Quincy and a majority of the company are desirous of changing the location to this city. It is said that the first step toward changing a company from one town to another must come from the company, and if a majority of the company vote in favor that is the only thing necessary, if a suitable armory is provided.

The State allows the company $400 per year for an armory, and it only needs a little push on the part of the citizens to have the company moved to Quincy where it rightfully belongs.

The only hall suitable for an armory is Hancock hall, which is well adapted for drills, and was at one time used for that purpose.

New Freight Track.

The new spur freight track at the Quincy depot is all completed and ready for use. The switch from the main line is located just north of the Granite street bridge, and the track runs parallel with the main line to a point just south of the old depot site where it ends in a heap of sand. The entrance of this track is from the north side of the depot near the Saville street crossing, and a roadway has been built its whole length. The fence along Irving place has not been removed the track and roadway being on railroad property.

G. A. R. Installation.

The officers of Paul Revere Post 88, G. A. R., and of the Women's Relief Corps, were publicly installed Thursday evening at Hancock hall. Aid de Camp Marsh was the installing officer for the Grand Army, and Mrs. Kane of the Women's Relief Corps. At the close of the installation ceremonies, addresses were made by Mayor Hall, the installing officers, and by Commander Warner. A ring was presented to the retiring president of the Woman's Relief Corps. Dancing and a general good time followed. A collation was served.

Short Pastorates Nowadays.

But four of the Protestant pastors of the city have been located here longer than Rev. Robert Westly Peach, who resigned this week. Rev. Preston Gurney of the Wollaston Baptist has had the longest pastorate and Rev. P. A. Englund of the Swedish Baptist is second. Then came Rev. Walter Russell Breed to Christ church and Rev. E. C. Butler to the First church. Mr. Peach came in 1894 and the next year Rev. E. N. Hardy and Rev. C. J. Bjornbom.

WORK QUICKLY DONE.

He Pleads Not Guilty to the Charge of Embezzlement.

Boston, Jan. 5.—Charles H. Cole, former president of the Globe National bank, who is charged with misappropriating $900,000 of the funds of that institution, arrived in this city at 5:15 last night from Los Angeles, Cal., in charge of United States Marshal Osborne and Secret Service Agent Browne.

The party also included Mrs. Cole and their son, Eddie, who had accompanied the ex-bank president during the entire period of his absence from Boston, some two months. Mrs. Cole was driven to a hotel, while the remainder of the party were hurried to the Federal building. Deputy Marshal Waters escorted Mr. Cole at once to Marshal Darling's room, where the personal friends who were active in arranging sureties were alone admitted, and the formal arrest was made by Mr. Waters, who served the warrant upon Mr. Cole, the latter undergoing the ordeal calmly.

After the formalities were over in Marshal Darling's office Mr. Cole was taken across the corridor into the United States district court room. No officer of the Globe bank was there to greet him. Some few curious people, a few of the Federal building employes, one or two city hall officials, the newspaper men, bailiffs and deputies made up the spectators. Marshal Osborne brought forth a bulky parcel of formidable looking papers and documents, upon which he made formal delivery and return to United States Marshal Darling. Cole took his seat directly in front of the court crier's desk, and his son seated himself on the left, while Deputy Waters, as custodian of Cole, took the seat at the right hand of the prisoner.

Assistant District Attorney Casey held a long consultation with Benjamin W. Wells, a city employe; Godfrey Morse, an attorney, and William Schofield, counsel for Cole, the result of which was that Messrs. Wells and Morse were declared to be acceptable as bondsmen for the accused.

These preliminaries over adjournment was made to the courtroom, where United States Commissioner Fiske had already taken his seat. Proceeding at once to business the commissioner said: "Charles H. Cole, this is a complaint charging you with embezzlement——"

"We waive the reading of the complaint," said Mr. Schofield.

Mr. Cole seemed perfectly self-possessed. He kept his eyes fixed on the commissioner, and at his query, "What say you to this complaint, guilty or not guilty?" he emphatically replied, "Not guilty."

Attorney Schofield said he would like a little time in which to prepare himself and consult his client and suggested a continuance until Jan. 18, to which the government consented, and the continuance was granted.

Bonds were then fixed at $50,000, and Messrs. Morse and Wells qualified severally in the sum of $50,000 as sureties. This being satisfactorily accomplished, there was more handshaking, and then Cole walked out of the courtroom with his son and Mr. Wells to rejoin Mrs. Cole at her hotel. It is anticipated that he may make his home at Hingham for the present.

Mr. Cole expresses confidence in his ability to meet the charges that have been made against him when his case comes to trial, and says he courts the fullest investigation that can be made of his transactions in connection with the Globe bank affairs.

In speaking of the warrant for Cole's arrest, a copy of which was sent to California, United States Marshal Osborne said that it was issued in the United States court for the district of Massachusetts and ran only to the deputy marshals and bailiffs of Massachusetts. It was not operative in California. In fact, Marshal Osborne said, Mr. Cole was not under arrest, but simply held under the provision of the law that provides for the holding of an accused person on belief. As he came voluntarily and agreed that he would come on to Boston and submit to prosecution here, the southern California marshal acted only on the telegraphed instructions from Attorney General Griggs to proceed with the ex-president, with a proper guard, to Boston.

Marshal Osborne had a copy of the warrant, but did not serve it. Said he: "I could have arrested Mr. Cole upon that warrant, but would have been obliged to commit him to jail in Los Angeles, and then notify the United States marshal in Boston that I had the prisoner awaiting his instructions. Mr. Cole could have demanded a hearing in California and could have been admitted to bail there, had he chosen, but he made the proffer to come on to Boston, the earlier the better, and waived all his rights in California. He has never, therefore, been arraigned, and it has been perfectly possible for him at any time to have obtained his writ of habeas corpus to release him from our holding."

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

WEYMOUTH.

The Epiphany season of the Christian year will be observed at Trinity church on Sunday, and Rev. William Hyde will preach special sermons for the day. He will also preach in Gardner Street Chapel, South Hingham, at 2.45 P. M.

Last Sunday in addition to the regular 7.30 P.M. service at Trinity church, Weymouth, a special midnight service was held to welcome the New Year in Christian worship. This service was well attended and was full of spiritual devotion.

Wollaston School Closed.

The Wollaston school was closed on Thursday forenoon and will be opened again on Monday morning.

There were two reasons for the closing. The past week workmen have been laying pipe to connect the building with the sewer. When excavations were made in the cellar of the building beneath the cemented floor the soil was found to be reeking with filth. The odor permeated the whole building.

At the same time the system which is used to heat a number of the rooms gave out, rendering them uninhabitable. The two troubles combined caused the sudden dismissal of the school. The sanitary and heating arrangements of the building are in such an unsatisfactory condition that there have been numerous complaints and recently several pupils have been withdrawn by their parents.

We the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25-cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

MILTON.

But little sickness is reported in East Milton, other than the head colds, which always prevail at this season of the year.

The next meeting of the Belcher branch of the Milton Women's Club will be held with Mrs. Baxter next Tuesday evening. A fine musical and literary programme will be presented.

Milton had more alarms of fire last year than any previous year. Many of the alarms were for brush and small blazes, and the losses for the year will therefore be small.

Although the annual town meeting is nearly two months away the East Milton politicians have commenced to talk-up who they shall boom for town officers.

The Mission of Our Saviour church held its Christmas festival and tree last week Thursday.

There is a rumor that the tracks of the Boston, Milton & Brockton street railway will be connected with those of the Quincy Boston in the spring by a bridge over the Granite branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R.

The alarms of fire last Saturday afternoon from boxes 46 and 42 were for a slight fire in a house on School street, caused by an over heated stove. The still alarm from box 67 Sunday was for a chimney fire on Pierce street.

The annual concert and ball of the Firemen's Relief Association will be held Jan. 19, at the Town Hall.,

From Madison To McKinley

In 1810, when Madison occupied the President's chair, JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT was originated by Dr. A. Johnson. For nearly a century it has remained a household remedy of the first rank. The grandparents of many who now use JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT were brought through whooping cough, croup and all the accidents of childhood in safety by this remedy. Many a time a bottle of JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT in the cupboard of some remote farm house, has saved life when sudden and acute disease has developed in the night. Many are now living in old age who owe their lives to this remedy. You can safely put your trust in a remedy that has stood the test of nearly a century and gained such a high reputation as has

Johnson's ANODYNE LINIMENT

A majority of the ailments of humanity begin, or are accompanied, with inflammation, and it is by controlling and removing this condition that JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT cures widely different diseases, such as colds, coughs, croup, catarrh, bronchitis, la grippe, lameness, colic, cramps, diarrhœa, cholera morbus, bites, bruises, burns, stings, chafing and pain and inflammation in any part of the body. Sold in two size bottles, 25c. and 50c., the larger size being the more economical; it holds three times as much.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

MONETARY STANDARD.

No Obstacle to Accomplishment of Bimetallism.

Hoar Says Those Who Ask Him to Oppose Ouay Ask Him to Stuff a Ballot.

Washington, Jan. 5.—In accordance with the notice previously given by him, Senator Aldrich yesterday opened the discussion of the financial bill in the senate with a speech in execution of the senate substitute for the house bill. The speech was carefully prepared and was read from manuscript. It was delivered in clear and distinct language, but without any effort at oratory. Senators present gave Mr. Aldrich careful attention, but no one interrupted him with questions or otherwise during the delivery nor did any one manifest a disposition to reply after he had concluded.

In stating the purpose of the bill, Mr. Aldrich said that the first section contains a clear and definite declaration that the gold dollar is and shall continue to be the standard unit of value; a new and more emphatic pledge on the part of the United States that all forms of money it may issue or coin shall be at all times maintained at an equality of value with the gold adopted as the standard, and a specific provision that United States notes and treasury notes shall, upon presentation at the treasury, be redeemed in standard gold coin.

"These several declarations," said Mr. Aldrich, "embody in new and more positive terms the law and the practice in this respect, as interpreted and carried out in the administration of the treasury department since the resumption of specie payments. No departure is intended by this bill from the public policy which was adopted years ago, and has been constantly adhered to through successive administrations. The bill now before the senate contains no disavowal of the position heretofore taken upon the position of international bimetallism, and places no obstacle in the way of its accomplishment in the future. If it is possible to secure permanence of relative value to gold and silver coins with the free coinage of both metals at a fixed ratio, this permanence can only be secured by concurrent action of all the leading nations."

Mr. Aldrich said that the Democrats, while masquerading as the friends of bimetallism, have for the past four years been engaged in a crusade in behalf of the single-standard of silver in a serious attempt to place the money and business of the country upon a silver basis; that the assertion that the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the historical ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the consent of any other nation on earth, will be the supreme issue in 1900, as it was in 1896, has not been contradicted.

The measure also provided for a gold reserve of $150,000,000, to be replenished when it fell below $10,000,000 by the sale of bonds. The secretary of the treasury is empowered to convert a portion of the national debt into bonds bearing interest at 2 percent.

After Mr. Aldrich concluded the senate adjourned until Monday for the purpose, it is understood, of giving those who may wish to reply to the Rhode Island senator an opportunity to study his presentation of the subject.

The Pettigrew resolution concerning the Philippine war went over until Monday, when it is understood some senators will be asked to be heard on the general Philippine question. Senator Beveridge also gave notice of a speech for Tuesday on the Philippine question, prefacing his notice with a resolution declaring his own position on the subject.

Senator Hoar made a statement in the senate on the Quay case which is deserving of wide attention, and was in effect addressed to the people of Massachusetts. "I receive by mail every day," said Mr. Hoar, "a great many letters, and I dare say this is true of all the members of the senate, appealing to me with great earnestness to vote to deny a seat in the senate to a gentleman from Pennsylvania who claims a seat by reason of an appointment made in the recess by the governor of that state, and the writers of these letters, evidently philanthropic and high-minded persons, propose that I should vote against the claimant on account of certain charges they make concerning his personal character. Now, a good many years ago I investigated the question of the governor's right to appoint, and I suppose I have made eight or 10 speeches and have written three or four reports in the last 15 years in favor of the proposition that whenever there is a vacancy in the senate the governor has the right to fill it.

"Now, what these gentlemen ask me to do in substance is this: the senate is the judge of the election of the senators and I am a sworn judge, and yet these worthy persons ask me to stuff a ballot and make a false return in my capacity as a sworn judge of election because they think the governor ought to have appointed somebody else. That is the attitude these worthy gentlemen are taking and I see that some newspapers of wide circulation in my state, and a good many in the state affected, take the same view of the case. I hope this little statement, in which I am sure every member here will concur, will answer as a reply to this great batch of letters that I am getting."

The senate confirmed these nominations: To be major general by brevet, Brigadier General Lloyd Wheaton, U. S. V.; to be major general, Brigadier General J. C. Bates, U. S. V.; to be brigadier generals, Colonel S. B. M. Young, Lieutenant Colonel Arthur MacArthur, Lieutenant Colonel William Ludlow.

The house session was very brief again yesterday, the only incident being the adoption of the Sulzer resolution, introduced Wednesday, calling upon Secretary Gage for all information regarding the deposit of government funds in certain New York national banks. The resolution as adopted was made more general in its scope and an amendment was added to cover information respecting the transactions relating to the sale of the New York custom house site. Secretary Gage's friends had been informed that he courted the fullest investigation and was prepared to submit all the facts to congress. Accordingly there was no friction over the passage of the resolution, which was unanimously adopted.

English Histories Thrown Out.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—Histories of England furnished as supplementary reading for the seventh and eighth grades in Chicago public schools were thrown out by the school management committee of the board of education yesterday and the district superintendents were ordered to recommend other books on English history which would not contain any reference to England as the "mother country." Trustee Keating said: "Every book on this list is good with the exception of histories of England. I think it is time the public schools of Chicago should have histories which show the rapacity and tyranny of England on the true light. The history of England is worth studying, but our children do not rapacity and tyranny of England in the only country on the globe. What we want in the schools is a history of England which will be liberal enough to allow credit to other countries."

Republicans Stayed Away.

Boston, Jan. 5.—A great crowd gathered around city hall last night, expectant of witnessing what was predicted would be a stormy session of the common council, in its endeavor to begin business. Councilman Kiley, Democrat, claims he was legally elected president on Monday, while a faction of the Democrats claimed he was not. A detail of police was on hand, and no one was admitted except such as were identified as members-elect or officeholders. No meeting of the common council was held, however. The Republicans caucused early, and decided to stay away, consequently only 35 Democrats were in their seats, five less than the legal quorum. With no chance to do business there was no trouble, and the council will be called together again next Monday evening.

May Have Bubonic Plague.

Boston, Jan. 5.—Suffering from some disease which the physicians as yet have been unable to diagnose, a stowaway from the British steamship Fitzclarence is held at the quarantine hospital on Gallop's island. There is some possibility that he may be suffering from the dread bubonic plague. The patient is an Austrian, about 24 years of age, named Maptun, who came to this port last Friday as a stowaway on the steamship Fitzclarence. The suspicious nature of the case has impelled the board of health to exercise all precaution. The Fitzclarence has been thoroughly fumigated, and yesterday, in obedience to orders, she dropped down to quarantine, where she will remain for three or four days longer.

Says Gaynor Is Her Husband.

New York, Jan. 5.—A woman, who appeared in the court of Commissioner Shields, claiming to be the wife of Colonel John F. Gaynor, who is indicted with several others on charges of fraud and conspiracy against the government, had Colonel Gaynor arraigned in police court yesterday on the charge of non-support. The woman alleges that she was married to Gaynor 13 years ago, and that she has two children. She was not in court, not having been notified of Gaynor's arrest. Examination was postponed until Jan. 9. Gaynor denies that the woman is his wife.

Dr. Schenck Retires by Request.

Vienna, Jan. 5.—Dr. Schenck, professor at the University of Vienna and president of the embryological institute, who, a year ago, published a book in which he claimed that, after 20 years of experiment, he had discovered the secret of exercising an influence over animals and men so as to fix the sex of offspring, has received permission from the minister of the interior to retire on a pension, as the result of a demand by the Vienna medical faculty for his dismissal for the alleged frivolous publication of scientific matter constituting a form of self-advertisement.

He Didn't Have a License.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 5.—Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue McCrillis made a seizure here yesterday of about 20,000 cigars from Aaron Teller of Boston, who claims to represent a Boston firm. The seizure was made for the reason that Teller did not possess a government license for the sale of cigars and tobacco. Teller was not held, as the collector is of the opinion that the cigars represent value equal to the usual fine in such cases.

HALF SICK WOMEN

What multitudes of women are to-day miserable! They are half sick, they keep on working, you hear them say "I will be better to-morrow". How foolish! They will be worse to-morrow! Women, do not take such chances when you are rundown, you need a remedy; and when you take a remedy, you need the very best; you do not want a cure all, you do not want oldfashioned remedies. Take the best, take the one that cures, the one that has made its reputation by curing women. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are for women alone. Thousands upon thousands of women have testified to their great merit. They can cure you quickly, permanently and cheaply. Fifty Red Pills for 50c. last longer than any $1.00 oldfashioned liquid medicine; but, you should not consider the price, you should think of their efficacy. It is the efficacy of Dr. Coderre's Red Pills that has made them famous the world over.

Here are a few women who have tried Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, and if you doubt what we say, write them; we give you their names and addresses:

Mrs. W. J. Hill, 4237 Kerlyan, Cincinnati, Ohio, writes:

"I have been a great sufferer from female weakness. I must say that I have tried a number of women's remedies, but none have done me so much good as Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women. I advise any woman who has female troubles to take them. They are cheap and good."

Mrs. J. Donahy, 148 Caddig Street, Providence, R. I., writes:

"Dr. Coderre's Red Pills have cured me of different female troubles that I have had. I believe them to be the best remedy on earth, for, as soon as I began to take them I felt better. I kept on taking them and to-day I am cured and feel like a new woman."

Mrs. Jennie Anthony, Beaubian Street, Detroit, Mich., writes:

"I have suffered with stomach aches, nervous headaches and dizziness. I was all rundown and felt miserable until I began taking Dr. Coderre's Red Pills which were recommended to me by a friend. Now I would not be without them in my house for they have done me all the good in the world."

Mrs. J. J. Buddington, 70 Clinton Street, Grand Rapids, Mich.:

"My case was indeed a bad one when I began to take Dr. Coderre's Red Pills. I was suffering from female weakness. I was rundown. My blood was very poor. I was looking awful. I am now stronger and stouter than I have been for years. I never thought that any Pills could ever do so much good for me."

You note probably in our testimonials that we do not give all the details. We think this unnecessary. When a woman testifies that she has been cured of female weakness, every intelligent woman understands what it means. It means backaches, side aches, bearing down pains, irregularities, stomach troubles, fainting spells and dizziness. A woman who suffers from female weakness may have a few or nearly all these symptoms, and it is these symptoms, and many others peculiar to women, that Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women cure. Ladies, this is a remedy which is not to be compared with any other recommended to you as a cure all or some other oldfashioned liquid medicine. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are adapted to women of all ages. Do not be deceived; they are for no bad purpose. Married women can use them at any time.

If your case is of long standing, write a full description of it to our French Doctors who will be pleased to answer you fully, giving you the best medical advice absolutely free, or, if you prefer, call at our office, where they can be seen every day except Sunday. Send us your name on a postal card and we will mail you our Doctor's book, Pale and Weak Women. Read the circulars around each box of Pills carefully, and follow the directions. Since Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are not a purgative, you will please make use of Dr. Coderre's Purgative Tablets if necessary. They sell at 25c. a box or six boxes for $1.50. Each box of Red Pills contains fifty Pills for 50c., or six boxes for $2.50. They are sold by all first class druggists. If you cannot procure them where you live, write to us and we will mail them the same day. Address all letters to

The weather has continued fair in all districts except in the plauteau region, on the north Atlantic coast. Light snow may be expected in New England. The temperature will rise in northern New England. Brisk southerly winds will prevail on the north Atlantic coast.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

THE STATE TO TAKE

Quincy is now in the Metropolitan Sewer district, an is interested from a health as well as a financial standpoint, as an outlet near Nut island is proposed.

The report of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners issued Friday says the 70 miles of Metropolitan sewers in the State are maintained by a permanent force of one foreman, six assistant foremen and eighteen laborers with five horses and carts. They inspect at regular intervals the regulating valves at the public connections, flush and clean the sewers in special cases, remove ashes and screenings from the stations, clean sand-catchers and flush siphons as needed, and maintain a ferry at Shirley Gut. The total expenditure on account of this force for the year has been as follows: North Metropolitan system, $23,417.05; Charles River system, $1,792.40; Neponset Valley system, $2,151.94—total $27,361.39. The Metropolitan sewers are in good condition throughout. It is found that practically no deposits require removal from the main sewers or from the siphons, indicating that the velocities maintained by the sewers and siphons are sufficient.

On May 27, 1899, the commission was authorized to build a high-level sewer for the relief of the Charles and Neponset river valleys. This takes into the sewerage system the city of Quincy and portions of Dorchester, Roxbury and West Roxbury not heretofore included in Metropolitan sewerage areas. These additions, together with the districts embraced by Waltham, Watertown, Newton, Brighton, Brookline, Dedham, Hyde Park and Milton, are to be known herafter as the South Metropolitan system. Sewage from the Charles River and Neponset valley systems, which is now discharged at Moon island through the city of Boston's sewer, will be taken to the independent outlet of the South Metropolitan system, about three-fourths of a mile off Nut island, at a depth of twenty-six feet at low tide. The high-level sewer will be about sixteen miles long, the cost of construction, necessary pumping station of the Charles River system and of the pumping plant to be bought of the city of Quincy—including land damages and entire cost of high-level system—being estimated at $4,600,000.

The first four sections of this great system are situated in West Roxbury and Hyde Park, covering a distance of 11,535 feet, of which about 5,300 feet is tunnel work. The expenses upon the high-level sewer for the year ending Sept. 30, 1899, including the expenditures for the investigation, are $44,-008.46.

The cost of the North Metropolitan system with all its branches, to date is $5,262,397.68. The total cost of the Charles River system to date is $789,-134.27, and that of the Neponset River Valley system to date is $840,444.73.

Depot Improvements.

The officials for the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. evidently intend to make a number of changes at the station in Quincy, looking toward improving the accommodations. The new depot at Quincy centre will not come until spring Improvement at the other stations, however, will be made as fast as possible. Friday a gang of men put in an appearance at Quincy Adams, and commenced work to thoroughly renovate that station. This made it necessary to move the ticket and telegraph office and they have been located temporarily in an old passenger car that has been side tracked near the station. Just what the improvements will consist of is not known.

NEW TRUCK HERE.

It Was Immediately Put Into Commission.

Is Up-to-Date in Every Way.

Carries Ten New Ladders, Chemical Tanks, etc., etc.

The new Hook & Ladder truck of the Fire department arrived by freight at South Quincy this morning. It was immediately unloaded and taken to the Central fire station, where it was put into commission this noon.

The new truck is a handsome piece of apparatus, and will make a valuable addition to the fire apparatus. It was built by Charles T. Holloway & Co., of Baltimore, and is up-to-date in every way.

It carries ten new ladders, viz: a 15, 20, 30 and 35 foot, two 28 foot, a 45 and 65 foot extension and a 15 and 20 foot roof ladder.

Under the truck are two thirty-five gallon chemical tanks, with hose, and a platform for ropes, fire net, etc. and a box for tools. It also carries here two hand chemicals.

On either side of the truck are two wide running boards set low so that the truck can be boarded easily.

It also carries the usual number of crowbars, axes, hooks and forks.

The drivers seat is large and roomy, with a strap to tie himself in. There is also a seat over the rear axle with a steering wheel. This is so arranged, that if there is no one to operate it when the apparatus starts for a fire, it can be locked and the apparatus guided as usual by the driver. It is painted vermillion with gold stripes. On the sides are the letters, "H. & L. 1, Q. F. D."

It is also arranged so that it can be used with either a two or three horse hitch. The old truck will be taken to West Quincy for the present.

Braintree Centenarian.

County Cork, Ireland was the place of his birth in 1799. There he became personally acquainted with Daniel O'Connell and Charles Stewart Parnell.

During the famine of 1848 he was in the employ of the British Government, at a recompense of one pound of meal a day. Mr. Harrington has a vivid recollection of the time of the battle of Waterloo. He was twice married and is the father of ten children, five of whom are living. Two children reside in Maine, one in Buffalo, N. Y., and two in South Braintree. He came to America at the age of 91 years, and two years ago made a trip to Maine. He has never been sick a day in his life.

If Mr. Harrington lives to see his next anniversary he will have lived in three different centuries. He may be seen on pleasant days walking about the streets.

His present desire is to return as, he terms it, "to dear old Ireland," to see the old place where he spent so many years of his life.

—The new Brockton Journal, devoted to the interests of the Social Democrats, is a newspaper that will help to popularize the principles advocated, if we may judge by the first two numbers. It is not so radical as most of the Socialistic papers, but gets there just tho same. It is neatly printed too.

"TRY, TRY AGAIN."

Yes, 'tis an old, old saw indeed;
Yet, e'er you scorn, I ask you
The proverb in new light to read.
I promise not to task you.

The simple words yield not alone
Earth's secret of successes.
Who grasps their deeper thought doth own
The key to all that blesses—

To conquest o'er besetting sin,
The saddened soul dejecting;
To prayer that doth full answer win;
To character perfecting;

To heaven itself, reached by no bound,
But theirs who, struggling duly,
Do mount life's ladder, round by round,
As sings the poet truly.

Aye, more than world wise is he
Who heeds this saying olden.
His shall the "Well done!" plaudit be,
The crown and scepter golden.

—Good Housekeeping.

ANOTHER MAN IN THE HOUSE.

He Was Mistaken For a Lover, but Confessed That He Was a Burglar.

Donaghue knelt at the door and put a practiced ear at the keyhole. There was a faint sound of breathing, so faint that Donaghue pressed his rough ear still closer to the brassy aperture in the door and listened even more intently. His small eyes glistened in the dark hallway like the eyes of a cat (he had been nicknamed "The Cat" for this very peculiarity), but there was no one in the house to see those glistening eyes save the servants, fast asleep two stories above, and the occupants of this one room. He had watched that house three preceding days and nights. He knew that it was occupied by a young man and his wife—evidently newly married and beyond doubt rich. He knew that the servants were a cook, two maids and a butler, and he had almost worked out in his mind just where the pretty wife placed her jewelry when she went to bed in the second floor room and just what means the husband took to secure his probably well filled purse.

When one is in the habit of making social calls of the description that Donaghue was making, it is much better to find husbands away from home, the servants and occupants of the house all asleep and the policeman on the beat quite out of hearing.

The fact was Donaghue shrank from notoriety. He preferred a quiet entrance by the window wholly unobserved if possible and, departing, left not his card nor anything else that was of value and at the same time portable. Indeed Donaghue was not the tall, handsome fellow that most heroes are. On the contrary, he was of medium height, spare, slouchy and had a general appearance that was anything but prepossessing. He was not a member of polite society.

"Dead easy," said Donaghue to himself. "A young married couple, as I thought, and husband's away on the loose. She's calling his name in her sleep. But I needn't expect him until morning, and when he does come home he'll probably be drunk. That's what I call dead easy."

He turned the knob of the door and opened it the fraction of an inch. His small eyes glistened in the dark as he found that the door was not locked, and that in all probability it would not squeak.

Slowly and with infinite care he opened the door and entered the room. Four feet from him, as he stood almost breathless, with his hand still clasping the knob of the door, lay the sleeping form of a woman. A flood of moonlight from the window fell upon her and melted the pink of her cheek, the cream of her throat, the lace of the nightdress and the white sheet that wrapped her into one semigolden hue. The undulation caused by her breathing made her look like a drooping lily swayed by the gentlest of breezes.

"Great heavens!" thought Donaghue, "what a beauty!" He could hear her faintly mutter the name "Paul—Paul" at intervals, and he had a vague consciousness of a certain disrespect for Paul, whoever he might be. A man must be a brute to leave such a woman alone at night. He lingered but a moment, though. Beauty was a thing of little value to Donaghue. His own Maggie was hardly cursed with the fatal gift of beauty, and she was quite as jealous as other wives. He stepped softly and quickly to the dressing case at the other end of the room. He picked up a perfumed lace handkerchief and threw it away impatiently, although in his more youthful days a lace handkerchief he would have considered a prize of no mean value. Below it he found what he wanted and expected—a locket and chain, a jeweled watch, a heavy bracelet, a pin and what seemed to him a handful of rings. He held them all up in the moonlight and noticed how they sparkled in his trembling hand, and he smiled with delight.

He turned and looked at her. He felt like adding a stolen kiss to the other jewels he had taken. He almost laughed aloud at the thought of such a man as he kissing such a peerless beauty as the woman who lay on the bed before him. And he was just about to depart as peacefully as a social caller when suddenly he heard the slamming of the front door in the hall below.

"Her old man," said Donaghue, forgetting that he was probably a young man, "and I'm caught. Caught—burglary—ten years at the least. I'll kill him. But I'll be caught whether I kill him or not, and"—self upbraidingly—"I could have got away easily enough if I hadn't stopped to look at her."

Again he stepped quickly to the door and listened. He heard footsteps in the hall beneath. The man had stepped into the back parlor, or library, whichever it was. Perhaps the man had been out on business and would stop there for a minute or two at his desk. Perhaps there was, after all, a chance for escape. He was cool and careful. He dropped the jewels on the bed. It would not do to be caught with them about him. And he went out.

The door squeaked this time, and the young wife started in her sleep, awoke and half rose in her bed.

Donaghue tripped down the stairs as softly as a cat. He had been in a tight fix before, and he was never cleverer than when he knew that he was in danger.

But luck was against him. There was a fur rug at the foot of the stairs. The floor beneath was polished. He slipped and fell, and in spite of himself he uttered an exclamation that was profane enough to be unmistakably masculine. He heard the man rush from the library, and how it all happened he hardly knew, but some way or other he managed to dash into the dark parlor, to throw open the window and jump out.

He expected to fall at least eight or ten feet. He did not fall two. He had jumped out on a porch, evidently, for he could see the railing in the moonlight. There was one thing to do—to hide directly beneath the window in the shadow and wait. He knew his pursuer would be there in a moment. He knew there would be a hue and cry. Still, there was a chance.

True enough, the man came to the window; but, to the infinite surprise of Donaghue, he made no outcry. He heard the man utter a half articulate "Heaven! has it come to this?" He heard him walk a few steps and strike a match. He saw the light of the gas jets from the window, and then he knew that he was safe, and he cursed himself for a fool for leaving the jewels behind.

He heard a woman's step in the room. The man at the window turned.

"How dare you look me in the face?" he cried. "How dare you come to me after this?"

Calmly the woman raised herself to her feet and, looking at the man, said in a forced whisper:

"What do you mean?"

"What do I mean? You know what I mean," answered the man. "He has been here at last—perhaps not for the first time. But I have found it out. I have found you out."

Donaghue heard a little stifled moan and the crash of a body as it fell on the floor. He began to gather a crude idea of what it was all about. He had handsome experiences with Maggie. He had been jealous himself once. He raised himself a little higher and peered over the sill of the window.

The woman was not moaning now, but in a dead faint, and, with her face as white as the sheet that had covered her in the room above, she lay motionless at the feet of the man who accused her.

"And the cur ran away from you? He didn't even stay to fight me like a man! He's a coward. I knew it when we met him in Baden. He's a villain. I knew it when he followed us to London. He can take you now. I don't want you. And some day he'll run away from you, poor, beautiful, miserable fool, just as he has run away from me."

There was considerable human nature in Donaghue, even though he did make his living in a peculiar way. This was a little more than he could stand. He jumped up and leaped back through the window.

"Look here!" he shouted, and then was suddenly silent, for a pair of strong hands were clasped about his throat, and the heavy weight of the larger man had borne him to the floor in a moment.

"You, such a being as you, my wife's lover!" roared the man.

"No!" screamed Donaghue, making a desperate effort to free himself.

"Well, who are you?" said the man.

"Let me sit up and I'll tell you," answered Donaghue.

The man released him, still keeping him within arms' reach in the corner of the room. Donaghue felt his throat tenderly.

"Well?" said the man peremptorily.

"I'm the man that was in the house," said Donaghue sullenly.

"What do you mean? Why were you here?" asked the man.

"Well," answered Donaghue, regaining some of his customary bravado, "I wanted to add some of your jewelry to my collection. See? If you don't believe me, you'll find it where I threw it away, up in your wife's room."

The man turned and dropped to his knees by the side of the prostrate woman. He put his ear to her heart, and when he raised his head again Donaghue saw that there were tears in his eyes.

"Thank God, she has only fainted," said the man. "Bring me some water from the library."

Donaghue brought the water in a solid silver pitcher that made him sigh with a vain wish that he had got away with it and the jewels above.

"She will be all right in a moment," said the man, "and you may go."

"Thanks," said Donaghue nonchalantly, going toward the window.

"Perhaps it is I who ought to thank you," said the man, "for, after all, you have proved that my wife is true to me."

"Don't mention it," answered Donaghue, as he disappeared—"at least not to the police."—Chicago Herald.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic.—Prayer that obtains.—Luke ii, 5-13; xviii, 2-5.

The topical references give us three illustrations of prayers that obtained—prayers among men, each one illustrating the increased willingness of God to answer the prayers of His people.

1. The prayer of the friend at midnight (Luke ii, 5-9). In this parable Jesus describes one friend coming to another at midnight and asking for bread for a friend who has come to visit him. At first he refuses and calls out, "Trouble me not," but the other persists, and at last his perseverance prevails. Because of his importunity his friend hears him and grants his request. Now, if man thus answers the prayers of his fellow man, how much more may we expect God to answer the earnest, persistent, continued prayers of His people! It is true, He may delay the answer for our good, but if we persevere the answer, if for our good, will finally come. If we ask, we shall receive; if we seek, we shall find; if we knock, it shall be opened unto us.

2. The prayer of children to parents. Christ's second illustration is that of a son asking bread of his father and receiving bread and fish, and not a stone or a serpent. Earthly parents hear and answer the prayers of their children. They would not think of mocking their cries for bread by giving them stones or their cries for fish by giving them serpents. God is our Heavenly Father, and if earthly parents give good gifts to their children, in answer to their prayers, much more may we expect God, our Heavenly Father, to give His Spirit to them that ask Him.

3. The widow and the unjust judge. In this case a widow presents a petition to an unjust judge, one who neither regards God nor man. At first he refused her petition, but she came again and again, and at last he granted it, lest by her continual coming she should weary him. If an unjust judge would thus hear and answer the prayer of a poor widow, with what more reason can we expect our God, who is just, and not only just, but merciful and loving, to answer our petitions.

4. These three parables all teach one great, important truth—namely, that God will answer prayer; that if we are earnest and persevering in our petitions God will not turn a deaf ear to our cries. Let us be encouraged, therefore, to spend much time in prayer. Our prayers will obtain. Let us specially pray at this time for the outpouring of God's blessing upon the churches and people of God. If the prayers of individuals for temporal blessings prevailed, how much more can we believe that our united prayers for a great spiritual blessing will prevail.

THE PRAYER MEETING.—Make this a special prayer and praise service. Have special prayers for special objects, sentence prayers, silent prayer and a "prayer chain," a number standing and praying one after the other. Intersperse the praying with appropriate hymns and testimonies.

Bible Readings.—Gen. xxxii, 24-30; II Kings xix, 14-19, 35; I Sam. xii, 19-25; Ps. lv, 17; lxv, 1, 2; Isa. lviii, 9; lxv, 24; Math. vi, 6-15; vii, 7-11; John xiv, 14; xv, 16; Acts ii, 41-47; Eph. iii, 14-21; Jas. v, 16-20; I John iii, 22.

The Sanctified Ear.

How many bring a sanctified ear to the worship of God? They come to hear what? One wishes to hear what he terms good music. Music, after all, is only an attendant. God rises in the chariot, not in the rumbling of the wheels. Music is more than the harmony of sounds. It is a truth processional entering the brain. The average anthem is neither music nor sense. It teaches nothing. The advent angels not only sang well, but they sang something. The words lingered after the sound had vanished.—Presbyterian Journal.

A Child's Laugh.

Strike with hand of fire, O weird musician, thy harp strung with Apollo's golden hair; fill the vast cathedral aisles with symphonies sweet and dim, deft toucher of the organ keys; blow, bugler, blow until the silver notes do touch and kiss the moonlit waves and charm the lovers wandering midst the vine clad hills! But know your sweetest strains are discord all compared with childhood's happy laugh—the laugh that fills the eyes with light and every heart with joy!—Robert Ingersoll.

The Value of Adversity.

The air from the sea of affliction is extremely beneficial to invalid Christians. Continued prosperity, like a warm atmosphere, has a tendency to unbind the sinews and soften the bones, but the cold winds of trouble make us sturdy, hardy and well braced in every part. Unbroken success often leads to an undervaluing of mercies and forgetfulness of the giver, but the withdrawal of the sunshine leads us to look for the sun.—Spurgeon.

New Opportunities.

Each day, each week, each month, each year, is a new chance given you by God. A new chance, a new leaf, a new life—this is the golden, the unspeakable, gift which each new day offers you.—Canon Farrar.

The Master.

When earth's last picture is painted,
And the tubes are twisted and dried,
When the oldest colors have faded
And the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest,—and, faith, we shall need it,
Lie down for an eon or two,
Till the Master of all good workmen
Shall set us to work anew.

* * * * * * *

And only the Master shall praise us,
And only the Master shall blame,
And no one shall work for money,
And no one shall work for fame,
But each for the joy of the working,
And each in his separate star,
Shall draw the thing as he sees it,
For the God of things as they are.

NO BACKWARD STEPS.

Business World Look Forward to the Current Year With the Greatest Confidence.

New York, Jan. 6.—Bradstreet's says: The business world has "marked time" this week, pending the results of annual stock takings and the passing away of the holiday influence which usually make for quietness at this period. Aside from the strengthening of values of a number of staples, such as the cereals, provisions and cotton, which are speculatively dealt in, there has been no decided movement forward, but on the other hand, the strength of all other staple values point to there having been no backward steps taken.

All obtainable reports as to last year's business confirm earlier advices, while perceptibly increasing the confidence with which the business world looks forward to the current year. Perhaps the most notable movement among leading staples is that developed in hogs and hog products, a better realization apparently being had of the features making for strength in those products, notable among which being the reduction in the supply of hogs, which, like the similar falling off in the number of cattle, has gone on for a number of years past. The limited stocks held, too, are a further source of strength.

That the advance in hog products is beginning to attract more attention seems evident from the extent to which this advance has had sympathetic reflection in the prices of wheat and other cereals, which really trace some of the strength which has been shown this week to that source.

While stocks of wheat have fallen off in Europe, and shipments thereto in December were the lightest recorded for many years past, still stocks have increased in this country to nearly as great an extent.

Owing to the continued light movement and the confidence with which holders maintain prices, cotton has advanced slightly during the week. It is evident from some reports to Bradstreet's recently that the new plan of warehousing cotton is having a measurable influence upon the movement in sight.

In iron and steel quiet strength has, as for many weeks past, been the notable feature. A rather more aggressive feeling is noted at Chicago, where wire and nails have been considerably advanced, and bar steel, angles and channels have also moved upward.

Boot and shoe manufacturers are actively employed and leather retains its old strength, though some weakness in hides and skins is reported at the west.

Textiles display notable strength. Next season cotton goods will all open higher and in finished products particularly there is chance for expansion, as quotations in those lines have not moved up to a parity with gray goods.

The short supply of water is beginning to affect the output of New England cotton mills, and this promises to introduce still another element of strength into holders' positions.

Wool, though quiet, is stronger, and manufactured goods will certainly open at a good advance. Export trade for our fine wool is good, as evidenced by some shipments this week to England, and some buyers are said to have bought wool that is yet on the sheeps' backs in the west.

SUFFERED TERRIBLY,

British Charged Through Zone of Fire In Sortie From Mafeking.

Hostilities Suspended Under Auspices of Red Cross.

Question of Contraband Seizures Occupying the Mind of the British Public.

At dawn today Colonel Baden-Powell organized a successful attack upon a strong position of the enemy at Gamtree, two miles from Mafeking, from which the Boers have been maintaining a desultory but annoying shell and rifle fire for several weeks. The railway has recently been reconstructed between the town and Gamtree, where the Boers had destroyed it, the final repairs being made in preparation for the sortie.

During the night the armored train, with Maxim and Hotchkiss guns under Captain Williams, and troops, took up positions for attack from two sides, Captain Benbinick and a squadron were in reserve upon the left, while the extreme left wing was occupied by artillery under Major Panzera and a galloping Maxim of the Cape police, the whole being under Colonel Hore.

"Implacements were thrown up during the night, the orders being to attack at dawn and the artillery fire to desist upon prolonged tooting from the armored train. At daybreak the guns opened fire and rapidly drew the reply of the enemy, our shells bursting within effective range. Captain Vernon gave the signal to cease firing and to advance, his squadron leading off.

As our men engaged the position with their rifle fire, it was soon found that the strength of the fort was greater than we had supposed. The enemy concentrated such an exceedingly hot fire that the advance of Captain Vernon was almost impossible; but with remarkable heroism and gallantry, Captains Sanford and Vernon, Lieutenant Paton and Scout Cooke, who guided the squadrons, and a few men actually reached the sandbags of the fort, within 300 yards of the area of the fort.

But nothing living could exist there, since the ground was swept by Mauser and Martini bullets. The men who charged through this zone of fire suffered terrible and, in following their officers to capture the fort, 20 men lost their lives. Captain Sanford was the first to fall, and Captain Vernon, already, too, wounded, and Lieutenant Paton were killed at the foot of the fort. These two officers, climbing a ditch which surrounded the fort, thrust their revolvers through the enemy's loopholes, only to be shot themselves the next moment.

Gamtree is surrounded with scrub, which contained many sharpshooters; and their accuracy of fire still further confused the men who had followed Captain Vernon, and who saw him and his brother officers killed. Being without commanders, they were driven off at the point, but they endeavored to scale the fort at others. They found the position of the Boers, however, almost impregnable.

When we retired under cover of the armored train so many men had been wounded that a suspension of hostilities occurred under the auspices of the Red Cross. The veldt around the Boer position was at once dotted with flags of mercy; and it was seen that our wounded were scattered within but a short radius of the fort. We had almost completely surrounded it; and, had it not been so extraordinarily well protected we should have been in possession.

I was permitted to assist in dressing the wounds, a majority of which appeared to have been caused by explosive bullets, the point of entry being small, but the area of injury covering a wide region. While the wounded were being attended, numbers of Boers left their entrenchments and gathered round. At the conclusion of the dressing I spoke to several tattered and dirty, but physically fine men. Many of them were undersized, and all wore beards. They referred me to the field cornet, who denied the use of explosive bullets. On being shown the horrible wounds, he admitted that at one time explosive bullets had been served out, but he said he was certain they had all been previously expended, and that none could have been used on this occasion. He then produced a bandolier filled with dum dums and pointed out that, so far as Mafeking was concerned, these had been recalled.

Later on I called the attention of the field cornet to four of his own men who were rifling dead bodies. He expressed his regret to a British officer, that, despite his instructions to respect the dead, the younger Boers were unruly and beyond his control; and he accused the British soldiers of stripping General Kock and leaving him naked and wounded on the field, thus indirectly causing his death.

The correspondent then describes a scene of angry recriminations between the field cornet and the Boers regarding the existence of orders about robbing the dead, and also about the facts themselves, some of the Boers asserting that they only took arms, despite the arrival, at that very moment, of the bodies of five British, under Boer escort, with the pockets of their uniforms turned inside out.

The question of contraband seizures takes almost the paramount place in the thoughts of the public, the vague possibility that these may be made a pretext for continental intervention disturbing official and private observers. The government's undeviating purpose to enforce strictly the right of search has been set forth in detailed instructions, dispatched yesterday by the admiralty to the British naval commanders in South African waters, giving them weekly warnings, without exception, to avoid the government measures for the suppression of the importation of contraband by way of Delagoa bay.

Newspaper Advertising.

In the front rank of advertising media stands the newspaper, and for the retailer nothing can equal it as a medium. It is generally conceded that the daily holds first place among newspapers, but in the smaller towns and villages the weekly often brings the best returns. One should select for his use the best paper in his locality. That is, the paper that reaches the greatest number of the people of the class that he wishes to reach. The best paper for an advertiser is usually the one with the largest bona fide circulation, but this rule does not always hold true. The paper with the largest circulation often goes to a class that the merchant does not wish to reach.

When the relative value of the papers has been decided and the best one chosen a certain number of lines or inches of space should be contracted for to be used within a given space of time. Just enough space should be used in each issue to express one's self clearly and obtain good display. After the advertising space has been obtained, it should not be neglected. The announcements should be changed often. Advertising is business and unless it is kept newsy, the public will soon cease to read it. There are thousands of different articles of merchandise in the average retail store and it should not be difficult to find good subject matter for frequent change in advertisements.

Every merchant should set aside a certain amount of time for his advertising work. If he cannot find time to give this branch of his business the attention it requires, he should make it the duty of one of his assistants.

Nearly all merchants find it difficult to write advertisements. If each merchant would remember how he talks to the patron in his store and talk to the public in his advertisements in the same honest, simple, plain English way, there would be much more good advertising. Very few men can write a good humorous advertisement. Therefore the temptation to be funny or cute should be avoided. The aim should always be to bring out the good points of the goods advertised, but not to exaggerate them. The advertisement that strikes the happy medium between inadequacy and exaggeration will be very nearly perfect. Sentences should be short, and the whole advertisement should be as short as it possibly can be without losing any of its force. Above all things, an advertisement should tell the truth.

The setting of an advertisement has much to do with its effectiveness. Good display can be obtained with two or three styles of type. More than this number of faces should seldom be used. Good strong headlines with perfectly plain body matter makes good display. White space sets off an advertisement much better when it is all in one or two places than it does when scattered helter skelter among a number of lines of different sized type. Headlines which are set with capitals and small letters are usually more attractive and easier to read than those set entirely with capitals. If the writer of an advertisement is not familiar with the different sizes and faces of type, he had better not designate the style to be used. He had better tell his printer how he desires the advertisement to appear, and then trust to the printer to set it up correctly.

It's much more important to make plain the goods advertised than to bring out the firm name. If people are interested in the goods, they'll see the firm name they'll make it a point to see it. Space is too valuable to be used up by printing firm names with the biggest type in the office. Illustrations are a great help toward effective advertising—that is, the right kind of illustrations. They attract attention to the subject matter. Neat outline cuts which accurately illustrate the goods advertised can be profitably used. Advertising will prove remunerative just so long as it is properly conducted.—The Iron Age.

The Barber Shop Boss.

"You're next, sir," said the boss barber, indicating a fat man who was buried behind a newspaper. "I'll wait for awhile," replied the fat man. "I'm in no hurry." As another man climbed into the vacant chair the fat man leaned over to another customer who was waiting his turn and confided that he was in a hurry, a deuced hurry, but he would rather lose his turn than be shaved by the proprietor of the shop.

"It isn't that I have any grievance against this particular barber," he went on, "but I shun all boss barbers as I would a plague. In the first place, he patronizes you, and, in the second place, he is invariably the worst barber in the shop. Then, too, it takes him about twice as long. He will lather one side of your face and then go over to the desk to make change for a customer who is going out, for he is generally his own cashier. He considers it his duty to exchange airy persiflage with each customer as he leaves the shop, and by the time he gets back to you your face is caked in cold lather.

"This usually happens four or five times while you are getting shaved, and you may consider yourself lucky if a salesman for a perfumery or soap house doesn't come in to talk up his wares. In that event you are bound to be kept waiting for 10 or 15 minutes, and when you are finally shaved your peace of mind is destroyed for the rest of the day. No boss barbers in mine. I know 'em too well, and I wait every time."—Exchange.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

At the hearing in Brookline last evening Mr. James B. Hard seemed to know considerable about Quincy. He said he thought that the citizens of Quincy were now sorry that they ever departed from the town government idea. But Quincy has not departed from the town government idea. Although it is a city, it has a Council which is wholly legislative, and department officers and boards as in Brookline. The City Council does not have the expenditure of any money, and it is further, composed largely of taxpayers.

It was a serious mistake, says the Herald, to postpone the payment of the cost of Metropolitan parks and boulevards from 1895 to 1900, because in the last five years the burden of debt has increased by interest upon the loans and by added appropriations, some of which would not have been made if the municipalities had been aware by an experience in the form of taxation that public parks and boulevards, like other enjoyable things, cost money, and are not a free gift of nature.

Now that Quincy is to have a parkway, however, it feels as if it was to receive some benefit from the expenditure. In 1895 the city did not feel that it was getting any benefit from the reservation. It felt, in fact, that it had lost 2,500 acres of land which would soon have developed valuable granite quarries, and added materially to the taxable valuation of the city.

☞ We observe that the greatest sticklers for "Puerto" have no hesitation at all in speaking of a gentleman of the island as a "Puerto Rican." Yet if "Puerto," why not "Riqueno?" Let's be consistently English or consistently Spanish in these matters.—Hartford Current.

☞ It is almost as bad, in one sense, to wear out as to rust out. The final result is the same; the worn out machine is no better than the useless one. There must be a golden mean. A well-oiled machine should not wear out, and a busy man or woman need not break down, if he or she will but soften the effects of wearing tasks by a judicious amount of rest. The ideal life requires a proper intermingling of activity and rest, and is best described as restful activity. In such a life there is neither rust nor wear.—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

☞ The writer who in the current number of the Atlantic Monthly makes a plea for the shiftless reader, claiming his right to enjoy what he likes in literature, and in his own way, regardless of the critic and the analysist, will receive an unspoken vote of thanks from many a timid reader whose pleasure in books has been half spoiled for him by the people who tell him, in print or otherwise, what he ought to read and how he ought to read it, and what he ought to think about what he reads. Mrs. Dunn's plea is a plea for individuality, which every individual with a mind will indorse.—New Bedford Standard.

Thayer Academy Athletics.

Athletics are going along finely at Thayer at the present time and so many upper class men have been attending the three weekly class drills that is has been found necessary to use the balcony.

Basket-ball teams are being formed in classes 1900, 1901 and 1902 and a class league is practically assured.

The outlook for the base ball team is very promising. It is expected that nearly twenty men will try for the team.

Free Transfers.

The Norfolk Suburban, West Roxbury & Roslindale and Norfolk Central Street Railway companies, all of which centre at Memorial hall, Dedham, and are now in the Consolidated interest, have arranged to give transfer checks which will allow passengers to go over the three lines within the limits of the town of Dedham for a five-cent fare. It is expected that this privilege will, in the early spring, be extended so as to convey a passenger beyond the limits of the town. The present concession, however, is appreciated, especially by the people of Dedham living on the outskirts of the town, who had to pay two fares to reach their destination. The new arrangement went into effect on Monday last.

—There is a rumor to the effect that the Hollis Street Theatre, one of his best and ost profitable investments, has been left to the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, by the will of Robert B. Brigham.

GAIN OF 22 PERCENT.

Months.	Quincy Adams.	West Quincy.	Quarry R. R.
Mar.	5,084,560	6,489,040	12,792,190
April	5,631,448	3,744,420	6,230,340
May	10,084,016	5,123,805	12,729,560

Aug.	6,414,453	4,263,430	14,890,930
Sept.	4,289,763	6,031,890	13,576,540
Oct.	4,884,064	11,041,780	9,610,070
Nov.	4,701,443	9,713,320	9,028,060
Dec.	4,300,000	5,300,000	10,000,000

Early in the century there was fear that the supply would give out, and restrictive laws were passed by the town, but year by year the shipments increase, and have assumed gigantic proportions, but the supply shows no sign of giving out.

THE EIGHT HOUR DAY

And Demand of Granite Cutters for $3 per Day.

The leading editorial in the Monumental News for January is of local interest, because of the demands of the Quincy granite cutters to go into effect March 1. The Ledger gives it in full without comment:

"The important, we might say vital, question between the National Stone Cutters' Union and the manufacturers of granite remains one of absorbing interest with the monumental trade throughout the country. Since our last issue the probable results of the radical demands of the union have been discussed pro and con, and a better realization of possibilities has put the matter on a broader basis for mature consideration.

"At the December meeting of the Granite Manufacturers of New England, held in Boston, it was voted: It is not to the best interests of the granite trade, either for employer or employe, to increase the cost of production, and also to resist the demands of the union for decrease in hours of labor and increase of wages. It was the sense of the meeting that all such matters be settled by arbitration. Herein lies the suggestion implied in the foregoing paragraph, that ample time has been accorded for both sides to the controversy, and that ill-considered arbitrariness will not help the cause. There is a wide diversity of opinion on the subject, though it must be conceded that in the majority of cases it is adverse to the action of the Granite Cutters' Union. With the mass of information being accumulated upon which to base methods of adjustment, it is impossible to believe in anything but a fair and amiable arrangement being effected, and while we are about it, let us have a permanent agreement, for say five years, to encourage present prosperity.

It is doubtful whether the opening of a new year at any time during the last decade has found granite manufacturers so well stocked with orders as at the present time. The recent advance in prices has stimulated the placing of orders by the dealers almost beyond precedent with the remarkable result that many manufacturers are actually declining more busines, while others have advanced price nearly one-third.

—Do American men and women realize that in five cities of our country alone there were during the last school term over sixteen thousand children between the ages of eight and fourteen taken out of the public schools because their nervous systems were wrecked, and their minds were incapable of going on any further in the infernal cramming system which exists today in our schools?" inquires Edward Bok in the January Ladies' Home Journal.

NEW LOBSTER LAW.

Quincy lobster men will be interested in a lobster protective bill which is one of the chief features of the new report of Chief Wade of the State Police. He thinks it will help prevent the lobster from becoming extinct by reason of the indiscriminate catching of lobsters of all sizes:

Section 1. Whoever sets, hauls or uses in any of the waters of the Commonwealth a lobster trap or any contrivance for taking lobsters, said trap or contrivance having any of the laths or sticks or any other material nearer together than two inches, and not leaving a clear space, not less than two inches, in width, between all of said laths or sticks or any other material, shall forfeit $100 for each offence.

Sec. 2 This act shall not apply to the laths or sticks on the bottom of any lobster trap.

Sec. 3 All lobster traps shall have the owner's name and residence legibly marked thereon, under the same penalty prescribed in section 1.

The present law provides that no lobster less than 10 1-2 inches long may be caught without rendering the catcher liable to a fine. He thinks that any lobster of less than the legal size could escape from the trap mentioned in the statute proposed.

OLD NEWSPAPERS.

The Venerable Quincy Patriot Heads the List.

The oldest paper printed in Norfolk county is the Quincy Patriot, now in its sixty-fourth year, which has all these years been printed in the building it now occupies. George W. Prescott, the present owner, has for over thirty-eight years held the position as managing editor.

The next newspaper of age in this vicinity is the Hingham Journal, which issued yesterday, Jan. 5, the first number of its fifty-first year. The publisher and editor, Fred H. Miller, deserves credit in furnishing to the people of his town a newsy sheet. It is in good form, and printed on the best heavy, white paper. Each week the high school column we find to be very interesting and the scholars of that school should be proud of it.

In Randolph is printed the "Randolph Register and Holbrook News," by Daniel H. Huxford, the editor and publisher. It is now on its forty-third year of existance, has won fame and is holding the field. The editor is doing his best to boom the good old town and the citizens should aid him in his labors by supporting this valuable weekly.

The "Sentinel," Stoughton, Mass., has completed its thirty-sixth year and starts on another volume with the new year. This favorite home paper, with L. W. Standish as editor and publisher, seems to have only one trouble, and that is delinquent subscribers. Brother Standish rides a bicycle in connection with his business, as does the editor of the "Observer and Reporter," and not until this week were they forced to put aside their valuable aids in news gathering.

With this number, we begin the twenty-third year of the Braintree Observer, under its new heading. It is surely aging, but compared with some of our neighboring weeklies it is still young and growing.

Our neighbor on the east, the "Weymouth Gazette," which has almost completed its thirty-third year in the field with W. Blanchard and M. E. Hawes as editors and managers, is as white as a lily, and is brim full of news and advertising.

To the west is Canton, the home of the "Canton Journal," a weekly with Mr. P. M. Leavitt as publisher and proprietor. It has entered upon its twenty-fourth year with a bright future.

The Franklin Sentinel is the same age as the "Observer," beginning its twenty-third volume with the new year, with Carl B. Johnson its editor and proprietor, assisted by Mrs. Johnson as associate editor. It is not like the papers above mentionod, for it is issued semi-weekly. — Braintree Observer.

AMERICAN DIAMONDS.

The dissemination of information regarding the lake diamonds through the region of the moraine, says Popular Science Monthly, should serve the two-fold purpose of encouraging search for the buried stones and of discovering diamonds in the little collections of "lucky stones" and local curios which accumulate on the clock shelves of country farmhouses. When it is considered that three of the largest diamonds thus far found in the region remained for periods of 7, 8 and 16 years respectively in the hands of the farming population, it can hardly be doubted that many other diamonds have been found and preserved as local curiosities without their real nature being discovered.

If diamonds should be discovered in the moraines of eastern Ohio, of western Pennsylvania or of western New York, considerable light would thereby be thrown upon the problem of locating the ancestral home. More important than this, however, is the mapping of the Canadian wilderness to the southeastward and eastward of James bay in order to determine the direction of ice movement within the region, so that the tracking of the stones already found may be carried nearer their home. The director of the geological survey of Canada is giving attention to this matter and has also suggested that a study be made of the material found in association with diamonds in the moraine, so that if possible its source may be discovered.

With the discovery of new localities of these emigrant stones and the collection of data regarding the movement of the ice over Canadian territory it will perhaps be possible the more accurately and definitely to circumscribe their home country and as its boundaries are drawn closer and closer to pay this popular jewel a visit in its ancestral home, there to learn what we so much desire to know regarding its genesis and its life history.

What then? Are we utterly dependent upon coal, so that the wheels of industry will stop and the forests be consumed for fuel when coal gives out? Of course not. It is an idle fear. Already we have the beginnings of a new method of utilizing natural energy which will prove enormously more effective than coal ever has been and will be practically inexhaustible to whatever extent industry may expand.

Electrical energy developed by water power will run the world's industries, furnish its light and heat and be the universal substitute for all forms of combustion methods. Water power is practically unlimited, and it will be utilized more and more in proportion as the need for it arises and as its use becomes at different places and at successive periods cheaper than coal. The substitution will proceed gradually until, when the coal supply finally is exhausted, nobody will have anything more than a curious or academic interest in the matter, and probably not a ripple will be produced in the steady onward flow of the world's industry. As the use of water power to develop electrical energy increases to the point of formidable competition with coal electrical students and inventors will doubtless bring out improvements making it possible to store the power or conduct it long distances at small cost, until our factories, railroads and ships can be operated by it, our houses lighted and warmed and food prepared, all at even less expense than is possible today with coal.—Gunton's Magazine.

Food Preparations.

Experiments by Dr. A. McGill of Canada show that much has yet to be done before final pronouncements can be made upon the food value, if any, of the flesh bases which in most instances form a chief portion of the nitrogenous material in meat extracts, the fact being that, as these bases certainly differ among themselves in food value, it is consequently true of the various forms in which proteid matter occurs in these preparations—viz, as peptones, proteoses, acids, albumens, etc. Dr. McGill's experiments suggest that a part of the nitrogen in some meat preparations exists as urea, the latter certainly having no food value. As to its assumed value as a stimulant, Dr. McGill remarks that nature seems to have provided for the prompt elimination of urea from the system, it being also well known that any failure to get rid of it by way of the kidneys results in serious disturbance of the vital functions and may end in death by uraemia. From the fact that no practical method has been discovered by which a sharp analytical line can be drawn between the nitrogen present as urea and that present as creatin, creatinin and xamtlim flesh bases cannot, of course, be called food stuff, in the proper sense of the term.

Graduating Thermometers.

According to the usual practice, the graduations on the thermometer scales and levels are marked by scratching the surface of the glass in some way at each point where there is to be a graduation, says Popular Science. But the glass is weakened in each of these points and is apt to break, which is dangerous in the case of boiler levels. It is evident that this could be avoided by softening slightly the surface of the glass at the desired points and mixing some coloring matter with it. An American firm asserts that it has obtained this result under the best conditions by passing over the tube where a graduation is to be marked an iron disk turning at the rate of 2,400 revolutions a minute. The friction causes a rise of temperature sufficient partly to melt the glass, and at the same time small particles of iron are detached from the wheel and become incorporated in the softened glass.

FLORIDA LETTER.

Interesting Communication from C. W. Clapp.

The following letter of C. W. Clapp to the Braintree Observer and Reporter will be read with interest in Quincy:

Crescent City, Jan. 2, 1900.

Editor of Observer and Reporter:

Through your colums I desire to convey to he citizens of Braintree the customary salutation, "Happy New Year." The one I have in mind may represent a shade more depth of meaning than some, simply because I believe that to a great extent the realization of its being a "year of happiness," is entrusted to our keeping. The fundamental plank of individual happiness is a cheerful disposition. The pleasure to be derived from progress made in 1900 is the balm for Braintree's reflections at the close of 1900.

Now as I have concluded that I have only a limited time in which to see Braintree "blossom like the rose," it becomes necessary to jog the vitality of its citizens with an article that savors of dictation, in order to insure its taking effect. Some previous articles I have written for your paper contained intimations of a coming cyclone, but as they showed no evidence of having aroused a "single sinner" from repose, I propose to slam the door a little harder, each article I send you, to assure myself that Braintree is not dead, but sleeping.

This reminds me of the story I heard of a minstrel organization in Boston that offered a watch to the member of the company who would name the dullest place on earth. After naming Oshkosh, Skineattles and Bugs Landing, an up-to-date fellow shouted, Braintree. They immediately deluged that man with watches. The story had been told. I refer to this as an endorsement of the opinion I hold, viz. that as a town, it has no reputation outside of its borders, for progressive and liberal ideas.

The question was often asked me during my early residence, "Where you living?" The usual reply, to identify its location was, "Oh yes, I know, Citizen Hobart lives there." I saw how this came about later on. Citizen Hobart had done something that made him known, while Braintree had done nothing.

Its first demand for public admiration was the introduction of the water supply. A town's reputation is made by its acts, or lack of same. Show me a liberal up to date act, done by authority of its officials, calculated to introduce growth, if you can point one out.

All along the line of railroads you may see posted signboards reading, "Lands given away for manufacturing purposes, money furnished to build, etc." What does it mean? It means by so doing adjoining lands are made valuable, made to contribute thousands of dollars to the town treasury, that a do-nothing-but-waite-policy, would never have received one dollar of. It means growth and prosperity, brought about by ingenious up to date ideas, that never would come to such towns as wait for sombody to force a new life into its viens.

My attention is particularly called to this matter, by an article published in your paper relative to the building of a boulevard from Quincy to the reservation, which from the reading, seems to indicate its sure construction. Why did Quincy get it? Because they applied for it, worked for it, and squelched the squealer who was opposed to it unless it went by his door. They had men of public spirit who rose above individual selfishness, and labored for the public good, while Braintree stood by discussing whether if one were to be built, it should certainly go through everybody's front yard.

These are unpalatable, but stubborn facts that the town has got to frown upon, and labor for the upbuilding of a broader citizenship.

I am not going to dictate a policy for the new club that starts out so auspiciously, but I trust I shall be pardoned for making a suggestion. There never was a time so opportune, neither a town so needy as ours for the agitation of questions effecting its welfare. "Public Improvement" is a motto with meat enough in it to sustain the life of such an organization, when starvation would stare it in the face, if only fed upon frosting and whipped cream, of social events or pleasures that decay with too frequent repetition.

In my next letter I will give my observations of effects produced by the freezing of the orange trees, with rambling notes. C. W. CLAPP.

Heating Railroad Cars.

When a passenger enters a warm railroad car and settles down behind a paper or otherwise occupies himself, he little thinks of the method employed in heating that car. A visit to the South Boston yards of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad at any time in the winter will reveal two locomotives, too old for use to draw freight or passenger trains pumping steam into the cars waiting there to be made into locals or express trains. Pipes run underground connecting with these locomotives and the different tracks, and as soon as the cars are in place the steam hose is coupled to one of the pipes and the heat then works on the same principle as when the train is made up and a locomotive attached. During the daytime an engineer is in charge of the double-head locomotive and at night a watchman looks after things about the two old "traps," as railroad men call them. One of these old engines is No. 609, formerly known as the Plymouth Rock. She was presumalby the best engine on the road in her day and was the pride of every engineer who ran her.—Boston Transcript.

—It is believed says the Portsmouth Journal, that the Molineux trial in New York will prove to be the longest and costliest in American history, and that even then it will result in a disagreement of the jury. The length and cost will be owing to "expert" evidence, and the utter futility of this will be apparent when the defence introduces its array of experts, whose testimony will be diametrically opposed to those of the state.

—An anti-gambling crusade is to be ejected into Congress. It is aimed to stop gambling of all kinds.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

AMERICANS RELEASED.

Gilmore and Other Prisoners In Hands of Insurgents Are Free.

Washington, Jan. 6.—General Otis cables from Manila that Colonel Hare has released all of the American prisoners in the hands of the insurgents, including Lieutenant J. C. Gilmore, and they have arrived at Vigan.

LIEUTENANT J. C. GILLMORE.

The disappearance of Lieutenant Gilmore and 14 other men from the Yorktown was reported to the navy department by Admiral Dewey on April 13. His message said the Yorktown visited Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, April 12, for the purpose of rescuing and bringing away the Spanish forces. Lieutenant Gilmore and his party, while reconnoitering, were ambushed and fired upon by the insurgents, and their fate was unknown until the dispatch from Manila announced that they were captives.

Lieutenant Gilmore was born in Philadelphia, July 10, 1854, and was appointed a naval cadet from Arizona in September, 1871. He reached his present grade of lieutenant in 1891. He served on the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul, under Captain Sigsbee, throughout the war, and was assigned by Admiral Dewey to the Yorktown. On April 28 news came to the effect that the Gilmore party was in the hands of the insurgents at Baler. A few days later the first authentic information regarding Lieutenant Gilmore and his party, who were captured by the insurgents on April 12, was received at the hands of Major Arguelles of the staff of General Antonio Luna.

The Spanish commission which entered the Filipino lines in September reported that Lieutenant Gilmore was at Bingat. The party has frequently been reported as having been seen in various parts of Luzon, and several stories of their suffering have been told. The insurgents have evidently made every effort to hold them as long as possible.

Quay's chances of securing a seat in the senate were diminished considerably yesterday by the action of the senate committee on elections, which voted, 4 to 3, to make an adverse report on the resolution admitting him to the senate. The resolution was as follows:

"Resolved, That Matthew S. Quay be admitted as senator from the state of Pennsylvania in accordance with his appointment made on April 21, 1899, by the governor of said state."

The members of the committee voting for the resolution were Senators Chandler, Hoar and McComas, and those opposing were Senators Burrows, Caffery, Pettus and Harris. Senators Turley and Pritchard were paired, the latter for and the former against the resolution.

No definite time was set for the presentation of the committee's report to the senate. The minority will also present a report, and the understanding is that the minority shall be notified by the majority when it is ready to put in its report.

The case of Senator Clark was also taken up, and an investigation of the charges of bribery in connection with his election was begun. Ex-Senator Edmunds appeared as counsel against Clark, and stated that with due effort on the part of the committee the undue use of money by the defendant could be established. Ex-Senator Faulkner, for Mr. Clark, stated that, notwithstanding charges of bribery were made against 38 members of the Montana legislature in this case, there had been no proceedings against any of the men involved, showing, he said, that the people of the state did not believe the charges.

Mr. Roberts, before the house committee which is investigating the propriety of giving him a seat, yesterday made an argument in his own defense. He claimed that he had a technical right to his seat, and gave in detail the questions to be considered and the principles involved.

For Salisbury to Consider.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Secretary Hay has received a cablegram from Ambassador Choate stating that he had an eminently satisfactory interview with Lord Salisbury relative to the seizures of American goods by British warships. Lord Salisbury listened intently to the representations on this subject made by Mr. Choate and took them under consideration, promising to give the matter immedate attention and to return a speedy decision.

Fever Infected Ship.

Halifax, Jan. 6.—Ten cases of typhoid fever were discovered yesterday on board the steamer Montezuma, from New Orleans for the purpose of embarking part of the second Canadian contingent for service in South Africa. The vessel will be quarantined.

TOOK PROMPT ACTION.

Newport News, Va., Jan. 6.—The death of William W. Watts, white, at the hands of a mob yesterday morning signalizes the initial execution of a white man for rape in Virginia, legally or otherwise.

The crime that involved mob violence was peculiarly atrocious. The victim was the benefactress of her assailant, having fed him, although a stranger, when he first appeared begging for charity three weeks ago, after reaching here penniless from Lynchburg, where his father is a policeman. Watts was 28 years old and unmarried, a professional gambler, and came of a respectable family.

Wednesday afternoon he visited the house of Mrs. Thomas M. Simpson, who had befriended him when he was in destitute circumstances, saying he was about to leave the city, and stating that he desired to thank her before going away. Watts had made a "stake" at his calling during his sojourn here, and Mrs. Simpson failed to recognize in the well-dressed man the mendicant upon whom she had bestowed alms three weeks before. She conversed with him for a few minutes at the door, and then retired into the hallway. He followed, seized her by the throat, forced her into the sitting room and overpowered her after a desperate struggle.

Watts was captured on board the special train of C. P. Huntington as it was leaving the city for Richmond and lodged in jail. Three masked men entered the station house at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and forced the jailer at the point of pistols to surrender the keys. Four companions received Watts when he was carried out and hurried him away, first to the house of Mrs. Simpson, who identified him, and then to the outskirts of the city, where a mob of several hundred men had congregated. He was bound by the wrists to a sapling and his body riddled with bullets. It had been intended to hang him, but the only rope with which the party was provided proved too short to go over any convenient limb.

The identity of the lynchers is a mystery, and there is little prospect of anyone connected with the affair being detected. The police are making the usual inquiries into the case.

Italian Charged With Murder.

Boston, Jan. 6.—Carmelo Brigandi, an Italian carpenter, is under arrest on the charge of murdering Edward Graham, a longshoreman, by shooting, near the corner of Salem and North Bennett streets about 7 o'clock last evening. He denies the shooting. The only witnesses of the affair were several boys, one of whom says he saw Graham strike the Italian, when the latter drew a revolver and fired, the ball entering Graham's back just to the left of the spine. The latter fell to the sidewalk and died while being removed to the station. His assailant then turned and ran into a house on Sheafe street. A policeman who had heard the shot joined in the chase and in a few minutes had Brigandi under arrest. No one knows how the trouble started, and the men, so far as known, were strangers to each other. Graham, who was 32 years old, was unmarried. Brigandi is about 40 years of age, and has a wife and two children. He has no police record so far as known.

A Sensational Murder.

New York, Jan. 6.—A game of cards and the refusal to pay for drinks, the wager in the game, resulted in the murder last night of a young Italian, Frank Segila, in a saloon. Peitro Pulize stabbed Segila to death. The two men had played casino, and Segila lost. He refused to pay the wager, and Pulize, enraged by the taunts of some onlookers, rushed at him with a clasp knife, cutting him deeply in the groin. The wounded man ran to the sidewalk, where he fell prostrate, and in a few moments crowds of enraged Italians surrounded the saloon and trampled over the wounded man in their wild attempts to get at the murderer. Pulize held those in the saloon at bay with a knife, and the police clubbed their way through the crowd and arrested him. Segila died within a few minutes after receiving his wound.

Newfoundland's Troubles.

St. John's, Jan. 6.—The British government is urging the immediate summoning of the Newfoundland legislature—which was not to have been called until April—because France insists upon the early passage of a measure re-establishing the modus viviendi for the French treaty shore. The colonial cabinet, therefore, is trying to heal party differences and expects to meet the legislature on Jan. 25. Premier Winter offered Dr. Watson, who is one of the Morine faction, the portfolio of finance. Mr. Watson has declined, thus widening the breach and rendering the disruption of the cabinet almost inevitable.

Thirty Thousand Workmen Benefited.

Pittsburg, Jan. 6.—The American Steel and Wire company notified its employes of a general advance in wages of 7½ percent, to take effect at once. The advance affects 30,000 employes. The company will also establish a benefit fund into which will be paid for the benefit of the workers an amount equal to 2½ percent of the payroll. The notices say that 1899 was the greatest business year ever known.

Receiver Asked For.

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 6.—A bill has been filed in the city court by F. F. Tennelle against the National Building and Loan association, asking for a receiver, on the ground of alleged mismanagement on the part of the company, and that it be declared insolvent. The company has an authorized capital of $25,000,000, and a paid up capital of $4,000,000, and is doing business all over the south.

Fifteen Rounds to a Draw.

Portland, Me., Jan. 6.—At the Casco Athletic club here last night the principal bout was between Paddy Fenton and Andy Watson of Boston for 15 rounds. There was no drawing of blood and no knockout, the decision being a draw.

FEAR FOR ARMY HORSES

PARTICULARS OF THE DISEASE.

Animals Not In Good Condition For a Campaign and Suffer From Long Trip on Transports—Spread of the Disease Would Seriously Affect British Forces In South Africa.

When the New York Sun's correspondent cabled to London from Frere camp in Natal the other day that there was "one case of horse sickness" in camp, it may not have seemed a very serious statement. As a matter of fact it was, and those few cabled words contained more serious news than many messages describing the loss of human life. That one sick horse in Frere camp has already caused more anxiety in the British camp than would the sudden appearance of a commando of 5,000 Boers. Already the lack of horses has over and over again prevented the British troops from following up initial success. It was so at Belmont, at Gras Pan and at the Modder river. It is hampering Gatacre at northern Cape Colony, and, with the exception perhaps of Elandslaagte, it has been the case in nearly every engagement of note in Natal.

In addition to the lack of horses there is the further detriment that the English horses are evidently very unfit for their work. British cavalrymen are expensively mounted, and their horses are of an excellent type, but in the piping times of peace they are chiefly employed in "eating their heads off," and though they are in fine horse show condition and groomed to perfection, making a noble show on parade, they are too tender for sudden campaigning in a country such as South Africa.

A correspondent at Cape Town cabled some time ago that whereas the Australian horses landed there in good serviceable condition the English horses arrived with their joints swollen and stiff. This is partly due to their "tenderness" and partly, no doubt, to the long voyage of 7,000 miles. When the transports first began to leave England, it was freely prophesied that the horses would suffer more than was necessary, inasmuch as they were too cramped, and "slings" had not been provided in their stalls. Thus the horse would be obliged to support his entire weight on his legs throughout the long journey of 17 or 18 days, in some cases indeed for nearly a month. The sling, otherwise a band passed under the horse's body to take some of his weight off his legs, was objected to on the ground that in rough weather it made the horse helpless to withstand the motion of the boat, which would consequently buffet him from side to side of his narrow stall. It was pointed out that there was no need for the horses to be "slung" the whole time and that the amount of rest given by means of slings when the sea was moderate would be of great value. However, slings were not used, and, be the reason what it may, it is certain that the cavalry horses sent to South Africa are not only far too few, but in very poor condition, to rectify which there is no time to spare.

Thus, if horse sickness on a large scale be added to these two evils, it is evident how serious the result may be, and this is why I venture to suggest that the sick horse of Frere camp gives more cause for perturbation than even a message bringing the sad news of some brave men's death; for on the horses and mules in South Africa depend the lives of many men. The more efficient the transport service and the cavalry are the sooner will the war be over and the fewer the lives sacrificed on either side.

In most parts of South Africa the dangerous season for horse sickness extends from January till early in May, but in some seasons the disease appears sporadically during November and December. Low lying areas and valleys are the dangerous places. High plateaus have such immunity that it is a common practice to send horses from a low country to graze on these areas during the summer months. An unexplained peculiarity of the disease is that, although it appears every year in one or more districts, it only in certain seasons becomes general over large areas. Seven serious epizootic outbreaks have occurred in South Africa since the first historical one in 1763. On one occasion 70,000 horses and mules, worth over £500,000, died. Its exceptionally early appearance has been reported among the Boer horses near Ladysmith, but all horses, mules and donkeys in South Africa are liable to it, with the exception of the comparatively few specimens of "salted" animals which have recovered from two attacks of the malady. Probably 95 per cent of the horses affected die and of mules almost as many, while donkeys, being subject to a milder form of the disease, do not suffer severely. Their taking it, however, would render them unserviceable for the present campaign.

Mr. Robert Wallace, professor of agriculture at the University of Edinburgh and the author of "Farming Industries of Cape Colony," writes to the London Times the following particulars of the disease:

Horse sickness (Edema mycosis) is a malarial fever which is produced by a micro organism—one of the Filamentoses fungi—which under suitable conditions of heat and moisture grows in the veld but whether in water on the soil or as a parasite it is not yet known. Under the microscope the vegetative spores of the fungus in the blood from a horse well advanced in the disease can be easily seen like so many minute beer barrels, and the mycelium on which they have grown can also be found on closer examination. The disease is not contagious, but is contracted in summer by animals which are exposed to night air, especially while mist rises from the ground, or which are permitted to consume food wet with dew or the exhalations of the night. The summer sun renders it harmless by day, and the advent of frost banishes it during the winter months.

At least two varieties of the disease are known—the common form, the Boer "paardziekte," in which the lungs are most seriously affected, owing no doubt to the disease having been contracted by breathing, and "dikkopziekte," in which swelling of the head and neck or of the tongue forms the most prominent symptom. In both varieties the incubation period between the time the organisms gain access to the system and the first sudden rise of temperature is about eight days; but, while the former usually terminates fatally in about 12 days from the onset of the initial rigor, death in the latter is generally delayed for a few days more. In the common form of horse sickness death occurs very suddenly after the temperature has risen to about 106 degrees F. The animal feeds freely till within a few minutes of death, and when the crisis occurs it is simply drowned in an exudation of its own blood serum into the air passages. These become gorged with a dense white froth, which does not collapse on a portion of it, like soap bubbles being blown from the mouth and nostrils in the death struggle. Both forms of the disease can be induced in healthy horses by venous inoculation, and another form locally situated in the abdomen has been produced by ingestion through mixing the blood of a diseased horse with the animal's food.

Numerous experiments by the director of the Bacteriological institute at Grahamstown have shown "that no material can be obtained from the bodies of animals which have died of the malady that can be used in practice to produce immunity in healthy animals." The use of serum from animals which have recovered from the disease has also proved abortive. A measure of success has, however, attended the inoculation of horses with infected donkey's blood and with attenuated virus got by transmission of a virulent virus through partial immune animals. By these means a mild form of the disease is produced. A period of at least 50 days is allowed to elapse, during which secondary attacks of fever and moderately high temperatures occur at frequent intervals. By repeated mild attacks the system is fortified against subsequent inoculation more effectively than by a high temperature. The secondary fever which occurs to a horse after recovery from a natural attack is termed by the Dutch "anmanning," and until the first of these returns has passed off the animal is not fully protected or "salted."

Inoculation in any form is consequently out of the question in connection with the preservation of the animals engaged in the present campaign, and facilities for keeping them under cover during night are not available, but we doubt not the army veterinary department is alive to the other means which experience has shown are useful as measures of prevention. These are (a) the daily administration of small doses of arsenic and sulphur in the food, a measure which has proved most efficacious among police horses which have to be out on duty at night; (b) the penning closely together of horses within a bush fence, preferably in a sheep or cattle "kraal," where the accumulation of manure tends to elevate the temperature of the floor of the inclosure and to prevent mist rising close to them, and (c) the provision of nose bags to act as air filters through which the animals breathe.

RARE SURGICAL OPERATION.

The London Chronicle's Vienna correspondent reports a surgical triumph achieved by Dr. Schroetter. A 12-year-old boy swallowed a piece of lead the size of a half sovereign. It passed the trachea into a bronchus of the second order. Dr. Schroetter extracted it without performing tracheotomy or using anæsthetics. Nevertheless the operation was painless. This is believed to have been the first time that such an operation was ever performed without a dangerous surgical operation.

The lead was located by means of the Roentgen rays at the height of the fourth rib. A Kilian's bronchoscope was inserted and electrically lighted, and the lead was extracted with a specially constructed pincette.

Artificial Stone.

A Russian engineer, M. Olschewsky, after long researches based on the method of Michaelis, has made a good artificial stone, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Michaelis showed that hot steam acting on slackened lime and ground quartz produced a hard silicate of lime, resembling the natural stone. Olschewsky employs 2 to 10 parts by weight of lime and 98 to 90 parts of sand. Artificial bricks and slates are made in this way, and as they do not absorb moisture like natural stone they are better for some building purposes. The blocks are whitish, but can be colored artificially. Their form depends on the mold and can be highly ornamental. In Germany, Denmark, Holland and Russia this new industry is flourishing so well that already 150 works are making the stone.

His Nine Lives.

There must be something feline in the constitution of General Joubert, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. No general has ever been killed so often in the British dispatches.

"My Wife Became Anxious."

There is cause for anxiety when a cough hangs on for a year and can't be shaken off. The quickest way to relieve that anxiety is to begin at once the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a cough remedy, but it is also a great deal more. In far advanced stages of disease, when hemorrhages have been frequent, and there have been emaciation and weakness, "Golden Medical Discovery" has produced a perfect cure. It increases the supply of the life fluid—blood. It cleanses the blood from impurities, and sends a current of rich, new blood to build up the weak places in the body with new life.

The "Discovery" is strictly a temperance medicine, non-alcoholic and non-narcotic.

"For one year I was troubled with a cough," writes Mr. H. E. Curtis, of Sumner, Bremer Co., Iowa. "As I continued to cough during the summer, my wife became anxious, and wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for medical advice. It seemed to us that we could not go to a better source for advice, and so it proved, as the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' which was recommended, proved just the medicine to effect a cure. Dr. Pierce and his medicines are 'As good as wheat,' as the farmers used to say."

Bad taste in the mouth is removed by using Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

THE OVERTIME WAR.

Members of Textile Council Think It Injudicious to Continue It.

May Ask Legislature to Strengthen the Law.

Manufacturers and Lawyers Have Had the Question Under Consideration.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 6.—The indications are that the matter of overtime running under the special schedules provided at the Hargraves, Parker, Granite and Cornell mills will receive but little more attention of a bellicose nature from the Textile Council. At a meeting held this week it was the sentiment that if the prosecution of the mills by strikes or threats of strikes was continued, it might result in a determination to fight the 58-hour laws and other factory laws that are considered wise and humane.

The management of several of the mills were more stirred up by the opposition of the unions and the alleged discrimination of Chief of State Police Wade in the matter than was generally known. Three corporations stood ready to go to the supreme court or higher with any law point that might arise in the event of prosecution at court.

The members of the Textile Council agree that it was advantageous for certain mills to run some departments if no public talk was made about it. But they feared that the practice would become general enough to threaten the fair operation of the short-hour laws, and it was to protect the principle of short hours that they came out as strong as they did late last year. The four mills named are now running overtime on the schedules they posted, and it is probable that a few more mills will do the same.

One of the questions which came up among the lawyers who looked into the matter of overtime for three corporations interested was whether the courts of Massachusetts would continue to regard woman as a ward of this state in view of the laws that enable her to hold or dispose of property and other special privileges enjoyed here and not elsewhere.

It was the opinion of some of the lawyers whose opinions are valuable that a very interesting question would be presented to the highest tribunals of the land if the overtime laws protecting women was pushed. The question would come up in an endeavor to test the validity of the 58-hour law, but none of the manufactures is disposed to press it if the mills are not hampered in running until 10 o'clock at night with two sets of help.

The members of the Textile Council recognize that the present law is not as strong as they would like to have it, and they have appointed a committee to see if needed changes cannot be effected at this term of the legislature. They are disposed to prevent women from working at night after 6 o'clock, instead of until 10, as the law now permits.

The lawyers referred to say that unless some other laws relating to the rights of women are much contracted or modified, the legislature cannot pass a law that will stand and compel mills not to hire women at night. In a great measure, they contend, woman has become a free agent rather than a ward in Massachusetts, and to make a law effective against her the courts would have to discriminate against the manufacturer as against the merchant.

Friday's Hangings.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 6.—Cerinomo Para and Antonio Flores, Mexicans, were hanged here yesterday for murder. Para, a notorious horse thief, killed John Pusselman, a Texas ranger, nine years ago, when Pusselman was pursuing him to recover stolen horses. Flores killed his sweetheart, who refused to marry him, a year ago.

Charleston, Jan. 6.—Harley Wilson and Zach Singleton, negroes, were hanged here yesterday. Wilson killed a white soldier, and Singleton killed a negro companion in a gambling quarrel.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—Go See, a Chinaman, convicted of killing a countryman, was hanged at San Quentin prison. He had been converted into the Catholic faith by Albert Hoff, another murderer, who will be hanged soon.

Fire and Loss of Life.

Boston, Jan. 6.—After extinguishing a $500 fire in the carpenter shop of William C. Sanborn on Division street, last evening, the firemen found the charred remains of William H. Erringer, a plumber, who was asleep in his shop on the floor above the carpenter shop, where the fire broke out. Sanborn was filling an oil heater, when the oil in some manner ignited, and so quickly did the flames spread that he narrowly escaped with his own life, and had no time to arouse Erringer.

Sentenced to Five Years' Imprisonment.

Boston, Jan. 6.—In the United States circuit court yesterday Judge Putnam sentenced Joel G. Tyler, late teller of the Safety Fund National bank of Fitchburg, to five years in Worcester jail, for embezzlement of funds of the bank. There were 24 counts in the indictment when the case was tried in May last, and Tyler was convicted upon one of them alleging the embezzlement of $10,000. Later in the day Tyler appealed and was held in $5000 to prosecute his appeal.

The Broadway National Failure.

Washington, Jan. 6.—Mr. Dawes, comptroller of the currency, has returned to the city from the west, and in answer to inquiries as to the affairs of the Broadway National bank of Boston, which recently failed, said that the temporary receiver, Mr. Wing, would come to Washington today for a conference, when the question of giving the bank further time in which to put itself in a condition to resume would be decided.

WITNESSES FOR THE PROSECUTION

Give Testimony Which Appears to Be Very Damaging to Molineux.

New York, Jan. 6.—Charles D. Allen, who was Molineux's secretary in the Newark factory, swore on the witness stand yesterday that the defendant's laboratory was well equipped with poisons, and that experiments were constantly being made. In the laboratory were paris green, prussian blue, chrome yellow, English vermillion, dry mercury and kegs of dry arsenic.

Allen also testified that he had written a letter, at Molineux's request, to 1620 Broadway, asking for a copy of a periodical. The letter was written according to instructions in the ordinary course of business, but the significance of the incident lies in the fact that 1620 Broadway is the address of the Koch letter box agency, and it is claimed that it was by this letter that Koch learned the address of Molineux, and sent the defendant a circular offering to lease a private letter box—an offer which, it is claimed, Molineux afterwards accepted.

Frank S. Hunt of Newark, Molineux's tailor, testified that he had taken the defendant's measure for a suit of clothes, and that the measurement showed that Molineux's chest was 37 inches around, and his waist was 32 inches. These are the measurements given in the diagnosis signed H. C. Barnet, and placed in evidence among the disputed exhibits.

William W. Scheffler, a manufacturer of cosmetics, identified the letter sent by Molineux to Mrs. Scheffler, informing her that he was to be married the next day. This letter was addressed "My Dear Sadie," and, on account of the high social standing of Mrs. Scheffler, and the fact that the district attorney's office obtained possession of the correspondence in a mysterious fashion, the incident has attracted considerable attention. Mr. Scheffler said that he and his wife had known Molineux for four or five years, and that he was friendly with the defendant. Letters from Molineux to Scheffler were also placed in evidence, and identified by the witness.

Howard A. Adams, son of the late Mrs. Adams, testified in detail concerning the incidents at the Adams' home on the day of the murder. He asserted emphatically that his mother did not drink, and explained that he had been in Connecticut during 1898 recovering from injuries sustained by being caught in a fly wheel. He did not return to the Adams apartments until the day of the murder, and consequently knew nothing concerning the incidents leading up to the crime.

Herbert K. Twitchell, loan clerk at the Chase National bank, and a practical handwriting expert, testified that in his opinion the address on the poison package was written by Molineux. David C. Decker, paying teller of the Union Square bank, entertained similar opinions. Paying Teller Sayers of the Shoe and Leather National bank again appeared on the stand and was cross-examined. The cross-examination failed to shake his belief in the guilt of Molineux.

Lewis H. Cornish, a cousin of Harry Cornish, also a cousin of Mrs. Florence Rogers, the daughter of the dead woman, testified that Harry Cornish was ill when he called upon the witness to inform him of the death of Mrs. Adams. Upon cross-examination the witness admitted that Mrs. Adams became ill while he was paying a visit to her house about two weeks before her death. Before the witness had concluded his testimony, court adjourned until Monday.

Sullivan-McFadden Fight a Draw.

New York, Jan. 6.—"Spike" Sullivan of Ireland and George McFadden of this city met last night at the Broadway Athletic club to decide which had the right to consideration for a meeting with the lightweight champion, Erne, and his close second, Jack O'Brien. After the men had fought and banged each other for the full limit of 25 rounds, in which there was some rough work and not a little fouling, principally on McFadden's part, Referee White declared the contest a draw. The Irishman was the favorite in the betting, at 100 to 70, but there was very little fault found with the verdict.

Profitable College Athletics.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 6.—Walter H. Andrus, treasurer of the University Athletic association, submitted his semi-annual report yesterday and issued a statement on the financial standing of the association. The statement shows that the Football association cleared above all expenses $8,691.21, which enables the treasurer to pay off the deficit of $4000 incurred during the season of 1898, and all other deficiencies incurred from the Track and Baseball association that year and leaving a net balance now on hand of $1,932.26.

Fitzclarence Still Held.

Boston, Jan. 6.—Steamer Fitzclarence, which was ordered to quarantine on account of the mysterious illness of an Austrian stowaway, brought in from Antwerp, will be held as long as conditions require. At the present time no diagnosis of the case can be made, and the nature of the disease determined. If the patient is found not to be suffering from bubonic plague, he will be transferred to the steamer, which will then probably proceed to Baltimore, where she will load for Antwerp.

Charged With Accepting "Double Headers."

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 6.—The grand jury is investigating charges that J. H. Brown of Battle Creek, president of the state live stock sanitary commission, has drawn pay from the state for testing and inspecting cows, while at the same time charging dairymen for performing the service.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Temperatures are above the normal over the whole country—in the Atlantic states about 10 degrees and in the upper Mississippi valley 15 to 20 degrees above the normal. Prospects are favorable for a continuance of these high temperatures. Threatening weather may be expected over the whole country. Fresh west to southwest winds will prevail on the north Atlantic coast.

Big Water Scheme

Plan to Harness Spearfish Creek In the Deadwood District.

The gigantic undertaking of the Homestake Mining company in preparing to divert the waters of Spearfish creek in sufficient quantities to furnish water for the operation of its plant, as well as supplying the towns of Deadwood, Lead, Terry, Central City and Terraville with water for domestic and fire protection purposes, will revolutionize mining operations in that portion of the Black Hills, where a scarcity of water has existed for a number of years.

The work will be pushed as rapidly as possible, says the Chicago Record. All the machinery will be of the latest and best pattern and already has been ordered. Vitrified piping will be used. The water will be developed close to some springs at the head of Spearfish creek, and it is expected that more water will be developed from the under-flow—which at present does not come to the surface—than the company will take out. The water thus developed will be carried through pipes by gravitation several miles down the creek to a point where a pumping station will be established. Here the water will be pumped 400 feet to the top of a hill, whence it will be taken by gravitation to Lead and Deadwood.

The Homestake company has purchased several thousand acres of irrigated land in the Spearfish valley and has located a large number of mining claims near the original water right for the purpose of holding sufficient ground upon which to build the pumping station. The new branch of the Burlington and Missouri river railroad running from Dumont to Spearfish creek will connect the pumping station with the main line of the Burlington railroad and will furnish easy transportation for fuel and other necessary supplies. One of the original water rights is located about half a mile above Juniper gulch, another on the east fork, about four or five miles above the junction with the main creek, while the other waters come from Juniper gulch.

Consumption of Beer In Germany.

According to the statistics published by the imperial bureau, the consumption of beer in Germany during the year 1897-8 was 1,383,700,000 gallons, while it was 1,237,000,000 gallons in the United States, 1,192,000,000 gallons in Great Britain, 463,500,000 gallons in Austria-Hungary, 279,000,000 gallons in Belgium, 180,000,000 gallons in France and a little over 90,000,000 gallons in Russia. Of the 1,383,700,000 gallons brewed in Germany, more than a quarter was produced in Bavaria, while the Brandenburg Marches produced about 135,000,000 gallons, the Rhine provinces about 103,000,000 gallons, Saxony 94,500,000 gallons, Wurtemberg 85,000,000 gallons, Silesia 67,500,000 gallons, Westphalia 62,000,000 gallons, the duchy of Baden 45,000,000 gallons and the duchy of Hesse-Nassau nearly as much. It may be added that of the beer produced in the Brandenburg province 63,000,000 gallons were brewed in five Berlin breweries, a fourth of this being brewed by one firm. The consumption of beer per head of the population is estimated at 36 gallons in Belgium, 32 in Great Britain, 25 in Germany, 21 in Denmark, 12 in Switzerland, 10 in the United States, 9½ in Austria-Hungary, 9 in Holland, 5 in France, 3½ in Norway, 2½ in Sweden and 1 in Russia.—London Times.

Malarial Research.

Nature gives an interesting summary of the results achieved in malarial research by Manson, Ross, Grassi, Bignami and Bastianelli, and then goes on to indicate the lines along which future achievements may be expected. The different species of anopheles should be hunted for, in order to see if these are the intermediary hosts of the different types of malaria throughout the world and what species is most concerned in human transmission. Another problem will be whether the anopheles can be extirpated from a locality and by what means. It seems that the anopheles is confined to small areas, so that "the suggestion of Ross to draw off the water from stagnant pools may not be so hopeless a task as it would at first appear."

A Braintree Landmark.

In the east part of the town of Braintree on Commercial street, near Elm street, stands an old house whose present appearance belies its age. It was originally of the lean-to style like the old Adams houses on the opposite side of Penn's hill. Erected perhaps as early as 1660 it has always been occupied by descendants of the same family. It is older than the iron fireback which was forged at the old iron works of the town and which is inscribed 1699. This still remains in the house. It belonged in the large chimney originally built of stone. There were two fire places and also a brick oven. Oaken beams which cannot be moved even now support the house but the walls are not as formerly, stuffed with salt hay to keep out the cold. Then into one of these fire places they would roll logs so large that they could not be lifted and when they were kindled we can well believe they might roast a calf or a side of beef, bury their potatoes in the ashes and also the baking kettle in which they had placed some goodly cake or pie.

Outside the house opposite the door, is the stone, a boulder used as a mounting block before the days of carriages, when the folks rode pillion to meeting. Also in the avenue stands a buttonwood with branches some 60 feet in length. A memorandum reads "Planted a buttonwood between ye house and ye little gate April 22, 1793.' This was over 100 years ago and the man who planted it was one of the soldiers with Washington during this terrible winter at Valley Forge. Long may it stretch its spotted limbs now crossed by the electric wire and wave its fan-like leaves to cheer the passer-by, a memorial of the days when our ancestors saved and gave into our keeping this now broad and flourishing country.—Observer.

Freight on Granite.

A radical change in freight rates on granite has been incorporated into official classification No. 20 which went into effect January 1, 1900. It rates dressed granite, valuation restricted to 40 cents per cubic foot, less than car load shipments, at third class instead of fourth class, as heretofore. The effect of this change will be to increase the rates on such shipments about 40 per cent. This is quite an important question and deserves more than passing notice. As a practical suggestion in connection with it, dealers and all interested are earnestly advised to write to the secretary of the Interstate Railroad Commission, Washinton, D. C., protesting against the change.—Monumental News.

The Braintree depot electric lights are now furnished by the town. Final connections were made Thursday afternoon, and in the evening the station agent was more than pleased with the bright lights.

The members of the Braintree Brass band held a very successful concert and dance in the Town Hall, Thursday evening. An excellent concert was given from 8 to 9; after which dancing was enjoyed by about 75 couple. The band, under the leadership of Eugene Harlow, furnished music

The Selectmen Thursday, chose the following engineers for the fire department for the ensuing year: South Braintree, Oliver B. Battles; North Braintree, Jeremiah Gallavan; East Braintree, John Kelley.

The new windows for the club-house were put in last Thursday. The house was a large one to attempt to build in the winter months, but Mr. Holbrook, the builder, has not been impeded a moment by inclement weather, and with the windows in he cannot be hindered, so that the club may expect to occupy its new home promptly on March 1.

A better performance by amateurs has seldom been seen in this section than that of the famous war drama entitled "Enlisted for the War," and produced in the Jonas Perkins school hall by members and friends of the Association, on Wednesday evening. This performance was no less a success than others which have preceded it, as the Association members are noted for their excellent entertainments.

The Jonas Perkin school Association met with Mrs. William Allen of Commercial street on Tuesday evening. Papers on Manual Training were read by Mrs. Allen and Mrs. Doane, which were very interesting and instructive. The next meeting will be held with I. W. Horne, Tuesday evening, Jan. 16.

In view of the action of the Universalist parish in purchasing a lot on River street for a church building great efforts are being made to meet the situation. The Sunday School last Sunday voted one hundred dollars from its treasury toward the purchase. The Ladies' Aid at its meeting last Wednesday afternoon, voted to take from their treasury nearly one hundred and fifty dollars toward the purchase of the lot. These funds have been growing for some time for this purpose. It is rumored that the Y. P. C. U. will take the purchase of the lot into its own hands and consider the cash voted simply as loans.

The large elm tree in front of Arthur L. Hobarts' house on Commercial street was felled the early part of last week by the employes of the street department. This tree was an enormous one and it will be remembered was left standing in the sidewalk when the street was widened. The town deeming it necessary, decided to reomve it, but not exactly in the manner which followed. Not having taken the necessary precautions, as the final lbows were being made the tree intead of falling in the direction intended, crashed into Mr. Hobart's parlor doing considerable damage. Fortunately no on was injured and the damage caused by the accident was immediately adjusted.

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

Castle Square Theatre.

The long anticipated production of the great naval drama "With Flying Colors," at the Castle Square theatre, has proved the most notable event of the season at this popular play house, and the big audiences which have attended every performance have been most enthusiastic in applauding the many strong features of the play. The members of the Castle Square stock company have made a distinct success in their several characters, giving the story of the play in a way to bring out all of its many dramatic incidents and the principal scenes have been applauded to the echo. "With Flying Colors" gives evidence already of taking its place among the leading dramatic productions of the year and of repeating in America the great record it made as an attraction at the Adelphi theatre, London. It is announced for next week's attraction at the Castle Square theatre and the souvenir at the Monday matinee will be a box of choice chocolate bon bons to every patron.

Keith's Theatre.

Seekers after novelties and good things in vaudeville will turn their attention, as usual, to Keith's the week of Jan. 8th, for the management have undoubtedly made an even greater effort than usual to get together a strong bill. There have been many big attractions at this house in recent years, but Ching Ling Foo, the wonderful Chinese magician, is declared to be the king of them all. It is announced that the coming week will be the last of Ching's engagement. The newcomers include such well known entertainers as Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Ellis, who will present their delightful singing and comedy sketch, "Mrs. Hogan's Music Teacher;" Chas. Kilpatrick, one-legged trick bicyclist and rifle shot; Lillian Jerome, the peerless female baritone introducing a new and novel feature in illustrated songs; Geo. Evans, one of the most popular black faced comedians; The Kenyons, novelty aerial gymnasts; Bogert and O'Brien, musical comedians; The Kings, aerial specialists; Baker and Hayes, dancers and singers, and Adams' trained seals. The biograph will begin the fourth year of its remarkable engagement at this house with a new and interesting programme of motion pictures.

Park Theatre.

The announcement of the last weeks of "Sag Harbor" has resulted in such a patronage as has made the park theatre capacity seem totally inadequate to hold the army of Mr. Herne's admirers. It is perfectly patent to everybody that this enormous success could continue for a year, were it not for contracts with other cities, and it may be told now that Mr. Eugene Tompkins and Mr. Lawrence McCarty, the managers of this theatre, have arranged to take the whole "time" of this playhouse in the season of 1901-'02 for a series of Herne revivals. "Hearts of Oak," "Shore Acres," "Sag Harbor," and a revised version of Mr. Herne's "The Minute-Men," which, as a story of the Revolution, is said to be superior in dramatic strength to any of the recent popular works of fiction like Richard Carvel, Janice Meredith, etc., will be given. The one hundredth performance will occur on the night of Jan. 15, Liebler & Co., Mr. Herne's managers, are to present each patron the most magnificent souvenir ever tendered in this country. The actual price purchased in thousand lots being $1.75.

Thought He Had Been Noticing.

Willie Wishington was trying to be conversational, but the young woman wore glasses and looked severe, and her mother surveyed the scene with an expression of austere toleration. Willie ought to have known better than to call on Monday, wash day, anyhow.

"Have you read any books lately?" asked Willie, with the inane grin which he uses in society.

"Yes," answered the girl.

"I haven't read any recent novels," she answered.

"You ought to read some."

"I find ample entertainment in the classics," was the rejoinder, while her mother looked on with an approving smile.

"Oh, yes; Shakespeare, I suppose. He's a good old classic."

"I read Shakespeare occasionally when I read English. I also read Corneille and Moliere and Goethe and Schiller, but only for diversion. Philosophic studies are my especial occupation at present."

"By Jove!" exclaimed Willie admiringly. "You're getting to be a regular bluestocking, aren't you?"

"A what!" repeated the young woman's mother grimly as she rose to her feet.

"Why, a bluestocking, you know—that is"—

"No explanations are necessary, Amelia. I am going to tell the servant to take in the clothesline at once. Hereafter neither of us will be at home to Mr. Wishington."—Washington Star.

Where Honesty Exists.

"People in the small towns up in Connecticut," said the traveling man, "appear to be much more honest than they are in New York. Not one family in ten thinks of such a thing as burglar alarms, and half of them do not even lock their outer doors when they retire. But what impresses me most are the street laundry boxes.

"Nearly every town of 5,000 or more inhabitants has several places where laundry packages are received and delivered. These places are generally dry goods or notion stores, or haberdasheries. Suburban merchants as a rule do not keep their stores open much later than 8 o'clock in the evening and do not open them until 7 or half past 7 in the morning.

"This does not suit all their patrons, so it is no infrequent sight to see outside the store a large red box with a fair sized opening in the top. The box bears the legend 'If the store is closed, put your laundry in here.' Now, just imagine a New York laundry office using a receptacle like that! Why, five minutes after a package was deposited in the box it would be fished out, and in an hour its contents would be in the possession of some dealer in second-hand clothing. But up in Connecticut the scheme seems to work very well, and all I can say is that it is a tribute to the general honesty of the community."—New York Herald.

The Legend of a Bell.

The largest hanging bell in the world is in a Buddhist monastery near Canton. It is 18 feet high and 45 feet in circumference and is of solid bronze. Canton has a pretty little fable connected with it. The story is told by Mrs. J. P. Newman in one of her sketches of travel. The life of the founder of the greatest bell of China had been threatened by the emperor because of his unsuccessful attempts to make a bell having perfect purity of tone. The bell founder's beautiful daughter, witnessing her father's agony while imploring the emperor for one more trial, consulted the gods as to the reason for failure. Being told that should the blood of a fair maiden mingle with the bell metal the result would be secured, she, waiting beside her father until able to see her face in the molten ore, plunged in and was destroyed. To the sacrifice of this maiden the Chinese attribute the beauty and sweetness of the tone of the great bell of Ta-Cung-tz.—New York Times.

Extraordinary Carvings.

Some very extraordinary carvings are to be found at Thomboo, on the Irawaddy, where they are cut out of the face of a high cliff rising directly from the river bank and are of great size. They consist of a succession of rudely formed niches, in appearance something like the catacombs of Rome, and these are full of large and small images of Buddha, who is represented in several positions. On the summit of the cliff is a pagoda of great sanctity, which is visited every year by large numbers of pilgrims.

Three Masted Schooners.

It was on the great lakes that the three masted schooner first made its appearance. The unique character of lake navigation created the necessity for this type of sailing craft because of the fact that with this class of vessel sailors could handle the sheets from the deck at times when it was impossible to go aloft in one of those sudden storms which make the life of the lake skipper an uncertain and anxious one. —Ainslee's Magazine.

Curing a Pernicious Habit.

The plan of arresting people who throw banana skins on the sidewalks and of fining them or sending them to the bridewell is all right as far as it goes, but it does not seem as if the right punishment had been provided. Any one guilty of that offense ought to be sent either to the Detention Hospital For the Insane or to the Home For the Feeble Minded.—Chicago Post.

English Astronomy.

Much more interest is taken in practical astronomy in England than in America. Astronomical classes are encouraged by the use of the telescopes like that one on the East Heath, London, which is a reflecting telescope of a 10½ inch mirror. The lectures are instructive.

Norfolk Registry Record.

Norfolk county registry business during the year 1899 exceeded in volume the business transacted in 1898, the difference in the number of instruments recorded being 220. During the first four months of the year the figures showing the amount of business transacted fell behind those of the same months of 1898, and it was not until May that the balance appeared on the other side. Thereafter, the gains were more or less material in every month, except June and October. The following table gives the comparison by months:

TODAY'S COURT.

John Kelly was arraigned for breaking and entering the house of Sarah E. Tirrell at Weymouth. Elory C. Baldwin was also arraigned for the same offense. They were held in $600 each for the grand jury.

The National Magazine's lavish expenditure of grey matter for the benefit of the public is made more apparent than ever in the January issue. The Transvaal and the Philippines are talked about by people who can speak with authority, "Literary Boston" is entertainingly described by John Livingston Wright, and a long list of well edited special subjects add to the attractive timeliness of this issue.

The January Woman's Home Companion testifies to the appropriateness of the name. It contains many articles of special literary value, chief among which is a masterly discussion of "The Revival of Art and Beauty," by Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis. Carina Campbell Eaglesfield, under the title "Balanced Men," makes a plea for a more symmetrical manhood in this day of specialization. John Kendrick Bangs continuing the irresistibly funny "Idiot-at-Home" papers inveighs against certain absurd New-Year's customs. A graceful study of society life entitled "Chateaugay," is begun by Mrs. Burton Harrison in this number.

I think it my duty to inform your readers of a remedy that should be in every household.

I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and Constipation and tried everything in vain. In despair I bought a ten cent package of the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets, 17 East 14th St., New York, and in three days I felt better and afterwards I bought a twenty-five cent package and now I am completely cured. Your druggist can and must get it for you.

"SERIOUS ACCIDENT."

Britishers Facing a Critical Moment In the Campaign.

Boers Have Changed Their Tactics and Assumed the Offensive.

London, Jan. 8.—The war office publishes the following dispatch from General Forestier-Walker, commanding at Cape Town: General French reports under date of Jan. 6: "The situation is much the same as yesterday, but I regret to report that a serious accident has happened to the first battalion of the Suffolk regiment."

From news just come to hand from them I gather that, with the authority and with the knowledge of General French, four companies of the first battalion advanced by night against a low hill one mile from their camp. They attacked at dawn. Lieutenant Colonel Watson, commanding, gave orders to charge. He was at once wounded. Orders for retirement were given.

Three-quarters of the force retreated to camp. The remainder held their ground until they were overpowered by greater numbers, when they surrendered. Seventy were taken prisoners, including seven officers.

General French reports that the Boer commando, which made the attack on Jan. 4, lost 50 killed, besides wounded and prisoners. The commando was dispersed.

General Buller has wired the war office the following, dated Jan. 6, from Frere camp: The following message received from General White at 1 p. m. today: "Jan. 6, 11 a. m. Attack continues and enemy has been reinforced from the south."

The following was received at 4 this afternoon from General White: "Jan. 6, 12:45 p. m. Have beaten enemy off at present, but they are still around me in great numbers, especially to the south, and I think renewed attack very probable." The sun has failed, and I cannot get further information from Ladysmith until tomorrow.

General Buller sends the following from Frere camp, dated Jan. 7: This from White, dated Saturday, 3:15 p. m.: "Attack renewed. Very hard pressed." I have absolutely no more news and there is no sun. There is a camp rumor that White defeated the enemy at 5 this afternoon and took 400 prisoners. I sent all available troops yesterday to make a demonstration at Colenso. The trenches there were all occupied by the enemy.

The British public is at last face to face with a critical moment in the campaign. It may safely be said that at no previous time have there been such anxious hours of suspense as will be passed through until the arrival of further news regarding the fate of Ladysmith.

The week opens with only fresh additions to the disasters that have befallen British arms, and there is no longer any sustaining confidence to buoy up public opinion. The editorials this morning fully reflect the extreme gravity of the situation, with a painful undercurrent of ominous foreboding, mainly caused by the fact that, while the Boers have now changed their tactics and assumed the offensive, General Buller is apparently unable to do more to assist General White than in making a demonstration. The Morning Post says: "He might as well have ordered a display of fireworks."

The Times publishes a dispatch from Ladysmiht, dated Jan. 1, recoiring two nights' movements on the part of the Boers to assault the town. These had to be abandoned when the British defenses were reached, but, the correspondent says, it was apparent that the great attack would not be long delayed. He adds: "Loyally supported by the civilians, the garrison can hold out for a considerable period. We are not yet reduced to half rations. The greatest difficulty is proper accommodations for the wounded and sick."

Little doubt remains as to the meaning of the Boer attack. A dispatch from the Boer camp at Colenso, dated Thursday last, and sent by way of Lorenzo Marquez, mentions that a thunderstorm had turned the dry weather into torrents and flooded the Tugela. Doubtless General Joubert felt sure he had secured a couple of days in which he could attack Ladysmith without fear of interference from General Buller, who, even if he decided to attempt to relieve the town, would probably occupy three days in reaching it by even a victorious advance.

Apparently on Saturday General Buller was not ready to attack. Possibly General Joubert anticipated that General Buller would shortly deliver an attack, and, in that case, General Buller may have actually opened battle yesterday.

Great Britain has to face the terrible possibility that the next news will be the fall of Ladysmith. The disquieting features is that the Boers seem to have had sufficient forces to deter General Buller from attacking, while themselves making strenuous efforts to reduce the town.

In the presence of this ominous situation, even General French's disaster, of which apparently the worst has not yet been heard, assumes quite minor importance in the eyes of the public.

The war office has already decided upon immediate steps for sending an eighth infantry division to South Africa. Some of the regiments for this division will be taken from Gibraltar and Malta. They will be replaced by militia.

It is ascertained that the customs authorities on the river Thames have detained two outgoing steamers and seized two large guns and six Maxims, packed in piano cases, intended for the Transvaal. It is also said that a quantity of foodstuffs on another vessel has been seized.

The Times publishes the following dispatch from Lourenzo Marquez: I learn on unimpeachable authority that the Free Staters are still actively sowing disaffection among the Basutos. It is believed that some of the minor chiefs have received their advances not unfavorably. A Basuto interpreter to the Free State government recently took the son of a Basuto chief to Pretoria to show him the British prisoners there, as proof of the Boer victories. It is believed, however, that with Chiefs Jonathan and Lerothodi loyal and even desirous of attacking the Boers, these intrigues will not result seriously.

Suicide Rather Than Poorhouse.

Webster, Mass., Jan. 8.—Investigation of the causes which led to the burning to death of Lucy Boston Johnson, aged 105, Saturday night, makes it evident that the aged Indian woman committed suicide to escape being taken to the town farm. It is said she threw a lighted candle into a bundle of rags which lay in a corner of her dwelling. She was to have been taken to the town farm yesterday. She had repeatedly told the overseer of the poor that she would never consent to become an object of charity, but would destroy herself first. The condition of William Fogarty, who was seriously burned in an effort to rescue Mrs. Johnson, is precarious.

Old Enough to Know Better.

Uxbridge, Mass., Jan. 8.—William H. Edwards, a man over 80 years of age, was insulted by Lester Cook, aged 7 years, and James Barker, about 6. Edwards chased the boys into Cook's yard. Young Cook ran into and hid in his father's woodshed. When young Cook saw the old man go around the shed he started for the house, calling out to his mother to save him. Edwards came from behind the shed in time to see young Cook running towards the house. He drew a revolver and fired two shots at the little fellow. Neither took effect.

Daring Assault at Providence.

Providence, Jan. 8.—While sitting with a 2-year-old child on her knee, Lena Michaelovitch was murderously assaulted in her own house yesterday by an unknown man. Her cries for help aroused the neighborhood and her assailant was obliged to flee before he had accomplished his purpose, which was unquestionably robbery. Mrs. Michaelovitch was badly used up, but the injuries are not of a character that are likely to prove fatal.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

FAMOUS PRIEST DEAD.

Dr. McGlynn Figured In Controversy With the Church Authorities.

Was Finally Excommunicated For Contumacy.

Newburg, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Dr. Edward McGlynn, who was one of the most brilliant minds in the Catholic church, died here yesterday, after an illness of about seven weeks, from heart failure, superinduced by Bright's disease. Time was when his invectives were turned against the church authorities, and his word picture of the pope "walking down Broadway with a plug hat on" created a sensation among both Catholics and non-Catholics. Deprived of all ecclesiastical authority, he went about declaring that he was the victim of church oppression, and saying he would would never take his politics from Rome. In this controversy with the church authorities his tremendous personality very nearly led to a disruption of his great parish in New York city, and his influence as a leader of the trades' union element, joined with the arguments of Henry George, once very nearly overthrew Tammany rule in the metropolis. But at length he made his peace with the church, and a once bitter church quarrel was substantially healed at the time of his death.

Early in December Dr. McGlynn suffered two attacks of heart failure, and his relatives were hurriedly summoned. He rallied, and until Saturday night he appeared to be holding his own, and gradually regained strength. He was able to sit by his bedside for a few minutes each day.

Edward McGlynn was born in New York city on Sept. 27, 1837. He was educated at the public schools in that city, and in 1851-60 studied theology at the college of the Propaganda in Rome, where he received his doctorate after public examination.

In 1860 he was ordained to the priesthood, and on his return to America was made an assistant pastor, and also became a hospital chaplain. In 1866 he was appointed pastor of St. Stephen's church in New York city and became very popular by his eloquence, heartiness and quick sympathy with the people.

Dr. McGlynn's unwillingness to establish a parochial school in connection with his church, and his claim that the public schools were safe for the children of Roman Catholics brought him into disfavor with the authorities of the church. He supported Henry George during the mayoralty canvass of 1886, and his remarks in favor of Mr. George's land theories on public platforms resulted in his being censured by the archbishop of the diocese. He persisted, and the matter was referred to Rome for action. The archbishop meanwhile removed him from the charge of St. Stephen's, and he was summoned to appear at the Vatican; but ignoring the papal demands, he was excommunicated. During the spring of 1887 Dr. McGlynn helped to found and became the president of the Anti-poverty society, and was conspicuous by his Sunday evening lectures before that body.

When Mgr. Satolli came to the United States as apostolic legate in 1892 he examined Dr. McGlynn's case by the pope's special authority. The trial was held in the Catholic university in Washington. The proceedings were secret. Dr. McGlynn was declared free from ecclesiastical censures and restored to the exercise of priestly functions on Dec. 24, after having satisfied the pope's legate on all the points in his case.

Dr. McGlynn was allowed to officiate as a priest on Christmas morning in the small oratory attached to St. John's college in Brooklyn. After saying three masses Dr. McGlynn went to Cooper Union, where an immense crowd awaited him. Many of those there were old parishioners, who had been afraid to talk to him during the period of his excommunication, and they greeted him very heartily, and when he mounted the platform he was presented with a laurel wreath and the great assembly sang Christmas carols.

In his speech that followed, Dr. McGlynn did not utter one word of regret at his past course, but, on the contrary, he referred to what he called "the cause" as a holy one, and to himself and his followers as martyrs, and concluded that he would preach on the same topics every Sunday evening in the same old place.

His old parishioners hoped that he would be restored to them or appointed to some other church in New York, but Archbishop Corrigan appointed him to Newburgh. Dr. McGlynn obeyed the order implicitly, somewhat to the surprise of a good many who imagined that this would be another struggle. But as the preacher had said that Rome had acknowledged he was right there was no reason for further fight.

Hyde Park, Vt., Jan. 8.—Mrs. Julia Marlowe-Taber, better known as "Julia Marlowe," the actress, was granted a divorce, with alimony, from her husband, Robert E. Taber, the actor, before Judge Taft in the Lamoille county court. The court considered and approved the charge alleging cruel and intolerable severity. Two other charges were ignored. Judge Taft granted Mrs. Taber's request for alimony, fixing the sum at $3000.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

Good Afternoon.

Why not James Thompson for Presidential elector this year? The Republicans of the Tenth Congressional will nominate two this year, and one should hail from Quincy.

With Metropolitan water, Metropolitan reservations, Metropolitan park ways, Metropolitan sewers, Metropolitan reservoir and standpipe, and Metropolitan assessments, Quincy is fast becoming Metropolitan.

While we are of the opinion that the year 1900 should be one of retrenchment for city and State, we quite agree with Mayor Hall that necessity demands that City Hall should be remodelled. Today it is very poorly adapted to the needs of the city, and if one finds the official of whom he is in search he feels that he is encroaching on the privacy of other officials. Now when a stranger is searching for the Overseer of the Poor he may in turn disturb the Commissioner of Public Works, the Assessors, the Tax Collector, the Board of Health and possibly others, as he has to pass through all these rooms. An expensive remodelling should not be undertaken, but the plans alluded to by the Mayor in his inaugural will utilize the space and provide all the necessary offices.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Governor Roosevelt's remedy for the evils of the trusts is publicity. That is a pretty good remedy for many evils. But the pressure for a censorship is constant and great.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ When a good man is elected mayor of a great city, the work of the body politic is not done; it is only just begun. He is powerless to do any good unless he can feel the push of the conscience of the great common people.—Solon Chase.

☞ When it comes to a fat fee, the two executors of the late George M. Pullman "take the bun," having been allowed as compensation for their services the sum of $425,000. This knocks out even the Standard Oil crowd.—Milford Journal.

☞ Scientists are no doubt honestly actuated in making the assertion that there are unquestionably dormant volcanoes in the United States, which will some day become active, but there need not be much expectation of their assuming the eruptive state while Mrs. Mary E. Lease is able to be up and dressed.—Lynn Item.

☞ Sympathy? There is only one safe and firm basis for sympathy. Regardless of rank, wealth, culture and power, the cause of a nation, like that of a man, should be judged by the simple, eternal standard of right and wrong. If England is in the right in this special controversy, she should have every good man's sympathy; if she is in the wrong, no amount of civilization, or power or wealth should save that sympathy for her. Decide, then, according to the light available, the simple question of right or wrong, and sympathy will take care of itself.—Springfield Republican.

—The officers of G. A. R. Post at Randolph will be installed Wednesday evening.

A HAPPY SOLUTION.

Walter H. Ripley to be Chief of Police.

And Peter J. Williams Chief Engineer.

The Slate of Mayor Hall as Revised to date.

Mayor Hall has been unusually close about his appointments and has kept everybody guessing. He still keeps the matter to himself, but it is believed that the following will not be far out of the way:

Commissioner of Public Works, Charles F. Knowlton.
City Treasurer, H. Walter Gray.
Chief Engineer, Peter J. Williams.
Chief of Police, Walter H. Ripley.
City Solicitor, Russell A. Sears.
Overseer of the Poor, E. W. Henry Bass.

City Clerk, Edgar G. Cleaves.
Tax Collector, A. L. Baker.
Sewer Commissioner, Roger H. Wilde.
Principal Assessor, N. G. Nickerson.
Assessors,—Ward One, Charles H. Johnson; Ward Two, Thaddeus H.

It will be seen that this distribution will give every ward but one at least one of the principal offices, and that ward is the Quincy Point ward, which already has the City Auditorship and one of the Trustees of the Hospital. It was probably quite a problem for Mayor Hall to decide on the Chief of the Fire Department and at the same time to show appreciation of the service of ex-Chief Ripley, who was a candidate for Chief. Quite as many Republicans as Democrats seem to favor the reappointment of Chief Williams, and the insurance people were very anxious that he should be detained. While a few Republicans will be dissatisfied, the opinion of the majority is with the Mayor. Weeks ago it was suggested that Mr. Ripley be appointed Chief of Police, but the gentleman did not take kindly to the suggestion, and is reported to have said that he desired to be Chief Engineer or nothing. When it came to Chief of Police or nothing, Mr. Ripley hesitated a few days, but is said to have accepted the appointment. Mayor Hall is to be congratulated on the happy solution.

The Parish Line.

There seems to be some controversy as to the dividing line between the St. John's and St Mary's parishes. Some few days ago it was pulished that the St. Mary's parish took in both sides of Adams street from Whitwell street to the Milton line and included Forbes Hill, Wollaston.

Sunday morning at St. John's church Rev. F. A. Friguglietti announced that the published dividing line was not correct. The dividing line he said began at Brewers corner and continued to Centre street and to Wilson's quarry. On the other side the line ran from Brewer's corner to Smith street, thence to Carroll's lane and Adams street, and along Adams street to the Milton line, the east side of Adams street being in St. Johns parish.

Nothing has as yet been done toward settling the controversy between the granite manufacturers and granite cutters, and as the New England Association has practically decided not to grant the demand of $3 for an eight-hour day, it looks as though there would be a general suspension in the granite industry after March 1.

Order for Knockabout.

At Stuart & Co.'s yards, Wollaston, says the Herald, work has been very brisk the past fall. They have one lot of government torpedo boat tenders about ready for shipment, and will commence on another lot this week. Work has commenced on an auxiliary launch for a gentleman in Russia. They have received an order for a 35-foot cruising knockabout for a New York gentleman, which promises to be one of the finest of her size in the New York Yacht club fleet. Her dimensions are: length over all, 55 feet; l. w. l., 34 feet 9 inches; beam, 12 feet 6 inches; draught, 6 feet; head-room in cabin, 6 feet 6 inches. She will be of the very best construction, and will have a private toilet and lavatory connected with the state-room in addition to the one for general use. Her cabin and state-rooms throughout to be finished in white and gold. She will carry 250 feet of sail, and will be used principally in New York waters by her owner, who is a prominent member of the New York Yacht club.

Will Lose But Little.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Broadway National bank of Boston will shortly pass out of existence. The affairs of the bank have, it is understood, so discouraged the directors and depositors, and also caused such strong criticism by its examiners, that a recommendation may be expected within a day or two directing that the bank be closed and its affairs wound up by a receiver. This decision, it is announced, has been arrived at by Comptroller Dawes and the bank examiner. The depositors, it is stated here, will lose practically nothing.

HICKS ARRESTED.

Alleged to Have been Swindling in Boston Again.

Inspectors Morrissey and Wise of the bureau of Criminal investigation Saturday afternoon arrested Charles W. Hicks, who gives his address as East Elm avenue, Wollaston, charged with obtaining $500 at different times within the past two months by false pretences.

Hicks, the police say, has served four sentences in the house of correction for the same offence, only coming out of that institution in October last.

The officers saw him on Dover street soon after his release from the house of correction and at once recognized him. Since then they have met him several times, and yesterday saw him on Kilby street. After watching him for some time, and not liking his actions, they concluded to take him to headquarters on suspicion. The usual form was gone through with of booking him. When the officers commenced to search their prisoner they found a very neat leather-covered memorandum book, and one glance was enough to show them that Hicks was up to his old games.

Across the top of the first page in the memorandum book was the following:

Then followed a long list of names, including prominent bankers, merchants, clergymen, doctors and others, and in scarcely any instance was the amount against the name less than $5. Then the officers commenced to run down the case, and found that Hicks had been operating in different ways, with a view to arousing the sympathy of the man approached.

One of the parties whose name appeared on the list stated that the man came to him and represented that Samuel Pierce had been found dead that morning on Hangman's island, a small island in the harbor, which is occupied by only a few fishermen, leaving a widow and three small children in destitute circumstances, and he was collecting the money to take them across the bay to Quincy and provide them with a comfortable home for the time being, at least.

To another he said that Samuel Pierce was a Back Bay letter carrier. There is no letter carrier of the name on the Back Bay routes. Hicks said that the man died suddenly and left a widow and three small children, and that he was trying to raise a little money for them, as they were in destitute circumstances.

After the officers had made their investigation, and confronted Hicks with their information, he, they state, admitted that the whole scheme was a fraud and that he had collected the money. On the list which he had in the book the officers estimated that he had raised $105, but from information they have received they are satisfied that he has used several books and secured over $500.

He will be measured by the new system and a new picture of him taken for the gallery Monday morning. Then he will be arraigned in court.

Lesson from the Snowman.

Early Sunday morning, passers by noticed a strange figure in the backyard of a certain estate on Walker street. The figure wore a flowing white skirt, a bright blue cape, and a jaunty little cap. Its eyes were hard and large and black and it held a pipe in its mouth from which no smoke came, as if the white face had chilled it. It was nothing less than a snow man, fearfully and wonderfully made and holding its own right well in the crisp morning air. If indeed it was fain to droop a bit, ready hands were present to restore it and while the air was chill, the snowman stood calmly and imposingly where mortal hands had placed it. But as the sun rose higher and higher, and the frozen ground relaxed into a state of delightful mud, the snow man drooped gradually, and at last nothing was left of him but a little mound of snow, a skirt, cape and cap all in a heap on the ground. And we, who are wont to grumble over our lot if it be hard, let us be duly thankful we can endure wind and rain, summer and winter, cloud or sunshine without injury, and not, like the snowman live our little hour in the frosty air and die in the heat of noonday.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

These are the days when good brick or concrete sidewalks are appreciated. Others are mud, mud, mud.

The first supper this season for the people of the Unitarian church will be on Wednesday night at half-past six in the church dining room.

Fire alarm box 174, located at the corner of North and South streets, has been cut into the fire alarm circuit. One round for test will be sounded from it Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Sunday the temperature rose as the day advanced: At 6 A. M. the mercury registered 20, at 9 A. M., 21; at 12 M., 27; at 3 P. M., 29; at 6 P. M., 29; at 9 P. M., 30; and at 12 P. M., 33.

Miss Martha C. Kincaide slipped and fell while in Boston on Friday. She was severely shaken up, and although no bones were broken, she will be confined to her home for several days.

There was an enjoyable party Saturday evening at the residence of Miss Jones on Pleasant street. Thomas Robertson, who recently purchased a graphaphone furnished most of the entertainment. Ice cream and cake were served.

The Compass Whist club met with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jelinek of Botolph street last week. Mrs. C. R. Safford and Elijah G. Hall won the first prizes, Mrs. Charles Stecher and Charles R. Safford won second prizes. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

The Wollaston school will remain closed until further notice, owing to the non-completion of the sewerage connections and the repairs on the heating plant. If the Commissioner of Public Works pushes the work, the building will be ready for occupancy by Wednesday.

The week of prayer will be continued at Bethany Congregational church this week, with meetings on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. Rev. Edward Norton, pastor emeritus will lead the meeting Wednesday evening, when the subject will be: "What has vital religion to give us?" Rev. Robert Westly Peach will also lead one of the meetings.

The features of "Daisy Demure" were scanned closely in the Sunday papers for a resemblance of Will Osborne, formerly of Quincy. The young man is scheduled for that part in "A Prince of Bohemia" to be given by the Bank Officers' Association of Boston soon. He scored a great hit a year or two ago in one of the plays presented by the association.

Rev. Edward Norton preached his first sermon at the Quincy Point church on Sunday, for the period he is to fill the pulpit. The communion service was held at the close of the morning service. Rev. Edward Anderson, preached his first sermon at the Berkeley Temple, Boston, for the time that he is to substitute at that church. He will conduct the Friday evening meetings at Quincy Point.

First Run for New Truck.

The alarm from Box 26 at 9.30 Sunday evening was for a slight fire in the office of the Quincy Beef Co. on Dimmock street. The fire was discovered by a young man passing along Hancock street who gave the alarm. George Keyes smashed in the window of the office and almost had the fire under control when the apparatus arrived. The fire was caused by an overheated stove. But little damage was done. The new hook and ladder truck responded to an alarm for the first time at this fire and as it stood in Dimmock street attracted more attention than the fire did.

The Time He Got Left.

The following story has just leaked out about a certain Wollaston gentleman. He was a guest at the King-Burke wedding and upon leaving refused to accept the box which was handed him, as he never ate wedding cake. His disappointment the next day upon learning that the box contained a calendar can be imagined. His friends are having a good laugh at his expense, as he is one who prides himself upon never getting left.

ATTITUDE OF HIBERNIANS.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The national officers of the Ancient Order of Hibernians met in this city yesterday, and later issued the following statement to the public:

"The national officers met in Washington to discuss a demand on the part of a large majority of the representatives of our 150,000 members that this order render some assistance to the Boers in the Transvaal. It was agreed to render any assistance compatible with our loyalty as American citizens, and which would not interfere with the neutrality laws of the United States. We are impressed with the splendid precedent shown by the republic in going to war with Spain to free Cuba from the oppression of that country. We believe that American sympathy is with the Boers, and that we are acting in accord with the principles which urged the United States to carry the flag in a struggle for the liberation of the gallant Cubans. Our people would flock to the armies of America if the government matched to the assistance of the South Africans. It is unnecessary for the Hibernians to proclaim their loyalty to the United States, but it becomes them to state that no act of theirs will be contrary to the laws.

"Knowing the character of the British governments, its cruelty, its ambition, we are desirous to assist the citizens of a sister republic in their struggle to defeat English aggression. What kind of aid will be given we cannot state at the present time, but certainly it will be of a practical nature, and acceptable to the Boer government.

"Were this nation the antagonist of England, we could from our ranks send 15 to 20 regiments of the best fighting material the world ever saw. In fact, in any just cause in which the United States may see fit to draw the sword, the society would respond as it did in the former wars. The Irish regiments of Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts and New York were largely recruited from our ranks, and in some of the regiments of United States regulars recently sent to the front are divisions of the A. O. H. duly affiliated with the parent order in this country. The order, at large, is hopeful that the government will yet rise to the wishes and hopes of the Irish-Americans and extend to the brave Boers the sympathy which France gave to this country in '76."

This Week In Congress.

Washington, Jan. 8.—There is no program in the house for the present week. The only certain feature is the consideration of the urgent deficiency appropriation bill. It will be ready Tuesday or Wednesday. It will contain almost $50,000,000 for the army and navy, and while it will pass when it reaches a vote it may precipitate a stormy debate upon the conduct of the war in the Philippines. The answer of Secretary Gage to the house resolution calling for information regarding the deposit of government funds in national banks is expected early in the week. The Roberts case will not get before the house until the end of the week at the earliest. The week in the senate necessarily will be given up largely to speech making. Senator Pettigrew's resolution asking for information concerning the Philippine war will come up, and he and probably other senators will speak upon it. Senator Morgan has given notice of a speech in which he will discuss the race question in the south. Continuation of the discussion of the financial bill will occupy a large part of the week.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

WERE HALF STARVED.

Had Almost Given Up Hope of Escaping Alive.

Manila, Jan. 8.—Steamer Venus came into the harbor Saturday evening from Vigan, province of South Ilocos, with Lieutenant Gilmore and 19 other American prisoners, including seven of his sailors from the Yorktown. Lieutenant Gilmore, after reporting, came ashore and hobbled along, with the aid of a cane, to the Hotel Oriente, where American officers and ladies were waltzing through the halls to the strains of "Aguinaldo's march."

Although tanned and ruddy from exposure, he is weak and nervous, showing the results of long hardships. He speaks warmly of Aguinaldo, and very bitter against General Tino, declaring that while in the former's jurisdiction he was treated splendidly, but that after he fell into Tino's hands he suffered everything.

Colonel Hare and Lieutenant Colonel Howze, the latter of the Thirty-fourth volunteer infantry, rescued Gilmore's party on Dec. 18, near the headquarters of the Abalut river, after they had been abandoned by the Filipinos, and were expecting death from the savage tribes around them. When the rescuing force reached them they were nearly starved, but were building rafts in the hope of getting down the river to the coast.

Lieutenant Gilmore made the following statement to a correspondent of the Associated Press:

"The Filipinos abandoned us on the night of Dec. 16. We had reached the Abalut river near its source that morning, and the Filipinos rafted us over. We went down the stream, along a rough trail, guarded by a company of Filipinos. That night we were separated from this guard, and another company, armed with Mausers, was put in charge of us. I suspected something, and questioned the lieutenant in command. He said: "I have orders from General Tino to shoot you all, but my conscience forbids. I shall leave you here."

"I begged him for two rifles to protect us from the savages, adding that I would give him letters to the Americans, who would pay him well, and keep him from all harm. He refused this, however, saying that he would not dare to comply. Soon afterward he left with his company.

"We had seen some savages in war paint around us, and we prepared to fight them with cobblestones, the only weapons that were available to us. The next morning we followed the trail of the Filipino soldiers, feeling that it was better to stick to them than to be murdered by savages, but we could not catch up with them. Then I ordered the men to build rafts, in the hope of floating down the river. It was a forlorn hope, but I knew the river must empty into the sea somewhere. I was so weak myself that I did not expect to get out, but I thought some of the men could.

"On the morning of Dec. 18, while we were working on the rafts, the Americans came toward us yelling. One of my men shouted: 'They are some of He was lashing a raft [illegible] are on us.' however, knew [illegible] of bamboos. I, savages [illegible] it was not the yell of [illegible] but the yell of Americans. The rescuing troops thought we had Filipino guards, and called to us in English to lie down, so that they could shoot the Filipinos. That was the finest body of officers and men I ever saw."

Lieutenant Gilmore could not speak enthusiastically enough about the 140 picked men who had rescued him and his party. The command spent the day in making rafts. Colonel Hare thought Lieutenant Gilmore too weak to live through the trip, but there was no alternative. They shot many rapids, the men losing all their effects and Lieutenant Gilmore some valuable papers. Only 14 out of 37 rafts survived the first night's experience, and 80 men were practically unable to walk when Vigan was reached.

Describing the flight from Benguet, when the Americans approached, Lieutenant Gilmore said: "The Filipinos, completely terrified, left Benguet on Dec. 7. They hurried the prisoners from town to town, often retracing the trail, not knowing where the Americans would attack. After being without food for almost three days, they killed several horses, and we lived on horse flesh for several days. I did not have a meal from Dec. 7 until I reached Vigan. Indeed, the rescuing party lived largely upon rice, without salt. There was one day when I was reduced to chewing grass and bark.

"While we were in the hands of General Tino's men, he issued an order that any person aiding an American by food or money should be treated as a criminal. One citizen of Vigen, Senor Vera, was probably killed for befriending us. We would have starved but for the kindness of some of the presidents of the towns and some of the Filipino colonels, but others treated us brutally. Wherever there was a prison we were kept there. When there was no prison they would lodge us in a convent. We suffered greatly from want of exercise, as well as lack of food."

For weeks, Lieutenant Gilmore was covered with boils and in great pain. When the Filipinos found the Americans were approaching the treatment became better. There was a sign painter in the party, and he painted advertisements on the rocks throughout the retreat, with other emblems, like a skull and the word "Vengeance," by means of which the Americans were able to follow.

"The Filipino treatment of the Spaniards," said Lieutenant Gilmore, "was brutal in the extreme. The insurgents had old grudges to wipe out against them. Many talk about the reconcentrados in Cuba, but I have seen Spaniards dying at the rate of two or three per day of starvation in the hospitals at Vigan. I have seen Tagolo officers strike Spaniards in the face with whips and revolvers."

Lieutenant Gilmore declined to speak regarding political conditions, except to say that he thought the insurrection would last as long as there were any Tagalogs left.

The members of the party reported to General Otis yesterday. They were barefooted, sunburned and ragged. Some carried rifles, others pet monkeys. They attracted a great deal of attention as they passed along the streets. Those whose enlistments are about expiring will be sent to the United States. The others will be returned to their respective organizations.

Among the prisoners arriving with Lieutenant Gilmore was David Brown, a civilian. Brown, who was formerly a preacher in Honolulu, twice revealed to the insurgents plots of the Americans to escape, in the hope of gaining the good will of the Filipinos. The rest of the party openly accuse him treachery, and entertain the bitterest feeling toward him.

Charles Baker of the Third cavalry was formerly one of the prisoners, but he became too weak to travel, and the Filipino guard bayonetted him during the last flight through the mountains.

Insurgents Lost Heavily.

Manila, Jan. 8.—Reconnaissances out of Imus, Cavite province, yesterday, resulted in the loss of three Americans killed and 20 wounded. The enemy's loss is estimated at 60 killed and 80 wounded. Colonel Birkhimer, with a battalion of the Twenty-eighth voluntary infantry, advanced toward Novelea. Major Taggart, with two battalions of the same regiment, moved toward Perez Das Marinas. A part of the Fourth infantry was engaged south of Imus.

General Schwan's column, advancing to the south, occupied Binang. One American was killed and three were injured. Nine of the enemy's dead were found on the field after the fight. A number of rifles were captured and several prisoners were taken.

Johnson, a deserter from the Sixth United States artillery, clothed in a major's uniform, was found among the insurgent dead at Noveleta yesterday.

Lack of Adequate Concessions.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 8.—The American Thread company, controlling the large Kerr thread plant in this city, will not, under existing conditions, it is announced, build the proposed new thread mill here. Plans were understood to be complete for the beginning of a mammoth mill here in the spring, offering employment to 1200 thread workers. General Superintendent Cook of the American Thread company said that the city did not seem to be disposed to encourage the extension of the plant. In other cities favorable offers have been made to have the mill located there. The Kerr mill pays a large tax, having in the past nine years turned $116,000 into the city treasury. If the new mill were built, the yearly tax of the combine in this city would amount to $50,000. The thread trust will begin the erection of a new plant at Willimantic, Conn., within a week or two.

Love Made Her Brave.

Williamsport, Md., Jan. 8. — Mrs. Emanuel Hoffman dashed into her burning dwelling near this place, after several men had been driven back by the smoke and intense heat, and heroically saved the lives of her three children. The flesh was almost entirely scorched from her hands, and her face and neck are painfully burned. Her 2-months'-old babe is also seriously burned, but physicians say its life is safe.

Resignation Follows Defeat.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 8.—Premier Greenway and cabinet have resigned office, following their defeat at the polls on Dec. 7 last. The lieutenant governor has called Hugh John MacDonald to organize a new cabinet.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Roland Reed, the actor, who has been ill at New York for some days, is reported to be no better. His condition is regarded as critical.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians of Albany (N. Y.) county adopted resolutions offering their heartiest congratulations to the Boers for the "gallant fight which they are making for the protection of their lives and liberty," and promising aid in case their national officers should see fit to order a call to strike a blow at England.

Rev. George E. Sanborne, a retired Congregational clergyman, died at Hartford. He was born at Reading, Mass., and graduated at Amherst, class of '53. He was steward of the retreat for the insane for 20 years.

James Harvey, formerly a well known and expert silk salesman, died in a lodging house at New York. He was scantily clad, and one of the habitues of the place said that Harvey had literally "starved to death."

Robert Graham, aged 35, was killed by a switching engine at Putnam, Conn. Graham had been stealing a ride on a freight train.

William J. Hagerty, 16 years old, was killed by a freight train at Worcester, Mass. Hagerty was a student of the English high school, and was in company with a schoolmate. They boarded a freight train and Hagerty was hurled beneath the trucks when speed was increased.

Rev. John M. Williams, D. D., one of the early pastors of the First Congregational church of Chicago, and for many years a writer of theology, died at Chicago. He was born in New Ipswich, N. H., in 1817.

The town hall of Hinsdale, N. H., which was one of the finest in the state, was completely burned. The town hall was built at a cost of $25,000. Improvements and the furnishing of it brought the value up to about $40,000.

The First Methodist church on Temple street, Boston, narrowly escaped destruction by fire, and only quick judgment of the location of the flames kept the loss to $500. A broken grate in the furnace in the basement started the fire.

the Transvaal they are still very active, the center of the whole machinery being Consul Pott, who, beside holding the agencies of various steamship lines, is the manager of the Empresa Africana Landing company, which is the leading landing agency here. He is, therefore, able to facilitate the discharge of cargoes intended for the Transvaal.

This is important presumptive evidence that the Boers are securing an important quid pro quo. Already wool to the value of some £15,000 has been exported by the Boer republics by way of Delagoa Bay.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, dealing in a dispatch dated Jan. 5 with the excitement caused by rumors of a Dutch coup which the authorities pronounced baseless, says: A local paper today asks if it be "baseless" that the guards of all the public buildings are trebled every night; that the patrols scour the roads converging at Cape Town; that troops are encamped at Green Point: that the volunteers sleep under arms and have received orders to rendezvous instantly on hearing guns fired from the batteries.

Today the authorities issued notices warning the public of the danger of being fired upon if they approach posts guarded by sentries at night time and do not stop when challenged. The public has also been notified that all boats approaching the British cruiser Niobe, anchored in the bay, must carry a light or take the risk of being fired upon from the cruiser.

A dispatch from Pretoria says: Field Cornet Visser, under date of Tuesday, Jan. 2, reports as follows from Kuruman, British Bechuanaland: "I commenced a bombardment of Kuruman yesterday (Monday) morning, aiming at the police barracks. The fight lasted until 6 in the evening, when the garrison surrendered, issuing from the forts and yielding up arms. We took 120 prisoners, including Captain Bates and Captain Dennison, Mr. Hilliard, the magistrate, and eight other officers. We also captured 70 natives, together with a number of rifles and revolvers and a quantity of ammunition. Fifteen British were wounded. They are being attended by us, with the help of Dr. Bearne, an English physician. The horses, oxen, 'mealies' and flour taken from the prisoners have been sent to Pretoria by way of Vryburg."

Stabbing Affray Aboard Ship.

Eastport, Me., Jan. 8.—During a dispute which took place in the cabin of the Gloucester fishing schooner, Henry W. Longfellow, Clarence Artevoldt was severely cut in the leg by Curtis Snow, a fellow seaman. According to the statement of the rest of the crew, Snow came on board in rather a surly mood, and some of the crew attempted to make him go to bed. This seemed to enrage him, and, seizing a knife, he assaulted Arteveldt, the long, thin blade severing an artery. Arteveldt is in a critical condition, but, it is thought, will recover.

Active Fight Against Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 8.—Republican leaders who are on confidential terms with Governor Taylor intimate that the Republican contestees may not quit the fight in the event that the legislature and the state central board vote to seat Goebel and the other Democratic contestants. They have by no means given up hope that they will win in the legislature, but are looking around for other moves in case Goebel should win. It is generally believed they will seek to raise a federal question and take the case into the United States court.

Handicapped by Lack of Water.

Gardiner, Me., Jan. 8.—Those doing business along the Cobbossee stream are very much alarmed at the present situation of the water question. The stream was never as low before. Two large paper mills have been running on half time for a number of weeks and many employes have been forced to lay off in consequence. Unless a heavy rain comes very soon to supply the power for these mills they will have to shut down for the winter.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Temperatures continue above normal generally over the whole country. It has grown slightly warmer in New England. As the St. Lawrence valley storm moves eastward it will cause rain and southwest gales, shifting to northwesterly, in New England.

STILL HOLDING OUT.

White Repulses Boers In an Attack Upon Ladysmith.

Situation, However, Appears to Be Worse Than Ever.

Additional Troops and Guns Will Be Soon Be Started For Africa.

London, Jan. 9.—Anxiety lest Ladysmith fall before the desperate assaults made by the Boers Saturday has been relieved for the present. While reports that after 17 hours of the fiercest fighting this war has developed the Boers were finally turned out of the lodgments they had secured in his works, and the assault has therefore apparently failed.

Whether this is more than for the moment is a matter of such grave doubt that the situation cannot be said to be perceptibly brighter for the British. To be sure a report is afloat in London that Buller has crossed the Tugela, taken 12 guns, and is marching on Ladysmith, but this rumor gains little credence. That an engagement is pending or in progress, may be true, however.

The Huzzars and battery and field artillery for which General Buller has been waiting, while Ladysmith is in deadly peril, are now at the front, and he has every available man, gun, horse and mule. General Joubert's army, after a belated and desperate attempt to carry Ladysmith by incessant bombardment, and deliberate and persistent attacks in front, should be on the defensive today, with the superior force opposed to it on the Tugela.

Buller needs to be an exceptionally strong general in order to resist the pressure from the military authorities at home, from the colonial governing class in Natal and from his own army to deliver a single crushing blow. What the emergency requires is a cautious, yet far-sighted plan of operation, like that adopted by Wellington in the peninsula campaign. No British general since the battle of Waterloo has ever had so brilliant an opportunity for delivering a series of rapid and effective blows, by which the enemy may be paralyzed and demoralized in the course of a single week.

General White still needs relief; and the difficulties confronting General Buller are as great as before. The former's unadorned sentences, as read and reread, suggest eloquently the peril in which the town was for 14 hours and how barely able his 9000 men were to keep from being overcome.

The chief concern for General White is in respect of ammunition. Sixty-eight days ago, at the beginning of the siege, his small arm ammunition was vaguely described as "plenty." His artillery then had 300 rounds per gun. Some of the batteries have been in action frequently since then; and all were probably engaged last Saturday. His stock of shells, consequently, must be low, and this will make it difficult for General White to co-operate in a movement by General Buller.

The entrenchments at Ladysmith, as described in a message that left a day or two before the fight, and has just come through, are fortified hills, well covered with rifle pits and trenches, down which the infantry move in single file to the various posts in absolute safety. Full rations are still served, but no whisky or tobacco.

Spenzer Wilkinson, in The Morning Post, points out that there is one division only at Chieveley, another at Frere and a third at Estcourt. As Chieveley is seven miles from Colenso the second division would have had to march 12 miles to get into action, and the third division 22 miles. General Buller's 30,000 men and 70 guns were therefore almost inactive on Saturday, and when General White heliographed General Buller could really make no move but an ineffective demonstration.

England is preparing fresh armaments and 22 transports will be on the way to South Africa during the present month. According to the program, 25,000 additional troops and 72 guns will soon be afloat. The government has ordered Vickers Sons & Maxim, limited, to manufacture as many 4.7-inch and 6-inch quick-firers as can be turned out until otherwise notified.

The Boer agents, according to the Cairo correspondent of The Daily Mail, are evading British vigilance respecting the importation of ammunition. The correspondent says: A large quantity of quick-firing ammunition goes to Ras Jibeutil, from which point it is conveyed by scows along the coast or transshipped to vessels bound for Portuguese ports in East Africa. French steamers touching at Ras Jibeutil before reaching Aden contrive to evade search by trans-shipping at Madagascar to steamers apparently not connected with European lines. In this way they escape suspicion.

The Times publishes the following, dated Jan. 6, from Modder River: News from Belmont shows that the Queensland and Canadian volunteers have been so energetic in that neighborhood that a large belt of the Free State across the border has been deserted by the Boers.

Lord Dunraven, in The Times this morning, returns to his arraignment of the war department for the inferiority of British artillery. He says: "It is useless for the government to contend that our artillery is equal to that of foreign nations, since the Boers have longer range mobile guns."

There is considerable adverse comment upon the apparent lack of co-operation between Buller and White at critical stages of the campaign, although they were in daily communication with each other. White was passive on Dec 15, when Buller attacked the enemy in full force at Colenso, and there was nothing really effective done Saturday south of the Tugela, although word was received at Frere Camp as early as 9 o'clock that the Boers were making a most determined assault upon Ladysmith, perhaps in anticipation of the general advance of the main British army early this week; perhaps, as the military editor of the London Post suggests, relying on their works at Colenso having reached a stage of perfection in which they could stand off Buller for a day or more, and thus give the investing forces a free hand for that time in attempting to reduce the besieged town. Buller, to be sure, sent troops to make a demonstration toward Colenso, where they found all the trenches occupied by the enemy, and no determined assault was made.

Back to Old Rates.

New York, Jan. 9.—At a meeting of the Trunk Line Passenger association, held here yesterday, an agreement was reached whereby the second-class rates from New England points to all points west, which "have been reduced arbitrarily," will be restored to the normal tariff rates by Jan. 20. It is announced that after the restoration of rates all tourist cars between Boston and western points will become "omnibus" cars, open to all lines over which they travel. They will, however, remain in the charge of the initial road in New England upon which they were started.

A Keepsake For Dewey.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Dewey home fund committee yesterday received from the binder three large quarto volumes which contain the names of the 44,000 subscribers to the fund. The volumes are superbly bound, and on the cover of each is an appropriate legend. The work of writing in the names was done after office hours by volunteers among the clerks in the treasurer's office. The books will be formally presented to the admiral within the next few days. The total amount subscribed to the fund was about $56,000.

Generous Offer From Siam.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The United States minister to Siam writes to the state department that the Siamese government has given another evidence of its friendliness to the United States by offering to present to this country a part or the whole of the temple grounds on which the United States legation is located at Bangkok. The property is worth $57,000, and is valuable for its water frontage. Secretary Hay has sent the correspondence to congress for favorable action.

To Fight For Boers.

Columbus, O., Jan. 9.—Captain D. F. Jobe, who escaped from jail here while awaiting trial for alleged misuse of government mail privileges, is on his way to South Africa. A letter received from him, mailed at San Juan, P. R., shows he sailed from there Jan. 2. In his letter he says: "I have now 480 good Irishmen with me and expect to enlist from 60 to 75 more before I leave this island. I have a fine ship engaged and plenty to eat and drink. I am to be the colonel."

Crooks Sent to Prison.

Boston, Jan. 9.—Lee Garrison, colored, for robbing a companion of what little money he had, was yesterday sent to state prison for 10 years by Judge Sheldon. Charles Folsom, who entered the home of Miss Lena Webber one night last summer, and demanded bankbooks which called for $400, and who on her refusal, cruelly beat her, was given 12 years. Michael Costello, for breaking and entering, was given five years.

Probably Fatally Shot.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 9.—George Morris, night watchman at the brewery on Housatonic avenue, was shot in the right lung by some unknown party early this morning, and he is in a very precarious condition, with little hope of his recovery. The would-be murderer is unknown.

Awful Suffering In India.

New York, Jan. 9.—Latest mail advices from India aver that the situation there grows darker every week. Three million men are working on government relief works. The sale of children by starving parents is becoming common. Families are breaking up, each member acting for himself in search of food. Abandoned children are found with frequency. It is a famine of water as well as food. Cattle are dying off by thousands.

President Asked to Intervene.

Berne, Jan. 9.—The executive committee of the International Peace society has sent a telegram to President McKinley asking him to intervene with a view of ending the war in South Africa.

REBELS SLAUGHTERED.

More Than Two Hundred Succumbed In Two Engagements.

Americans Are Clearing Out Cavite Province.

Great Numbers of Provincial Natives Are Flocking Into Manila.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The war department has received the following from General Otis:

Manila, Jan. 8.

Bates is pursuing enemy in south with vigor. Schwan's column, while moving along the shore of Laguna de Bay, struck 800 insurgents under General Noriel at Binen on Jan. 6, and drove them westward on Silang.

He captured the place, from which point cavalry pushed through to Indang.

Schwan captured three of Noriel's six pieces of artillery and will take the remainder, also his transportation, with records and a large quantity of ammunition.

Two battalions of the Twenty-eighth, part of Wheaton's column, struck the enemy near Imus yesterday, killing and wounding 140.

Berkeimer, with a battalion of the Twenty-eighth, struck the enemy intrenched west of Bacoor yesterday morning. The enemy left on the field 65 dead, 40 wounded and 32 rifles.

It is expected that Schwan's troops will cut off the retreat of the enemy's Cavite army.

Wheaton is moving today on Das Marinas. Boyd, with the Thirty-seventh infantry, moved east from Las Banos and surrounded the troops of General Risal at daylight, capturing Risal and considerable property.

It is expected that Cavite and Batangus provinces will be cleared up soon.

In the north, Leonhauser, with three companies of the Twenty-fifth, attacked robber bands in Arayat mountain and dispersed them, destroying their barracks and subsistence.

Found there five of our prisoners, whom they had picked up on railroad. Three were killed and two seriously wounded. These northern robber bands will be actively pursued.

The bubonic plague is yet sporadic. There have been six cases and four deaths. Preparations are being made to establish a hospital for disinfecting and quarantine.

Great numbers of provincial natives are coming to Manila, with the result that the city is overcrowded, the increase in accommodations being inadequate and the rice necessary for food stuffs is more expensive than at any period during the last 12 years.

The plague is dangerous to the overcrowded, under-fed and unwashed natives and Chinamen. Americans avoiding direct contact with the disease are safe.

McGovern's Friends Weakening.

New York, Jan. 9.—Pilgrims from every part of the country are in town eagerly awaiting tonight's battle for the featherweight championship of the world between George Dixon, the champion, and Terry McGovern, the champion of the bantam class. Both are as fit and hard as skilful training can make them. The Brooklyn boy has spent the last month working faithfully to fit himself for the battle of his life. He is not only physically fit, but he has that quiet self-confidence which means half the battle. Dixon's suberb condition will surprise those who have been betting their money on the theory that he has gone back. He looks a picture of health and confidence. A week or so ago the betting was 2 to 1 on McGovern, while now it is hardly better than 100 to 70.

State Control of Insane.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The report of the state board of insane, filed with the clerk of the senate yesterday, is considered by all odds the most important of the documents submitted by state boards. Its contents were mentioned by Governor Crane in his inaugural, and the substance of the recommendation is that the state should govern all insane charges, and asks the legislature to outline a comprehensive plan for state control. The separation of the chronic and the acute insane, the treatment necessary for the convalescing patient, and the construction of the necessary buildings are points of special interest in the report.

Walkover For Senator Gear.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 9.—United States Senator John Henry Gear was renominated without opposition by the Republicans in joint caucus last evening. The senatorial election will take place on Tuesday next, when the houses will meet separately and on the next day they will meet in joint session and take a joint ballot. The Democratic caucus named Cato Sells of Vinton as Democratic candidate for senator, and he will receive the compliment of his party's vote.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

New Advertisements Today.

Wanted—A good cook.

Good Afternoon.

At the first meeting of the aldermen in the new city of Melrose on Monday, an order was introduced to appoint a committee of five aldermen to consider the advisability of establishing a municipal lighting plant. The new city evidently has a progressive board, but it has tackled a big problem, especially if there is a company plant in Melrose.

One of the gravest dangers which has ever threatened the health of the city and the beauty of the bays and rivers which skirt our shores, is the building of the high-level gravity sewer for the relief of the Charles and Neponset river valleys through this city and the emptying of the sewage of this immense district containing an area of 185 square miles and a population of 700,000 into Nut island gut. The sewer will be 12 feet in diameter.

No amount of theorizing upon the part of the engineers will make our citizens believe, especially those who are familar with the waters of the Nut island gut and Hull bay, that this immense body of sewage dumped at our very doors will not prove a menace to our health and destroy forever this beautiful body of water which for generations has been the rendezvous of countless yachts and other pleasure craft.

There is yet time for our city government to enter a vigorous protest against this outrage with the State Board of Health, who have the matter of outlet under advisement. If the city should demand that the outlet be on the north-east end of Peddocks island, near the main ship channel, our Quincy and Hull bays and the adjacent waters would then be in little danger of polution.

With the Metropolitan Park Commission upon the eve of spending hundreds of thousands of dollars along our shore line for a parkway, it is hardly necessary to point out, that in order to make this boulevard a benefit to our people the waters upon which it skirts should be free from pollution. Our Mayor and Council should use the most drastic measures to prevent the repetition of another Moon island blunder, and it should act promptly.

The Legislature of 1899 authorized the construction of the so-called high-level sewer, and authorized loans to the amount of $4,600,000 for the completion of the work, but provided that no part of the proposed outlet, or sewerage system, between Hyde Park and the outlet, shall be constructed before the year 1900, and until plans for said outlet shall be further considered by the board of Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners, and adopted and approved by the State Board of Health.

Chapter 65 of the resolves directed the State Board of Health to consider the outlet and report a plan or plans to the Legislature before the first of May, 1900, together with a bill embodying the recommendations.

Would it not be feasible for the city to ask the State Board of Health to give Quincy a hearing. Perhaps Weymouth and Hingham will join in the protest.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Hawaii Republicans want to be admitted to the national convention. This raises an interesting question.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The price of furniture is advancing, but few men are able to pay $400,000 for a single piece but that is the sum that Mr. Clark of M[illegible] is alleged to have paid for a [illegible] Senate.—Beverly Times.

☞ It is not he who has the dollar and is content who rules the world, but it is they who have the dollars and the desire to possess more dollars without earning them who rule this country today.—Fibre and Fabric.

☞ It is singular that it has not occurred to G. Bradford of Boston and other deep thinkers to declare that President McKinley started the war between the English and the Boers to distract attention from our own troubles in the Philippines.—Fall River Herald.

☞ Gov. Crane's address was not as voluminous as some that have preceded it, but it contained more solid meat than any other for the past ten years. With the State debt amounting upwards by leaps and bounds, it is high time a halt be called in the expenditure of public funds.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ It is easy enough to talk economy in an unaugural. Now let Gov. Crane in case the Legislature pays no heed to his recommendations along this line which it probably will not—proceed by a veto or two to practically demonstrate that he has the nerve to back up his professions and thereby demonstrate to the people that he means what he says.—Milford Journal.

☞ After all, the great educator of the people is the newspaper, not because the opinions of great editors are valuable, but the newspaper gives a complete history of the present from which the path into the future must be blazed. As time marches on down through the vale of years, current events must be the guide of future progress. A knowledge of the events of today and a shrewd guess of what will happen tomorrow is the education the people need, and that is what we get from the newspaper.—Solon Chase.

☞ The pledge of congress was to give independence as soon as Cuba should be "pacified," which is now admittedly accomplished. The condition of "adequate capacity for self-government"—we being the judges—is purely an after-thought of the administration anon the Republican party. And as plenty of reason can always be found to doubt any peoples capacity until they have been given a trial—outsiders all over the world dispute the "capacity" of the American people, and point to the gross misgovernment of our cities as proof—the condition merely discloses a purpose to keep things in shape for a stroke of permanent annexation, if it should finally be regarded as desirable.—Brattleboro Reformer.

Sympathize With Boers.

Resolutions in sympathy of the late Rev. Dr. McGlynn and with the South African republic were adopted.

Col. Drinkwater of Braintree was appointed chairman of the Executive committee, and Michael M. Cunniff chairman of Finance Committee.

Hicks Pleads Guilty.

Charles W. Hicks of Wollaston Park pleaded guilty before Judge Wentworth in the Municipal Court at Boston, Monday, to obtaining money by false pretences. His method was to collect money which he alleged was for charitable purposes, generally a widow with a large family using the collections for himself. He was sentenced to six months in the house of correction. He has done time before for the same offence.

—A petition and bill were introduced in the Legislature Monday to incorporate the City Trust Company, C. F. Adams, 2d, Gordon Dexter, F. J. Bradlee, Reginald Gray, H. P. King, G. S. Mumford, R. M. Saltonstall, their associates and successors being the incorporators. Authority is asked to capitalize for not less than $500,000 nor more than $1,000,000.

—Boston and Brookline have entered into an agreement whereby each will assist in protecting from fire adjacent property of the other.

KEEP GUESSING.

Some Doubt Yet About One or Two City Offices.

The Wollaston Man May Not be Tax Collector.

Disappointment in Some Quarters But It Was Inevitable.

The slate for city officers as published in the Ledger on Monday created more excitement in politics than at any time since the municipal election. The slate pleased some and caused them to smile sweetly to themselves, while to others, especially those who had hoped to secure one of the coveted positions mentioned, it struck a blow in a tender spot.

No one knows, outside of Mayor Hall, how near right the list published was. The Mayor was more surprised than any one else to see the list in print. His Honor was not interviewed by the Ledger, and had no knowledge in advance that the list would appear.

Now, it is said that commissions have not been issued to two or three on the list, and one of these is the Tax Collector. Mr. Baker may be appointed and he may not. Mayor Hall is cognizant of the fact that Tax Collector Baker made a good financial record in 1898, which is a good recommendation, yet he learns, also, that Mr. Baker antagonized some in the performance of his duties, and that his reappointment would not strengthen the administration. The appointment will go either to Mr. Baker or to J. H. Cunningham of Atlantic. Mr. Cunningham has developed considerable strength since he entered the contest quite recently and may land the prize.

There is said to be some doubt also concerning Principal Assessor, and naturally the appointment will depend some on the Tax Collectorship. If Wollaston does not get the Collector it should have at least one of the principal offices and Principal Assessor seems the only one left. Ex-Representative James Thompson is the other gentleman prominently mentioned for Assessor. It has been stated that he has declined the appointment, but no one seems to know whether it is a fact.

In Ward One some dissatisfaction is heard that the "Sears crowd," as they term it, has been recognized to too great an extent. The old feeling seems to exist, but many are at a loss to fathom it. The objectors are sorry to learn that A. G. Dolliver did not get the appointment as Tax Collector, but as many more would have been surprised if he had. Those who defend the appointment of Mayor Hall, say that the appointees of Mayor Sears were loyal to the party and efficient officials, and everything else being equal, experienced men should have the preference.

Some would have preferred to see a change in Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, and assert that there are other men who could fill the position as acceptably as Chief Williams. The city election in December, however, decided two appointments quite as much as it did who should be Mayor, and these were Peter J. Williams for Chief Engineer, and C. F. Knowlton for Commissioner of Public Works. It would have been unwise for Mayor Hall to have disregarded the voice which spoke so plainly. Chief Williams was not an appointee of Mayor Sears, and because he was not, Mr. Sears was defeated for a re-election. Commissioner Knowlton was in the office when Mayor Sears was elected and was reappointed. After the experience of 1899 the voters were emphatic for his reappointment.

For certain offices there were several applicants, and it was well known that these gentlemen had made application and were making their best endeavors to secure the coveted office. It is also known, for they themselves have said it, that several of these have received a type written letter from His Honor acknowledging the receipt of their request and stating that there were several applicants for the same position, and that after due consideration some one else had been deemed best fitted for the position. It would be hardly fair to say just who these gentlemen are, although some have been perfectly willing to show their letters.

But a few days more remains when everybody will know just who the officials after February first will be. This will relieve the tension and business will once more settle down for several months.

It is perhaps not generally known that when the American Telegraph & Telephone Co. recently built its new line of poles through Quincy from Neponset bridge to the Braintree line that they put up a six-pin arm for the exclusive use of municipal wires, which is more than called for by the ordinances. They also did more, they ran two wires for the use of the city the whole distance, with the exception of a short section through the swamp at Wollaston.

—James Means and others petition the Legislature for the incorporation of the Boston & Brockton Electric Freight Co., for transporting freight on electric cars in Massachusetts; the corporation to contract with any and all electric companies for the use of tracks and wires; for the purchase of electric power and for hauling freight cars and operating motors owned by it; also to make such use of any improvements and additions to electric railways as may be necessary.

Flour Likely to Be Released.

London, Jan. 9.—Ambassador Choate did not receive an answer yesterday from the British government regarding the seizure of American flour by British cruisers in South African waters. Scored on McCullough.

"The late John McCullough, the tragedian, was a great friend of mine," said Comedian Crane, "and when in this city used always to live at the Gilsey House. One day I went there to call on him and, he being out, left my card, upon which, underneath my name, by way of a joke, I wrote in large letters the word 'Actor.' The next day I was passing McCullough on the street when he stopped me with 'Say, Billy, what do you mean by leaving a card in my box with such an infernal lie as that written on it?'

"I got even with him, however, later. McCullough was inordinately fond of the game of seven up, and one evening I had the satisfaction of beating him nine straight games. Bright and early the following morning I again left my card for him at his hotel, this time writing below my name 'Seven up player.' When I saw McCullough later in the day, I jollied him with 'That wasn't any lie I put on my card this morning, was it, John?' And he evidently saw the point, for he didn't reply to my question."—New York Tribune.

Speaking of poison murders, a native of Maine told of a peculiar crime that occurred in his state. This was the case of a man who had tired of his wife, and in order to rid himself of her in the shortest and most expeditious manner possible he determined upon her death. Divorce, while a feasible method, appealed not to his frugal mind, since it involved a large initiatory expense from counsel fees and a continuous one from alimony.

So on murder he resolved, arsenic as the agent to effect it, and the method through which to introduce the poison into the stomach of his victim without arousing her suspicious the usually innocuous and popular lemonade.

At the trial it was proved that he carried through his plans with skill and finesse, but after the deadly lemonade had been drunk by his too trusting spouse, noticing that some of the precipitate remained in the bottom of the glass, he stirred it well up and again handed it to his victim with a loving smile, at the same time remarking, "But the best's at the bottom, my dear."

How Shrapnel Operates.

Shrapnel shell is a beautiful and ingenious missile. It consists of a hollow, elongated shell, with a bursting charge of powder at the base and filled with from 200 to 600 half inch bullets, according to the size of the gun. It is fitted with a time fuse, which is "set" to fire the bursting charge at a given number of seconds after the shell has left the gun. The bursting charge in turn blows the head off the shell and sends forward the 200 to 600 bullets, which continue their course in a conical shower on to the ground.

Not a Violent Case.

Mrs. Peck—Henry, what would you do if I were to die suddenly?

Henry—Pray, don't talk of such a thing. I think it would almost drive me crazy.

Mrs. Peck—Do you think you would marry again?

Henry—Oh, no! I don't think I would be as crazy as that.—Chicago News.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS

What Abutters Must Pay Toward the Sewer.

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

A Santiago Hero.

Augus Beaton, sergeant of Co. A, 1st U. S. Infantry, who has been visiting friends in Quincy for a week, will leave this evening for Prince Edwards Island, to visit his mother whom he has not seen for ten years. His sister, Miss Sadie Beaton, will accompany him on his trip. Mr. Beaton enlisted in the regular army of the United States nine years ago, in the State of California. He was in the battle at Santiago, where many of his comrades fell, as he says himself, it was a hot time. Sergeant Beaton will soon return to duty again.

Wrinkles Come

To many a face which should still be smooth and fair. Worry doesn't bring them. There are no cares and anxieties to furrow the face. They are the signs of physical suffering, graven by the hand of Pain. It is the saddest result of the diseases which affect the womanly organs that they write plainly the sad record of suffering on the face and form. The skin becomes sallow, the cheeks are sunken, the eyes look dull, the body falls away. No woman who values her health or good looks should neglect to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for diseases of the womanly organs. It cures irregularity, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It lights up the eye, brightens the complexion, and rounds out the sunken curves of the body.

"I take great pleasure in recommending Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for female weakness," writes Mrs. Susannah Fermenta, of Paris Store, Shelby Co., Texas. "I was troubled with bearing down pains in my back and hips six years, and I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. I tried his Favorite Prescription and six bottles cured me. I feel like a new person, and I thank Dr. Pierce for my health. Life is a burden to any one without health. I have told a great many of my friends about the great medicines I took."

Assets Show Up Well.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The Herald says: It is reported, and on pretty good authority, that the stockholders of the Broadway National bank will lose none of their invested capital. It is certain that they need have no fear of an assessment to pay depositors in full. The bank owes, to depositors and in bills payable, the sum of $2,220,747.54. Its assets consist of loans, discounts, stocks, securities, cash and exchange, aggregating $2,647,671.49. This does not take into account its capital nor its surplus. Its principal creditors are the Squires. It was given out, when the bank closed its doors, that the Squire indebtedness was something about $600,000. Assuming for the sake of a general computation that this account is a total loss, and that the other loans are good for their face value, there is still a sufficient value in assets and surplus to more than pay this account.

The Kentucky Muddle.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9.—The Republican joint caucus last night nominated ex-Governor William O. Bradley as the Republican candidate for United States senator by acclamation. Representative Slack, in placing Bradley in nomination, declared his belief "that the Democratic majority in the legislature has determined to rob the present occupants of the state offices to which they were fairly and honestly elected by the people in November in spite of the most gigantic frauds that ever disgraced the state and put in their places the gang of conspirators who dominate the party in the majority in the legislature." He dramatically declared that the people would not submit to the unseating of Governor Taylor.

Wants Sentence Shortened.

Albany, Jan. 9.—Bill Cook, the notorious outlaw, who was captured in 1895 in Indian Territory, is said to be slowly dying at the penitentiary here. Cook was the leader of a terrible band of outlaws and was associated with Cherokee Bill. Cherokee Bill was tried and hanged. Cook received a sentence of 45 years. There are those who believe that Cook's sentence was out of all proportion to his crimes. He never killed anyone, and it has been thought in some quarters that his crimes and Cherokee Bill's were mixed, and that Cook is now bearing the burden of some of Bill's sins. He is but 25 years old. Cook has asked for a commutation of his sentence.

Bravery Rewarded.

Provincetown, Mass., Jan. 9.—For the daring and heroic rescue of William Forrest from the schooner F. H. Smith in the height of the great storm of November, '98, 11 men of this town were last night presented by Congressman Greene with bronze medals from the treasury department of the United States. The recipients were Captains R. M. Lavender, Benjamin T. Benson, Charles Foster, James Worth, Everett Horton, Antone Souze, Charles Forrest, James Burke, Joseph Brown, Joseph Settes and James Lopez.

The Philadelphia Election Frauds.

Philadelphia, Jan. 9.—All the defendants under indictment charged with impersonating election officers, making fraudulent returns and stuffing the ballot box at the election for state treasurer last November, failed to answer their names in court yesterday and their bail was declared forfeited. After announcing the forfeiture of the bail the court issued bench warrants for the arrest of the men.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The temperature has fallen decidedly in the lower lake region and north Atlantic states, has risen slightly in the Red river of the north valley, and has remained nearly stationary elsewhere. Abnormal high temperatures prevail from the middle and upper Mississippi valley to the midddle and northern Rocky mountain region. Prospects are favorable for fair and warmer weather in New England, with northerly gales, diminishing.

THINKS MOLINEUX WROTE IT.

New York, Jan. 9.—The most important witnesses in the Molineux trial yesterday were Morris Herrmann, a member of the firm in Newark for which Molineux was superintendent, and Edwin B. Hay of Washington, who gave testimony as a handwriting expert.

Mr. Herrmann said that the firm of Morris Herrmann & Co. went into the dry color business in 1896 with Molineux as superintendent, and it was upon the latter's knowledge of dry colors and chemical receipts that the firm started the work. Molineux was not the only one in the factory then who had a knowledge of chemistry, but Mr. Herrmann said that neither he himself nor any other member of the firm knew anything of chemistry. He said that Molineux had apartments at the factory for a long time and made experiments in them. He said that Molineux had talked somewhat about going into the enamel business.

After Luther S. White had put photographs of the Herrmann factory in evidence, Mr. Hay was called to the stand, and almost the entire time which remained was taken up by his examination. He gave it as his opinion that the letters signed "Barnet" and "Cornish" and the admitted handwritings were written by the same person. He also said that it was his opinion that the admitted handwritings and the disputed writings in the Barnet and Cornish letters, and that of the poison package address, were all written by one man, and that man was the defendant. Mr. Hay then gave his reasons for reaching this conclusion and his recital of the resemblances and characteristics in the writings was similar to those made by others who testified as handwriting experts.

Alfred H. Graham, paying teller of the Bank of North America, testified to having carefully studied the writings in evidence in the case. He said there was absolutely no doubt in his mind that the address on the poison package and the bogus Barnet and Cornish letters were all written by the same hand that wrote the admitted letters.

EVILS OF MONOTONY.

It Gives Rise to More Insanity Than Any Other Cause.

One would be pardoned for thinking that a man who earned his livelihood by working in the fresh air of the country, surrounded by sights delightful to the eye and refreshing to the mind, would be far less liable to brain diseases than the man sitting on a stool over a ledger in the stuffy atmosphere of a smoke dyed city.

But if statistics prove anything they prove the worthlessness of that possible supposition, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. More agricultural laborers go mad, per cent for per cent, than any other workers. It is monotony which excites disinterestedness, which leads to depression, which develops into melancholia, which ends perhaps in a cure, possibly in a suicidal act, probably in an asylum. It may safely be said that Sunday saves thousands upon thousands from the madhouse. It is the one break from week to week which thousands of natures demand.

The agricultural laborer, the artisan and other similar classes of workers live on monotony, broken here and there by a small incident which in time becomes itself monotonous. A man perhaps drives rivets; he drives them every day of the week except Sunday; every motion of his work becomes mechanical; he has no interest in his work beyond what it finds for him on Saturday. He has one thing to do, and the more he does that the less he does everything else. Consequently the brain becomes weak for want of more general use and weakens until it snaps.

A fine thing is a healthy hobby, but a finer, especially for indoor workers, is a sport. Healthy recreation keeps more people out of the madhouse than anything the doctors could do. Nature demands a certain amount of balance, and she will have it or be revenged.

Scientists are still disagreeing about the age of the earth. They have been actively discussing the subject for the last 30 years, and yet no general agreement has been arrived at. The school of Hutton and Playfair had come to believe that the whole of eternity was at the disposal of the geologists, when Sir W. Thomson, now Lord Kelvin, astonished the scientific world by declaring that the age of our planet must be more than 20,000,000 years, but less than 400,000,000 years. This larger estimate has now been restricted by him to not much more than 20,000,000, while Professor Tait grudgingly allows something less than 10,000,000. Sir Archibald Geikie showed that even the phenomena of denudation which had been adduced in support of the inconceivably vast antiquity of our globe might be accounted for at the present rate of action within such a period as 100,000,000 years. Sir Archibald, in an address before the British association, now concedes that it is just as well to leave the dispute about the age of the earth to the decision of the future. He still, however, adheres to his belief that 100,000,000 years would suffice for that portion of the history which is registered in the stratified rocks of the crust. At the same time he concedes that there is no reason on the geological side why scientists should not be at liberty to enlarge it as far as they might find to be needful for the evolution of organized existence on the globe. To the end of following investigations which might be turned to account in the solution of this vast problem Sir Archibald recommended a study of atmospheric denudations of buildings, and he urged upon town geologists that they might do good service by careful scrutiny of ancient building and monuments, so as to obtain definite measures of the rate of their decay.

Lunar Possibilities.

The fate of the earth if the moon should cease to exist would depend upon several circumstances, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Her proper motion is now held in check by the earth's attraction, which converts it into a circular motion round us. If we ceased to be, this motion would be in a straight line at right angles to a line joining the centers of the earth and moon. The force that carries her round the sun in the earth's orbit would continue to act, but this would be complicated by her proper motion, which again would depend upon her position at the time of our disappearance. If she were full, her proper motion would be added to that of the earth's orbital motion, and if new it would be subtracted; but, as it is only a thirtieth part, it would not be an important addition. If she were in her first quarter, it would act in a direction away from the sun and might carry her into space, and if she were in third quarter it would set toward the sun and would probably precipitate her into that luminary. If, however, one of the other planets happened to fall in her new track, she would probably become again a moon, or she might fall into one of them and be destroyed. The removal of the earth would probably upset the whole solar system, so any forecast cannot be very trustworthy.

Odors and the Voice.

Dr. Joal calls attention to the many cases recorded in medical literature of severe headaches, nervous disturbances and even occasional cases of death due to the inhalation of the odors of various flowers, says The Practical Druggist. He then states that a number of singers and actors suffer from this, and that usually it is a certain odor which the affected person cannot tolerate. The symptoms set up are usually coryza, hoarseness even to aphonia, headache, etc. He reports a number of cases in several of which good results were obtained by cauterization of the hypertrophied mucous [illegible] ne.

EFFECT OF BOER WAR.

Bryan Says Gold Has Been Weakened by the British Reverses.

"Suppose the Gold Standard Countries Were at War?"

Pays His Respects to Trusts and Declares Against "Imperialistic" Policy.

Omaha, Jan. 9.—Mr. Bryan was the chief centre of attraction at the celebration by the Jacksonian club yesterday, and during the two hours the reception lasted several hundred Democrats paid their respects. At 6 o'clock a dinner was tendered Mr. Bryan, and a few other notables at the Omaha club.

At 9 o'clock occurred the annual banquet of the club in the parlors of the Paxton hotel. Covers were laid for 300, and there were no vacant places. An elaborate menu was served, and it was near midnight before the speaking began. Mr. Bryan said in part:

Those who studied the money question in 1896 foresaw the danger threatened by the gold standard, and pointed out that its permanent establishment would involve us in every financial disturbance occurring in Europe, but the bankers were for the most part blind to the warning. What do we see now? Notwithstanding the increased production of gold, a few victories won by the Boers in South Africa have alarmed the same bankers, and they are now fearing a panic, unless England is immediately successful. Their financial interest in England's triumph is so great that many of them have silenced their sympathy for a struggling republic, and hoping for the extension of the authority of a queen.

If such agitation results from a war between England and a little republic what must we expect if war ever breaks out between two gold standard countries of the first class. Without financial independence this nation cannot be independent, either in its foreign or its domestic policy, and yet the Republican party is even now preparing to chain America like a captive to Europe's golden chariot.

Those who studied the money question in 1896 also foresaw that the retirement of the greenbacks was a part of the gold standard plan. Many Republicans scouted the idea that the president avoided any mention of the matter in his letter of acceptance.

But now the scheme is being unfolded and the financiers are to be empowered to expand or contract the currency at their own will, and for their own pecuniary advantage.

Those who studied the trust question in 1896 foresaw that an administration placed in power by the aid of great monopolies could not be relied upon to destroy the trusts, but many who could not be convinced by argument are now being convinced by the rapid growth and increased audacity of private monopolies.

Anyone who has read history or understands human nature, knows that one race cannot cross an ocean and dominate another without keeping an army ever present to hold the conquered race in subjection, and yet the Republican leaders thought or pretended to think that an imperial policy would be accepted by the Filipinos with delight.

The decision of the nation upon the Filipino question will be an epoch-making decision. We stand at the parting of the ways, and must choose between the doctrines of republics and the doctrines of empires. At this supreme crisis in our nation's history we may well recall the words of Lowell:

Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide,
In the strife of truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side,
Some great cause, God's new Messiah, offering each the bloom or blight,
And the choice goes by forever, twixt that darkness and that light.

Congressman Fitzgerald's Ideas.

Boston, Jan. 9.—The Jackson club of Charlestown noted the passing of Jackson's birthday by a gathering, with Congressman Fitzgerald as the chief speaker on the politics of today. In the course of his address he said: "While I feel that President McKinley made a tremendous mistake when he refused, in his proclamation to the Filipinos, to give them the same assurances of independence that he had given the Cubans, there is no doubt that Aguinaldo and his followers are encouraged by every utterance of friendship that comes to them from this side of the water, and I think it is the part of duty, as well as of patriotism, to end the war as quickly as we can. The Democratic party, in my opinion, cannot win the next election by making it turn upon the Philippines. Things of more vital importance appeal to them at home. The trust issue, taxation of public franchises, home rule for cities, and other vital problems confront us now, and appeal to the Democratic party for solution."

—In Morristown, Penn., recently an unusual sentence was imposed upon three offenders. They were accused of assault and battery and were released on their promise to accompany their accuser to church on each of the 12 next succeeding Sundays.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Democrats Will Not Oppose Financial Bill. Other Matters of Interest.

Washington, Jan. 9.—During a discussion of a resolution of inquiry offered by Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) some sensational statements were made in the senate regarding the attitude of the United States towards the Filipino insurgents. Mr. Pettigrew declared that this government had attacked its allies and thereby had been guilty of the grossest treachery. This statement was resented warmly by Mr. Lodge (Mass.), who declared that this government had done nothing of the kind and that, not even remotely, had it recognized the so-called government of the Filipinos.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) discussed at length the race question in the south, basing his remarks upon a resolution offered by Mr. Pritchard (Rep., N. C.). He deemed it imperative that some course should be adopted which would prevent a repetition of the Hayes-Tilden controversy, and discussed fully the 14th and 15th amendments to the constitution. He maintained that to attempt to force the black race into a social and political equality with the white race was only to clog the progress of all mankind. The speech was a strong appeal for action that would benefit both races and a defense of the new constitution of Louisiana and North Carolina.

Mr. Jones announced that the Democrats would not delay the currency bill, knowing full well that the Republicans had a majority and could pass it with ease.

On the opening of the senate Mr. Gallinger was warmly congratulated on the failure of the charges of violating the civil service.

Mr. McLaurin gave notice of an amendment to the finance bill repealing the tax on circulation of state banks; notice was also given by Mr. Hoar of an amendment to the census regulations.

Ex-Senator Whiteside of Montana continued his testimony in the Clark case, and said his only purpose in undertaking the exposure of bribery was to protect the good name of the state. He denied that he had been paid to do this service.

Among the nominations sent to the senate was that of W. H. Jordan, to be collector at Gloucester, Mass.

The insular affairs committee decided it had jurisdiction over all territory ceded by Spain, excepting as to revenues and appropriations.

Senator Pettigrew offered a resolution, authorizing the United States government to offer mediation between Great Britain and South Africa. He announced that it was his purpose to make a speech on the subject.

The house ordered two investigations as a result of resolutions introduced by Representative Lentz of Ohio. The first is to be an investigation by the committee on postoffices and post roads into the charge that two federal appointees of the president. Postmaster Graham of Provo City, Utah, and Postmaster Smith of Logan, Utah, are under indictment as polygamists, and whether affidavits to that effect were on file at the time of their appointment. The other is a general investigation by the military committee into the conduct of General Merriam and the United States army officers during the Wardner, Idaho, riots and subsequent thereto. The house adjourned until Wednesday.

Statement Sounds Rather Flimsy.

Louisville, Jan. 9.—Colonel Whallen, who is now under bond on a charge of offering $4500 to Senator Harrell for the latter's vote against Goebel in the organization of the legislature, yesterday swore out a warrant against Harrell, charging the latter with obtaining money under false pretenses. Whallen states that Harrell told him he (Harrell) was against Goebel, but had accepted $500 to vote for Goebel and had a promise of an office from Goebel. As he could not support Goebel, and as he wanted to repay the Goebel manager his money and put himself on a sure footing, he wanted $5000. Whallen says that he gave $5000 of his money to Harrell; that Harrell kept $500 and put the balance in a box of the safety vault of the Louisville Trust company, and that Harrell obtained this money on a false pretense, as it was false that he had already received $500 from a representative of Goebel.

Two Men Decapitated.

Newbury, Mass., Jan. 9.—While trying to make a short cut home by crossing the tracks of the Boston and Maine railroad over what is known as a farm crossing, Thomas Thornton and George Poole were instantly killed yesterday through the pung in which they were riding being struck by a train, while Edward Thornton and William Burns, who were riding on the back seat, narrowly escaped a similar fate. The engine ground the pung in pieces, killing the horse and decapitating both men, the bodies being badly cut up.

About $85,000 In Sight.

Washington, Jan. 9.—The Lawton home fund is attaining to noble proportions, and General Corbin is of the opinion that there is now in sight about $85,000. The contributions turned in since noon Saturday or reported amount to $18,976, making the grand total at noon yesterday $67,409. General Corbin says that in addition to this, it is reported to him that there is a fund of $10,000 in San Francisco and another of $6000 in New York not yet turned in, and there is no doubt that other sums will be reported.

The chairmanship of the Boston school committee was settled by the election of William J. Gallivan, a Democrat. The contest was long drawn out, 17 ballots being taken.

The bubonic plague is yet sporadic at Manila. There have been six cases and four deaths. Preparations are being made to establish a hospital for disinfecting and quarantine.

Bryan's Possible Running Mate.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 9.—The Granite State club held its 14th annual banquet last night, and observed Jackson's birthday. The guest of the evening was Congressman Sulzer of New York. He was introduced as the probable vice presidential candidate with Bryan in the next national campaign.

Victimized Portsmouth Tradesmen.

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 9.—John H. Presson, who claims Gloucester, Mass., as his home, was arrested last night on a charge of passing two forged checks, amounting to $65. The checks were cashed by a local tradesman on Friday, Bresson claiming to be a teller in the Gloucester National bank. It was found later that his claim was false and the checks were worthless.

FAST AND FOREVER.

Senator Beveridge Says We Should Hold the Philippine Archipelago.

Made Personal Investigation of the Subject.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senator Beveridge delivered his long-expected speech on the Philippine question yesterday. It was intended to be a supreme effort to prove the wisdom of retaining the islands as permanent possessions, and, from the circumstances, is of vastly more importance than any previous speech on the expansionist side of the question, and is in line with other strong speeches that have been made when questions, vital to the nation, were under discussion.

"That man little knows the common people of the republic; little understands the instincts of our race, who thinks we will not hold it (the Philippine archipelago) fast and forever, administering just government by simplest methods."

This sentence was the keynote of the speech by Mr. Beveridge. It was replete with striking sentences and well-arranged information. Spoken with all the earnestness, vigor and eloquence of a fine orator, enthusiastic in his subsubject, the speech created a profound impression on all who heard it.

It was expected that in it the best argument would be presented, and the most convincing reasons put forward for carrying on the war of subjugation to the end and the full exercise of our sovereignty over the people, and it would seem as though these expectations were fully realized. Senator Beveridge's speech is notable from the fact that it is the result of personal investigation of affairs in the territory under discussion, and, whatever may be thought of his views regarding the points of constitutional law applicable to the governing of the Philippines, the enormous figures that he uses in estimating their future commerce, or of his belief that, as "trustees of the world's progress," the American people can do nothing else than persist in their present course until every vestige of rebellion is stamped out, considerable weight must be accorded those portions of his speech that deal with the character of the islands and of the people, as well as his opinions, formed upon the spot, of the conduct of the war, which has been open to so much criticism here.

His estimate of the Filipinos as indolent, improvident, with no aptitude, dull, stupid, superficial and never thorough, and as incapable of self-government as children, and, withal, so little enlightened that not 100 out of the 5,000,000 comprehend what Anglo-Saxon government means, is on a par with the opinions expressed by others, but lacking the authority that goes with the senatorial utterance.

The plan of government that he outlines is comprehensive, and, under the circumstances, is of peculiar interest. Its keynotes are simplicity and strength, and he insists that the meaning of these words must be written in every line of Philippine administration. A protestorate he thinks impossible because there are no hereditary rulers through which to administer government as there are in Java and in the Malay possessions of the English.

What he says about the necessity of sending ideal administrators rather than politicians to the new possessions will meet with ready assent, for, in the wise choice of officials lies the success of the whole project, as he admits that it were better to abandon the islands with all their advantages than to attempt their government by any but the most perfect administration our country can produce.

It was 2:28 p. m. when Mr. Beveridge completed his address. As he resumed his seat a storm of applause swept through the galleries, which was prolonged to an unusual extent. President Pro Tem Frye made a passive effort to repress the demonstration, and finally announced that applause was not permitted in the United States senate. This was greeted with laughter, in which Mr. Frye himself joined.

Mr. Hoar then addressed the chair. He had been a careful listener to the speech of Mr. Beveridge, and for some time had been getting his information together for a reply. As soon as he could make himself heard, he said that he had been delighted with the eloquence of the senator from Indiana. Yet, he said, he had listened in vain for those words which the American people have taken on their lips in solemn crisis. The words "right," "justice," "duty" and "freedom" were absent from the eloquent address.

Mr. Hoar declared that practically every statement of fact in the speech was refuted by government reports received from Admiral Dewey, General Otis and from other official sources. Where did Spain get the right to sell her rights in the Philippines? Where did the United States get the right to buy and sell people like sheep? He was certain that for all the wealth and commerce and glory which he had eloquently depicted, the senator from Indiana would not have a great injustice done.

Mr. Hoar declared the Filipinos had the Spaniards hemmed in at Manila, and the latter were obliged to surrender. He thought it would be necessary to revise the constitution before those Filipinos could be bought and sold. He did not believe Mr. Beveridge would advise the American people to do this thing, or to do anything so base as to strike down the infant Filipino republic.

The Massachusetts senator made frequent references to and quotations from the reports of General Otis and Admiral Dewey, and other officers in the Philippines. These showed that when Aguinaldo arrived in Luzon from Hong Kong the insurgents had an army of 20,000; that in the island of Luzon the Filipinos maintained courts, schools, municipal governments and churches, and that peace and order prevailed pretty generally; Spanish prisoners were kindly treated. "This," declared Mr. Hoar, "is the condition of things which it is proposed to crush under our heels. And that," he commented, "you call glory."

General Otis had promised, Mr. Hoar said, a government to the Filipinos, in which they would be able to exercise a full measure of their individual rights. "Did he utter this promise to a people incapable of self-government—to half-savages and half-Spaniards?" demanded Mr. Hoar. He thought it bold to charge those men who had opposed this war from the beginning with the responsibility of all the blood being shed. He declared there had not been a time when, if General Otis had been able to give assurances of independence to the Filipinos, the war would not have terminated.

Senator Rawlins (Utah) introduced a resolution which was referred to the Philippine committee, directing the committee to inquire into and report:

1—What form of government, insurgent, revolutionary or dictatorship, other than that of the kingdom of Spain, existed in the Philippine islands prior to Dec. 10, 1898, and to what extent Spain had actual control of the islands.

2—Can sovereign power be justly and in accordance with international law be claimed in the absence of power to control.

HAS NOT "SKULKED FROM DUTY."

Senator Hoar Makes a Statement In Reply to Assertions of Representative Quigg.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senator Hoar has made public a long letter he has addressed to the editors of four Boston newspapers, in answer to a speech made by Representative Quigg at the Essex club in that city. In this speech, Mr. Quigg, referring to Senator Hoar's attitude on the Philippine question, declared that the senator "wants us to skulk from our duty." Senator Hoar says:

"I wish to put against this statement my emphatic denial. What I want the American people to do is to do in the Philippines exactly what we have done, are now doing and expect to do in Cuba. We have liberated both from Spain, and we have had no thought of giving either back to Spain. Having delivered them from Spain, we were bound in all honor to protect their newly acquired liberty against the ambition or greed of any other nation on earth. And we were equally bound to protect them against our own. We were bound to stand by them, a defender and protector, until their new governments were established in freedom and in honor; until they had made treaties with the powers of the earth and were as secure in their national independence as Switzerland is secure, or as San Domingo or Venezuela is secure.

Senator Hoar says he has two witnesses to call, General Otis and Admiral Dewey. "But before citing the evidence, let me state what I would do today, as I have stated what I desired to do before the war broke out. I would send General Wood or General Miles or Admiral Dewey to Luzon. I would have him gather about him a cabinet of the best men among the Filipinos, who have the confidence of the people and desire nothing but their welfare. In all provinces and municipalities where civil government is now established, possessing the confidence of the people, I would consult with their rulers and representatives. I would lend the aid of the army only to keep order. I would permit the people to make and administer laws, subject to some supervision till peace has settled down again upon that country. So soon as it seems that government can maintain itself peacefully and in order, I would by degrees withdraw the authority of the United States, making a treaty with them that we would protect them against the cupidity of any other nation, and would lend our aid for a reasonable time to maintain order and law. I would not hesitate, if it were needful, to vote to make them a loan of a moderate sum to replenish their wasted treasury."

Senator Hoar's letter then asserts that the dispatches of Admiral Dewey and General Otis (some of the latter read by him, he says, having been withheld thus far from public knowledge), establish among other things that Aguinaldo is honest, patriotic and the chosen leader of the people of the Philippines; that the people have from the beginning desired independence; that they are fit for independence; that the outbreak of hostilities was not their fault, but ours, and that General Otis so amended the president's proclamation before issuing it as to assure the Filipinos that it was the purpose of the people of the United States to give them "in every possible way, the full measure of individual rights and liberty which is the heritage of a free people."

HE ADVISES COURAGE.

Says Great Britain Is Not After Wealthy Regions.

London, Jan. 10.—Arthur J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, speaking last evening in East Manchester, said:

"I know of no way in which Great Britain has been engaged, except that resulting in the independence of the American colonies, which did not end triumphantly. Yet I do not know of one which began triumphantly. True, the war in South Africa is disappointing, but it is not a fact that Great Britain has suffered exceptional reverses of great disaster. On the other hand, the war has knit together every branch of the English speaking race, making all feel that they have a great, common destiny, which it is their duty to accomplish.

"These are thoughts which ought to support us in far greater trials than any this war may produce. Remember that a nation which cannot bear defeat is a nation unworthy of empire, and, although defeat has not yet come, and although we hope and believe it will not come in the course of the present war, yet, if matters should turn out otherwise, we should still rely upon the courage and patriotism of our countrymen."

Addressing a second meeting at Ardwick, Mr. Balfour said: "While I am loth to claim, in any proud and arrogant spirit, that we are in any special sense the leaders of a great humanitarian cause, I deny in the strongest manner that we are animated by ignoble motives. No more false or stupid calumny was ever invented than the accusation that Great Britain is animated by a petty desire to add wealthy regions to an already gigantic empire. No mere acquisition of territory could compensate for a war costing so much blood and treasure."

Rear Admiral Beresford, adddressing the London chamber of commerce, and dealing with questions of national defense, said that now that war prevailed more attention would be paid, perhaps, to those who had warned the country that it was laboring under a "rotten, false and misleading system of administration so far as the services were concerned. While I would deprecate the adoption of conscription," said he, "I hope the country will insist upon overhauling and reforming the naval and military services. In connection with the war in South Africa I contend that our generals should be held blameless, for they have been set to do an impossibility."

The Times, in an editorial based upon Mr. Balfour's declarations, severely criticizes the government, and says: It is fortunate for the government that, when parliament meets, it will only have to face the weak opposition. If the shortcomings now revealed had been revealed in a war with a first-class European power the nation would not have been consoled by statements such as Mr. Balfour has been making. It is neither becoming nor prudent, after what has happened, for a minister to declare, as Mr. Balfour did, that he does not feel that he need apologize on behalf of the government. It would be better for the country and for the ministers themselves if the latter frankly owned that they had made a mistake, pleaded extenuating circumstances and pledged themselves to a serious effort to reform all which had proved wanting.

The war office has not contributed the least particular as to what is taking place in Natal since Sunday. Neither has it allowed the dispatches of correspondents to get through. Consequently the facts of the situation are replaced by conjectures, and the impatience of the public pours itself into a discussion of the conduct of the war and of what might have been done or ought now to be done.

The Morning Post demands that the forces afield, afloat and in preparation shall be increased by 65,000 men. To this end it urges that all the trained men the country possesses, militia and volunteers, shall be called out, asserting incidentally that, although the attitude of other powers is correct in the diplomatic sense of the word, an invasion, if attempted, would be sudden, and that now is the time to apprehend contingencies.

The Daily News editorially defines the public opinion of the continent as in a state which should not be ignored. It calls for "greater vigilance than ever on the part of those responsible for the efficiency of the navy," and urges cautious, circumspect and business-like diplomacy.

The Daily Mail says that it understands that the supersession of another general commanding in South Africa will shortly be announced. This may have relation to General Butler's hasty summons from Devonport. It is reported that he came by special train to London yesterday and held a long consultation with the headquarters staff. This seems to indicate that his advice, which only recently was in extreme disfavor, is about to be utilized.

The critics range up and down the entire field of war transactions, finding fault especially with the lack of transport for the troops who are ready to depart, and with the concealment of news.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

The fact that 100,000 visited the Old State House in Boston last year, may surprise some good Americans of the Metropolitan district who have never stepped foot in the historic building.

Municipal electric light plants are not all profit, the town of Braintree finding it necessary to vote an additional $26,000 this week for the purpose of remodelling its plant. Braintree people however, get their house lighting and store lighting for less than Quincy.

Massachusetts may well be proud of its record from 1861 to 1899, it having paid $25,186,940.25 to soldiers and sailors, their wives, widows and dependents who entered the Civil war. To this is to be added about a million dollars more paid thus far during the Spanish war. And it is not alone in dollars and cents that the State rewards its soldiers.

It will surprise many that an order introduced into the City Council of Haverhill Tuesday evening was not promptly killed. It provides for decreasing the pay of street laborers from $2 to $1.60 per day, and permits the payment of a smaller sum to men whom the Street Committee decide are not able to do a full day's work. By a close vote the order was referred to the Street Committee. This is not good news for labor from the much-advertised Social Democratic city of Haverhill, which was one of the first cities to vote for an eight-hour day.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The stringent liquor law that went into force in South Carolina a few years ago has developed a demand for a state asylum for the care of drunkards. It would seem from [illegible] all-round evidence that the only sure cure is prohibition. — Nashua Daily Press.

☞The only gratifying feature of the drunkenness arrest record in Boston for the past year was that there were fewer than there were the year before. As there were sixty-five a day, on an average, there is room for an increase in gratification.— New Bedford Standard.

☞The report that a "bath-tub trust" has been organized excites alarm in the minds of all who believe in cleanliness. Calling the new trust by the high-sounding title of the "Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company" will not relieve it of odium, since the inevitable tendency must be to restrict bathing by making it more expensive. Any organization which increases the difficulty of keeping clean is against public policy, and therefore unconstitutional. — Indianapolis Press.

☞In this work-a-day world a measure of reproach attaches to every man and woman who does not engage in some useful toil. On the other hand, riches tempt a man to an irresponsible and indulgent life, and the hard, grinding work that leads to success becomes well-nigh impossible. Still some notable instances of industry and ambition among those blessed with fortune warrant us in taking a more hopeful view of young aristocrats. We have many such in our own country, but just now it is the so-called blue-blooded aristocrats abroad who are showing the world what they can do.— Philadelphia Times.

CHIEF-TO-BE RIPLEY.

Walter H. Ripley, who rumor is very positive will receive the appointment as Chief of Police under Mayor Hall, is well and favorably known throughout the city. He is thoroughly acquainted with Quincy and its people, and the experience he has gained in the public offices he has held, both under the town and city form of governments, amply qualifies him, and will aid him in the discharge of the duties involving upon the chief of police.

That Quincy has good material, in its police force, no one denies, but it has been lacking in proper facilities and has become somewhat demoralized by petty jealousy and lack of discipline. These serious defects, in any department should be remedied, and it is believed that Chief Ripley is just the man required to bring the department up to the standard where it belongs. Personally, he is fearless, and does not lack courage, as it was said of him while chief engineer, he asked no man to go where he would not lead. Such a man, subordinates will look up to, and if there is not a very marked improvement in the police force at an early date it will not be because it lacked an efficient chief.

Police duty will not be new to Mr. Ripley, for under the town form of government he did excellent service as one of its force of constables, serving, in all, eight years. He was also a member of the board of Selectmen, Assessors and Overseers of the Poor during the years 1887 and 1888 with Hon. William A. Hodges and Hon. William N. Eaton, serving each year as secretary. His vote in 1888 was the largest ever given a candidate for Selectman in Quincy.

When Quincy became a city he was appointed Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, and served continuously until removed for political reasons by Mayor Hodges in 1894. During his service as Chief Engineer, he brought the Fire department up to a high standard of efficiency, and was largely instrumental in obtaining for the department its present Central Fire Station on Quincy avenue. It was also during his administration that the combination engine at Atlantic was purchased and placed in commission.

Mr. Ripley is a Cape boy, having been born in North Carver, Oct. 8, 1851, and his family genealogy shows him to be a descendant of Myles Standish. When six years of age his parents moved to Quincy locating in the "West District" on Cross street. He attended the public schools of Quincy and upon completing his studies, mastered the tool maker and blacksmith business. In 1871 he went to Richmond, Va., remaining there two years. He then went to Middlebrook, Mo., as government storekeeper. For brief periods he was a travelling salesman in Vermont, and also with his brother in the grocery business at West Quincy, to which place he returned from the west in 1874.

In 1883 he opened his present shop as a manufacturer of stone tools, and he has done a successful business. From a humble beginning he has built up a constantly increasing trade until today his business is one of the leading enterprises in that section of the city.

In politics he is a staunch Republican. He is prominently identified with the local Masonic and Odd Fellow fraternities and is an exceedingly popular fellow. He was married Jan. 1, 1879.

FOUL PLAY HINTED.

The Two Hebrews However Loaded Themselves Down.

The families of the two Hebrews, who were drowned in Hull gut three weeks ago by the capsizing of a boat in which they were transporting junk from Peddocks island to Hull, have an idea that the two men met their death by foul play. To satisfy them that the drowning was accidental Inspector McKay procured the services of the police boat Protector, Tuesday and visited Peddocks island. There he learned that the two men wore long ulsters, and that after loading their purchase into the dory they walked about the island picking up old iron which they stowed away in the pockets of their coat, so that they were well weighted down. On the way across the boatman wanted them to throw part of the load overboard, but they refused and the boat was capsized. It is now thought that the junk the two men had in their pockets hindered them from swimming and caused them to sink. The bodies have been grappled for by the Hull life saving crew, but without result.

How about all the dances which were to be given in Music hall this winter. Atlantic festivities are somewhat on the wane just now when they should be at their highest.

It is well the road to the Atlantic station is down hill, else the great number of men who allow themselves a quarter of a minute from the head of Sagamore street to the station would find running a bit difficult.

Fire alarm box 153, located at the foot of Fenno street, opposite the National Sailors' Home has been cut into the fire alarm circuit, and one round for test will be sounded from it at 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

The Brockton street railway lock all the front doors of their cars and oblige passengers to enter and leave the car by the rear door. This works all right if the conductor thinks to unlock the door when the Quincy & Boston men take the car at Holbrook but if they forget to unlock the door do occasionally, it is rather inconvenient. It would conduce to comfort of passengers if the rear door only was used.

"Housework is hard work without Gold Dust"

Cleaning Silver

Instead of scouring and rubbing each piece of silver separately, the whole service can be as effectively cleaned in a few minutes. After each meal the silver should be put into a pan (kept especially for the purpose) and cover with luke-warm water, to which a teaspoonfull of is added; set the pan on the range until the water gets to boiling point, then lift out each piece with a wire spoon and lay on a soft linen cloth, wiping quickly with chamois skin. The pieces so cleaned will be highly polished and look like new.

Bela F. Lincoln Dead.

The sympathy of Quincy and Hingham people go out to Mrs. Clara Estes Lincoln of Hingham in the death of her husband, who died at West Hingham on Tuesday. For 21 years Mr. Lincoln has been station agent at West Hingham, and has been postmaster of the village since the office was established. He was also an enthusiastic horticulturist and became well-known from the fact that he introduced the "Hersey" strawberry. He was a member of Old Colony lodge of Odd Fellows. A widow and a son of two years survive him. Mrs. Lincoln will be remembered as Miss Clara Estes, for some years employed at the Quincy Savings Bank. They were married in October 1894.

Policy or Principle?

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

In Mayor Hall's address he plainly gave the citizens of Quincy to understand that in making his appointments he would not consider his future chance of re-election. Is it honest, now, to hang out a sign from City Hall, saying: "Wanted, a Tax Collector who will not collect the taxes?" The manner in which this appointment is disposed of will plainly show to the taxpayers of our city, whether we have made a mistake in our recent election, or whether we have a Mayor who will stand up to convictions of right and the city's interest, or gracefully bow to what seems to him policy.

HEAVY TAXPAYER.

Resignation Accepted.

A congregational meeting of the members of the First Presbyterian church was held Tuesday evening, at which the resignation of Rev. Robert Westly Peach as pastor of the church was accepted. Dr. Hershey was moderator and spoke in praise of the good work of Mr. Peach. Resolutions were offered by Mr. Donald McKenzie which were adopted, expressing regrets at his leave taking, thanks for his work as pastor, and wishes of success in his new parish.

Recital Tonight.

Mr. John D. Buckingham, organist of St. Michaels church, Providence, and director of music at the Woodward Institute, Quincy, will give his first recital in Christ church this evening. He will be assisted by Master George Packard, boy soloist of Emmanuel church, Boston. Admission, twenty-five cents.

A new warehouse in Paris has been built with glass floors. The initial cost is considerably over that of the ordinary floors, but in view of the fact that toughened glass is so much longer lived than wood, the experiment is likely to prove cheaper in the long run.

What Abutters Must Pay Toward the Sewer.

The Ledger continues the publication of the assessments by the city upon the abutters in payment of their half of the cost of sewer construction. The list is not given in alphabetical order, but by streets as the pipes are laid.

The total assessment upon each lot is not given, but the assessment per frontage at the rate of 12 cents per foot, and the assessment per area within 100 feet of the street at the rate of 6 mills per square foot. To obtain the total assessment it is only necessary to add the two together.

It is proposed to continue the publication as space will admit.

The above list concludes the sewer assessments as far as made by the Sewer Commissioners. This does not include many of the streets sewered by the department this year and it will be some weeks before the amount for their collection is sent to the Tax Collector.

The law of Paris requires that every bicycle in use shall bear a plate telling the owner's name and address soldered upon it. Every bicycle found which has not the owner's name, as the law requires, is seized and impounded. The law helps the officials in stopping the wholesale stealing of wheels, and enables them to report promptly in case of accidents.

To make the wooden butter dishes seen in groceries the heavy timber is cut into blocks 10 or 12 inches in length and boiled in huge vats until thoroughly softened. The hot blocks are placed in machines which scoop out the butter dishes at the rate of 200 a minute.

An explosion of acetylene gas, used for lighting in Lyons cafe, completely wrecked the cafe, severely injured three persons who were in it at the time, broke every pane of glass in the building, which is four stories high, and tore off the doors from their hinges on the first two stories.

The system of numbering houses was unknown even in London and Paris till a century ago. In 1795 the practice of numbering private houses was begun in Berlin. Vienna claims the honor of having inaugurated in 1803 the method of placing the odd numbers on one side of the street and the even ones on the other.

A Penalty For Being Polite.

It is more difficult to be polite in the city of Hamburg than in any other place in Europe. There the most chivalrous man has to think twice before giving up his seat in a car to a lady, as he may be turned off the car for politeness. It seems that the Hamburg trolley cars will seat, according to size, 20 or 28 persons, 10 to 14 on each side. In addition four persons are allowed on the front and five persons on the back platform. When the car is full, the conductor hangs out a sign, "Besetzt," which means "occupied," and is absolutely forbidden to take on another passenger until some one gets off the car.

Sometimes, while the conductor is in front collecting fares, a lady will step on the car which is already "occupied." As there is no conductor on hand to prevent her, the lady steps inside, and the gentleman who may offer her a seat comes out and takes his stand on the platform. When the conductor after going his rounds returns to his post, he promptly requests the gentleman to step off the car, as he has forfeited his seat and the car is fully "occupied." Should he refuse to leave the car he is put off. The policemen on the streets are instructed to watch the cars sharply, and if they find a car carries even one more passenger than its proper complement the conductor is fined 72 cents, which is paid to a charity fund of the street railway company.—Philadelphia Press.

Salt and Horse Radish.

Some people care for nothing but lemon on raw oysters, but there are others who desire horse radish. Usually such folk regard the strongest horse radish as the best, but an experienced vender of the condiment poohpoohs this point of view.

"Why should the strong horse radish be considered good?" says he. "It brings tears to your eyes and lifts the top of your head off and makes you want to sneeze. It has no taste whatever. The mild horse radish, that which has stood awhile, is the best and pleasantest always.

"There is nothing so foolish as to think that the strong, biting kind is the fresh—that is the reason why it is preferred to the mild sort—for the very stalest, weakest horse radish can be made in 20 minutes strong enough to blow your head off. All you need to do is to add salt to it. Try this some time. Just take any old horse radish, dump in a spoonful of salt and then notice the difference. I don't know why salt should have such a powerful effect on the stuff, but no doubt a chemist could tell you that."—Philadelphia Record.

Turned It to Account.

A Derbyshire man, accompanied by his wife, happened to be traveling in a train when, near Stafford, a collision occurred. He was well known for his shrewdness in business, and he proved that in the collision his wife received a contusion between the eyes, for which a jury awarded £50 damages. Some time after the affair had blown over the following confession, or something to the like effect, was elicited from the plaintiff in a moment of unguarded conviviality:

"Well, you see, when the collision happened t' owld woman and I wur all reet, but when I looked out o' t' carridge I seed a lot of fellies in a terrible state. One sings out: 'Ey, lad! Ise getten me head cut open. I'll ha' twenty peounds for this.' 'Twenty peounds, ye silly fule?' cries another. 'Ise gotten me shoulder out, and I'll ha' forty peounds for 't.' When I heard this," continued the clever business man, "I jumpt at t' owld woman straight out and druv my 'ead betw'en her eyes, and we'se gotten fifty peounds for it."—London Answers.

A Natural Bridge In Arizona.

Natural bridge, on Pine creek, in the northern part of Gila county, is one of the greatest natural curiosities in the United States, equaling if not surpassing the Natural bridge of Virginia. It spans the creek at a height of about 200 feet, and the walls of the canyon rise above it on either side 700 or 800 feet and on one side form a perpendicular precipice. The bridge is of lime formation, and the inside of the great arch, which is some 250 feet across, is worn by the water as smooth as though chiseled by the skillful hand of a stonemason. The arch on top is nearly, if not quite, 400 feet in width, 1,000 feet in length across the canyon and at the thinnest part only six feet through. About the center of the arch is a hole large enough to admit the body of a man and through which one can look down into the crystal pool of water 200 feet below.—Globe (A. T.) Silver Belt.

Fright, Not Fascination.

Naturalists are not at all agreed upon the point as to whether snakes are able to fascinate their prey. Certainly they do not possess the power to the extent that popular belief would have it. Stories of the weird and mystic influence of a serpent's eye fall flat in the face of scientific accuracy. What can be said of snakes, however, is that their very appearance paralyzes the victim. It cannot move for fright, for its faculties are temporarily suspended. There is no fascination about this, however. It is fright, and fright alone.

M'GOVERN CHAMPION.

Dixon Relinquishes Title He Has Held For Many Years.

Sponge Thrown Up When a Knockout Was Inevitable.

Most Severe Punishment Colored Lad Had Ever Received.

New York, Jan. 10.—The little Brooklyn "terror," Terry McGovern, in defeating George Dixon last night possesses double championship honors. He is now both the bantam and the featherweight champion of the world.

Dixon went down to defeat after the hardest battle of his life, but, while beaten, he had the sympathy of all. Dixon's career in the ring during the last 12 years had been most successful.

Only once during that time was he knocked out, and then it was through a rather mean trick on the part of a colored boxer, known as the "Kentucky Rosebud."

McGovern's strides to the front during the last two years were rapid, and his cleverness increased with each succeeding mill.

TERRY M'GOVERN.

Since the match, of which last night's contest was the outcome, was made, McGovern had been a marked favorite, and when the lads entered the ring, 100 to 70, and at times as good as 100 to 60 were laid that Terry would knock out George. Dixon was thoroughly prepared for the bout, having gone through a course of treatment at the West Baden springs, which was followed up by three weeks of vigorous training in the vicinity of Lakewood, N. J. McGovern, too, underwent a rigid course of preparation, but when both lads stepped on the scales yesterday afternoon, to make the necessary 118 pounds, Dixon seemed to be in the better condition. He was full of life and energy, and looked as if the making of the weight had not troubled him, while McGovern seemed to be too finely drawn. When they stepped into the ring, however, McGovern's face showed no traces of a rigid training course, and as soon as they stripped to the buff, each appeared to be in excellent condition.

The fight was for the featherweight championship and a purse of $10,000, and was scheduled to go 25 rounds. It ended in the eighth round, Dixon's manager throwing up the sponge to avoid a knockout.

Dixon, from the first tap of the gong, was on the aggressive, using a left swing invariably as his lead, which McGovern cleverly stepped inside of, and Terry sent both hands in rapid order to Dixon's lower works.

McGovern's attack on the body was a surprise to Dixon, as no boxer who ever faced the negro was able to land on the wind, ribs and kidneys as did McGovern.

Dixon jarred McGovern half a dozen times during the battle with hard cracks on the head and jaw, but Terry was always back at his man in a jiffy, relentlessly smashing with either hand to the ribs or stomach. The seventh round was a disastrous one for Dixon. Terry almost broke Dixon's nose in this round, after he had sent a right hand smash which landed over George's heart, and Dixon staggered to his corner with the blood spouting from his nasal organ.

Dixon came up as game as ever a man did in the eighth round, which proved to be the last. Early in this round Dixon slipped to the floor near the ropes from a clinch, and McGovern earned the cheers of the spectators by helping him to his feet. A few moments later Dixon stepped on a wet spot in McGovern's corner and slipped to the floor for a second time. It was now seen that Dixon had almost shot his bolt, and McGovern, rushing, sent left and right to the jaw, flooring the champion. Dixon took the greater part of the count this time, and as he arose slowly, Terry, who stood scarcely four feet away, was ready to rush at him. Dixon went down again from a body blow and, in all, he touched the floor eight times in the round, the last five times being the result of terrific body punches. A second before the round would have been completed Dixon stood up from his eighth fall, but his manager and backer, Tom O'Rourke, seeing that it was impossible for the negro to hold on to his title, threw up the sponge within one second of the call of time which would have ended the round. By throwing up the sponge, O'Rourke forfeited the championship, which undoubtedly McGovern would have forced from Dixon had the latter been allowed to come up for the ninth round.

While McGovern was hailed with vociferous cheers as the winner and the new champion, round after round of cheers were also given for Dixon, who had defended the title so cleverly for nearly nine years, as he left the ring, bleeding and beaten, after having probably fought his last ring contest.

When the contestants returned to their dressing rooms Dixon was badly marked up, but the only marks that McGovern had were scratches on the right side of his neck, where Dixon's left swings had gone around, scratching the skin.

Dixon felt his defeat very keenly and had very little to say, except that McGovern was the best man he had ever met, and that Terry could have beaten, in his present condition, any man that Dixon had ever defeated.

McGovern wore his championship laurels modestly, and said that he thought the contest would surely end before 10 rounds had been fought. At no stage of the game had he any doubt as to the outcome, but he gave all credit to Dixon as being the hardest proposition he had ever met during his brief career in the ring.

The attendance last night was limited only by the capacity of the house.

Every seat was occupied and the aisles were choked with persons who paid as much as $10 for admission.

Race War Started In Tennessee.

Ripley, Tenn., Jan. 10.—Officers Marvin Turner and W. D. Turner yesterday arrested a negro named Lingerly, five miles north of here, and were escorting him to the Ripley jail when two brothers of the prisoner shot both officers in the back, killing them. The prisoner and two brothers then fled. The latest reports from the posse which went in pursuit are that two of the negroes were caught and lynched. One of the dead men is the escaped prisoner. It is reported that many negroes in the neighborhood are arming and excitement runs high. A negro was assaulted last night by a white man and is perhaps fatally injured. Every incoming train has brought large numbers of men who have joined in pursuit of other negroes.

Will Bid For New Mill.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 10.—An official attempt will be made to secure the location of the new mammoth mill of the American Thread company in this city, the probable removal elsewhere of which was announced recently. Mayor Abbott and three aldermen, acting for the city, will interview General Superintendent Cook of the thread trust, and will endeavor to secure the building of the mill here. The committee will report back to the city government on Jan. 15. The new mill would give employment to 1200 operatives, and would give Flint village the population of a small city.

Four Found Watery Graves.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 10.—Louis Pommett, Augustus White, George Llewellyn and Burns Moody, four of the crew of the fishing schooner Edith S. Walen, of this port, were drowned off the Nova Scotia coast. The intelligence was brought to port by two schooners from the fishing grounds, off Liscomb, N. S., where the accident occurred. The Walen was engaged in the winter haddock fishing. The crew went out to haul up the trawls, and while they were engaged a heavy storm came up, but all the men, except the four mentioned, were able to reach the vessel.

Shorter Day—and Shorter Pay.

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 10.—In the city council last night an order was introduced decreasing the pay of street laborers from $2 to $1.80, and providing for a lesser rate for men who are not able to do a full day's work. This city voted at the last election to place city employes on an eight-hour day, and the proposed reduction in wages is intended as an equalization. The order was referred to the street committee.

Other Charges Against Him.

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 10.—John F. Presson, who was arested here on the charge of forging two checks on a Gloucester bank, was taken to Salem to answer similar charges against him in that city, the cases here having been settled out of court. It is said that he is also wanted in Lynn after the Salem cases have been disposed of.

Water Supply Is Short.

Winsted, Conn., Jan. 10.—The manufacturers in New Hartford, Pine Meadow, Collinsville and Unionville are seriously inconvenienced by the scarcity of water in the Farmington river and the several factories have to be closed down every other day, running but three days in the week. Upwards of 7000 employes are affected.

Twenty-Five Boys Missing.

New York, Jan. 10.—The Newark city home, a reformatory for children at Verona, N. J., was burned last night. Loss, $100,000. Three hundred inmates were gotten out safely. About 25 boys are missing, but they are all known to have gotten out of the building in safety.

Decision Given to Root.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—Jack Root of Chicago was given the decision over Tommy West of New York at the end of the sixth round at Tattersall's pavilion last night. The men fought at catchweights, straight Queensbery rules. West was evidently the heavier man of the two.

Goo! For Twenty-One Knots.

Newcastle, Eng., Jan. 10.—The trial of the cruiser Albany occurred yesterday under the supervision of a United States naval board. In appearance the Albany is identical with the New Orleans, except in minor details, introduced by the United States navy department. Once out in the North sea the Albany began to tune up. Four times she steamed past the measured mile, running under natural draught at a mean speed of 19.6 knots, which was .6 above contract speed. Then came the crucial test. Forced draught was brought to bear against the tide and wind. Her mean speed over the four measured miles, under forced draught, was 20.50. Her contract speed was 20 knots. But the Albany is easily capable of an additional knot.

Great Britain's losses since the war began are fast approaching 8000. A war office compilation of casualties, issued last evening, shows a total of 7213—1027 killed, 3675 wounded and 2511 missing. These do not include 140 who have succumbed to disease nor the casualties at Ladysmith last Saturday.

The Daily Graphic makes the following statement regarding the seizures of German vessels by British warships; Germany has addressed two notes to the British foreign office, challenging Great Britain's right to detain any vessels travelling between two neutral ports. These notes have been duly answered. The queen's government find themselves wholly unable to acquiesce in Germany's contention. Germany cited a case in support of her contention, but, on examination, this so-called precedent proved to be quite inapplicable to the seizure under discussion. The correspondence between the two governments rests there, pending a decision by the prize court.

WRITTEN BY SAME PERSON.

Expert's Opinion of Letters Signed Roland B. Molineux. H. Cornish and H. C. Barnet.

New York, Jan. 10.—Dr. Persifer Frazer, a geologist, chemist and handwriting expert of Philadelphia, was the first witness in the Molineux trial yesterday. In answer to questions by the prosecuting attorney, he said: "I have come to the conclusion, and it is my opinion, that the author of the letters signed Roland Molineux is also the author of the letters signed H. Cornish and H. C. Barnet."

In making his comparisons, Mr. Frazer said that he wished it understood that he made no use of the so-called solicited specimens of the defendant's handwriting, obtained while he was under suspicion. He had used, he said, only specimens of Molineux's writing which were done prior to Mrs. Adams' death. Mr. Frazer said that he believed Molineux wrote the address on the poison package wrapper for the following reasons:

First, 21 characteristics found in the conceded Molineux writings were found in the writing on the poison package; second, the deficiencies, where they exist, are those which would naturally be adopted for the purpose of disguise, and third, the microscopical examination of the ink lines of the conceded writings and the address on the poison package show the same structure in both, the swelling and deviations caused by nerve tremor when highly magnified are the same, and the characteristics of the margin and edge lines are the same. These resemblances, Professor Frazer said, were more than could be accounted for by accident.

In stating his reasons for his conclusion that the writer of the conceded Molineux exhibits wrote also the so-called Barnet and Cornish letters exhibited, Mr. Frazer said that a great number of characteristics were found to be the same thing in all the writings. A comparison with some undoubted writings of Barnet and Cornish, he said, had convinced him that neither Barnet nor Cornish had written the address on the poison package.

Mr. Frazer said that no single one of the characteristics enumerated by him could be used as a sole basis upon which to formulate a conclusion. It was not one characteristic alone, or the frequent recurrence of that characteristic that could be used to form an opinion. But it was the fact that there were so many, and that they could all be traced through the admitted and disputed writings, and that they occurred dozens and sometimes hundreds of times when all the writings in evidence were studied from a microscopic standpoint. The rest of Professor Frazer's testimony was devoted to a detailed study of the handwriting.

The only other witness of the day, Augustus F. R. Martin, paying teller of the Essex County National bank of Newark, N. J., identified the handwriting on the poison package as that of Molineux, who had a deposit at his bank for some years.

Disinherits His Own Children.

New York, Jan. 10.—Olga Salomea Heitz, a Russian peasant girl, was bequeathed the entire fortune of Eugene G. Cruger, conspicuous in the fashionable set of this city. The estate is valued at $135,000. Mr. Cruger's will, naming her as the sole legatee, was filed for probate here yesterday. By it Mr. Cruger disinherits his three minor children. The will was made in France. The will, it is stated, will be contested.

Student Confesses Theft.

Providence, Jan. 10.—John W. Haslam, a freshman, of Brown university, was arrested yesterday on several charges of larceny. Five watches, several small sums of money and other property he is said to have pilfered from the pockets of students while they were practicing in the gymnasium. He has confessed to some of the thefts and some of the stuff has been recovered.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

JAMES F. HARLOW, City Clerk.

PUBLIC IN THE DARK

Sir Charles Dilke Severely Criticizes the Government In a Public Address.

London, Jan. 11.—The war office announces that the list of British casualties at Ladysmith last Saturday has not yet been received. The following dispatch, dated at Frere camp, Jan. 10, noon, has been received from General Buller:

"A Transvaal telegram gives the enemy's loss at Ladysmith on Saturday as four killed and 15 wounded; and this after, as is admitted, they had endured a withering fire from six masked batteries and been defeated at all points.

"Natives here assert that the Boer loss in one commando alone was 150 killed and wagonloads of wounded. The heaviest loss is said to have been among the Free Staters, who were forced by the Transvaalers into the most dangerous places."

This curious dispatch is all the war office issued last night. It makes not the slightest mention of the position or doings of the British forces. It may be interpreted to mean that Ladysmith is safe; but it is more likely intended to prepare the British public for a terrible list of casualties.

During the interlude of apparent military inactivity and official secrecy, Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener have arrived at the seat of war. It is assumed that their clearer vision, supported by 35,000 fresh men who are due to arrive in South Africa within 30 days, will alter the situation, and that the fourth month of the campaign will witness the beginning of victories for the British arms.

GENERAL LORD ROBERTS.

They are not, however, expected to produce definite results for some days; but their mere presence will restore the shaken confidence of the men at the front in their generals.

Lord Roberts finds 120,000 men on the defensive or watching for an opening. Lord Methuen's health, according to The Daily Mail, has "broken down," and the field marshal may relieve him. Possibly some others will be relieved of important commands. There is certainly plenty of rank in evidence in South Africa. In addition to the field marshal, there are two full generals, four lieutenant generals and 12 or 14 major generals.

There is an uneasy suspicion that when the Ladysmith casualties are announced they will be disheartening and will partially destroy the patriotic glow produced by General White's "victory." The list of victims of disease issued by the war office gives 22 deaths from enteric fever and dysentery in Ladysmith in four days, revealing the fact that the besieged are existing amid bad sanitary conditions.

The Standard summarizes the general situation thus: "Well, the campaign has lasted three months. We have something like 120,000 troops in South Africa. With this huge army distributed over the country we are still powerless to relieve three garrisons from investment. We have still to see large portions of both colonies in the hands of the enemy.

We have driven the invaders back at no single point. We are actually further from the hostile frontiers than we were on the day that the ultimatum was delivered. The work which ministers believed could be effectually performed with 25,000 men has not been done, and not even been begun by four or five times that number. Can any one fail to admit that this is evidence of a grave miscalculation of forces and facts?

The war office has authorized a special yeomanry corps. Every trooper joining will pay for his own kit and mount, for transport and for all other expenses until his arrival in South Africa, and will then give his services to his country and pay for the privilege into the fund for widows and orphans the amount he would receive as a trooper. Several influential gentlemen have already enrolled.

The authorities have urged the committee of the yeomanry hospital fund to provide for 520 instead of 150 beds, and the committee is appealing for at least £50,000 more.

The Times, in an editorial criticising at great length the government's conduct of the war, alludes to the "stupid and perverse mistakes" that have been made and demands that the "practice of the non-revelation of facts" be abandoned. It insists strongly upon knowing "the truth and the whole truth about the situation," and finds fault with Mr. Balfour's defense piecemeal.

Sir Charles Dilke, speaking at Cinderford last night, said that Mr. Balfour, the government leader in the house of commons, had asserted that a sufficiency of steps had been taken by the government, considering the knowledge possessed at the time, but had admitted a full knowledge of the Boer armaments.

Sir Charles declared that he was prepared to ask in the house of commons whether the government had taken sufficient steps—"the right steps in the military situation, with due regard to the facts known at the time."

SIR CHARLES DILKE.

"The language Lord Salisbury employed in parliament," he continued, "constituted an unnecessary menace—the very thing which Mr. Balfour said it was a government's first duty to abstain from—and made war probable. More than this the government is responsible for the fact that at the outset of the war we were without guns enough for one army corps."

Sir Charles criticised the government's "refusal of capable colonial troops, qualified to ride and shoot, and their acceptance, instead of these, of 10,000 imperial yeomanry." Of the latter he said it had been alleged that they were neither good horsemen nor good shots. In his own opinion the yeomanry, he said, probably rode well enough, but there was a very grave doubt as to the shooting capabilities of a large percentage.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 11.—Speaker Myers has named the legislative committees. Upon the house coming to order yesterday the speaker read the committees. Howland of Chelsea is chairman of judiciary. Of the speakership candidates, Mr. Bennett of Saugus retains the chairmanship of agriculture, Mr. Saunders of Boston that of election laws, Mr. Reed of Taunton, although taken completely off railroads, of which he was ranking member, is given the chairmanship of fisheries and game. Mr. Schofield of Malden becomes chairman of state house, a very important committee in view of the extensive improvements to the state house grounds contemplated. Mr. Turtle of Pittsfield gets the chairmanship of railroads, one of the most desirable places under the speaker. The senate committees came in from President Smith. The house drew for seats after the assignment of the members.

Says the Fight Was a Fake.

New York, Jan. 11.—B. B. Odell, chairman of the Republican state committee, declares positively that the Horton boxing law must be repealed at once. In reply to the question: "Have you become convinced that these so-called boxing bouts are brutal?" Mr. Odell exclaimed: "Brutal! No, they are fakes. That is why I think the Horton law should be repealed. The fights are fixed beforehand and the spectators are humbugged. Take for instance the McGovern-Dixon fight. I went to see the fight and I found it was a fake all through. Dixon could have won easily, but the betting was arranged the other way and Dixon tried his best to let himself get hit at every opportunity. There wasn't a stage of the game at which the negro could not have gone in and finished his man, and when I left the club I was satisfied that the Horton law should be repealed immediately."

Russia Has Eyes on Persia.

London, Jan. 11.—The Calcutta correspondent of The Daily Mail says: While the official statement that no alarm is felt concerning Afghanistan is quite true, I have good reason to believe that the Indian government has received disquieting information regarding Russian movements in the direction of Persia. Russia is taking advantage of the Transvaal trouble to strengthen her armaments and to push forward her outposts along the Persian frontier, with a view of ultimate annexation, a design in which Germany would probably acquiesce in consideration of receiving territory concessions.

Extraordinary Treatment of a Guest at the Albany Society's Reunion.

New York, Jan. 11.—The annual reunion of the Albany society of New York, which always brings together a large number of prominent men who in times past hailed from Albany, was held last night at Delmonico's. One hundred and fifty persons were present. Louis Stern presided.

Those down on the list of speakers were Captain Charles Sigsbee, U. S. N.; Lieutenant Governor Woodruff, Justice John Woodward of the supreme court of the state of New York, Professor H. T. Warren, principal of the Albany academy, and George H. Daniels of the New York Central railroad.

After Captain Sigsbee and Lieutenant Governor Woodruff had spoken a sensation took place. Justice Woodward of the supreme court, and a particular friend of Governor Roosevelt, was down to respond to the toast, "The Dutch in Albany and in South Africa." He devoted the first part of his address to the Dutch in Albany and then turned to the Dutch in South Africa. As he continued the guests began to cough and laugh and in other ways annoy the speaker. When he praised the Boers there was an open outbreak of hostilities. Justice Woodward was unable to proceed. One of the guests jumped on his chair and shouted for order.

"The action of some of the members of this society and their treatment of Justice Woodward is utterly contemptible," he shouted. "Justice Woodward is here to speak at the invitation of the society and his subject was agreed upon. If you are gentlemen you will act as such; if not then you ought to be ashamed of yourself."

He sat down, his face flushed with anger, while a minority cheered and others hissed.

Justice Woodward made an ineffectual effort to proceed with his paper, but skipping whole pages he finally said:

"I want to apologize to you for accepting your invitation to speak here tonight. It was understood that I was to be your guest and to speak on the subject I have talked on and to read my address. I seem to have given you offense and I sincerely apologize to you."

Then drawing himself to his full height he thundered: "In closing I want to propose a toast to that grand old statesman, the William the Silent of South Africa, one of the most impressive personalities alive, old Oom Paul Kruger."

There were a few cheers, but Kruger's name was drowned in an avalanche of hisses. Somebody stole up to the orchestra loft and whispered instructions to the leader, and as Justice Woodward took his seat the orchestra broke out with "Tommy Atkins." This made the sympathizers of the British cheer wildly, while the pro-Boer element in turn did some hissing.

Justice Woodward was indignant in the extreme at his treatment. He said he had never in all his years been so treated. He characterized the conduct of his disturbers as un-American.

In the course of the remarks which he made, Judge Woodward said: "Do not let the prosaic nearness of the Boer war blind your eyes to the poetry of their struggle, which is no less grand than that of your own Dutch forefather. Such I think will be the judgment of posterity, for a United States of South Africa will be the inevitable corollary of this conflict as a United States of America was the direct consequence of the injustice of British paramountcy in the 13 colonies."

The judge reviewed the history of the South African trouble, taking the side of the Boers and criticising the action of England. He said of the Boers:

"Their drums are beating the recessional from the appalling decadence that is the tendency of our metropolitan civilization. They stand for the old principles of virtue and honesty—they are armed with the sword of justice and with the armor of righteousness—they are aglow with the ardor of faith and they will win. And their victory will inaugurate a new century and dedicate it to justice and to peace."

To Become a Lecturer.

Chattanooga, Jan. 11.—The circuit court room was thronged with spectators at the closing scenes of the trial of Actress Julia Morrison James, for the murder of Frank Leidenheimer of the "Mr. Plaster of Paris" company, of which they were leading man and lady. When the verdict of not guilty was rendered, a tumult of applause went up from every person, and for 10 minutes it was impossible for the court officers to preserve order. The defendant, with eyes filled with tears, dramatically addressed the jurors, thanking them for the acquittal. She will go on the lecture tour, pointing out the dangers that confront young women on the stage.

Mrs. Starr Backs Down.

New York, Jan. 11.—The hearing of the abandonment case against Colonel John F. Gaynor, which had been pending for several days while Georgia A. Starr, the complainant, who said that she was Mrs. Gaynor, was being examined on a charge of larceny in another court, took place yesterday and the woman withdrew the charge. The case was then dismissed and the defendant discharged.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

Mayor Hall is anxious to have the street watering of the city extended. This is not a seasonable time of the year to talk about sprinkling the streets, yet it will be time to put down the dust before the appropriation is made. Where assessments for street watering are made equitably, as it is possible for cities only to make them, the actual cost of watering is small. We believe abutters would be willing to pay the whole cost by assessment if twice as many miles could be watered.

For many years property owners on many streets have paid in taxes half the cost of watering other streets of the city, but their turn should come some time. Let abutters petition for street watering when a majority are willing to be assessed, and have it understood that the abutters will pay the whole cost. That will be justice to all.

There doesn't seem to be much fighting over the standing committees of the City Council. Why is it? In other cities, in the Legislature, and in Congress, there is always a great squabble and considerable feeling. The fact that in Quincy the Councilmen do not have the expenditure of money is probably one of the principal reasons. This is where the city charter of Quincy is superior to other cities. No junkets are tolerated either; in fact the city does not pay actual and necessary expenses of committees. But then there is the honor.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ In advertising, as in every department of business, simplicity of statement is appreciated by the wise and understood by the ignorant.—Beverly Times.

☞ Retribution does not always come as speedily as it did to the negro down in North Carolina, who stole a hog from a neighbor and then choked to death in attempting to get the animal over the fence.—Beverly Times.

☞ The city of New Haven is to try the experiment of popular loans to secure money needed before the tax assessment is due. The comptroller will offer $50,000 in short notes to run till Sept. 1 and be redeemable with four per cent. annual interest at that time. The notes will be issued in denominations of $100 and if successful the loan will be greatly increased. The city has been forced to make this experiment in view of the higher rates asked by banks for loans and the result will be watched with much interest by other municipalities which are obliged to wait seven or eight months for the annual taxes.—Newport News.

☞ Our summer travel industry which for many years has been upon the increase is now of great magnitude and there are indications of a great and unusual gain to our state from this source for the coming year. In many localities the past season had hardly close before enlargements and better facilities for 1900 were under way. We expect to do a business next season of from $12,000,000 to $14,000,000 in this line alone. Humming spindles and summer boarders make home markets for the farm products, so our farmers are also to be happy for one coming year. You will hear from the old Granite State more than once during 1900.—Gov. Rollins of New Hampshire.

THREE FIRE ALARMS.

Two Small Blazes Were Quickly Extinguished.

The Third fron Box 171, Was a False Alarm.

It Looks as If 1900 was to Down the 1898 Record.

The firemen were kept busy last night, being called out to answer alarms from Boxes 26, 35 and 171. In no case did the fires prove serious, although in the two first cases they might have been serious but for the earliness of the hour and the promptness of their discovery.

Box 26 was sounded at 5.48 and was for a fire in a small building in the rear of T. Walter Good's blacksmith shop on Granite street, and used by him as a store house. The belief is that it must have started from spontaneous combustion. When the department arrived, the interior was burning in good shape, but a well directed stream supplemented by chemicals soon had it out. The loss will not exceed $25.

Just an hour later, at 6.48, Box 35 was sounded. This was for a fire in the basement of the L of the T. A. Whicher house on Hancock street. The house is at present occupied by Clayman, the Hebrew junk dealer. In this basement he had stored fully a ton of old paper and in some way a fire started among them. It was a hot blaze and burned a hole through the floor before it was extinguished. The only way of reaching this basement was through a window in the cellar wall. Through this the firemen crawled and after the fire was out they took hold and cleaned the cellar out for Clayman. The loss will be slight.

After this fire there was a rest until 4.30 A. M. when an alarm from Box 171 sent the apparatus hurrying down Elm street. Upon arriving at the box no fire was found, and it was evidently a case of false alarm. This is the second time recently that a false alarm has been sounded from this box, and it is safe to say that if the party is caught he will have a good warm place in Dedham to pass the remainder of the winter and coming summer months.

Have you ever Considered that right at your very door in the good old city of Quincy lies your golden opportunity to make money on a safe and reliable investment. In less than eighteen months I have sold over thirty thousand dollars worth of this land, and four modern up-to-date houses have been built on the land and sold at prices ranging from twenty-eight hundred to five thousand dollars.

ORGAN RECITAL.

A large audience greeted Mr. John D. Buckingham and Master George Packard at Christ church, Wednesday evening, and enjoyed a rich musical treat. Mr. Buckingham has been a resident of Quincy for a few years, and is organist and choir-master at St. Michael's Catholic church at Providence, R. I., also director of music at the Woodward Institute in this city. It was his first recital, and he introduced composers not commonly known, but which permitted great variety. Most of composers are or were prominent organists and included Dutch, French, English, Belgians and others. Mr. Buckingham was in sympathy with the various composers, and made the organ talk as it never has before. The organ numbers were:

Sonata,—D minor.	Van Eyken
a. Allegro risoluto.
b. Adagio.
c. Allegro vivace.
Offertory on two Christmas Hymns—	B Guilmant
Assyrian March,—D.	Botting
Toccata,—G.	Dubois
Prelude,—E.	Dethier
Elegie, } A.	Dethier
Finale, } E.	Callaerts
Pastorial Cantilena,—A minor.	Grison
Offertoire de St. Cecilia,—F.	Batiste

Master George Packard, soprano of Emmanuel church, Boston, sang two solos during the above programme, the first time a double number. He is certainly a talented boy and the audience would have been pleased to hear more from him. His selections were:

Soprano Solo, a. "Yea, the Sparrow!"	O. King
b. Selected.
Soprano Solo,—"Noel.'	Chas. Gounod

MEDALS PRESENTED.

Andrew A. Garbutt, a popular member of Co. K, of the Fifth Massachusetts, U. S. Volunteers, in the late Spanish war, was one of the recipients of bronze medals presented by the town of Revere Wednesday evening, in appreciation of the patriotism which prompted its young men to enlist. Twenty-three medals in all were presented and the ceremony will long be remembered by the recipients and the large number of townspeople who assembled.

In the list were six members of the Fifth regiment, seven of the Ninth, and several who served in the navy and regular army.

A Boston paper says: "The action of the town will probably cause other cities and towns throughout the country to emulate the example. The proposition to present the volunteers from the town with medals was introduced at a town meeting some time ago, and was successfully carried through. A committee was appointed at that time to carry on the work, secure a design for the medals, and also to prepare the names of the volunteers in the last war and the volunteers from the town in the Civil War, and have them placed on tablets to be placed in the new Town Hall as a lasting memento to the patriotism of the townsmen who enlisted.

Unitarian Supper.

The first of the monthly suppers and socials of the First Unitarian society was held on Wednesday evening, and was one of the most successful gatherings of the kind ever held by the society. The supper was in charge of the ladies of church whose names begin with A, B, C, D, E, and there was an abundance of good thing. Cold meats, potato and cabbage salads, baked beans and brown bread, all kinds of cake and pies and the most delicious coffee satisfied the inner man and put every one in the best of spirits. A social hour was passed after supper and every one enjoyed themselves in an informal social way.

MR. NASH REELECTED

The annual meeting and banquet of the Old Colony Grocers' Association was held Wednesday at the United States Hotel, Boston. The guest of honor on this occasion was Mr. Scherer of Cleveland, O., President of the National Grocers and Provision Dealers' Association, who was tendered a reception in the hotel parlors from 2 to 3.30 o'clock.

Following this came the business meeting at which ex-Councilman John W. Nash of Quincy was reelected president of the Association.

Mr. Nash was also elected a delegate to the National convention which will be held at Cleveland, O., Jan. 16, 17 and 18.

Following the business meeting came the annual banquet, to which about eighty sat down. This required an hour or more and then came the post prandial exercises.

President Nash made a capital toastmaster and "in opening the ball" read an interesting review of the Old Colony Association from the time of its inspiration to date. The paper was an interesting one and was listened to with marked attention, and at its conclusion President Nash received many congratulations for the thoroughness in which he had gone into the subject.

Other speakers were President Scherer of the National Association, Mr. Dowse of the New England Grocer, Col. Floyd, Rev. Mr. Baker, Joseph W. Johnson and other members of the Old Colony Association.

Boys in Trouble.

Officer Barry apprehended three young boys Wednesday afternoon while in the act of disposing of a lot of brass faucets and couplings to Abel D. Brown, at the latter's place on Hancock street. Brown bought the stuff by weight and did not pay anything near what the property was worth. The faucets and couplings were new and evidently had never been used, although the boys had battered them somewhat in their efforts to erase the name of V. J. Emery, which had been stamped upon them. When the boys obtained the goods is not known, although they doubtless did not come by them honestly. The boys will be summoned into court next Thursday. The three boys, who belong in Wollaston, were: Robert Barton, aged 13 years; Lawrence White, aged 10 years; and Edward Crotty, aged 14 years.

No Norfolk County Man on Sixteen Committees.

Representative Sheppard Drew One of the Coveted Prizes.

The Committees of Legislature were announced Wednesday afternoon, and it will be of interest to learn how the Norfolk County men were placed.

As announced in the three o'clock edition of the Daily Ledger on Wednesday, Representative Eben W. Sheppard of Quincy drew one of the coveted prizes, being appointed on the important joint committee on Railroads.

Representative Sprague, who was for Bennett for speaker, secured only a consolation prize, an appointment on the Committee on Fisheries and Game, but this will give him more time to take an active part in the legislative proceedings and we shall expect to see him among the foremost in debate, and a candidate for Speaker next year.

Senator B. H. Woodsum of Braintree is chairman of two committees—Manufactures and Public service, and is also second on the committee on Water Supply.

The other Norfolk County Senator, Frank A. Fales of Norwood, is chairman of the committee on Printing, and also on the committees on Roads and Bridges, Public Service and State House.

Representative E. W. Hunt of the Braintree—Weymouth district is on Insurance, and also on Towns.

Representative John B. Whelan, also of the above district, is third on committee on Banks and Banking.

Representative S. J. Spear of Medfield is on Harbors and Public Lands.

Representative L. L. Burrington of Franklin is the only Norfolk County Representative appointed to a chairmanship, that on Education. He will also serve on Parishes.

Representative Arthur Clark of Dedham, is another Norfolk County man on the Committee on Education.

Representatives B.C. Dean of Brookline and George R. R. Rivers of Milton will not serve on joint committees, but are both on the important House Committee on Ways and Means.

Representative Walter S. Weston of Hyde Park is another Norfolk County man on Railroads.

The Legislature has 33 joint standing committees, and it will be seen that Norfolk County is represented on but 17, a bare majority. Our two Senators, are together on one committee, and in all will serve on six different committees. Our Representative will not serve in any case on the same committees as our Senators, so that 11 other standing committees have Norfolk Representatives.

The committees on which Norfolk county is not represented either in the Senate or House are: Agriculture, Cities, Constitutional Amendments, Counties, Drainage, Election Laws, Federal Relations, Labor, Libraries, Liquor Laws, Mercantile Affairs, Metropolitan Affairs, Military Affairs, Prisons, Probate and Insolvency, Public Charitable Institutions, and Taxation.

The Norfolk County Representatives, and the Quincy members in particular should therefore watch matters before the above named committees in which the county and city are interested, especially Metropolitan Affairs, Labor, Liquor Laws, Taxation, etc.

An illuminated bird's nest is to be met with in India. The baya bird of that country spends his spare time catching mammoth fire-flies, which he fastens to the sides of his nest with moist clay. On a dark night a baya's nest is said to look like an electric street lamp.

The vitality of the snail is remarkable. One that was glued to a card in the British museum for four years came to life upon being immersed in warm water. Some specimens in the collection of a naturalist revived after they had apparently been dead for 15 years.

The term halfpence is probably derived from the circumstance that until the time of Edward I, the penny was struck with a cross so deeply sunk into it that it might, if required, be easily broken into halves and quarters; hence also the term of farthings or quadrantes.

CITY vs RAILROAD.

"Popular Charter."

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Next Monday is the regular meeting day, and I wonder if the self opinionated member still continues to adhere to his proclamation of the last meeting of the last Council, that Coddington street was in no condition to permit the laying of Railroad tracks. I wonder how the declaration of Mayor Hall sets upon his stomach, when the Mayor comes out flat footed for justice and fairness all over the City of Quincy, not excepting Houghs Neck.

I wonder why this brainy city father did not ask some kindergarten pupil as to the condition of Coddington street, before making such a "break," to the detriment of Houghs Neck, and to the apparent interest of the Railroad Company.

I wonder if this self constituted expert who is now turning back somersaults in his endeavor to obtain political favor intends to continue to antagonize everything that does not bear the unadulterated, Simon-pure approval of his lordship.

I think, Mr. Editor, it would be a good thing for some of the Councilmen to form a compact, and pass a resolution to this effect:

That a perpetual concession be granted to the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company, to have the uninterrupted use of all the streets and by-ways, throughout the City of Quincy.

That the City of Quincy shall appoint a committee of its honored Councilmen, and for which the city shall pay a liberal salary, and that said committee shall be under the direct control of the street railway companies.

That it shall be the duty of the committee to obey all requests, at any and all times, for locations.

And in consideration of the valuable services rendered by the Railroad Corporation, the City of Quincy shall pay all the running expenses of the said corporation, including a liberal salary to the head officer of the said Railroad Corporation.

And it shall be the duty of the city to exempt the said Railroad Corporation from any and all taxes upon its personal or real estate.

That the said Railroad Corporation shall select its employes, uniforms, including the brass buttons, and that the city, out of its treasury, shall pay the bill for the same upon presentation.

That the city shall at all times remove snow and mud from the streets through which the cars pass.

That all repairs becoming necessary hereafter, either upon the tracks, roadbed, or upon the cars, shall be paid for out of the city treasury.

That the city shall assume all suits for damages, arising from neglect or accident of the said Railroad Corporation.

And in further consideration, the city shall furnish free coffee and lunches to the employes of the road, shall furnish automobiles and other means of conveyance to the officers of the corporation, and shall annually invite the railroad officials to a clambake, not omitting the "punch."

All of the above shall be paid for out of the city treasury, and the City Council shall annually pass a vote of thanks to the Railroad Corporation, for the courteous acceptance of the above bounties, and others to be had.

This I think would be a popular concession. I think there is a certain element in Quincy who would jump at this, as a "good thing."

I think if more of the Councilmen were built on the broad gauge principle, and looked at the city as a whole, instead of the pernicious habit of wearing smoked glasses when looking at the wants and necessities of other wards and their requirements, there would be less contention, and more of Boston's solid business men would come to Quincy, and make it their home.

Moral. Never employ a dentist to shoe your horse, or a blacksmith to fix your teeth.

When will the railroad run to Houghs Neck?

The people of Houghs Neck cry out aloud—"Why is the railroad monopoly allowed to continue to hold its franchise, in strict violation to law.

Law says they shall—they say they won't. Houghs Neck.

One of the most eccentric church spires is that of the parish church (All Saints) of Chesterfield, with its curious spire, 228 feet high, and 64 feet off the perpendicular. Which ever way the observer looks at this curious spire it appears to bulge out in that direction.

Stephen Mayberry of Windham, Me. built a protection for eve swallows under the roof shingles of his barn. The result is there are 130 nests there. It is estimated that these swallows catch daily 6000 grubs. Mr. Mayberry has no flies in his house as long as the swallows remain.

The supper and entertainment given by the Benevolent Society of Memorial Congregational church on Wednesday afternoon and evening was in good hands and its success was not surprising. Those on the supper committee were Mrs. Roger H. Wilde, Mrs. Walter P. Hill, Mrs. William Gassett, Mrs. Charles Hallock and Mrs. James Curtin.

Miss Bertha Cherrington of Boston, who has gained unlimited praise by her command of the piano, gave several brilliant selections. Miss Hall and Mr. William Gassett, both members of the church choir, sang two duets, which proved their talent for spirited music, as well as sacred renderings. Miss Susie Hall soprano in the church choir, sang a solo which was roundly encored. It is hoped that those in whose charge the next supper is given will come to the front and meet with as rich a reward for their labor as did their predecessors.

☞Congressman Fitzgerald has seen a new and a very bright light. "Democrats," he says, "are making a mistake in opposing expansion, and for the very good reason that trade follows the stars and stripes in the Philippines." Mr. Fitzgerald always was a close student of events, and he has made no mistake this time. Three cheers and a tiger for the newest convert to the doctrine so ably set forth by President McKinley, Johnny Fitz may even become a good Republican in time. Who knows—Haverhill Gazette.

The first thing which strikes the traveler in China upon his entrance into any of the many cities of the Celestial empire is the strings of dried mice which hang from the roofs of the houses suspended by their tails, just as sausages are hung in front of butcher shops in France.

The Chinese hunt these mice with a long, sharp pointed knife, which they plunge into the animals' throats. Then the mice are suspended by the tails until the blood has dripped out, when they are skinned, drawn and smoked.

Another favorite dish with the Chinese is dogs' feet. The feet of black dogs are considered more of a delicacy than those of any other color, and white dogs are rejected as being tasteless. Dogs' fat, prepared in a special manner, is looked upon as a repast fit for a king.

Going to Bed In India.

Going to bed in India is a very different process from going to bed at home. To begin with, it is a far less formal process. There is no shutting the door, no cutting yourself off from the outer world, no going up stairs and finally no getting into bed. You merely lie down on your bed, which, with its bedding, is so simple as to be worth describing. The bed is a wooden frame with webbing laced across it, and each bed has a thin cotton mattress. Over this one sheet is spread, and two pillows go to each bed. That's all!—Scottish American.

It Still Worked.

"No," she answered coldly, "I cannot marry a man who carries a rabbit's foot for luck."

For a moment he contemplated her in intense silence, but only for a moment.

"Who," he exclaimed, "now can doubt the efficacy of the rabbit's foot after this?"

A FATAL PRECEDENT.

Hedged In by Many Difficulties of Execution.

Food Not Considered Contraband of War Unless It Is Intended For the Enemy.

London, Jan. 11.—The release of the seized American flour cargoes, together with the statement of the attitude of the British government on the subject of food as contraband, is of surpassing importance. If correctly stated, the British government holds "foodstuffs are not contraband of war unless intended for the enemy."

The foreign office only arrived at a decision yesterday, and it was not until after Mr. Choate's interview had ended that a note embodying the provisions was drawn up. Several of the government's advisers wanted to make a regulation regarding canned goods, but this was decided to be unpracticable.

The decision to make flour and grain in transit to the enemy contraband is evidently hedged in by many difficulties of execution. But the foreign office believes that investigation will generally determine whether the grain is really meant for consumption at Lorenzo Marquez or in the Transvaal.

Mr. Choate cabled Lord Salisbury's note to the state department at Washington last night, and Secretary Hay is expected to reply accepting the terms. The latter step was not taken by Mr. Choate, as he had first to receive authority from the state department to do so.

If the above accurately outlines England's policy as regards food in war times, it is pointed out that it may prove a terrible boomerang to her later. Her once safeguard in the event of a continental coalition against her, her one guarantee against starvation, would be her assurance that ample food supplies could reach her from the United States under our neutral flag. In a quite conceivable conjuncture it might become for England a matter of life and death to see upheld the principle, first, that free ships make free goods, and, secondly, that food is not a contraband of war.

It is true that during the first 15 years of this century England invariably treated food as contraband, but neither she nor any other country has done so since the promulgation of the treaty of Paris. No doubt, the food which keeps a soldier alive is quite as indispensable to him as the rifle with which he fires or the cartridge with which he loads it. It was upon this theory that during her wars against the French republic and empire England tried to starve out the French.

Now, however, the situation is altered. France and Germany are well-nigh self-supporting as regards food supplies, and Russia actually has a surplus of them for export. England, on the contrary, depends upon outsiders for a great preponderance of the food she needs. It is, doubtless, possible, just now, that the food supplies of the Transvaal and Orange Free State are growing short, but the Boers are still incomparably better off from this point of view than the inhabitants of Great Britain would be in the course of a few weeks after the outbreak of a war with continental powers, in case the shipment of grain from the United States were stopped, on the ground either that free ships do not make free goods, or that food must be considered contraband of war.

It was impossible for the British foreign office to defend the seizure of American flour, except upon one of two assumptions: First, that the principle that free ships make free goods is not applicable to the United States, because we did not sign the treaty of Paris, and must therefore fall back on the the terms of an agreement concluded by us with England in 1794; or, secondly, that food ought to be treated as contraband of war. Either assumption would be an egregious blunder on the part of a country, which, in event of a war with the continental powers, would be mainly dependent for its food supplies on neutral powers. If England cannot defeat the Boers without establishing such a fatal precedent, says a diplomat, it would be better for her future security to recall her soldiers from South Africa, and acknowledge the absolute independence of the Transvaal.

President Whitman Resigns.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Rev. Benaiah Whitman, the president of Columbian university, yesterday tendered his resignation at a meeting of the board of trustees, to accept the pastorate of Calvary Baptist church, Philadelphia. Dr. Whitman will remain with the university until the close of the present academic year. His action came as a complete surprise to a majority of the trustees.

Arrest In Shooting Case.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 11.—The police are now of the opinion that they have in Charles Brackett, day engineer at Beckett's brewery, the man who shot George Morris, the night watchman. He is held, pending an investigation. He has made some very peculiar statements, and has been caught in many falsehoods. Physicians believe that there is a fair chance for Morris' recovery.

Revolution In Full Swing.

Kingston, Jam., Jan. 11.—Colombian advices announce that the revolution in that republic is now thoroughly organized and uniformly successful in the interior. The censorship is so rigid and direct communication with the coast is so interrupted that no authentic details regarding the actual situation are known. Business, consequently, is paralyzed along the coast.

REFUTES CRITICISM OF TREASURY.

National City Bank Matter and Custom House Transfer Explained by Gage.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Secretary Gage's answer to the resolutions of inquiry sent to him by both house and senate chiefs regarding the relations of the treasury and the National City bank of New York was sent to the Capitol yesterday.

The secretary's answer to the main question is very simple. The National City bank, so far from receiving any favors at his hands in connection with the distribution of the receipts of internal revenue, has been actually left considerably in the lurch, although the first and largest depositors of bonds. The treasury took that course because, as the bank was to be the general depository, it was deemed wise to make sure of the balance being always in favor of the government.

As to the payment made by the bank on account of the purchase price of the old custom house building and the deposit of this cheque with the bank itself, the deposit was as abundantly covered by bond security as any of the other government deposits. The point that the money was not first put into the treasury falls to the ground in the light of the comptroller's decisions and precedent showing that in all cases except receipts from customs money is constructively in the treasury as soon as it passes under the control of the treasurer of the United States and he assumes responsibility for it. It does not need to go physically into the underground vaults of the treasury building. This was the case with the payment made on purchase account by the City bank and the redeposit in the bank was as much a matter of discretion with the treasury authorities as their deposits of internal revenue receipts, against the legality of which nobody has thought of raising a question.

The text of his reply, which is an exhaustive exposition of the management of that branch of the treasury finances under his administration relating to national bank depositories, contains about 9000 words, which is supplemented by special reports from department officials relative to special inquiries in the resolutions, including copies of over 1000 letters on the subject under consideration.

Beautiful and impressive tributes were paid by the senate yesterday to the memory of the late Vice President Hobart. His intimate personal relations with many senators and his close official affiliation with all of them rendered his death a distinct loss to every member of the body, as well as to the country.

Personal friends and associates and party friends joined in paying such sincere and eloquent tributes to the memory of Mr. Hobart, to his character and public services as have been seldom paid to any public man. Addresses were delivered by Senators Sewall, Keane, Daniel, Depew, Cockrell, Cullom, Davis, Morgan, Chandler, Lodge, Caffery and Allen.

Miscellaneous business of minor importance occupied the attention of the house until 1 o'clock, after which an hour was devoted to eulogies upon the life and public services of the late Representative Green of Nebraska. The house then adjourned until Friday.

Senator From Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 11.—The two houses met in joint session yesterday to compare the ballots of the United States senator taken by each house in separate session. Speaker Trimble announced that comparisons of the journals showed that Blackburn had received a majority and declared him elected.

GAVE BUT LITTLE SATISFACTION.

Miss Miller Says She Cannot Indentify the Man to Whom She Sold a Bottle Holder.

New York, Jan. 11.—In the Molineux trial yesterday Miss Emma E. Miller, an employe of Hartdegan & Co., Newark, was called. She was shown the silver bottle holder in the case and identified it as the one she had sold on Dec. 21, 1898. She said she had made a note of the date.

Miss Miller is the only person believed to have met the murderer face to face, and she repeatedly declared, in answer to questions, that Molineux was not the man who bought the silver bottle-holder from her. The witness was at times indignant and angry; at times in tears and an unwilling witness.

Even when the recorder questioned Miss Miller in fatherly fashion, she did not completely recover her good nature. She told the recorder that, in her present state of mind, she did not think she could identify her customer even though he were brought before her. When the recorder inquired how it was that, under these circumstances, she was able to say positively that the defendant was not the man, the witness replied: "It is easier to say that a man was not the one than it would be to identify the real man." She was asked regarding the hour when she made the sale, and the lighting of the room, and discrepancies were shown between her statements in court and statements made to newspaper men at the time of the poisoning of Mrs. Adams.

Mr. Osborne drew from the witness the admission that one newspaper had paid her $125 for a typewritten statement of what she remembered about the affair. She claimed that the man who bought the bottle-holder from her was of gentlemanly appearance, slight build, sandy beard and light complexion. Molineux is beardless and dark complexioned. He appeared more troubled during the examination of Miss Miller than ever before. The witness gave Mr. Osborne a withering glance as she left the court room.

Among the other witnesses yesterday were Charles Jacobs, in whose name the letter inquiring with reference to A. A. Harpster was written to Frederick Stearns & Co., of Detroit, and Gustav Kutnow, of the firm of Kutnow Bros., who explained that the Kutnow powders were a sort of artificial Carlsbad salts. John C. Emery, receiving teller of the Second National bank, and Charles H. Wessels, paying teller of the Chemical National bank, of this city, practical handwriting experts, testified that the admitted Molineux letters and the address on the poison package were written by the same individual. Testimony of other witnesses was unimportant.

Threw Lighted Lamp.

Boston, Jan. 11.—By the breaking of a lighted kerosene lamp, which the police say was thrown by Mrs. Emma Allen at Miss Jane Cowell, a visitor at the former's house, the Cowell woman and Mrs. Allen's husband, William, were so badly burned that they were sent to a hospital, although their burns are not fatal. Patrolman McDonough went to Miss Cowell's assistance, and had nearly all his clothes burned off, but succeeded in smothering the flames before they had caused much damage to the building. It is said that the Cowell woman and Mrs. Allen got into a dispute, which ended in the latter picking up a lighted lamp and hurling it at her visitor. Mrs. Allen was locked up on the charge of assault. All the persons are colored.

Prayer For Protection of Friendship.

Stettin, Jan. 11.—The Hamburg-American line steamer Deutschland was successfully launched at the Vulkan dock yard yesterday in the presence of Emperor William and many notable people. The minister of foreign affairs, Count Von Buelow, christened the vessel. After breaking a bottle of champagne across the steamer's bows Count Von Buelow said: "God bless and protect this ship. Protect the friendship and commerce between us and the United States." This statement was greeted with hearty applause. The Deutschland is a twin screw, 16,000-ton vessel, with engines of 35,000 horse power, and guaranteed to have a speed of 23 knots.

Probably Crazed by Poverty.

McPherson, Kan., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Joseph Christie last night cut the throats of her two children, both under 6 years old, then cut her own throat and set fire to the house. The children died at once, and Mrs. Christie died soon afterwards. On Monday her husband was arrested for drunkenness, and is now in jail because he could not pay his fine. He is a laborer, and has not been working steadily. It is supposed that worry over the family's condition led the woman to commit the deed.

Wants Cullom's Seat.

Springfield, Ills., Jan. 11.—The state register says: Governor Tanner yesterday confirmed the report that he was a candidate for United States senator against Senator Cullom to numerous local political callers who visited the governor's office and executive mansion. All the day and evening he spent in conferring with his local lieutenants. Both Cullom and Tanner will endeavor to secure the endorsement of the Sangamon county Republican committee.

Charged With Criminal Assault.

Franklin Falls, N. H., Jan. 11.—Elwin A. Blake, aged 28, was arraigned here yesterday on the charge of attempting a criminal assault on a girl 11 years old. He pleaded not guilty, but was ordered to furnish $1000 bonds for his appearance before the supreme court. Blake is married.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

Rain or snow has fallen in the lake regions and north Atlantic states. Since last Thursday, weather conditions in the northern United States have changed very rapidly, the high and low pressure areas following each other with a velocity of about 40 miles an hour. The storm in the west gulf has developed in intensity during the past 24 hours, and will probably move in a northerly direction. The weather will continue fair in the New England states, with a fall in temperature. Storm signals are displayed from Block Island to Eastport. Cold wave signals are displayed in New England, except at New Haven.

Ought They to Marry

And bring children into the world to suffer from an inherited blood taint? People do not realize that foul blood may lurk under a fair skin, and that the fire smoldering in the blood of the parent may break into flame in the flesh of the child. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery puts out the smoldering fires of scrofula. It cleanses the blood from disease taints, strengthens the weak lungs, heals the diseased stomach.

"Dr. Pierce's medicine has done wonders for my two sons," writes Mrs. M. Hartrick, of Demster, Oswego Co., N. Y. "Both had scrofula. I have lost two daughters in less than five years with consumption and scrofula. My eldest son was taken two or three years ago with hemorrhage from the lungs. It troubled him for over a year. He took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and has not had one in over a year. My younger son had scrofulous sores on his neck; but has not had any since he commenced to take your medicine."

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

MADE FOR THE DOORS,

Rigged Up With an Alarm Clock and an Iron Pipe.

Probable That "Infernal Machine" Did Its Work Ahead of Time.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 12.—As the orchestra at the symphony concert in Sanders theater at Harvard last night was playing the "Thunder Storm" in Beethoven's pastoral, there was an explosion in the hall which shook the building and filled the place with smoke, all but causing a panic.

It not only put a sudden end to the concert, but for a few minutes, by reason of the panic which followed, threatened the lives of many in the rush for the doors. Fortunately, through the efficient action of a number of cool headed men, the turmoil was calmed and the audience left quietly, although considerably excited. As an alarm clock was found attached to the remnants of the bomb, the college authorities believe the whole affair was intended as a joke on the history class, and that it exploded 12 hours ahead of time.

The concert, which was one of the regular series under the direction of Mr. Gericke, was nearing the end, and the audience, made up of the most select in Cambridge, as well as the college circles, was intently enjoying one of the beautiful movements of Beethoven's pastoral symphony, when there came a jar and a crash from the little closet at the side of the stage that was heard all over the hall. Almost immediately after smoke began to pour from the cracks in the door, so that the audience, already badly frightened at the report, became almost frantic and a rush was made for the two doors. The orchestra, of course, had stopped playing, and some of the members joined in the rush for the exits. The concert was at an end, no attempt being made to complete the symphony, but an investigation was at once begun in the closet. What little there was of fire inside was easily extinguished and then the remains of an alarm clock, together with what appeared to be pieces of an iron pipe, were found scattered about.

By this time the janitor arrived and brought with him a very tangible theory as to the intention of the authors of the "infernal machine." He stated that during the afternoon he found a satchel beneath one of the seats, and thinking that it belonged to one of the students he put it in the closet.

The hands of the alarm clock had stopped at 9:20, and it is thought by the college authorities that some one put the bomb in the theater with the idea of throwing the history class, which would meet there in the morning, into confusion. A detective, however, was immediately engaged and will investigate the affair.

The explosion and the incipient panic caused a tremendous sensation throughout the college and about the city, and for a while all sorts of rumors of a vastly improbable nature were flying about. It is generally conceded that it was a student's joke, but intended for his fellow collegians rather than for a sober and sedate symphony audience.

THE WORK OF CENSORS

Prevents Facts Concerning the War Being Transmitted by Mail.

Transportation Is a Serious Question For British.

Report That War Office Has Decided to Fall Back Upon Expanding Bullets.

London, Jan. 12.—The newspapers were reconciled during the early days of the war to cable censorship, taking it for granted that full narratives sent by mail would supply all deficiencies. For some weeks, however, even the mail correspondence that has arrived in London has shown signs of habitual scissoring by the censor. Pages are renumbered without chronological or logical connection, leaving the happenings described quite unintelligible in many cases. The editors, acting possibly in concert, are laying these facts before the public and insisting that they be permitted to know and to print the facts. The Daily Mail formally accuses the war office of "doctoring" in editing official dispatches before their issuance and cites particulars. The Daily Chronicle avers that there seems to be an official conspiracy against letting the truth be known.

Although the number of deaths from dysentery and entric fever at Ladysmith have been published by the war office since Saturday's fight, nothing has been given out regarding the losses in the engagement. The war office asserts that it has nothing to give out.

Arm-chair critics, who, in the absence of reportorial or official descriptions from the seat of war, pour forth pages of conjecture and opinion, conclude that not much is to be expected of the British hosts in South Africa until Lord Roberts shall have had plenty of time to think and fresh levies shall have arrived. Time is working now for the Boers. Each day makes more difficult the three beleagured positions.

Lord Roberts finds his troops on the defensive from the Tugela to the Modder if the scant dispatches available speak the truth. From Buller's camp continue to come hints of a movement impending, but the inactivity of his troops on Saturday, when Ladysmith was in extremity, and the fact of Lord Roberts' arrival, seem to negative action until such time as the new commander-in-chief shall have looked over the ground. If White should be again assaulted and "hard pressed" Buller may move, hoping to avail himself of the opportunity he failed to take Saturday, when the Boer lines on the Tugela were weakened for the assault on Ladysmith.

The clamor against the government continues in England, but until the reassembling of parliament it can result in little else than talk.

A matter on which absolute silence is maintained is the extent to which the horse sickness is ravaging among the animals with the British army south of the Tugela. It is some weeks since glanders and the rinderpest were said to be causing great losses of horses, and there is certainly some such cause at work to prevent more active operations on the part of General Buller than he has appeared disposed to undertake since his repulse at Colenso, three weeks ago. The calls that are being made upon India to supply horses prove that both the cavalry and artillery, as well as the transport service, is in urgent need of animals, which would explain the inadequate efforts made to reach Ladysmith.

It is this question of transport that is going to be the gravest which the British will have to face, and that may be decisive of the campaign, particularly as this and next month are the two worst in the season for the horse sickness.

While a good deal of criticism is being wasted on the strategy and tactics of the generals, no one seems to have pointed out the neglect of the transport service in the British army as one of the main causes of its present troubles. Two army corps, on paper, were said to be always ready to embark for foreign service quicker than the shipping could be provided for them, but in no case during the past 50 years has a British army gone into the field with an adequate transport service. It always had to be improvised at the last moment at an enormous cost, was invariably inefficient, and generally failed at a critical moment. The fault, perhaps, is not in the men of today at the head of the war department, but in the system sanctioned by parliament, under which one of the most incompetent chiefs it has almost ever had was allowed to remain for a long series of years at the head of the army, because he was a relative of the sovereign.

Lee-Metford cartridges are running short in the British magazines, and, according to a semi-official report, the war office purposes to fall back temporarily upon 100,000,000 "Mark IV" expanding bullets, most of which are already in storage in South Africa. The war office, however, has issued a strict order to volunteers that the 50 rounds of "Mark IV" given them must not be used in practice at home. After the public announcement that no such bullet would be used in this war, its employment, The Daily Chronicle thinks, would be a serious breach of faith, especially as the British commanders have complained that the Boers occasionally use such projectiles.

The Daily Mail says: We learn that in the attack on Ladysmith last Saturday, Jan. 6, the British losses were 14 officers killed, 34 wounded and over 300 non-commissioned officers and men killed or wounded. The Boer losses, we hear, are estimated at between 2000 and 3000.

Inspection of travellers bound for the Transvaal is revived at Lorenzo Marquez under an old law. No one will be allowed to proceed unless he declares before his consul that he has no intention of fighting for the Boers.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 12.—Senate, house and governor's council met yesterday at 2 o'clock, and, in addition to the interest in their proceedings there was plenty of suppressed curiosity as to the possible action of the so-called anti-Myers men—that is, the men whose committee assignments displease them. No action was taken in the conference of Republican members, however, and it was adjourned until after the session.

Governor Crane appointed Frederick Lawton of Lowell to succeed Judge Lilley.

In the house Mr. Carey offered a resolution providing for the purchase of the Boston and Albany railroad by the state. A bill to authorize a state appropriation for the support of public schools was taken from the files.

Mr. Mellen spoke at length on an order which he offered, and which was laid on the table, providing that the Boston and Albany railroad be requested to furnish the general court with a copy of the lease and contracts to which allusion is made in their petition. Mr. McNary offered an amendment to include all the papers in the case. The order, as amended, was adopted.

Agreement Knocked Out

Boston, Jan. 12.—The organization of the common council, which has been a matter of contention since the new year came in, was finally effected last night, and Daniel J. Kiley will be the president for the coming year. Although the Republican members voted to support his candidacy, it was with the tacit understanding that all proceedings of previous meetings of this year's council, including the one at which Mr. Kiley took the chair and declared his own election after the temporary president had adjourned the meeting, should be expunged from the records, and that a fresh start should be made. The latter arrangement, however, when it came to a vote, was negatived, and the records of the previous meetings were approved. The proceedings of the session at which Mr. Kiley declared his own election were thus ratified, and all necessity for another election done away with. The proceedings were entirely devoid of excitement, and the council was in session less than an hour.

Praised Roosevelt and Walcott.

Boston, Jan. 12.—The Civil Service Reform association of Boston held its annual meeting last night. The attendance was large. R. H. Dana, the principal speaker, described at length the present state of civil service reform. He was very complimentary to the work of Governor Roosevelt and former Governor Wolcott.

The Albany's Endurance Test.

Newcastle, Eng., Jan. 12.—The new United States cruiser Albany, which was given an official trial off this port Jan. 9, completed her endurance trial yesterday, consisting of a continuous run of six hours under natural draught. The test was very successful. The ship behaved well in a heavy sea.

Burglar Struck Wrong House.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 12.—Marion and Lena Josselyn, daughters of a manufacturer of this city, nabbed a burglar in their home yesterday. They locked both the back and the front doors and then called the hostler and the police. Before the police arrived they cornered the burglar in the attic and took away from him the money and jewelry that he had stolen. When the police arrived they recognized the offender to be Peter Bizondier, a criminal over whose head a five years' sentence is hanging.

The Fight Against Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 12.—The Republican leaders, while not abandoning the fight against Goebel in the legislature, are eagerly awaiting news from Washington as to what aid the federal government would give the Taylor administration in the event Goebel is seated by the legislature. The Republican leaders are advising Governor Taylor to resist in case the legislature decides in favor of Goebel, and that they are promising support to him is generally admitted.

Two Arrests in Assault Case.

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 12.—Daniel J. Woodin, father-in-law of Brackett, who is held on suspicion of being the assailant of Night Watchman Morris, has been arrested, and is being held, pending an investigation. The condition of Morris is much improved. The physicians say he has an even chance for recovery.

New Cotton Mill in Karheel State.

Charlotte, N. C., Jan. 12.—Preparations are being made at Mascania for the erection of a cotton mill to cost $1,000,000. A mill engineer from Boston began a survey of the site yesterday preparatory to drawing plans for the buildings. Work will begin on the plant as soon as the weather will permit.

Good Afternoon.

"Warren," who writes today concerning the inspection of plumbing, fails to keep in mind the fact that the Inspector of Plumbing in Quincy has been appointed for life. It is not an annual appointment, as in case of the department officials. As a famous receipt for cooking fish reads: "First get your fish," so in this case, it is necessary first to have a vacancy. Attempts to create a vacancy in the past have been unsuccessful, although charges have been preferred annually for two or three years.

If Mayor Hall and the City Council devote their energies this year to prevent the pollution of the Quincy shores by Metropolitan sewerage they will have enough on their hands without any other large undertakings. For the health of the city, and the upbuilding of Houghs Neck, Adams shore, Norfolk Downs and the Atlantic shore it is important that the outlet of the said sewer should be at Peddocks island rather than Nut island. Prompt action is necessary.

The condition of affairs between the Street Railway Company and the city hardly warrant the attack of "Houghs Neck" in the issue of the Daily Ledger of yesterday, and such a course is not calculated to enlist sympathy from the people at large or to accomplish its purpose. We quite agree that there is a chance for improvement of the street railway service between Quincy and Houghs Neck at all seasons of the year. Cars could, and should be run later in the fall of the year, if not throughout the year, as the company have the franchise and offer the only means of travel. The number of all-the-year-round families at Houghs Neck numbers only 30 or 40 at present, but there are as many more at Germantown, and would be more at both places if cars were run daily. People have property interests there which need occasional attention, and fishermen and others should be accommodated.

But this winter above all others is not an auspicious one to inaugurate all the year round cars, because it has been necessary to rip up the tracks both on Coddington and Sea streets for the widening and regrading. If Houghs Neck is going to make such a row over improvements inaugurated for its benefit they had better be stopped. Of course, it would be possible to lay temporary tracks but under the circumstances the company, should not be asked to do it. The coming summer the company will probably rebuild its entire line and it will then be permitted to put in as many turnouts as it wishes. Then cars can be run every five or ten minutes, if necessary, and Houghs Neck will boom as it should.

☞ Of what use is protection to certain articles like iron and steel that can be made as cheaply here as abroad? ask the free traders. It is not absolutely certain that these articles can be made as cheaply here as abroad, since wages have been increased. But if it be true that some well located mills, with large capital, can temporarily compete with foreign manufacturers, and under a free trade policy might "make a live of it," there is a vast number of small mills that would be forced to suspend operations. This is ample justification for the continuance of protection for our iron and steel products. — The Protectionist.

☞ The married woman must go. The association for the preservation of the Rights of Unmarried Young Women, a Boston organization, has so declared. It is the avowed purpose of this association to drive married women out of the stores, offices, factories, restaurants and indeed all other places of employment in order to give the unmarried women the places. The plea is that married women have husbands to support them, and whenever they go to work for salaries or wages they deprive women who have no such support of the means of livelihood. But there are, perhaps, two sides to the question. What about the married woman who has a husband whom she must support? What is the poor man to do in case his wife loses her job?—New London Globe.

I. O. O. F. Whist Party.

Another of those enjoyable whist parties was given at Odd Fellows' hall on Thursday evening. Although there were several private parties the same evening they did not prevent a large number from being present. Thirty-six tables were in play, and at the conclusion prizes were distributed as follows: Ladies: Half a dozen china plates to Mrs. Mary Thomas; picture to Mrs. F. E. Munroe; pair towels to Mrs. H. P. Furnald; china pin cushion to Mrs. Pendleton. Gentlemen: Lamp to Walter Loud; silver top tobacco jar to George T. Magee; cup and saucer to E. E. Munroe; match holder to Mr. Lewis.

Surprise Party.

A very pleasing surprise party was tendered to Miss Ethel Douglas of Wollaston Park Friday evening, Jan. 5, at Knights of Honor hall, Wollaston, to which about 100 of her friends were present. The music which helped to make the evening most enjoyable, was furnished by the Tremont orchestra of Boston. The happy party opened with a dance, after which Miss Douglas was presented with a beautiful gold ring. Later in the evening light refreshments of chocolate and cake were served. Interesting games, and songs from the young men, closed the evening's entertainment.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. TERRIBLE WALKING.

Streets Coated With Ice and Travel Difficult.

The walking this morning was something terrible, the streets and sidewalks being covered with a coating of slippery ice and the Street department slow in sprinkling sand. The storm commenced about 9 o'clock Thursday evening. First there was a light fall of snow, which turned to hail. The walking was not bad at this hour, but the cars of the street railway moved with difficulty, as the rail was covered with frozen sleet.

At 11.30 it began to rain and for an hour it rained hard. The weather at this hour had moderated a little, and walking was not bad.

Later in the night it became cooler and the rain that fell froze, so that when daylight appeared everything out of doors was covered with treacherous ice. It was impossible for horses that had not been sharpened to move, and early pedestrians found walking difficult and not a few sat down suddenly and not always gracefully.

Owners of horses made a rush for the blacksmith shops and the people in this line had more than they could do. Everybody was in a hurry to have his horse sharpened first, but as in a barber's shop, they had to take their turn.

The Street department teams sanded the sidewalks but it was after 12 o'clock before they reached some of the sidewalks in City Square.

Fortunately, there was a rising temperature, and Old Sol was more effective than the sand in making the walking safer. The mercury reached 37 at noon.

INCENDIARY FIRE.

The Blaze Last Night Thought to Have Been Set.

Quincy Centre seems to be the place that is getting all the fire alarms this year for three times this week has an alarm been sounded from Box 26. The last alarm from this box was at 5.28 Thursday night and was for a fire in the loft of a small barn, on Foster street, in the rear of the Dr. Faxon block.

The barn was owned by the Washburn estate and was occupied by Mrs. Jones and W. R. Lofgren. The fire was discovered by Timothy Downey, who broke open the door and with difficulty got Mr. Lofgren's horse out and took him to a place of safety. The Fire department made short work of the fire, and the loss will not exceed $25. An examination of the building after the fire showed it to have started in a bundle of hay and the opinion of Chief Williams and Fire Marshal Adams is that the fire was incendiary.

Concert at Atlantic.

The concert given by the children of the Sacred Heart Sunday School in Music hall, Atlantic, Thursday evening, was one of the greatest successes of any entertainment ever held in this city. Long before 7.30 the people were in line waiting for the doors to open and by eight o'clock the hall was crowded to the doors. The entertainment was by local and out of town talent. The little Gleason children were exceeding fine, and won great applause in their songs and cake walks. Little Miss Johnson took the audience completely with her little coon song and dance, Miss Mabel McClusky, the wonderful child dancer, also delighted the audience and had to respond to an encore. The children [illegible] were in charge of Miss Elizabeth Curley, who deserves great credit for the skilful management.

After the concert the floor was cleared and dancing enjoyed until 1 A. M. Sprague's orchestra furnished good music for the dancing and also rendered a few selections throughout the entertainment.

Spanish War Veterans.

The officers of John A. Boyd camp, Legion of Spanish War Veterans, were intalled Thursday evening by Inspector General Harry A. McLaughlin. There were a number of guests present from other camps, Capt. Spear of Co. K, 5th regt. and Capt Stover of Co. A, 5th regt. Comrade Garbutt, who was one of the boys presented with bronze medals by the citizens of Revere, was also present and proudly exhibited his medal.

After the installation ceremonies there were brief addresses by Captains Spear and Stover and others. Several of the boys also sang solos. Caterer Nash served the collation.

From Madison To McKinley

In 1810, when Madison occupied the President's chair, JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT was originated by Dr. A. Johnson. For nearly a century it has remained a household remedy of the first rank. The grandparents of many who now use JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT were brought through whooping cough, croup and all the ills of childhood in safety by this remedy. Remember a bottle of JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT in the cupboard of some remote farm house has saved life when sudden and acute disease has developed in the night. Many are now living in old age who owe their lives to this remedy. You can safely put your trust in a remedy that has stood the test of nearly a century and gained such a high reputation as has

A majority of the ailments of humanity begin, or are accompanied, with inflammation, and it is by controlling and removing this condition that JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT cures widely different diseases, such as colds, coughs, croup, bronchitis, la grippe, lameness, colic, cramps, diarrhœa, cholera morbus, bites, bruises, burns, stings, chafing and pain and inflammation in any part of the body. Sold in two size bottles, 25c. and 50c., the larger size being the more economical as it is three times as much.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

THE BIGGEST FIGHT

The City Council of 1900 Will Have on Its Hands.

Must Protect Our Shores from Pollution.

Shall the Sewer Outlet be at Nut Island or Peddocks?

The route of the proposed high level, gravity sewer through this city which is to drain the Charles and Neponset river valleys, is approximately as follows:

The sewer proper would begin at the sand catcher on Nut island, 11 ft. 4 in. by 12 ft. in size internally, with its invert 110 feet above datum. This size will continue through Quincy to a point near Hancock street, the sewer rising at the rate of 1 ft., in 3,500 ft., and attaining an elevation of 116.05. It would be covered by an enbankment between Nut island and the main land, and would be built by tunnel through Quincy Great hill. Between this point and Hanock street the sewer would be partly in embankment and partly in excavation.

At Hancock street the size is reduced to 11 ft. 1 in. by 11 ft. 9 in. These dimensions would continue to a point near Beale street, the sewer attaining an elevation of 118.48. There would be a short tunnel near Hancock street, probably in the vicinity of Alleyne street. The sewer goes through Greenleaf street.

From near Beale street the size is reduced to 10 ft. 10 in. by 11 ft. 6 in. This would continue to Adams street in Milton.

These figures show the magnitude of the undertaking. A sewer 12 ft. in diameter running through Greenleaf, Adams and Sea streets means the elimination of those thoroughfares for the time being. And it is almost wholly for the benefit of a portion of Boston, including Dorchester, Roxbury, and West Roxbury, the cities of Newton and Waltham and the towns of Watertown, Brookline, Dedham, Hyde Park and Milton. The benefit which Quincy derives from its construction is of comparatively small value, in consideration of the fact that she has a new sewerage system, with a pumping plant and an outlet at Moon island. This is offset a hundred fold by the destruction of the beautiful Hull and Quincy bays which for years have been the rendezvous of the grandest fleet of yachts on the coast, of the tearing up four finest residential streets and the possible driving out of the city of a few of our heaviest taxpayers and foremost citizens as their beautiful places will be literally destroyed; by the overriding of the city with hundreds of Italians and Hungarian laborers: and of the largely augumented police force and increased expenditures which the city will be necessarily put to.

But the principal bone of contention is the proposed discharge of the immense volume of sewage estimated at an average of about 45,000,000 gallons every 24 hours in 1905 in Nut island gut, near the westerly end of Peddock's island.

It is understood that the Board of Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners reached the conlusion that this sewage may be discharged continuously into Nut island gut.

The outfall works for a continuous discharge of sewage near Nut island would consist at first of two lines of extra heavy cast iron pipes, 60 in. in diameter, laid in a dredged trench substantially and covered for protection against injury.

The connecting chambers at the shores would be designed so that additional lines of pipes could be laid in the future if needed.

The outlet would be near the bottom of the channel about 3,000 ft. northerly from Nut island. Its depth would be about 26 ft. below low water and about 35 feet below high water.

The question as to the probable effect of a continuous discharge of sewage during the flood tide has received special attention from the commission. The flood current divides near Sunker island beacon, one part going towards Quincy bay with small velocity and the other running into Hingham Hull bay with good velocity. It has been found that there is a region west of Peddock's island in the deepest part of the channel where the flood currents are strong and set towards Hingham (Hull) bay exclusively.

Obervations made by means of 32 floats, started from this locality during the flood tide, lead to the following conclusions:

1. None of the floats went towards Houghs Neck nor Manet beach.

2. Such floats as were carried to any shores required three hours or more in the passage, which is double the time required at Deer island to dissipate the discoloration produced by the sewage.

3. The floats were mostly carrried into the west central part of Hingham bay.

4. The floats running into Hingham bay during the flood tide were generally carried out of it on the succeeding ebb, either through Nut island channel or through Hull gut.

The inference drawn from the above experiments is that the great body of water between Quincy, Hull, Nantasket, Hing am and Weymouth will be dangerously polluted, and as a pleasure bay destroyed forever, unless these localities go before the State Board of Health and the General Court before May 1, as provided in Chap. 65, Acts of 1899, and insist that the outlet to this sewer shall be located outside of the waters of Quincy, Hull and Hingham bay.

PASTOR'S RECEPTION

Wollaston People Meet Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Pratt.

The Wollaston Unitarian parish gave a largely attended reception in honor of the recently installed pastor, the Rev. Frank Wright Pratt and Mrs. Pratt, at the church vestry on Thursday evening. The vestry was tastefully decorated with palms and ferns and the floor was strewn with Persian carpets. The Rev. and Mrs. Pratt were assisted in receiving by Mrs. Chandler W. Smith, the president of the Alliance, who had the immediate arrangement of the reception in charge.

The ushers were Mr. Walter E. Simmons, Mr. Charles T. Baker, Mr. W. J. Wellington, Mr. Walter M. Hatch, Hon. Henry O. Fairbanks, Mr. Charles M. Bryant, Mr. S. P. Moorehouse and Mr. E. H. Sprague.

There was instrumental music by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Albert R. Moulton, and vocal solos by Mr. E. Walter Arnold. Ices, cake and coffee were served.

Inspection of Plumbing.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

It seems to me a great mistake for a city to appoint for inspector of plumbing any one who is engaged in that line of business in the same city. How is it possible for an inspector to be satisfied with another plumber's work, as long as there is opposition in trade? But the most important thing is, who is going to inspect the work of the inspector when he does a job?

The writer of this article had, two years ago in another place not far from Quincy, a lot of plumbing to do in a number of houses. The inspector of plumbing in that town being a friend of his family, he employed him. When the work was done there was no one to inspect it, and when winter came a number of serious mistakes in the work were found. Now, if he had employed another plumber he could have had the work inspected, and it might have been done correctly.

But again, if he had employed another plumber, the inspector might have objected to the work without cause, and thereby made an extra bill of expense. Would it not be possible to have for this position a man who is not interested financially or otherwise in the plumbing business in the city.

Burns Statue for Boston.

A movement was started some time ago in Boston by the admirers of the Scottish Bard, Robert Burns, to erect a statue to his memory. It has now been chartered as the Burns Memorial Association, with some of Boston's prominent business men at its head, and cash to the amount of $5,000 has been pledged. A concert in aid of the above fund is to be held in Mechanics hall, Boston, on the anniversary of the poet's birthday, Jan. 25. It is to be held under the auspices of the Boston Caledonia club, and tickets for same may be secured from Mr. George Bowman, Intervale street, this city. It is intended to raise by subscription and other methods the sum of $15,000 and the statue is to be one of the finest in the city of Boston.

Some persons say they are never influenced by an advertisement.

It is not expected that any one will buy Ivory Soap solely because it is suggested by an advertisement, but if you have never used Ivory Soap, you may be induced to ask some friend about it; should you find—as you probably will—that she is enthusiastic in its praise, then you may try it.

Millions of people use Ivory Soap; they use it because they like it. You too will like it. There is a difference in soaps.

OUT IN THE STORM.

Tough Experience of a Wanderer at Wollaston.

A man who gave his name as Matthew Flynn was found this morning wandering about Wollaston in a dazed condition. He was wet through to the skin and his appearance led to the belief that he had been out in the storm all night. A carriage was secured and the man taken to the police station. Medical Examiner Jones was called and gave it as his opinion that the man had been drinking hard, and that he was on the verge of delirium tremmens.

Upon being questioned he gave his name as Matthew Flynn, 28 years of age and his home as 176 D street South Boston, where he had a wife and two children. The Boston police were communicated with, and from them it was learned that Flynn had been reported as missing. It seems he had been drinking hard for several weeks, and had been taken to a hospital for treatment. He got away from his keepers on Thursday, and had probably wandered about all night in the storm.

The police put Flynn in a cell for safe keeping, and he will be taken home as soon as he is able to be moved. Medical Examiner Jones says he does not think any serious results will follow from his exposure.

Sothern's Recitation.

Sir Edward Russell knew E. A. Sothern, the actor, intimately and in his book, "That Reminds Me," tells many stories of him.

He was dining at Portsmouth or somewhere at a regimental mess to which the officers had asked him with every show of the highest admiration and with no appearance of social superiority. After dinner, as the party sat at wine, one of the officers asked Sothern to give them a recitation. Now, Sothern abominated that kind of thing. He wouldn't tolerate being treated as an entertainer when he was by way of being treated as a gentleman. He coldly declined. They pressed him. He hotly declined. Still they pressed him. He expressed his feelings. Perhaps the officers were a little affected by wine. At all events they persisted. They would take no denial.

At last he said in a manner which showed that he was nettled, but yet yielding: "Well, if you won't let me off I must. I'll give you the dinner scene from 'David Garrick.'"

He did. He had never acted it better. They were delighted until, springing to his feet, he made his wild, tipsy exit, just as he did on the stage, and dragged the cloth off the table and with it all the regiment's prized dessert china and decanters and glasses, etc. Great was the smash. The actor did not wait to be applauded or to improve the occasion. The lesson was, indeed, a rough one, and probably only a man with some roughness in his daring humor would have given it, but it was quite deserved.

How Hard Bees Work.

Darwin after close observation found that a bee would often visit as many as 27 flowers in the course of a minute, though with other plants in which the honey was difficult to extract the average would be as low as seven. Striking a mean between these two figures, Reguhay say that an ordinary working visits 15 flowers a minute, or 900 WED hour. Considering the late hours to which a bee works, it is probably no De aggeration to say that it is busy for ght hours a day, allowing for intervals of rest. This would make it visit 200 flowers a day, or 648,000 in a period of six months.

Mr. A. S. Wilson in a recent paper showed the enormous amount of labor done through by bees in making even a small quantity of honey. He found that approximately 125 heads of red clover yield 15 grains of sugar, or 125,000 heads about two pounds. As each head contains some 60 florets, it follows that 7,500,000 distinct flower tubes must be sucked in order to obtain two pounds of sugar. Now, honey contains, roughly speaking, 75 per cent sugar; therefore the bees must make, round numbers, 2,500,000 visits for pound of honey.

Question Is Unanswered.

A certain grocer on the hill has for some days been looking for the owner of a voice that claimed his attention at the telephone one busy morning. When he finds the man, the meeting will furnish material for an interesting item, and the following dialogue explains itself:

The Voice—Hello, there! Is that you, Charles?

Grocer—Yes.

The Voice—Have you any salt fish?

Grocer—Yes.

The Voice—Is it fresh?

Grocer—Yes; came in this morning.

The Voice—Cod or pollock?

Grocer—Got both. Which do you want?

The Voice—Well, I don't know. Is the pollock good and dry?

Grocer—Yes.

At this point the grocer brought the colloquy to a sudden termination with a remark that would be out of place in polite society and therefore unfit for publication.—Portland (Or.) Argus.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

REPLY OF ENGLAND

Does Not Broadly Decide the Question as to Contraband of War.

Nothing Said Touching a Release of Seized Goods.

Answer Satisfactory as Far as It Goes, but Leaves Main Question Untouched.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The following official statement was given out by the state department: A telegram has been received from Ambassador Choate, reporting an interview he had with the Marquis of Salisbury in regard to the American shipments of flour and provisions on the detained British steamers Beatrice and Mashona, and the Dutch steamer Maria. The British position as to food stuffs and hostile destination is that they can only be considered contraband of war if supplied the enemy's forces, it not being sufficient that they are capable of being so used, but it must be shown that this was their destination at the time of seizure. This qualification virtually concedes the American contention that the goods were not subject to seizure, and practically disavows the seizure, it not being claimed there is any evidence of hostile destination.

Just as the officials of the state department expected, it amounted to a partial answer, very satisfactory as far as it goes, disposing of the character of some of the goods seized, but not finally deciding broadly whether or not foodstuffs are to be regarded as contraband.

In brief, Mr. Choate reports as follows: That the answer is highly satisfactory; that it is broad and liberal in terms. The position assumed by the British government is that foodstuffs in transit to a hostile destination can be regarded as contraband of war only when they are supplies for the enemy's forces.

It is not sufficient that they are capable of being used for the benefit of the enemy; it must be shown that they are so in fact through their destination at the time of the seizure. The British government does not claim that any of the American goods on the German bark Maria and the British bark Mashona were contraband of war.

The British government is investigating the facts in connection with the goods seized on the third vessel, Beatrice.

Mr. Choate's message embodied succinctly the authorities relied upon by the British government to sustain its position. It was nearly noon before it could be deciphered and placed in Secretary Hay's hands. It so happened that Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador, was with the secretary shortly after he received his message, and probably the subject was discussed by them.

It is certain that both the secretary and Lord Pauncefote appeared to be gratified at the progress made toward a settlement of the cases. Nothing was said directly in Mr. Choate's message touching a release of the seized goods, but of course a fair inference from the statement that the goods on two of the vessels had been found to be not contraband is that they either will be or have been already released.

If any question arises as to compensation to the owners on account of these seizures, that can be adjusted later on. It is probable, however, that the British government will not wait for any hint, but will voluntarily make such amends as seem to be fair.

It is believed that the uncertainty as to the character of the Beatrice's cargo is based upon an imperfect knowledge of the ownership of the goods.

Water Famine Threatened.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 12.—This city, so far as the supply of water for the mills is concerned, is on the verge of a water famine. Nearly half of the mills depend on a chain of five ponds for the water necessary for their boilers, and the water has become so low as to make a shutdown of some of the mills possible. Some of these ponds are now little more than large mud puddles, with a small quantity of water in the middle.

Mother and Daughter Fatally Burned.

Louisville, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Mary Theobold was burned to death, and her daughter, Lucinda, was fatally burned at their home in this city yesterday. Miss Theobold was filling a lamp in front of a stove. An explosion followed, setting fire to her clothing. In attempting to save her daughter, Mrs. Theobold's clothing took fire, and she was burned to death.

Objectionable Immigrants.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Julius Rosendale, special agent of the department of agriculture of Pennsylvania, appeared before the industrial commission yesterday and spoke on the subject of the immigration of Russian and Yiddish Jews. He advocated an amendment to the laws, forbidding further immigration of the classes mentioned.

Will Pay Fifty Percent.

Boston, Jan. 12.—Francis Batchelder & Co., provision dealers, who failed recently, have made an offer to their creditors, which was accepted. The offer was to pay 50 percent, 20 percent to be cash and 30 percent to be notes, or to make an entire settlement of 40 percent. The firm's liabilities were $160,000.

Will Not Be Electrocuted.

Boston, Jan. 12.—The sentence of Edwin Ray Snow, the Barnstable county murderer, was yesterday commuted by the executive council, voting unanimously, from execution by electricity to imprisonment for life.

Large Crowd Saw Him Die.

New York, Jan. 12.—Michael Clarke, 26 years of age, touched a live electric light wire at the corner of Ninth avenue and Thirteenth street yesterday and met with instant death. More than 100 persons saw him die.

REPORT AS TO ANTI-IMPERIALISTS

Is Asked For by Senator Lodge—Montana's State Treasurer Testifies In Clark Case.

Washington, Jan. 12.—A large amount of business was done by the senate yesterday. Among the bills was one by Mr. Spooner providing for a temporary government for the Philippines. Senator Pettigrew's resolution regarding negotiations with the Philippine people was taken up, and, in addition to the amendment already offered by Mr. Hoar, one was offered by Mr. Lodge asking for information of a wider scope than is required by Mr. Pettigrew's measure. It asks for information regarding anti-imperialist utterances which were being circulated among the insurgents, and documents sent to United States soldiers serving in the Philippines, urging them not to re-enlist. Mr. Hoar asked that the information be furnished in instalments and not in one huge unwieldy document.

Mr. Pettigrew attacked the administration's policy in the Philippines. He declared that a systematic effort was being made to prevent accurate information from reaching the people of the United States, and that it was a political scheme to further the candidacy of Mr. McKinley for renomination and re-election.

The discussion was terminated by a resumption of consideration of the currency bill at 2 o'clock. Mr. Stewart (Nev.) made an elaborate speech on the question of the national finances.

Before adjournment the senate, after prolonged debate, passed the bill conferring additional powers upon the director of the census.

Mr. Whiteside, testifying in the Clark case, said he had been a supporter of Senator Clark until 1893, when he became convinced that money was being used to secure Republican votes, and withdrew, but did not join the Daly forces. Mr. Whiteside was followed by Montana's state treasurer, who had in his possession $30,000 in envelopes, which had been turned over to him. He exhibited them in detail, holding them up so the large bills could be seen. State Senator Clark was called, and testified that he had received 10 $1000 bills from Mr. Clark's manager, Mr. Wellcome, on the condition that he vote for Mr. Clark as long as he was asked to.

The house elections committee, No. 1, held a hearing in the Evans-Turner contest, to determine which should represent the Fifth district of Kentucky, the purpose of the contest being to have the seat declared vacant. Committee No. 3 also heard arguments in the Wise-Young case for the Second district of Virginia.

Secretary Long responded to the senate's resolution of inquiry by submitting a copy of Admiral Dewey's report, in which he says he believes he could take the Spanish fleet and reduce the Manila defenses in one day.

The Roberts investigating committee held a protracted executive session yesterday in the hope of reaching a conclusion, but so many legal questions were discussed that a final result was not reached, nor was any vote taken indicating the finding of the committee.

Boston and Maine May Get the Fitchburg.

Boston, Jan. 12.—Railroad matters in New England at present continue to occupy greater attention than anything else in financial circles. The status of the matter is summed up in the announcement that the directors of the Fitchburg railroad, exclusive of the three members of the board representing the state, and W. S. Webb, representing the Vanderbilt interests, have unofficially signified to the Boston and Maine their approval of the offer of the latter to lease the Fitchburg for a term of 99 years at a guarantee of 5 percent on the preferred stock, and 1 percent on the common stock; that a formal meeting of the directors of the Fitchburg will be held next Tuesday, at which an official vote to this effect will be taken, and that it only remains for the three state directors to announce their position in the matter, but this they will not do until they have had a formal conference with Governor Crane.

Many Charges of Embezzlement.

New Haven, Jan. 12.—Charles E. Newberry, who has been doing business under the firm name of the New England Mercantile Exchange, with headquarters in this city, is locked up, charged with embezzlement. Newberry has branch offices in other places and was first taken into custody at Hartford yesterday, charged with embezzlement on six counts. Other charges have been preferred against him by New Haven parties and he will have to face 12 counts. Newberry "boomed" his exchange extensively and sent out circulars broadcast advertising for "silent" partners. It is alleged that he secured several dupes.

Pro-Boer Meeting at Lawrence.

Lawrence, Mass., Jan. 12.—The movement to assist the Boers which started in this city several weeks ago culminated in a monster mass meeting in city hall last night. Leading citizens of nearly every nationality were present, including many public officials. Mayor Leonard presided. Resolutions were adopted expressing "sincere friendship for the citizens of the South African republic and rejoicing in their brave and valiant defense of their homes and their liberties against a powerful and unscrupulous foe."

Cuba Furnishes Fine Coal.

Santiago, Jan. 12.—Business men were greatly interested in a test made yesterday of coal recently discovered in the Mayari district. Scientists have always held it was impossible that coal should exist in Cuba. In yesterday's test the fire was kept burning continuously for 10 hours. The experts declared it equal to the best steam coal in the southern states. There are indications of a deposit practically unlimited.

Discouraged by Sickness.

St. Louis, Jan. 12.—Dr. Mulhall, a noted eye and ear specialist, was found dead yesterday in his office. He had been shot through the heart. A revolver was found lying beside the body, and this seemed to indicate suicide. It is supposed that the act was caused by despondency on account of ill health.

MRS. ADAMS DAUGHTER

New York, Jan. 12.—The Molineux trial commenced yesterday with William A. Maguire, formerly a stenographer in the employ of Weeks & Brattle, on the stand. Mrs. Florence E. Rogers, the daughter of Mrs. Kate J. Adams, was afterwards called to the witness stand.

Mrs. Rogers said she was married 14 years ago and had lived with her mother practically ever since her marriage until her mother's death. Asked to state what occurred on the day of her mother's death, Mrs. Rogers said:

"I rose at the usual time, and, on going out of my bedroom, found my mother suffering from a headache. I thought of the bromo seltzer which Mr. Cornish had and went to the door of his room and asked him if he would not let me have some for my mother. He gave me the bottle and my mother drank it.

"A moment later she was taken violently ill and almost fainted. I called for Mr. Cornish and he came out. We called in Dr. Hitchcock and he gave her an injection; a hypodermic syringe was used, I think. There was something said about using a stomach pump, but Dr. Hitchcock said that she had vomited so much that there was nothing on her stomach. Dr. Hitchcock said that he would like to have another physician called in, and we called Dr. Coffin. After he came Dr. Hitchcock called me out of the room and told me my mother was very sick. Dr. Coffin came and looked at my mother and said he could do nothing for her. After that somebody placed a napkin over her face and I was told that she was dead."

Gustav Kutnow of Kutnow Bros. testified that there was entered upon the books of the firm an order for a sample package of powders for "H. Cornish, 1620 Broadway."

Carl E. Trommer of the firm of the Roessler, Hasslac Chemical company, identified a letter received from Molineux about chemicals and especially those used in making enamel colors for china and glass. He said his firm dealt in cyanides, and that prices on chemicals were given to Molineux.

Howard Adams, brother of Mrs. Rogers, testified to arriving at the house on the afternoon of the murder, and to seeing a glass on the sideboard, which was said to contain the poisoned bromo-seltzer, and that he had seen this glass put away.

Rudolph A. Witthaus, an expert in chemistry, testified to finding poison in the brain of H. C. Barnet.

Big Steamer Wrecked.

St. John's, Jan. 12.—A large steamer, believed to be a passenger ship, whose name cannot yet be ascertained, has been wrecked on a reef in St. Mary's bay, about five miles from shore. The vessel lies with her head low in the water, and is on fire aft. Several persons have been washed off the deck by the great waves during the day. Just before nightfall others were described in the rigging. It is feared that these will perish. From her size it looks as if the vessel might be one of the trans-Atlantic liners. If so, the loss of life may be very great. The sea is wild, and the storm shows no signs of abating.

A Youthful Murderer.

Anthony, Kan., Jan. 12.—Guilty of murder in the first degree was the verdict rendered in the case of John Kornstett, a 16-year-old boy, who has been on trial here for the murder of his cousin, Nora Kornstett, a 10-year-old girl. The child went to a field where Kornstett was plowing and was not seen until two days later, when she was found in an abandoned well. She was taken out unconscious, and died within a few hours. When arrested, the youth admitted having thrown the child into the well, after having brutally attacked her.

French Changed His Mind.

Boston, Jan. 12.—The interesting feature of the will of Benjamin French, the pioneer photographer supply dealer, probated yesterday, was the cutting off with a $5 bequest each of his adopted son, Wilfred, and his nephew, William, in both instances the absolute gift being made in a codicil which revoked substantial remembrances in the will itself. The property chiefly is left to the widow. A short time before Mr. French's death his adopted son asked the court to adopt a guardian for Mr. French, as an insane person, but the court refused to do so.

Lively Time at "Blind Tiger."

Whitesburg, Ky., Jan. 12.—During a quarrel over a game of cards in a "blind tiger" at Pound Gap yesterday, in which John and Tassee Hall and Arch and Henry Leap opposed Henry Sutherland, Berry Long and Henry Campbell, revolvers were drawn and 200 shots exchanged. Tassee Hall and Henry Leap were killed and Dave Sutherland and Henry Campbell mortally wounded. Arch Leap and Henry Sullivan were also wounded.

Tanner Says He Doesn't Want It.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—The Tribune prints a long interview with Governor Tanner, in which the governor makes a bitter personal attack upon Senator Cullom. Governor Tanner declares at the outset that he is not a candidate for the senate or any other political office, but that he is strongly opposed to the return of Senator Cullom to the senate.

Electric Car Runs Wild.

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 12.—An electric street car ran away yesterday afternoon, jumping the track at a curve and plunging into a curb. One of the passengers was fatally hurt, two were seriously injured and a dozen of the others suffered slightly. The accident was due to sleet on the rails.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The storm has caused easterly gales on the middle Atlantic and southern New England coast, Block island reporting 48 miles an hour. The temperature conditions are moderate over the whole country. Snow may be expected in northern New England; rain, followed by fair weather, in the southern portion. Easterly gales will prevail on the north Atlantic coast. Storm signals are displayed on the Atlantic coast from Delaware breakwater to Eastport.

CHANGE OF LIFE

Every woman realizes the danger she has to go through between the ages of forty and fifty. We need not give any explanation here. Almost every woman knows the symptoms of CHANGE OF LIFE; they have been told so often. What we want to impress the most upon them, is the difference between the remedies for their cases. The woman who is now suffering from CHANGE OF LIFE might have heard of remedies to cure everything. She might have heard of old-fashioned liquid medicines sold to women, she might have heard of her friend taking these remedies without success, but, she never has heard yet of any lady taking Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for CHANGE OF LIFE without having been at once benefited by their use.

We are not afraid to say that this is true. We know that our remedies are not to be compared with cure alls and oldfashioned liquid medicines. Our remedies are in pill form, the modern way of using medicine to-day.

The following women who have been cured by our Pills will be glad to tell you that what we say is true. We give you their full names and addresses. You can write to them, and be satisfied that Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are the best remedy for anything that ails women.

Mrs. Sophie Ouger, 105 Hart St., Bay City, Mich., writes:

"I suffered with diseases peculiar to the CHANGE OF LIFE. I had hot flushes sometimes, and then would get cold, and sometimes my blood would be as if it was boiling; my feet were always cold. I had such a backache that life was almost impossible to bear. Knowing that Dr. Coderre's Red Pills were curing so many other women I tried them with the result that I am to-day perfectly cured."

Mrs. Mary G. Gradey, 138 Colbrook Street, Grand Rapids, Mich., writes:

"I have taken your Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for CHANGE OF LIFE. I was sick for several years and tried several remedies, but none could help me. That is why I do not hesitate to recommend Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women, as they are the best and cheapest remedy I have ever known."

Mrs. M. M. Brown, 134 Cadding St., Providence, R. I., writes:

"I do not believe that any woman ever suffered more. I did from female weakness and poverty of blood. I was a down and so weak that I was discouraged. I cannot say thing to good for Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, for, they alone cured me very quickly and have not cost me much money."

Ladies should profit by the experience of others and cure themselves with Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, which are made for women. Any intelligent women will give this remedy the preference to cure alls; they are good for old and young women. They can be taken at all times, under any conditions. Any woman who wishes to give a full description of her case to our Doctors, can write or come and see them at their offices, for our Doctors are entirely at the disposal of sick ladies. They charge nothing for their consultations at the office or by mail.

If you will send us your name on a postal card, we will mail you our Doctor's book, Pale and Weak Women.

When a woman is constipated, if she wishes to obtain the best results from the Red Pills, she should take Dr. Coderre's Purgative Tablets at the same time. They sell at 25c. a box. The combination of these two remedies will cure permanently and quickly. Be sure and read and follow the directions on the circulars This is very important.

Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women are sold by all first class druggists at 50c. per box or six boxes for $2.50. If you cannot procure them where you live, or if you are afraid of imitations or substitutions, write to us sending the money and we will mail them to you the same day upon receipt of price. Each box contains fifty Pills for 50c.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

JAMES F. HARLOW, City Clerk.

Worth Reading.

I think it my duty to inform your readers of a remedy that should be in every household.

I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and Constipation and tried everything in vain. In despair I bought a ten cent package of the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets, 17 East 14th St., New York, and in three days I felt better and afterwards I bought a twenty-five cent package and now I am completely cured. Your druggist can and must get it for you.

Yours truly,

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Study of Switzeraud.

There was the usual large attendance at the regular meeting of the Unity club, which was held at the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on last evening.

The literary programme was in charge of Mrs. George W. Bennett, the secretary of the club, and she had some very able essayists to help her.

The musical part of the programme was in charge of Mrs. H. G. Follett, the soprano soloist of Trinity church, Boston, and was a rare treat. She was assisted by Mr. Follett. They sang the duets, "Still as the Night" and "I feel thy Angel Spirit," and Mrs. Follett sang "May Morning" and Mr. Follett the "Creole lover's song."

Miss Florence Hayes read an interesting essay on "the Forest Cantons" of Switzerland, Mr. John O. Hall, Jr., told of "The Tell Myth." Mrs. C. Hubbard Gurney of "Lake Geneva and its literary Associations," and Mr. C. F. Merrick of "The Glaciers."

The next meeting, which occurs on Jan. 26, will be in charge of Mr. H. W. Lull, and will be a distinctly educational one, some of the most prominent educators in the State having signified their intention to be present.

Barber—Wellington.

Miss Cora Wellington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Wellington of Wollaston, and Mr. Albert W. P. Barber, son of the late Dr. Willet P. Barber of Willimantic, Conn., were quietly married by the Rev. Edward A. Horton of Boston, at his residence on Thursday evening at eight o'clock. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Powell of Massachusetts avenue, and the groom by Mr. Jack Tirrell of Boston. The bride was gowned in white nuns veiling over white silk trimmed with valenciennes lace and satin ribbon, cut demi-train, and fastened at the neck by a diamond sunburst, the gift of the groom. She carried a bunch of brides roses.

Old Colony Club.

The ladies of the Old Colony club of South Weymouth entertained a large party of their gentlemen friends and invited guests at Fogg's Opera House, on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 9, the occasion being the third annual observance of gentlemen's night. The hall was rendered more beautiful by the effective grouping of palms, ferns and potted plants upon the stage.

The large audience was greeted by the president of the club, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Newell, who in well chosen words extended the welcome and hospitality of the ladies to their guests, speaking of the benefit that the members had already derived from the club, its influence on the home and social life of the town, and its hope for the future. She then introduced Mrs. Jeannette Robinson Murphy, of New York City, formerly of Louisville, Ky., who entertained the audience with negro slave songs and plantation folk lore. Having learned these songs and stories from the lips of the negroes themselves, Mrs. Murphy is able to render them in a most charming manner, presenting an entertainment at once novel and instructive. A reception by the president and club officers followed the entertainment, and a social hour was enjoyed. The tea tables, beautifully decorated with crimson carnations and ribbons of the same color, were in charge of Miss Mary Fogg, chairman of the hospitality committee, and an able corps of assistants dispensed the refreshments. This evening marks one of the most enjoyable events in the history of the Old Colony club.

Philergians of Braintree.

The club met with Mrs. Frank Dearing Friday afternoon, January 5, at three o'clock. After the business of the meeting was finished, the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to the entertainment which had been prepared. Several vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Edward Hayward, and Mrs. Ellsworth favored the club with an extract from Dr. Watson's "Kate Carnegie."

The entertainment was exceptionally pleasing; and the attendance of so many members was encouraging as an omen of the continued success of the club. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Aubrey Hilliard Friday, Jan. 19.

On an eight-mile road now being built in Missouri 24 bridges are to be constructed.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

There was the usual large attendance at the regular meeting of the Unity club, which was held at the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church on last evening.

The literary programme was in charge of Mrs. George W. Bennett, the secretary of the club, and she had some very able essayists to help her.

The musical part of the programme was in charge of Mrs. H. G. Follett, the soprano soloist of Trinity church, Boston, and was a rare treat. She was assisted by Mr. Follett. They sang the duets, "Still as the Night" and "I feel thy Angel Spirit," and Mrs. Follett sang "May Morning" and Mr. Follett the "Creole lover's song."

Edward A. Horton of Boston, at his residence on Thursday evening at eight o'clock. The bride was attended by Miss Margaret Powell of Massachusetts avenue, and the groom by Mr. Jack Tirrell of Boston. The bride was gowned in white nuns veiling over white silk trimmed with valenciennes lace and satin ribbon, cut demi-train, and fastened at the neck by a diamond sunburst, the gift of the groom. She carried a bunch of brides roses.

Old Colony Club.

The ladies of the Old Colony club of South Weymouth entertained a large party of their gentlemen friends and invited guests at Fogg's Opera House, on the evening of Tuesday, Jan. 9, the occasion being the third annual observance of gentlemen's night. The hall was rendered more beautiful by the effective grouping of palms, ferns and potted plants upon the stage.

The large audience was greeted by the president of the club, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Newell, who in well chosen words extended the welcome and hospitality of the ladies to their guests, speaking of the benefit that the members had already derived from the club, its influence on the home and social life of the town, and its hope for the future. She then introduced Mrs. Jeannette Robinson Murphy, of New York City, formerly of Louisville, Ky., who entertained the audience with negro slave songs and plantation folk lore. Having learned these songs and stories from the lips of the negroes themselves, Mrs. Murphy is able to render them in a most charming manner, presenting an entertainment at once novel and instructive. A reception by the president and club officers followed the entertainment, and a social hour was enjoyed. The tea tables, beautifully decorated with crimson carnations and ribbons of the same color, were in charge of Miss Mary Fogg, chairman of the hospitality committee, and an able corps of assistants dispensed the refreshments. This evening marks one of the most enjoyable events in the history of the Old Colony club.

Philergians of Braintree.

The club met with Mrs. Frank Dearing Friday afternoon, January 5, at three o'clock. After the business of the meeting was finished, the remainder of the afternoon was devoted to the entertainment which had been prepared. Several vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Edward Hayward, and Mrs. Ellsworth favored the club with an extract from Dr. Watson's "Kate Carnegie."

The entertainment was exceptionally pleasing; and the attendance of so many members was encouraging as an omen of the continued success of the club. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Aubrey Hilliard Friday, Jan. 19.

A FAVORABLE REPORT

House Expected to Promptly Pass the Measure.

Authorizes the Government to Acquire Territory Along the Route.

Washington, Jan. 13.—The most important news of the day at the Capitol is the action of the commerce committee ordering the favorable report of the Hepburn Nicaraguan canal bill. There is no doubt that this measure will be pushed and its advocates claim that it will pass the house in a few weeks.

There was some discussion about the advisability of delaying action on the bill until the Isthmian canal commission report, but this was finally regarded as unnecessary, and all the members except Mr. Fletcher of Minnesota voted to report the bill favorably. The latter said his silence should not be construed as opposition to the measure, but merely as a reservation of his right to support or oppose it after further consideration. The committee made some changes in the original bill, inserting a new section three, authorizing the president to make surveys, and making verbal alterations.

The bill is similar to the one which Mr. Hepburn urged at the last session, authorizing the government to acquire ownership of the territory along the Nicaraguan route and to proceed through competent engineer officers to the construction of the canal. As finally agreed to the bill is as follows:

To provide for the construction of a canal connecting the waters of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. Be it enacted, etc.

That the President of the United States be, and is hereby, authorized to acquire from the states of Costa Rica and Nicaragua, for and in behalf of the United States, control of such portion of territory now belonging to Costa Rica and Nicaragua as may be desirable and necessary on which to excavate, construct and defend a canal of such depth and capacity as will be sufficient for the movement of ships of the greatest tonnage and draft now in use, from a point near Greytown, on the Carribean sea, via Lake Nicaragua, to Breto, on the Pacific ocean, and such sums as may be necessary to secure such control are hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

That when the president has secured full control over the territory in section one referred to, he shall direct the secretary of war to excavate and construct a canal and waterway from a point on the shore of the Carribean sea, near Greytown, by way of Lake Nicaragua, to a point near Breto, on the Pacific ocean. Such canal shall be of sufficient capacity and depth as that it may be used by vessels of the largest tonnage and greatest depth now in use and shall be supplied with all necessary locks and other appliances to meet the necessities of vessels passing from Greytown to Breto; and the secretary of war shall also construct such safe and commodious harbors at the termini of said canal and such fortifications for defense as will be required for safety and protection of said canal and harbors.

That the president shall cause such surveys as may be necessary for said canal and harbors and in the construction of the same.

That in the excavation and construction of said canal, the San Juan river and Lake Nicaragua, or such parts of each as may be available, shall be used.

That in any negotiations with the states of Costa Rica or Nicaragua the president may have, the president is authorized to guarantee to said states the use of said canal and harbors upon such terms as may be agreed upon, for all vessels owned by said states or by citizens thereof.

That the sum of $140,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury, not otherwise appropriated, for the completion of the work herein authorized, said money to be drawn from the treasury from time to time as the same shall be needed, upon warrants of the president, based on estimates made and verified by the chief of engineers in charge of the work, and approved by the secretary of war.

There were again four or five witnesses before the senate committee on privileges and elections yesterday in connection with the attack upon the right of Senator Clark of Montana to his seat in the senate. One of the witnesses, State Senator Myers, produced a letter from C. W. Clark, son of the senator, telling him (Myers) he had forwarded $500 as a retainer for him as attorney in connection with the local interests of the Clarks. A dentist named Ector also displayed letters from Senator Clark himself referring to W. M. Bickford as a representative of his and saying that while he (Clark) knew nothing of Ector's claims for services, his policy was to remunerate all that served him.

Probably the most important witness of the day was H. H. Garr, a member of the legislature, who had voted for Mr. Clark for the senate. He is one of the men in whose name money was turned over to the state. Mr. Garr said that while this money, $5000 in $1000 bills, had been shown to him by Mr. Whiteside and he had marked the envelope containing it, Mr. Whiteside had not said anything to him about voting for Mr. Clark.

If Bryan Is Elected.

Boston, Jan. 13.—In its weekly review of the wool market, the Boston Commercial Bulletin says: Utah correspondents of Boston wool houses say that they have received personal assurances from William J. Bryan that if elected president he will retain a protective duty on wool, having changed his mind on free wool.

TIME NOT KEPT CORRECTLY.

McCoy Gets Decision in a Contest Which Should Have Been Awarded to Choynski.

New York, Jan. 13.—The Broadway Athletic club house was packed to the doors last night with sports who wanted to see the McCoy-Choynski bout. The house was as densely filled as it was last Tuesday when Terry McGovern wrested the featherweight championship from George Dixon.

McCoy was a prohibitive favorite in the betting and he got the decision in a bout which lasted three rounds. Choynski would have had the fight in the second round were it not for an accident as to time keeping. He simply made a monkey of McCoy and floored the kid four times, but the timekeeper pulled the bell as McCoy was counted for the limit of 10 seconds, and this saved the kid from absolute defeat.

Choynski's seconds protested vigorously, but Referee White, while knowing that the round was short by many seconds, stood by the official timekeeper and ordered the men to continue when the gong rang again for the opening of the third round.

Colonel Padden, who was timekeeper for McCoy, said afterwards that the second round was clipped by 40 seconds. McCoy was groggy and practically out when the gong rang.

After the bout Choynski and McCoy signed articles to meet again under the same conditions, the bout to take place at the Broadway Athletic club on Feb. 20.

McCoy having escaped defeat in the second round was again lucky in the third, as the blow with which he sent Choynski down and out was delivered almost two seconds after the bell had rung for the completion of the third round. There was a great deal of noise in the building at the time the gong sounded, and undoubtedly neither man heard the clang of the bell.

In one portion of the building there was a tumult caused by one of the spectators dropping dead. The man had been very much excited and had expressed himself freely as to McCoy's being out before the bell rang.

Boston, Jan. 13.—Symptoms of partial paralysis struck the Republican plot to organize a protest against the committee appointments of Speaker Myers, which was expected to materialize in the house yesterday, but Mr. Mellen of Worcester sounded the tocsin instead, with an order providing for an enlargement of the committee on railroads by one member, to make possible the appointment thereto of Mr. Reed of Taunton. It was expected that the members who are dissatisfied with their appointments might decide to throw up their assignments, and a paper embodying that intention had been prepared for their signatures. At a conference held at noon, however, only 13 men were got together and only about half a dozen signatures were obtained.

A second paper, protesting against the acts of the speaker, was circulated also, and received more signatures and more sympathetic comment. It was said by the Republican opponents of the speaker that the early session left them too little time in which to get the members together, but that something would drop Monday.

The following petitions were presented: For legislation to authorize and direct the metropolitan park commission to construct a roadway from Harland street to Hoosicwhisick pond over land of the commonwealth in the town of Milton; for authority to construct a drawless bridge over the Acushnet river, between the city of New Bedford and the town of Acushnet; for legislation to require street railway companies to enclose the platforms of cars, and to provide penalties for any failure so to do; for legislation to provide for the transportation of the bicycles of passengers as baggage.

Mr. Carey introduced a bill making eight hours a day's work for all state and county employes; for changing the age limit of child employes from 14 to 16 years. The latter bill also provides that no person shall employ a minor who cannot read and write unless such minor attends evening school.

Attributed to British Greed.

Hartford, Jan. 13.—Professor Wheeler of Yale university spoke in denunciation of the attitude of the British in South Africa towards the Boers in a lecture given last evening in the South school hall. He said that whatever is the result of the present contest the British must lose in the end. Living on the islands and surrounded by an almost impassable wall, the English go through the world as if there was nobody else in existence. The Boers cultivated the soil and established institutions, but the English came in and took the fruits of their labor. He attributed all her interference in the Transvaal and Orange Free State affairs to greed and rapacity. Other claims made by the English were only excuses.

From Jail to State Prison.

Barnstable, Mass., Jan. 13.—State Officer Rhoades came to Barnstable from Boston yesterday, bringing with him the warrant of the governor directing Sheriff Chase to take Edwin R. Snow, the convicted murderer of James A. Whittemore, from the jail in Barnstable and deliver him into the custody of the warden of the state prison at Charlestown, there to be kept the rest of his natural life. Sheriff Chase expects to transfer the prisoner to Charlestown early next week.

Sensational Features Have Passed.

Washington, Jan. 13.—There are no developments here of interest in regard to the seized American flour and provisions. In fact, with the decision announced by the British government to Mr. Choate, touching the freedom of foodstuffs from seizure under ordinary conditions, the sensational features have passed from the negotiations, and all that remains now is to adjust certain small details.

Injured by Lamp Explosion.

Milford, N. H., Jan. 13.—A lighted kerosene lamp exploded in the residence of Henry A. Kirby last night, and Mrs. Kirby was seriously burned. The house was thoroughly gutted, and all the furniture ruined.

Excellent Openings on the Island For Americans.

CORDIAL WELCOME FOR GEN. WOOD.

Reforms Which the New Governor General Will Inaugurate—H. E. Hibbard's Story of a Visit to Havana—Ex-Mayor of Newton, Mass., Will Educate Young Cubans.

Ex-Mayor H. E. Hibbard of Newton, Mass., has recently returned from a trip to Havana, during which he had exceptional privileges of intimate conversation with General Leonard Wood, the new governor general, who went down to his new duties on the same steamer with Mr. Hibbard and who, in the course of the voyage, told, as a man tells his friend, how he proposed to conduct the affairs of the island, some of the first reforms he intended to inaugurate and his general ideas of control and organization. Mr. Hibbard consented to talk with a reporter for the Boston Herald on his trip and especially on his interviews with General Wood, for whom he has conceived a great admiration.

"General Wood," said Mr. Hibbard, "is the man that Cuba has been waiting for, and the beauty of the situation is that the Cubans know and appreciate his worth. The first thing he will do, according to the statements he made to me in the course of our long and familiar talks on the trip down on the steamer City of Mexico, is to untangle the currency problem. In Santiago province, where General Wood has been in power, American money is in circulation, exclusive of everything else, and there has even been a little premium on Spanish silver on account of its scarcity. But in Havana there is a disagreeable uncertainty about money. American gold is now at a premium of 28 per cent, and Spanish silver has a premium of 32 per cent over the paper currency of the island. When you pay for goods purchased in American gold and receive change in Spanish silver, it takes a professor of mathematics to know whether you are being cheated or not. So most people content themselves by looking as wise as they can while the counting is going on and pocket whatever the merchant is pleased to give them. I venture to say that within three months American money will have crowded out the rest in Havana, as it has in Santiago, under the management of General Wood. Another matter to which the new governor general will devote his attention is the reorganization of the courts. There are said to be 600 men now in prison in Havana about whose incarceration there is more or less mystery.

"The educational system of the island will also be thoroughly organized so that all children shall have the opportunity to acquire at least the rudiments of learning. I was furnished with passes to all the government institutions of Havana and visited several schools, but found none worthy of the name. In one of them, which was located in a series of rambling buildings around a central court, the head master was making his rounds of inspection to oversee the work being done by his subordinates in the various rooms. This functionary was devoting most of his attention to a plump young pig, which he led about by a string attached to one of the hind legs of the quadruped. When I asked him, through my interpreter, what he was going to do with the animal, he replied that he expected to eat him when Christmas came and meantime wanted to be sure that no one stole him, so kept him in sight all the time. The students in this school were about half of them negroes and seemed to be doing very little work as far as I could see.

"Notwithstanding the miserable schools of Havana, a tremendous eagerness to learn English is now appearing. The very bootblacks will shine your shoes for nothing but the privilege of getting a chance to talk with you for a few minutes. In response to this general demand there are numerous private schools springing up which advertise to teach the English language promptly. But they are all managed by Cubans, few of whom can speak English well themselves. In one private school I visited, calling itself a 'college,' the lesson for the day was written on the blackboard. It consisted of the word 'baby' and its pronunciation, which was spelled 'babe.' I think there is a fine opening for bright American teachers, for any one can get pupils at the rates given by the school just mentioned—$8.50 per month for beginners, day only, and $31.80 per month for the boarding pupils. These figures are for the rates reckoned in American gold.

"In speaking of his intentions regarding the officeholders of Havana, General Wood said, a little grimly, that he intended to make officeholding a disagreeable business, so that there might be fewer applications for 'plums.' It seems that the business hours in the city and insular government have been regulated according to the leisurely Spanish notions. If an officer feels energetic, he strolls down to his desk the middle of the forenoon and goes to breakfast at 10 o'clock, from which he returns at 1, devoting the time from that hour till 5 to labor. Sometimes they do not go to the office at all in the forenoon, but if they do there is seldom more than an hour's work done before breakfast. Wood's plan, as outlined to me in the last talk we had before I left Havana, is to require his officeholders to be at their desks from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., with an hour off for lunch. This will secure the accomplishment of an increased amount of work by a smaller number of men, as well as the saving of large expenses to the government.

"Some of these policies are likely to lessen Wood's popularity in some quarters, but nothing could exceed the enthusiasm with which he was received by the people, including the most prominent Cubans, on his arrival. The modesty of the man was shown by his attempting to avoid the demonstrations prepared for him at the landing. It was 4 o'clock in the morning, off the coast, when we were boarded by some representatives of the Cuban Veteran association asking the general to receive their public welcome. After some demurring, he agreed to do so, and then, after being advised by his friends, reluctantly went below to his cabin and exchanged the citizen's clothes he had worn during the voyage for his officer's uniform. Then, about 6 o'clock, when we had anchored up in the harbor, a tugboat came alongside, bringing Colonel Richards, representing General Brooke; Colonel Scott, representing General Ludlow, and other officers, who asked General Wood to come ashore with them and participate in the ceremonies which had been arranged for his official welcome to the island. Here was a quandary, but General Wood took the bull by the horns and declined to accompany them, on the ground that he had already given his promise to the Cuban Veteran association. This gained the hearts of all the Cubans in the city at the very start, who saw his career as commander begin by allying himself on the side of the Cubans, rather than with the military officials.

"At the banquet given in the Tacon theater a few days later, on Dec. 23, in honor of Senor Rubens, attorney for the Cuban junta, every mention of General Wood was received with the wildest cheers. I sat in one of the boxes and was never so moved in my life as at hearing the addresses made by some of those grizzled old Cuban veterans, expressing their joy at the final success of their long cherished ambitions now that a man whom they trust has come to take command of the island and prepare the way for a final handing over of the sovereign power to the Cubans themselves.

"To go back to the day of our landing, General Wood was installed at high noon as governor general of Cuba, and at 6 o'clock that night he had arrested eight custom house officers and put them in jail for embezzling the funds and robbing the government of revenues. That is the sort of man General Wood is, and he will keep the dry bones rattling in Havana until things are of a different complexion all around the island.

"If I were a young man looking for a place to settle and make money," continued Mr. Hibbard, "I would go without delay to Havana, which seems to me to be fairly bristling with opportunities. The Cubans are extending the most cordial welcome to Americans, whom they seem to admire and regard as a superior order of beings and whose habits and customs they are ready to adopt for themselves. A Cuban commission merchant told me that in the 30 years he had been in business in Havana he had known no failures in his line of business. All accounts are squared up once a week, every Saturday.

"Fine profits, with small chance of loss, are obtained by lending money to the planters, taking as security not only a mortgage on the land, but an additional lien on the crop. When the cane is brought to the mill to be ground, its amount is carefully registered, so there is no chance for the planter to avoid payment and claim he had no crop. The young American men, including many college graduates, whom I saw in Havana all agreed that it is a fine field and were so advising their friends.

"At my request General Wood is going to select some promising young Cubans, perhaps the sons of some of the old generals, and send them up to Massachusetts to be educated at my expense. They are very bright fellows and only need a little training in American ways to become the best and most enthusiastic of American citizens. Then, returning to their own people, they will act as missionaries of Yankee civilization and form the beginning of a strong bond of union between Cuba and the United States."

GOLD IN A DUCK'S CRAW.

Nebraska Farmer Thinks There Is Yellow Metal on His Land.

John Boss, a prominent farmer living in Loup township, about 13 miles west of Columbus, Neb., has every reason to believe that there is a gold deposit on his farm. He killed one of his large domestic ducks for Thanksgiving dinner and found in the craw small particles of what he believed to be gold.

He thought little of the matter until he killed a couple more ducks for the New Year dinner, when he found two larger pieces. He brought these to town, and they were tested by a jeweler, who pronounced them gold of about 16 carat fineness, says the Chicago Times-Herald. The largest piece weighed nearly three pennyweights and is worth $1.95.

Mr. Boss' farm lies along the south bank of the Loup river, and he intends to do some prospecting in the early spring. It is believed that the fowls picked up the gold in a small sand bottomed creek which flows into the river near the place.

Their Chance Is Good.

If Americans shall not get their full share they will have themselves to blame, says the Philadelphia Record. The announced common understanding in favor of the policy of the "open door" on the part of Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia and Japan, secured upon the initiation of the United States, makes the way clear for safe mercantile adventure and investment.

DEAD BODIES IN SURF

Probability That She Carried a Crew of Sixty.

Escape Was Hopeless and Everyone on Board Is Believed to Have Perished.

Halifax, Jan. 13.—There is still no news of the identity of the large unknown steamer ashore at St. Mary's Bay, N. F., and reported on fire. Two steamers have been sent from St. John's to St. Mary's Bay to the ill-fated ship. Bodies are reported washing on the beach. All advices tend to confirm the belief that the burning steamer was oil laden. It will be late this afternoon before the wrecking steamers can reach St. Mary's Bay. The following comprises all the details thus far obtained concerning the wreck:

The ship is a two-masted steamer of nearly 3000 tons, and probably carried a crew of 60, with possibly some passengers. She went ashore before daybreak on Thursday, striking a ledge at the foot of the cliff, where escape was hopeless. The crew launched the boats, but, probably, during the panic some were crushed against her sides, others being swamped, and all the occupants apparently perishing.

The ship was seen to be on fire by residents six miles away. Attracted to the scene, they found the after half of the wreck blazing, and the fore part under water. Kerosene in the cargo helped the blaze.

At that time only three men were left on board. Two were on the bridge and one was in the rigging. Those on the bridge were safe until about 2 p. m., when they were washed overboard and drowned, the bridge being carried away.

The survivor soon afterwards left the rigging, swam to the rocks and twice endeavored to get a footing. Failing in this, he made his way back to the rigging, where he died of exposure during the night.

Many dead bodies are visible tossing in the surf. Two of them were thrown up in a cove, but cannot be reached, owing to the heavy sea. One is thought to be the body of a woman.

Boats and other wreckage are strewn among the rocks for miles. Yesterday was more stormy than the day before, and it was impossible to reach the wreck, which has gone to pieces to such an extent that it has sunk beneath the waves. A severe gale is raging, which is likely to reduce her to fragments. The wreck commissioner hopes to be able to obtain her name today.

Residents along the shore made every possible effort to rescue the survivor in the rigging, but, lacking proper outfits, they were unable to succeed.

There is not the slightest prospect that any soul on board escaped death, as the intense mid-winter cold would kill any who escaped drowning.

A messenger who has just arrived from Peters river reports that a trunk, filled with women's clothing, has been washed ashore there, as well as a garment, which is either a water proof cape, such as would be used by a woman, or a man's overcoat. Nearby was found some underwear, evidently a man's, marked with the initials "J. J." This seems to indicate that the ship had some passengers.

Good Comfort For Labor Men.

Boston, Jan. 13.—Mayor Hart was waited upon by a delegation from the Central Labor union yesterday to get from him answers to numerous questions on municipal labor matters. The mayor listened attentively to the spokesman of the visitors, but when the latter ended Mr. Hart said he would not make reply to the suggestions at once, and that he would not write any letters to the labor organizations on the subject. The delegation offered to call for an answer, but Mayor Hart said that they need not call; that he would try to run the city in the best manner possible for the citizens. When the spokesman of the visitors tried to expostulate, the mayor declared it was unnecessary to go into the matter further. The delegation left in an angry frame of mind.

Looking Toward Uncle Sam.

City of Mexico, Jan. 13.—There is much comment in the press regarding an article in the London Spectator which predicts that some day Europe will attempt the partition of South America, Germany taking Brazil. The press comment is to the effect that the Latin-American countries should join in a league for a common defense, and that if the United States joins, making a Pan-American alliance, it should guarantee the territorial and political independence of the Latin-American countries.

Quincy Got It.

Boston, Jan. 13.—Josiah Quincy was elected first vice president of the Democratic city committee last evening, after a stormy session, by a vote of 184 to 97. The ex-mayor's election was preceded by bitter opposition, led by President Kiley of the common council, who made this threat from the floor: "The honest Democracy, which I represent, will fight Josiah Quincy politically, so long as he lives," and the threat was echoed by others of the opposition speakers.

Two Men Badly Hurt.

Candia Depot, N. H., Jan. 13.—A dynamite explosion occurred at Patten's Crossing yesterday, where a gang of railroad men were at work blasting. A blast had been made, and one of the cartridges had failed to explode. In clearing away the debris a workman accidentally struck the unexploded cartridge and there was an explosion. Ira Gadbois and Moses Blane were seriously hurt, and the latter may lose his eyesight.

"MIDDLE GROUND" SEASON.

General Business Situation Reported as Being Fully Up to the Average.

New York, Jan. 13.—Bradstreet's says: Quietness as to demand, but marked steadiness as to prices is still the leading feature in trade lines, a condition not uncommon at this stage of the year, which is a sort of middle ground between stock taking and inventory time and the actual opening of the spring season. Naturally, the ascertainment and discussion of the results of last year's trade occupy an important place, and all such features coming to hand this week are of a character to accentuate the satisfaction with which the results of 1899 are viewed.

Unexcelled railway earnings, the highest level of prices for nearly 9 years and record breaking statistics of production in many lines are among features revealed. Aggressive strength in prices is confined to a few staples such as pork products, which are firmly held on a rather tardy recognition of the fact that supplies, both of live hogs and of dead meats, are far from burdensome.

The bearish pressure on cotton has not been relaxed this week, but the disproportion between the decline in spots and options would seem to point to the bear campaign having been less profitable than hoped for. Domestic cotton manufacturing is apparently highly prosperous, southern mills being especially well employed, while low water in the streams affects New England production.

What few lines of next season's woolen goods have been opened are at advances, ranging from 25 to 35 percent, and much interest attaches to the reception that will be given these increased quotations. Pending the settlement of this, raw wool is dull, but firm, and speculation is naturally light.

Iron and steel are extremely quiet, but signs of weakness are not numerous, the shading in pig iron being confined to a few grades and markets.

Cereals have been almost hopelessly dull this week on the "hand-to-mouth" foreign demand. Stocks are large and crop reports are in the main favorable, but shore sellers are nervous, in view of possible foreign complications. Price changes, not only in wheat, but in corn and other grains, are the smallest noted for many weeks past.

Hides are dull at the east, but considerable buying is reported west, and quotations are fairly firm. Unseasonably fine weather has affected sales of foot covering, and this is reflected in a rather quieter market for boots and shoes for immediate consumption. Leather, however, remains quite firm, notwithstanding.

Did Morrison Kill His Wife?

New York, Jan. 13.—Alfred Morrison, who shot and killed one of his wives, with whom he was living in Mount Vernon, is under arrest on the charge of murder in the first degree. Morrison, on the night of Dec. 28, shot his wife, Alida, and she died the following day. He told a pitiful tale of how the shooting was the result of fright occasioned by a dream of burglars. The woman herself, knowing that death was certain, said that the shooting was accidental and attributed it to the same cause as Morrison did. The coroner's jury exonerated him. Some days later Morrison's first wife, whom he married many years ago under the name of Gordon, gave out the information that the man was a bigamist and had practically abandoned her, and from that on facts placing to Morrison in a bad light have been developed. District Attorney Andrews claims that he has sufficient evidence to prove that Morrison, in shooting his wife, committed a deliberate and premeditated murder.

Curious Condition of Affairs.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Before the completion of the Siberian railroad it has become necessary to reconstruct the work already done, and this will cost not less than $25,000,000. The information is supplied to the state department by Commercial Agent Greener at Vladivostok. In the haste of construction and the anxiety to get everything cheap the road was laid with a 12-pound rail instead of a 24-pound rail. The bridges were built of wood, and crossings were made far apart. Consequently more than 20 miles an hour cannot be made on the level with safety. To add to the danger there has been put on the line one of the heaviest engines in existence—the compound system.

Guy's Coliseum—"No Place Like Home."

Good Afternoon.

The Legislative tax committee of the State of New York seems to be on the right track. It proposes to pay State expenses out of taxes levied by the State and collected by the State from holders of mortgages and from banks and trust companies. The report to the Legislature says the State is already collecting $10,000,000 a year. The holders of mortgages, it is said, can be made to pay $10,000,000 more, and the banks and trust companies the remainder. In return the mortgage holders are to be exempted from all local taxation on their mortgages. There is no corresponding return to the banks and trust companies. On the contrary, the holders of such stocks will have to stop deducting their debt from the value of the bank stocks they hold. Just now the holders of all kinds of stocks can swear off a part of all of the value by claiming indebtedness to the amount sworn off. In this way a great amount, many save practically three-fourths the bank, trust company and other securities held in this State, escapes taxation altogether. By the new method this tax will be enforced. There will be no escape, because the banks will have to pay and because the assessment will be on the capital surplus and undivided profits added together. This assessment will be at the rate of one per cent. and the market value of the stock will be disregarded altogether.

In referring to the elevation of the Wollaston sewer in yesterday's Ledger reference was made to elevations such as 11 feet and the like giving a good many people the idea that the sewer was elevated that height in the air. This of course is not so. Elevations are referred to a datum which is 100 feet below mean low water of Boston Harbor and 100 feet below Boston city base. Thus an elevation of 110 feet would actually mean 10 feet above low water mark.

The suggestion of the lots at the corner of Washington and Coddington streets for the government building meets with almost unanimous favor, and it is hoped that the bill will be speedily passed by Congress. It is an ideal location, and if it is possible the city or the Library Trustees may assist financially in the purchase, so that a pretty public building may be erected within the appropriation of $100,000.

The sewer outlet question will come up in the City Council on Monday. Mayor Hall realizes the necessity of prompt action, and has already enlisted the help of the Selectmen of Weymouth, Hingham and Hull.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Haverhill's city government is monkeying with the buzz saw. In other words, a resolution has been introduced to cut the pay of city laborers from $2 to $1.60 a day in view of the reduction in the hours of labor from nine to eight.—Brockton Times.

☞ No matter what your future success, even though it should wholly differ from what you desire or fancy today, prepare for it nevertheless today, for there are certain principles that are fundamental with every true success, such as a healthy body, a healthy soul, a feeling heart, a clean conscience, a well stocked mind, a well trained eye and ear and heart, a well grounded faith in God, and a well experienced regard for His moral law. These are the fundamentals of every true success, be it that of a ruler or warrior or scholar, of scientist or merchants or mechanic.—Rabbi Krauskoff of Philadelphia.

☞ And now some newspapers are saying that any man who makes a century out of 99 years would pay only 99 cents on the dollar. That would be no reproach. If every debtor in the country were to offer to pay 99 cents on the doller, every creditor would gladly accept.—Columbia Spy.

☞ New York will soon have about everything there is in Boston but a few revolutionary war and blue blood societies and the neglected fountain on the common, for which it has no use. It is quite likely to assume proprietorship of the Legislature in the immediate future.—Milford Journal.

☞ Every newspaper man in the land will commend the good advice given a young lady by an esteemed rural contemporary in the following, "A girl wants to know 'if it is true that kissing will cure freckles?' We wouldn't say positively, but a simple recipe like that is worth trying. Call after business hours."—Beverly Times.

☞ It is fair to presume the gypsy moth people did not read the governor's message, otherwise they would not have taken the trouble to run in their annual bid for a $200,000 appropriation. Gov. Crane stated distinctly it is time to call a halt in the expenditure of money by the state, and the people will look to him to give a black eye to any such money-grabbing scheme as the one proposed by the gypsy moth commission.—Brockton Times.

☞ When I buy for a dollar wha costs two, then there has been a waste somewhere; someone has suffered loss. My exultation should be tinged with sorrow. Really I can't recall a bargain counter at which the faces of "the line up ready for the signal" indicated just this particular kind of sorrow; but the lack is probably due to thoughtlessness. Nevertheless I maintain that the struggle of the merchant for my trade and my struggle to find the merchant who must meet my demands of much for little is pathetic.—Sciolus in Milford Gazette.

☞ During the progress of the Seery murder trial, stenographers took 375,825 words, for which they were paid $1,685.71. Other expenses carried the amount up to $1917.96. This is one item of expense which goes to show that murder trials are costly.—Dedham Transcript.

☞ Years ago—almost fifty in truth—Charles Sumner said in a speech; "I shrink from no expansion where freedom leads the way." Some of the expansion speeches of the latter day somehow lack the ring of that true theory of true American expansion.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ To what and where are we drifting? It is estimated that within the city limits of Boston last Sunday there were more people congregated on the ice ponds than were gathered within the churches.—Weymouth Gazette.

Municipal Franchises.

The New Bedford Mercury idea is, from a study of the question and the discussion by the mayors of the commonwealth, that there should be a limit in years to all franchises. Cities should have authority to build and own street railroad track and underground wire conduits, but should not at present engage in the operation of street car lines or in furnishing lights for commercial purposes. If a city desire it should have the privilege of lighting its streets without buying existing lighting plants, as the law now insists. If cities did their own street lighting we do not believe property rights would be endangered and there should be a uniform law. As it stands Fairhaven may light its streets with a plant of its own, because there is no lighting company doing business there, but New Bedford may not do the same thing because the law requiring the city to vote year after year consecutively to buy the great plant now in operation there is practically prohibitive.

The Mercury repeats the proposition that the only prospect of scientific relief from conditions which the entire state is rising against is in a revision of the laws relating to roads and franchises, and that the Mayors' club should take up the matter and petition the legislature for its appointment.

Mind and Body.

How Mental Suggestions May Be Made to Combat Disease.

If an individual has faith in a medicine or in a treatment, he will assuredly derive more benefit from the medicine or treatment than if he were skeptical as to its merits, says The Medical Record. There can be little doubt that the sympathetic physician is the one best calculated to lead his patient to recovery. Again, in many diseases the good that may be wrought to the sufferer by the agency of mental suggestion is undeniable. Professor J. M. Baldwin, referring to this fact in connection with insomnia, says:

"In experimenting upon the possibility of suggesting sleep to another I have found certain strong reactive influences upon my own mental condition. Such an effort which involves the picturing of another as asleep is a strong auto-suggestion of sleep, taking effect in my own case in about five minutes if the conditions be kept constant. The more clearly the patient's sleep is pictured the stronger becomes the subjective feeling of drowsiness. An unfailing cure for insomnia, speaking for myself, is the persistent effort to put some one else asleep by hard thinking of the end in view, with a continued gentle movement, such as stroking the other with the hand."

Dr. E. C. Spitzka of New York has recently given some really remarkable instances of the power of mental suggestion. He cites the well known fact that the mortality from wounds and diseases in a defeated army compared with a victorious army is as 4 to 3 and even 3 to 2. He also refers to the incontrovertible fact that persons in robust health have been known to die apparently of starvation after being without food for from three to five days. Dr. Spitzka is of the opinion that these individuals did not die of actual starvation, but from the physical effects of the hunger. The proof of this contention lies in the fact that persons have been known to fast of their free will for more than 40 days without injuring their constitutions to any appreciable extent.

Many examples establishing the truth of this statement might be given, but it will be sufficient to quote one from Dr. Spitzka's paper. He says:

"In the graver form of hysteria, when loss of sensation occurs in exactly one-half of the body, you can lay a piece of tinted paper on the sensitive side, then suggesting it to be a mustard plaster a red area will appear on the corresponding unsensitive side. Blisters of such a character that scars have permanently remained from them have been produced in similar cases by the same method."

The medical profession, it appears more than likely, has not as yet wholly appreciated the advantages to be derived from the employment of mental suggestion.

Comb and Scissors Combined.

A new hair cutting implement, combining the comb and scissors, is for the convenience of the barber, and it is claimed for this tool that it greatly facilitates the operation of cutting or trimming the hair and furthermore cannot pull the hair, as do frequently the scissors and the clippers which it displaces. This device includes in its construction a pair of scissors, the lower blade being provided with a comb which in operation is next to the head. By its use the thorough distribution of the hair strands over the cutting edge is assured and the hair evenly cut. To sharpen or clean the blade it is simply necessary to detach a screw and swing the comb outward the proper distance so as to easily reach the blade with a whetstone or the like.

Healthful Cars.

The American Academy of Railway Surgeons is moving in the direction of making railroad cars more healthful. It long has been felt by the profession that reform in the hygiene of railway travel is imperatively needed, and the new movement promises to be both active and effective. It is shown that the material used in furnishing railway coaches—plushes and velvet cushions, woolens and draperies of every kind—afford the best possible nest for the protection and preservation of germs, and they are also the most difficult to clean. It is now recommended that cars be finished and furnished with a smooth surfaced material, like hardwood or leather, which, while capable of being quickly cleaned, will lend itself to the most tasteful arrangement. Not only should plush, velvet and drapery be almost entirely done away with, but there should be less embossing and carving in the ornamentation of the cars. The tendency in this country in the matter of decoration is to extravagance, and in railway cars this overelaboration greatly increases the labor of keeping the cars clean.

A Canadian Invasion.

[From the Braintree Observer.]

Having read lately a lot of nonsense paper talk of a successful invasion of Canada, by way of the United States, I will try to mention a few of the obstacles which would confront the nature things have to be overcome before permanent footing could be gained by the invading army.

The enrolled militia of the Dominion of Canada consists of about 35,000 all ranks and is distributed nearly as follows: Two regiments and a brigade of garrison artillery in Halifax, N. S. St. Johns, N. B., has a garrison artillery brigade, with a school of infantry in Fredericktown; Charlottetown, P. E. island, has an artillery organization; Quebec P. Q., has a school of artillery, and one of cavalry stationed in the citadel, and has also a brigade of garrison artillery as well as two infantry regiments. There is a school of infantry in St. John's, P. Q. Montreal has field artillery batteries and infantry regiment. Toronto has three infantry regiments with a cavalry and infantry school. Kingston has an artillery school as well as her military college. The northwest mounted police has an effective force of 1,000 men.

The "schools" are permanent, they do regular duty of their three years of enlistment, a large percentage of their enlisted men are composed of ex-British soldiers; they are armed with up to date weapons and some of their artillery detachments have competed at the English school of gunnery. Shoeburyness have more than shown the English artillery, volunteers and regulars, how to burst a shrapnel shell and fire at a moving object. Many of the old soldiers of the schools have been under fire in one way and another.

In addition to the foregoing enrolled militia the militia and defence act provides for a levy en masse to all able bodied men between the ages of 18 and 60 years. I have not estimated the number of British soldiers of different arms who are stationed in Halifax, although no doubt they would take a hand in the scrimmage.

The foregoing are some of "the resources of civilization" that an invading force would be likely to meet if they got across the line, and here is where "the shoe would pinch." Would it be possible to equip an organized force and march them through a friendly country without the government of that country taking steps to restrain them? We nearly all know, the greatest novice in the game of war must know, that merely loading a man up with a rifle, bayonet and sixty or seventy rounds of ammunition is not all that is wanted.

Transportation for ammunition, baggage, commissariat for the troops, tent equipage, a medical staff, forage for horses, and a thousand and one things that it is impossible to enumerate here, and which could not be carried round in your knapsack. To keep an invasion like this a secret so as not to embarrass the United States government would be nearly impossible. The secret service men would get the tips from traitors in the ranks, the governments of the interested countries would take the necessary steps, and it would be more than likely that the whole affair would "peter out" before a shot could be fired.

John Simpson.

DANGERS OF KISSING.

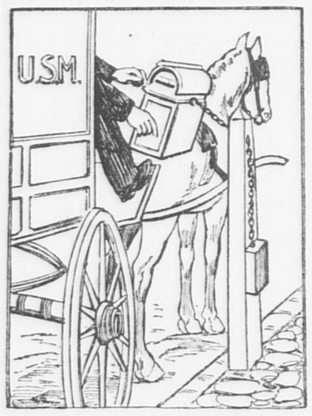

Dentists Show Why the Habit Should Be Abolished.

"Decay of the teeth, or, as we call it, caries of the teeth," says a dentist, "is due to the presence of bacteria. Bacteria can be conveyed from mouth to mouth by kissing. Therefore no matter how fine a set of teeth you have, if you kiss a person who has decayed teeth you will soon need my services. A young woman whom I know and who by inheritance possessed a marvelously perfect set of teeth, was robust and of extremely cleanly habits used to come to me and have her teeth cleaned when only the closest scrutiny could detect the stains which she wished removed. Up to the age of 19 she never needed a filling. About that time she brought to my office a young man whom she introduced as her fiance. He wished my professional services, and I gave to him an appointment. An examination disclosed a filthy mouth. It was necessary to use corrective agents before I could tolerate him. Had it not been that he was engaged to marry a girl whom I knew to be ideally hygienic, I should not have given to the cleansing of his teeth the amount of attention which I did, because I recognized in him a man careless of his teeth and breath, who would be unappreciative of my efforts. It required three sittings to get his teeth into a semblance of cleanliness, and then he refused to have the gaping carious caverns filled. I remonstrated. I spoke of the perfect teeth of his intended. He laughed carelessly and asked what difference it made to her. I explained. I could do no more. They were married, and before a year elapsed I was obliged to insert seven or eight fillings in her teeth. She now has a full set of artificial teeth.

"I knew a young man who had his teeth ruined by keeping company with a girl who had unclean teeth. She was good looking, but he did not marry her—something prevented. His teeth have not decayed since."

Up to Date Mail Collection.

Patents relating to improvements in postal facilities are one of the most prolific classes. These relate to improvements in the mail boxes and mail pouches, proposed methods of picking up and delivering mail from flying railroad trains, etc. Andrew L. Henry of Ladoga, Ind., has hit upon a startlingly novel arrangement in this already overworked field, but, like many of such inventions, it is probably impractical. It is a system of receiving and delivering mail for use in towns in conjunction with horse and wagon collections and is designed to enable the postman to make his rounds accomplished by attaching the mail boxes to their supports with a yielding fastening of some kind, such as a chain and weight. The box is shown in the illustration attached to a post by means of chains and is provided with a counterweight and a handle for greater convenience. The postman, it is supposed, drives up, reaches out his hand, grasps the handle and lifts the mail box into the wagon, where its contents are removed. It is then locked and gently lowered into its original position on the post.

The Life of Timber.

Oak piling in salt water sometimes lasts no longer than nine years, but it has been known to survive 40 years. In fresh water its life ranges from 8 to 30 years, with an average of 20; in dry land oak lasts from 8 to 20 years, with an average of 12 years. Cedar is good for 20 and chestnut from 12 to 40 years. One may ask why it is there is such a difference. One answer is the mineral ingredients of the soil affect the timber. In bridge timbers which are kept free from dirt accumulations oak has been known to last as long as 50 years. Yellow pine, if unprotected, runs all the way from 8 to 20 years, white pine from 8 to 18 years, Norway from 8 to 10 years, spruce from 5 to 10 years, fir from 10 to 20 years. Vertical timbers are found to last nearly twice as long as horizontal timbers.

How to Make Hair Grow.

Balzer in the Semaine Medicale recommends lactic acid as a remedy for baldness. The bald part is to be rubbed with a 20 per cent solution of lactic acid until the skin becomes inflamed. Then the treatment is suspended for a few days, to be resumed when the inflammation has subsided. Balzer claims that he has often observed a new growth of hair in the course of three weeks.

Patent Medicines In Mexico.

Mexico may be behind in some things, but she has some unique laws relating to patent medicines. Dr. Walker Ellis says that in Mexico if a baldheaded man buys a bottle of hair oil on which there is a label stating that the preparation will restore hair on a bald head, if it fails to accomplish the job he can have the seller arrested and thrown into jail.

Many low-priced imitation baking powders are upon the market. These are made with alum, and care should be taken to avoid them, as alum is a poison, never to be taken in the food.

SOCIAL DUTY.

The doorbell rings,
The portal swings,
My lady comes a-calling,
In velvet dressed,
Her veil close pressed;
The formal talk's appalling.

The style, the day,
The church, the play—
Whatever line she fancies;
Ten minutes pass;
She says, "Alas,
Time flies!" and off she dances.

No real word said
From heart or head
No thought to live in beauty;
Her list she checks;
What name's the next?
She's doing social duty.

A DIPLOMATIC ADVENTURE.

How an Effort Was Made to Obtain Possession of an Important Letter and the Result Thereof.

I was wandering through the grounds of a London exhibition one evening when a short, foreign looking man, clothed in evening dress, approached me and said in a low tone:

"Have I the honor of addressing Mr. Godfrey Vance?"

He handed me a letter, saying abruptly: "Be good enough to read this letter. It will serve to introduce me."

The communication was from Count Antonio Delarocca of Milan, whom I had aided some months before by carrying off for him a famous Greek statue from an English country house. It was very brief and merely said:

Sir—This letter will introduce to you my good friend, Herr Fritz Moskovitz, who is anxious for you to undertake for him a difficult mission. I have told him that you are the one man in England who can hope to carry out such a work with success, and, wishing you all good fortune, believe me, yours, DELAROCCA.

We left the exhibition grounds at once, going to my abode.

"In the first place, my good sir," he exclaimed, talking in an excited undertone—"in the first place I must tell you that this business is difficult almost to the point of impossibility. Friday morning next about 3 o'clock Count Rodeholtz will cause to be posted or post with his own hand at the pillar box facing his house in Percy street, Mayfair, a certain letter addressed to the Berlin foreign office. It is absolutely vital to me and to the cause I represent that that letter should never reach its destination, and I am commissioned to pay $10,000 to the man who will hand that letter to me intact—exactly as he finds it."

"Is not 3 a. m. rather an unusual hour for the dispatch of diplomatic communications?"

"Most certainly it is, but the count is not like other men. For the past four years—in fact, since he first came to the embassy—he has been in the habit of posting this document between 3 and 4 o'clock Friday mornings."

"I presume that the obvious and old fashioned method of obtaining the letter by force is out of the question. Otherwise we might waylay the person posting the letter, overpower him and depart with the document."

"Useless, quite useless, for it would simply mean that the outrage would be discovered almost immediately, and then the contents of the letter would be telegraphed to Berlin, defeating our plans most entirely. No; the essence of the whole affair, my good sir, is that the letter should be removed and handed to me without the embassy people having the slightest knowledge of the fact."

Next morning I went to Percy street, Mayfair, to survey the embassador's house. Thirty-one Percy street, the mansion in question, was a dull looking, gray abode exactly similar to the other houses in the street. Facing the house on the other side of the street was a pillar box—the receptacle, it seemed, where the count was in the habit of posting his communications to Berlin.

Had the pillar box been a receptacle easily shifted the matter would have been as easy as smoking a cigarette, for we should simply have had to divert the policeman on the beat away from the street by means of a fictitious drunken disturbance, and then we could have driven up in a van and carted the box away. But I must think of something else.

And then of a sudden there flashed upon me an idea, coming whence I knew not, but it seemed to me that a voice spoke in my ear, and this is what it said:

"Substitute another pillar box on the opposite side of the street. Placard the genuine box with a notice saying that it is temporarily disused and that letters are to be posted opposite. Clear the streets of the police by means of a row and wait with a van at the corner of the street till the document is posted. Swoop down, collar the box and drive off."

I jumped into a cab and drove to a certain hostelry in the East End where I knew I should find plenty of my pals, who for a few dollars would throw themselves into any adventure of the kind.

In a few words I conveyed to them what I wanted done. Two of the men, burly fellows, known as Jim Thursday and Bill East, were to devote their powers to quarreling and getting "run in" at the corner of Percy street, while another two were to keep watch at the corners of the street. The remaining man, Tom Rogers, was to assist me in depositing the pillar box and removing it when the time came.

Then a new difficulty arose. How was the pillar box to be obtained?

"What is to be done about getting a box?" I asked the men. There was silence for a moment, and then East, scratching his head, said gruffly:

"Try old Bennett, the iron founder in Goodge street, wot got five years' stretch for passin flash coin. 'E's out on ticket now and is up to makin a fancy pillar box as soon as wink at yer."

Having bidden them hold themselves at my disposal for final instructions, I went straight to Goodge street, where I found the worthy Bennett in a surly mood owing to slackness of trade. He smiled when I asked him if he could build for me a pillar box to the government pattern in the time at our disposal.

On reaching home I wrote briefly to Herr Moskovitz informing him of my scheme and adding that I hoped to have the pillar box and letter safely at my house between 4 and 5 on the following Friday morning. I asked him to be waiting at my residence to receive the document and to bring the promised reward with him, as I would only part with the letter in exchange for the same.

All went well, and on the following Friday morning the van with the pillar box, my assistants and myself set out for Percy street, where we arrived at 3:10. I noticed with satisfaction that the night was very dark, which fact was of course advantageous. I at once dispatched Thursday and East to do their "quarreling act," the other two men taking up their places at the corners of the street.

At 3 o'clock I heard loud shouts and curses proceeding from our two friends, and a moment later two policemen were hastening in the direction of the noise. The coast thus clear, we drove up to the embassador's house and in a twinkling deposited the dummy box, which was an exact duplicate of the genuine article on the opposite side of the street.

"Now for the notice of temporary disuse," I said with a laugh, and in an instant afterward the mouth of the genuine pillar box was closed with gummed paper and the following notice posted in front of the time table of postal deliveries:

Notice.—This pillar box being in temporary disuse, the public will oblige by posting communications at the temporary box across the road. By order.

This work completed to our satisfaction, my pal and I climbed back into our van and drove noiselessly down a side street, from which we could watch all that happened outside of Count Rodeholtz's mansion.

I confess that, hardened and experienced as I was, a terrible thrill of nervousness went through me as I stood in that van with my companion waiting. The return of the policemen from the station before the conclusion of the business would ruin all; nay, if a chance youth on the way home from a dance were attracted by the notice on the box and lingered to look at it, we might be equally overthrown.

It was therefore with a feeling of relief that amounted to positive joy that I beheld at about 3:15 the door of the house open and a young man, evidently the embassador's secretary, glide into the street. He held in his hand the letter, and I saw him run up to the genuine box and peer at it for a moment in surprise.

Then, with some expression which of course we could not catch at that distance, he crossed the road and, having deposited the letter in our box, returned with all speed to the house.

Not a soul was in sight—the street was silent as the grave. We quickly tore down the notice which had done us such good service and removed the paper from the mouth of the box. Three minutes later we were driving away quickly in the direction of my house. We arrived at 4 a. m. and found Herr Moskovitz awaiting us in intense excitement.

"Well," he cried, gesticulating with both hands, "well, have you succeeded?"

"Perfectly," I replied. "Here is the box and here is the key. We have not touched or looked at the letter, believing it to be private."

"You have acted well," he returned quickly. "And now to obtain the letter."

With hands that trembled so violently that he could scarce insert and turn the key the excited man knelt down and drew forth the envelope. As he looked at the superscription a cry of disgust escaped his lips, and he tore it open. One glance at the letter seemed to suffice, and it transformed him utterly. He strode across the room and shook his great fist in my face.

"Fool! Simpleton! Imbecile!" he yelled, each word having the malignity of a blow. "You have failed after all and made a fool of yourself and me."

He flung the letter at me and darted from the house, uttering curses as he rolled down the stairs.

I took up the letter and read these words:

Dere Mary Anne—Master sittin up late tonight, as per usual, with his blessed letter ritin and sich like. I 'ave a few minits to rite to say as 'ow I 'opes this finds you as it leaves me, in 'ealth an spirits, tho' dog tired, and please to meet me at the Marble arch at 3 sharp next Sunday, from your luvvin GEORGE.

I saw through the whole business at once. The man was merely a valet or butler, and the letter was a servant's communication to his sweetheart instead of an embassador's letter to his government. We had come away too soon.—Pittsburg Press.

A Social Formality.

"What do you propose to do with this man?" said the stranger in Crimson Gulch.

"We ain't goin to do nothin to him," said Rattlesnake Pete, "only jes' show him that we don't feel under no obligations whatsoever. We're goin to take him out an stan him up in a wagon under a tree with a rope aroun his neck, an then we're goin to drive off an not have any more sociability with him."—Washington Star.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC.—In the far country.—Luke xv, 11-24.

In answer to the charge of the Pharisees that He received sinners and ate with them Jesus spoke the three parables of this chapter—the parables of the lost sheep, the lost coin and the prodigal son. His purpose was to show that He had come into the world to seek and to save that which was lost. But in these parables He also touchingly pictured the anxiety of God to save the lost and the way of the lost soul back to God.

The prodigal son "in the far country" represents man in the far country of sin. Sin is indeed a far country. It is far away from God, our Heavenly Father. It is far away from heaven, our Father's home. To be in sin is to be separated from God, from home and from country and to be a wanderer and a sojourner in a land that is foreign to us. God has made us for Himself, for His home, and if away because of sin we are in a far country, and if we persist in our absence the separation will become an impassable gulf. This fact should cause us to hesitate, to pause and to consider "How may I return from the far country to my Father's home?" and to thank God that a way has been opened up by which we may return and receive a cordial welcome.

The return of the prodigal son to his father's house symbolizes the return of the sinner to his Heavenly Father's home. Life in the far country soon becomes unsatisfactory. We want to return. The prodigal did, and so sometimes will all who are away from God. The prodigal did return and thereby left an example which all may follow. Three things characterized the prodigal's return: 1. Thought. "He came to himself." He thought upon his condition, and this thought and reflection were produced by diversity. Thoughtlessness keeps many away from God. If we would think soberly of what we are away from God and what we may be if we return to God, more of us would return to God. 2. Resolution. Thought produced decision. He said, "I will arise and go to my Father." 3. Action. The prodigal not only resolved to return, but he arose and went. He acted up to his decision. Here many fail. They decide to return to God, but fail to act up to their decision. If we, like the prodigal, upon serious reflection, will decide to return to God and will do so, with confession of sin and with faith in Christ, we also shall be gladly received and cause joy upon earth and in heaven.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a "called meeting." At the proper time let the leader open on the topic and on closing call for some one else to take part who, when having finished, shall call upon another, and so on until all have been called and have responded. If any one should not be prepared, he may simply call upon some one else. This will make an interesting and spirited meeting.

Bible Readings.—Ezra iii, 8-13; Ps. xix, 7-14; xxiii, 1-3; li, 11, 12; Isa. i, 18, 19; xxxv, 8-10; lv, 1-7; Jer. iv, 1; Mal. iii, 7-12; Math. xi, 28; John iii, 16; xiv, 1-3; II Tim. iv, 7, 8; Heb. xi, 9, 16; I Pet. ii, 19-25.

Good Night.

There is a tender sweetness about some of our common phrases of affectionate greeting, simple and unobtrusive as they are, which falls like dew upon the heart. "Good night!" The little one lisps it as she toddles off to bed. Sisters and brothers exchange the wish, parents and children, friend and friend. Familiar use has robbed it of its significance to some of us. We repeat it automatically without much thought. But consider. We are as voyagers putting off from time to time upon an unexplored sea. Our barks of life set sail and go onward into the darkness, and we, asleep on our pillows, take no such care as we do when awake and journeying by daylight. Of the perils of the night, whatever they may be, we take no heed. An unsleeping vigilance watches over us, but it is the vigilance of One stronger and wiser than we, who is the eternal good. Good and God spring from the same root and are the same in meaning. "Goodby" is only "God be with you." "Good night" is really "God night," or "God guard the night." It would be a churlish household in which these gentle forms of speech were ignored or did not exist. Alike the happy and the sorrowful, day by day, may say "Good night!"—American Hebrew.

Going to Church.

There must be a motive above either laughter or tears if one is to receive permanent good at any service. Learning is sobriety. The emotions have their subordinate office, but the intelligence must not be ignored. Paul might have kept his auditor awake by a humorous story, but he preferred to let him sleep. We must learn to go to church because it is the church. The first effort may not accomplish its purpose, but along this line Christ reveals Himself. Attend church not for the sake of the messenger, but the message; not for the music, but the praise; not for the pulpit, but the pew. We confess to the ideal, but there is no real worship beneath it.—Presbyterian Journal.

On Thy Word.

Lord, forever at Thy side
Let my place and portion be;
Strip me of the robe of pride,
Clothe me with humility.
Meekly may my soul receive
All Thy spirit hath revealed.
Thou hast spoken; I believe
Though the prophecy were sealed.

Quiet as a little child
Weaned from the mother's breast,
By no subtlety beguiled,
On Thy faithful word I rest.
Saints rejoicing evermore,
In the Lord Jehovah trust:
Him in all his ways adore,
Wise and wonderful and just.

RUINS OF ARCHAIC HOUSES.

Interesting Discoveries Made on the Ute Reservation In Colorado.

More evidence of the antiquity of man on the American continent has just been discovered in southwestern Colorado. In constructing irrigation ditches for the government on the recently opened Ute reservation Thomas H. Wigglesworth unearthed ruins of a unique character. Mr. Wigglesworth was in Denver the other day, and his account of his discoveries indicates that they are of the highest scientific importance. He is a civil engineer who has lived many years in southwestern Colorado and is well trained in archæological research.

Tradition and other evidence lead to the belief that the cliff dwellers were the immediate forerunners of the modern Indians. The ruins found by Mr. Wigglesworth were undoubtedly once inhabited by a partially civilized people differing widely in habits from the races they preceded. It is his opinion that this earlier race lived in the fertile valleys and inhabited adobe houses instead of houses of stone. Evidences of such structures are distributed through scores of valleys and wide mountain canyons.

"The mud houses," said Mr. Wigglesworth to a reporter of the New York Sun, "occupied sites on the level ground and were surrounded by fields of grain. I have dug through mounds 75 feet long and 30 feet wide which represent the remains of the large adobe structures. In carrying forward the work on the large canal recently ordered by the government for the Utes, we uncovered the foundation of a circular structure which had one story underground. It is my opinion that the principal houses of these unknown people were two stories in height, one story above ground and one story below. The ruins which we excavated are perfectly round, and the foundation is as solid as on the day it was completed. It was apparently built tens of thousands of years ago. I can point out hundreds of mounds of a nature similar to the one we opened.

"We uncovered the most beautiful vase of antique workmanship I ever saw. The vase was black with age, and as the workmen of that region, especially the Indians, are superstitious in such matters, they threw the vase over the dump, and I had quite a task finding it again. The Indians will handle nothing that comes from the ruins, as they believe the relics are hoodooed. They say that the older ruins are the remains of former Moqui or Zuni life, but it is rare that a white man can induce a Ute Indian to express an opinion on the subject."

NOVEL TEMPERANCE PLAN.

In New Milford, a town of 3,000 inhabitants near Danbury, Conn., the unusual sight of nearly all the prominent citizens, church leaders and temperance advocates in the role of habitual frequenter of the saloons of the town may be seen now. This is the result of a novel crusade against the drink habit that has been instituted there.

On numberless occasions the good people of New Milford have risen in their might and smote the demon of intemperance mighty blows. Each time the crusade has been apparently successful, but as many times the saloon keepers have returned to their vocations, and the justices of the peace have dealt out sentences for drunkenness and disorder right and left in the usual manner within a few weeks after the crusades have apparently succeeded.

The latest plan is a novel one. Nearly every prominent citizen of the town has agreed to spend all his leisure in one of the saloons of the town, says the New York Times. He is not to occupy an obscure corner to watch the habitues of the place unobserved, but is to be one of the most prominent figures in the saloon. In this manner he will be enabled to observe who the confirmed topers of the town are, what their favorite beverages are and what the particular attractions of the saloons are.

Then the spectacle of well dressed, well fed and sober citizens in the barrooms is calculated to have an elevating effect on the regular frequenters of the places. The temperance men are not to attempt to take people from the saloons against their wishes and the natural desire of the proprietors. They are to make themselves as conspicuous as possible in front of the bar. Their appearance of respectability, their good clothes and pockets full of money are to be talking arguments againsa the habit of spending money for liquor.

The results of this novel reform are being watched for with interest.

Southern Enterprise.

A project is on foot in Savannah to purchase the big Spanish drydock at Havana and tow it to Savannah if it can be bought at a reasonable figure, says the Chicago Times-Herald. It is said Spain refused an offer of $250,000 for it. It was built in England and is reported to have cost $1,000,000.

Why Uncle Sam Smiles.

As Uncle Sam balances up his foreign ledger every month, says the Omaha Bee, he cannot help smiling as he sees the footings. The balance on the right side keeps right on growing, and when he gets ready to call for a settlement there will be a skirmishing on the other side.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

BULLER ON THE MOVE.

Has Advanced to Springfield After Having Dislodged the Boers.

Latter's Strength Augmented by Cape Colonists.

Londoners Are Treated to a Most Remarkable Scene of Enthusiasm.

London, Jan. 13.—Dispatches from South Africa indicate that General Buller is making a desperate effort to get to Ladysmith. Having found the Boer position in front of him on the Tugela river too strong to take by a frontal attack, he decided to advance by a round-about way.

General Buller's announcement of his forward movement of Thursday is interpreted as meaning that he has passed around the western end of the Boer lines at Colenso and is now several miles behind them and within 14 miles of General White's outposts at Ladysmith. The Boers, a few days ago, had forces with guns at Springfield, where General Buller dates his dispatch. These commandoes have been obviously dislodged, either by fighting or by maneuvers, the Boers retiring across the Tugela as General Buller advanced.

From General Buller's dispatch, coupled with the fact that unofficial intelligence from the seat of war has virtually ceased since Monday, the deduction is drawn that important operations are in progress, as he cannot move far without going against the Boer entrenchments.

The death lists from entric fever and dysentery at Ladysmith, averaging from six to 10 daily, are considered more serious than the 420 casualties of Saturday's fight, as they indicate the frightful insanitary condition of the beleaguered town. A letter from Ladysmith, dated Dec. 7, says that even then 90 out of 540 men in the battalion of which the writer was a member were sick with dysentery or entric fever, and, according to a dispatch to The Daily Chronicle, dated Jan. 8, the patients and attendants in Tombi camp, where the hospital is, then numbered 2800.

An apparently well-informed correspondent of The Morning Post says:

"The Boer strength, originally 83,000 men, is now heavily augmented by Cape Colonists, and the enemy's fighting forces may be estimated fairly at 100,000 men and 206 guns. The Boers are not compelled to guard the communications. Their grass is good, the crops are growing, vegetables, cattle and sheep are plenty, and game is abundant."

Remarkable scenes of patriotism were witnessed in London last evening after a short service held for the volunteers in St. Paul's cathedral. The vast audience was slow to disperse. Ladies stood upon the chairs, beckoning and calling to brothers, sons and friends in the ranks, the latter signalling back. A scene of great animation ensued. The organist introduced a few bars of the national anthem in concluding the voluntary. The effect of this was magical. First the volunteers and then the congregation took up the strains, and the vast cathedral was filled with enthusiastic song.

These demonstrations were renewed by immense crowds outside. St. Paul's churchyard and Ludgate Hill were black with people, and it was impossible for the volunteers to march.

Individual members were pulled out of the ranks by their friends and admirers, who raised them on their shoulders and thus carried them down Fleet street to the Temple. Those who escaped hoisting proceded slowly, surrounded by clinging women.

Afterwards, at the various theaters, where the men were entertained, and yet later, on returning to the barracks, these scenes were renewed, and the streets were filled until midnight with cheering people.

Reginald Wynne, chief of the yoemanry recruiting office, says he has refused offers of service made by Americans. Only Britishers are allowed to join. Consequently, he says, the report that several American rough riders have enlisted in the yoemanry is incorrect. Some Britishers, however, who are alleged to have seen service in the American army in Cuba, have been accepted.

The Duke of Marlborough has been accepted by the war office for service in the yoemanry.

Mr. Chamberlain has received telegrams from Ceylon, showing that the legislative council of the colony has voted to send 125 mounted, armed men to South Africa.

It is reported that the Earl of Ava, who was wounded at Ladysmith, has died. The Earl of Ava, who was born in 1863, was the eldest son of the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, the former governor general of Canada, viceroy of India and British ambassador to Paris.

As the earl never married, Lord Terence Blackwood of the foreign office, who married Miss Florence Davis, daughter of John H. Davis of New York city, becomes heir to the marquisate and the estates. The late earl went out as a war correspondent, although latterly he had been on General White's staff. Lord Basil Blackwood, the third son of the Marquis of Dufferin, is also in South Africa.

The Gazette proclaims the prohibition of the exportation from the United Kingdom or the carrying coastwise of a variety of acids capable of being converted into military stores.

Incendiary Causes $15,000 Loss.

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 13.—A large wooden barn, situated on the city farm, was burned last night, with five horses, five cows, eight pigs, a large quantity of hay, other fodder, and a number of farming implements and carriages. The fire was of incendiary origin, and caused a loss of $15,000. Thomas Lowery has been arrested, charged with setting the fire.

TWENTY GRAINS OF POISON.

Professor Witthaus Thinks That Was the Amount Swallowed by Mrs. Adams.

New York, Jan. 13.—Friday's proceedings in the trial of Roland B. Molineux were begun by recalling to the witness stand Harry S. Cornish and Mrs. Florence Eva Rogers to identify the glass from which Mrs. Adams drank.

Dr. Witthaus, the chemist, had produced this glass in court to tell of the analysis he had made of its contents. Cornish was not able to say where the glass was placed immediately after Mrs. Adams drank. Mrs. Rogers testified that she was certain the poison glass had been placed in a locked china closet and not disturbed until given to the police. She was shown the glass, and said that to the best of her knowledge it was the one from which Mrs. Adams drank.

The next witness, Herman J. White of Cincinnati, said he had obtained from a medical firm in that city exhibits "G," "M" and "N," bogus Cornish and Barnet letters, requesting certain remedies.

Dr. Witthaus was recalled. He said he received the poison glass from the police and had analyzed its contents. He found a little over 30 grains of mercuric cyanide in it. He told next of an examination of Mrs. Adams' stomach tissue, by which he found 3⅞ grains of cyanide of mercury. Altogether, in Mrs. Adams' body he found a little over 12 grains of mercuric cyanide—and he thought she had probably swallowed 20 grains of it.

Juror Edgar inquired why there was so much difference between the time of Barnet's death after taking poison, about six days, and the time of Mrs. Adams' death after taking supposedly the same poison. Professor Witthaus explained that there was a difference in the effects produced by the mixing of mercurial cyanide with Kutnow powder, as in Barnet's case, and the mixing of the same poison with a bromide. Professor Witthaus, in conclusion, said that the cause of Barnet's death was poison, in the absence of violence, and when asked if he would place his judgment against the judgment of the attending physician if the latter testified that the patient died of diphtheria, replied in the affirmative.

Weavers Imported From the South.

Pawtucket, R. I., Jan. 13.—Considerable consternation was caused in Lonsdale last evening by the arrival, from Greenville, S. C., of 22 weavers to take the places of those now on strike at mill No. 4 of the Lonsdale company. They were escorted to the boarding house of the company, and after supper a few of the weavers took a walk about town, and chanced to attend a social which was being given in aid of the strikers by the Blackstone Valley Weavers' association. They say that they were surprised to learn that a strike was in progress at Lonsdale, as they had been informed that there was no strike there, although there was some dissatisfaction among the weavers. A few of the new comers stated that it was unlikely that they would go to work, in view of the existing conditions. What action will be taken by the southern weavers is a matter of considerable speculation. Five members of the party are women.

Lively Demonstration at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Jan. 13.—The agitation caused by the failure of the St. Louis house of delegates to contract for electric lighting for the alleys, parks and city institutions culminated yesterday in a demonstration by citizens at the doors leading to the delegate floor. A crowd completely filled the corridors leading to the delegates' chamber. They howled, hooted and hissed and at times threatened to break in the doors. Somebody threw a noosed rope through the door. A page of the house was assaulted. At one time a revolver was drawn by the sergeant-at-arms of the house, and several times it looked as though bloodshed could not be avoided. The arrival of the police quelled the disturbance. Later a delegate informed the crowd that the majority of the house had given assurance that the lighting bills would be passed soon. The crowd then dispersed.

For Good of Public Service.

Havana, Jan. 13.—"Fededico Mora, fiscal of the supreme court, is hereby removed from office for the good of the public service. This removal is the result of an investigation into the conditions existing in the administration of justice under his supervision." The foregoing official order was handed to Senor Mora yesterday morning by Governor General Wood. Senor Mora's fall has been predicted ever since the first case was brought against the custom house officials, and the disgraceful condition of the prisons, especially as affecting those awaiting trial, has been generally charged against him.

Doctor Charged With Murder.

Middletown, N. Y., Jan. 13.—Dr. William T. Jones of Pine Bush has been held on a warrant issued by Coroner Decker, charged with the killing of Charles Lewis, his colored driver and cook. The death of Lewis was at first reported as a suicide, but the coroner's inquest revealed circumstantial evidence against Dr. Jones so pronounced that the coroner decided to hold him.

No Massacre Contemplated.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Relative to the reports in circulation some time ago of a contemplated massacre of Armenian Christians at the villayet of Harpoot, the state department has received from the United States minister at Constantinople information that no such massacre was threatened. Conditions at Harpoot are reasonably pacific and no cause exists for alarm on the Christians.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The weather conditions have moderated markedly in the past 24 hours. The rapid succession of highs and lows across the northern portion of the country has ceased, and no marked change will occur for the next 36 hours. The storm has moved to Newfoundland. The temperature has risen slightly in New England; elsewhere it has remained stationary. Threatening weather and snow flurries may be expected in northern New England. The temperature will slightly fall in New England. Fresh northwesterly winds, diminishing, may be expected on the north Atlantic coast.

LETTERS FROM AFRICA.

What British Soldiers Are Writing to Their Homes.

BOER KINDNESS TO PRISONERS.

How Captured British Are Being Cared For at Pretoria—Boers Say They Won't Exchange Officers at Any Price—How It Feels to Be Trapped—A Grim Picture.

The following extract from a British soldier's letter to his father is taken from the London Chronicle. Second Lieutenant C. E. Kinahan of the Royal Irish fusileers, writing to his father, Mr. G. P. Kinahan, Bagshott, from Staatsmodel Schule, Pretoria, says:

"We were all taken prisoners, together with the Gloucester regiment and a battery of mountain artillery, which accounts for us being in Pretoria so soon. We went out at night to occupy a hill right in the midst of the enemy in order to protect White's flank for an intended attack next day. Everybody knew that to be able to relieve us he would have to be entirely successful, and from what we hear he was not. As we were going up the hill in the dark a small party of Boers dashed through our ammunition mules, causing them to stampede. By this move we lost all our mules, 200, and with them all our ammunition and artillery. We started fighting at 5 a. m., and in a few hours' time the Boers were firing on us from all four sides, until by 2 o'clock they were firing at about 200 yards' range and doing fearful execution. You don't know what it means shooting at a Boer. He is behind a rock, and all you can ever see is his rifle sticking out. For the last hour of the fight I had a rifle and ammunition which I took from a dead man and blazed away for all I was worth. Then we fixed bayonets and prepared for a rush, when the cease fire sounded. We were all then taken prisoners, except two officers killed and eight wounded, and marched to the Boer laager and sent off that night to a station 20 miles distant in wagons. While we were in their laager they treated us extremely well and gave us food and tobacco. All you read about the Boers in England is absolutely untrue. They are most kind to the wounded and prisoners, looking after them as well as their own wounded, and anything they've got they will give you if you ask them, even if they deprive themselves.

"We came up to Pretoria in first class sleeping carriages, and the way they treated us was most considerate, feeding us and giving us coffee every time we stopped. The day we arrived we took up quarters on the race course, but we have been moved into a fine brick building, with baths, electric light, etc. They provide us with everything, from clothes down to toothbrushes. They also feed us, and we are constantly getting presents of vegetables and cigars from private people. In fact, we can have everything we like except our liberty. For some reason or other they won't at present give us parole, and we are surrounded by sentries. There are close upon 50 officers in this building, and they have got any number of wounded ones in different places. They say they won't exchange the officers at any price."

An exciting bit of outpost work is described in a letter from Private Albert James, serving with the mounted infantry, says The Westminster Gazette:

"Another of our fellows who was out scouting came across a nigger minding some sheep, or pretending to be anyway, and he had an Express rifle with him. So our chap loads his own rifle in the saddle, gallops up to him, dismounts and covers him with it, makes him put his rifle down and then go back a step or two. Our chap then goes and picks it up, questions him on different things, and he tells him there are no Boers knocking about. He is going to take him prisoner when all of a sudden he hears voices shouting 'Dick' and 'Joe.' So he leaves his prisoner and goes up toward the rocks until he is in speaking distance of them. Then he sees he has been led into a trap, and he mounts again and rides for his life. You can tell what shots they are. There were, I'll swear, at least 50 shots fired after him at random, and not one hit the mark.

"That was the commencement of the firing and we had to gallop and go as hard as ever our horses could take us over ground you would scarcely believe a horse could walk on. It was full of holes—some like rabbit holes, and lumps of rocks and stones and one thing and another for at least 10 or 12 miles. The colonel who is in charge of us wouldn't let us dismount and fire, as he said we should all be cut up, and they were too strong for us, as we were only a small party—and he has got a fine breast of medals—but, hang them, let's get it over. A month today and it will be a bit nearer, I hope. We chaps were swearing like 1 o'clock when he wouldn't halt us and let us have a packet at them, but I expect we shall have another pop at them."

Here is a grim picture from a private's letter: "One of our fellows was talking to a parson who went over the battlefield of Elandslaagte a day after the fight. He says there were terrible sights, the most awful of which was a Boer sitting down quite naturally, with a bayonet clean through him and about six inches of the muzzle of the rifle as well, while the Tommy who had given the mighty thrust was lying down as if asleep, with a small bullet hole in his forehead. The Boer was grasping the barrel of the rifle with both hands, and his eyes were staring out straight in front of him with a horrified look in them, as if he had seen a ghost."

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Keith's Theatre.

Beatrice Moreland, who was the handsome leading lady for Sol Smith Russell a couple of seasons back, is to be the headliner of the Keith show the week of Jan. 15, appearing in a one-act comedy sketch, "Taming a Husband," which has been very successful in other houses of the Keith's circuit. The New York World says that in this piece "Miss Moreland is given better opportunities to display her dramatic talent than in anything she has yet attempted." Houdini, the "king of handcuffs" has turned out to be such a wonderful entertainer that the management decided to keep him for at least another week. Other entertainers the week of Jan. 15 will be: Riley and Hughes, plantation singers and dancers; Irene Jerome, a famous mezzo-soprano; Lynch and Jewell, in a comedy sketch; Mr. Blanchard, a baritone vocalist; Charlie Chase, blackface monologue comedian, and Howard brothers, banjoists. The "Girl with the Auburn hair" is heavily underlined for appearance in the near future. Her vogue in New York and Philadelphia has been phenomenal.

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square theatre has found such a recognition of the enterprise shown in securing the new naval drama "With Flying Colors, and giving the play such a splendid production, that a third week of this attraction is announced, beginning Monday, Jan. 15th. The success which has attended this production in London, at the Adelphi theatre, has been duplicated at the Castle Square theatre and the scenes of enthusiasm which attend each performance best testify to its value as a dramatic attaaction. The leading characters in the play are admirably portrayed by the members of the Castle Square theatre stock company, and many notable individual successes have been made in the impersonation of the principal movers in the development of the strikingly effective plot. The great scene showing the deck of H. M. S. "Defiance," at the time of the gaities incidental to a naval ball, has proved the central scenic attractian of the play, but almost equal interest has been aroused by many other scenes, all of which are most artistic and realistic in their character. Other strong attractions are in active preparation and the melodrama "The Great Diamond Robbery" is announced for early production.

Tremont Theatre.

Mr. Robert E. Johnston, manager for Miss Mary Saunders, is devoting all his energies to the production of Harry P. Mawson's "Little Nell and the Marchioness" to make the presentation of this Dickens play the most complete in all its details that the American stage has ever known. All the scenery and properties and costumes are being made and gathered under the direct supervision of Mr. William Seymour. The previous version, of this book were in a measure panoramic of it and sketchy to a degree. These faults Mr. Mawson has endeavored to avoid and to weave out of the famous work a play that shall be photographic of the book and yet present a consecutive and well-balanced story which shall run throughout the play, a very difficult matter to successfully turn out. It is believed by those who have read Mr. Mawson's version of "Old Curiosity Shop" that he has succeeded in doing this to a remarkable degree. The play will be produced for the first time at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, January 22, Miss Mary Saunders playing the dual role. She is supported by such artists as Max Figman, John Jack, Chas. Stanley, William Seymour, P. Aug. Anderson, Harold Hartsell, H. J. Holliday, Lilly Eldridge and Anne Caverly.

Columbia Theatre.

Beginning next week, the engagement of Kirke LaShelle's new opera comique, "Princess Chic," at the Columbia Theatre and Promenade de Luxe. The book "Princess Chic" was written by Kirke LaShelle, the well known manager of the Frank Daniels Opera Company, "Arizona" and other productions of the very highest class, and the music was written by Julian Edwards, whose "Madeline; or the Magic Kiss," "The Jolly Musketeers," "Brian Boru," and other operas, have delighted Bostonians in former seasons. The company producing this opera is unequaled by any organization within remembrance. It includes no less than four star comedians, with all of whom Bostonians are quite familiar: Richard Golden, Harry Brown, J. C. Miron and Will Mandeville. What may be termed the singing contingent of the company is made up of Minnie Methot, Louise Hepner and Mathilde Preville.

The Welcome

At the door from a happy, healthy wife, is something which the husband looks forward to all through the day's labor. He may be tired, but his step lightens and his face brightens as he quickens his pace to receive the smiling welcome of his wife. What a difference in the home-coming of the man whose wife is nervous and gloomy, having neither heart nor strength to be glad. Many such a husband has worked a transformation in his home-life by learning of the cures performed by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It cures diseases of the delicate organs, builds up the nerves, induces refreshing sleep, and transforms the sickly woman into the happy helpmeet.

There is no alcohol in "Favorite Prescription" and it is absolutely free from opium, cocaine, and all other narcotics.

"My wife was sick for over eight years," writes Albert H. Fulte, Esq., of Altamont, Grundy Co. Tenn. "She had uterine disease and was treated by two physicians, but got no relief. At last I read in one of your Memorandum Books, about Dr. Pierce's medicines, and we decided to try his 'Favorite Prescription.' I sent to the drug store and got one bottle, and the first dose gave ease and sleep. She had not slept any for three nights. Being sure that it would cure her I sent for five more bottles, and when she had taken the sixth bottle she was sound and well. We now have a fine boy at our house."

"FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION"
MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG AND SICK WOMEN WELL.

Hard Drinkers In Chile.

Iquique, Chile, has the reputation of consuming more liquor per capita than any other place in the world.

I have never seen liquor of all kinds consumed in such quantities as here, but apparently there is very little drunkenness. The dry atmosphere and the atoms of sand that one is constantly inhaling excite an abnormal thirst, no doubt, and they say that the human system requires an unusual amount of stimulant to sustain the heat and fatigue of this climate. I am quite sure that this duty is not neglected, judging by the extraordinary excesses which are witnessed without comment daily and hourly at every club and hotel.

Half a dozen cocktails before breakfast—one man at Iquique is said to require 17 to start his machinery in motion—a bottle of Scotch or Irish whisky at breakfast, another at lunch, wines and cordials at dinner, brandy and soda every now and then during the day, alternating with copious and frequent drafts of beer and the same repeated all the evening, with a night-cap of whisky and a bottle beside the bed in case of a restless night—this is considered a moderate indulgence, and the way they mix things is amazing. I have seen a party of business men around a table at a club drinking cocktails, brandy and soda, beer, champagne, sherry and vermuth at the same sitting during business hours and return to repeat the performance several times during the day.—Chile Letter in Chicago Record.

The Engineer's Story.

"To run over a man—perhaps that's the only thing of all that shakes me. To see him on the track within 10 or 20 feet of you, to know that you can't stop to save him, to feel the wheels of the engine go over his body, crunching out his life—a man doesn't want to experience that more than once in a lifetime.

"It's worse with a child. There was an old mate of mine in the west when I was riding in the Union Pacific—never mind his name; he's dead now—as good an engineer as ever stood in a box, cool, nerve like steel, had been through three wrecks, a holdup and a fire. Well, one day Jim was a little behind his schedule and made like anything for the next stop. There was a crossing right in front of him. He saw that everything was clear, as he thought, and went right ahead, when all at once out of a clump of trees there ran a little golden haired fairy right in front of the engine. It was all over in one instant, and when the train stopped Jim dropped like a log. It was two months before he crept back again to work. But he could never come to that crossing but he saw the little girl with her hair fluttering in the wind running out from the trees. And one day he just got off his engine, turned it over to the second man and walked away, never to be seen again until his body was found in the river."—Leslie's Weekly.

English Restaurants.

Different countries produce different foods. Perhaps that is the reason why a description of a railway restaurant in England sounds so curious to American ears. This terminus restaurant corresponds to the American lunch counter, where pie and coffee are the staple refreshments of the hurried hungry man.

Patrons crowd the English place three deep and wait for the front row to finish eating and depart. One elderly woman drinks hot spirit and water and eats sandwiches. Beside her a country couple devour buns and milk—how British "buns" sounds!—and a busy man eats sponge cake and drinks port wine. Can one imagine a Chicago broker rushing into a quick lunch counter with a demand for sponge cake? He might as well ask for a coach and four.

In this London restaurant a mother of a family regales herself and her meek husband with ginger beer and cakes, and a nervous young clergyman asks for a glass of milk. Buns, sponge cake, milk and beer—the menu is a little different from those on this side of the water.—Chicago News.

The Boston Boy's Diversions.

"Emerson," said Mrs. Beaconstreet, "how did you comport yourself in the thoroughfare this morning with your new neighbors?"

"I fear, ma mere," replied Emerson, "that our actions were scarcely such as would much intensify our intellects. You see, he knows nothing of Auguste Comte, his parents have forbidden him Voltaire, he dislikes Mr. Shakespeare, and his familiarity with chemistry and astronomy is superficial to a wearying degree. So we made mud pies."—Boston Courier.

Wonders of New Hampshire.

The average reader will be amazed to learn that little New Hampshire, with less than 10,000 square miles, has no less than 406 lakes and ponds, 154 brooks, 58 rivers and 294 mountains. This makes Iowa look small. Colorado, a big state, has 556 creeks. Texas has comparatively few rivers, lakes and creeks. Alabama has 663 creeks and 87 rivers. Iowa cannot approach that record. Minnesota has 222 lakes and 140 rivers.—New York Press.

His Vocation.

Hicks—It is a shame the way Buster is bringing up that boy of his. The lad doesn't know how to read or write, and there is no indication of his ever being sent to school.

Wicks—Buster knows what he is doing, you can depend upon it. Probably he intends when that boy reaches manhood he will have all the business he can attend to as criminal court juror.—Boston Transcript.

Sharp.

Doctor—Stick out your tongue, Tommy.

Tommy—Not on your life! I did that yesterday to my teacher, and I still ache all over for it.—Wiener Tagblatt.

The Magazines.

The initial article of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for January presents "America at the Paris Exposition," by Commissioner General Peck; Robert E. Speer gives "Wayside Views of Life in Persia;" G. W. Stevens treats of "England's Free Hand on the Nile;" Florence Milner describes "Artistic American Furniture." There are also stories by Harriet A. Nash and S. R. Crockett and the usual complement of verse.

The future of Cuba and Porto Rico, the Philippine question, financial legislation in the new congress, Secretary Root's report, the British reverses in South Africa, and the recent progress of American municipalities are some of the topics editorially treated in the January Review of Reviews. The subject of the character sketch is Secretary John Hay, the writer of the sketch is Henry McFarland, the well known Washington correspondent. The Hon. John Barrett writes with his accustomed clearness and force on "Our Interests in China—A question of the Hour," setting forth the responsibilities, as well as the opportunities, devolving on the United States as a Pacific power.

The Rev. John Watson begins in McClure's Magazine for January a review of "The Life of the Master;" Sturgis B. Rand discusses "Hottest Heat and Electrical Furnaces;" Lieutenant Peary recounts his latest work in the Arctic; the Rev. C. T. Brady treats of "The Constellation in the war with France;" the Hon. George S. Boutwell writes of "Blaine and Conkling and the Republican Convention of 1880;" Mark Twain confesses his "Boyhood Dreams," and Prof. Simon Newcomb tells "How Planets are Weighed.', There are stories by W. A. Fraser, Alvah Milton Kerr, Ray Stannard Baker, Booth Turkington, Harriet A. Nash and Frank B. Tracy.

The Cosmopolitan for January contains four complete stories by these well-known writers: Seumas McManus, A. T. Quiller-Couch, John Luthur Long and Melville Chater. There is also presented the prize article, "Letters to a Lady on the Home Care of the Sick," by John S. Fulton. Edgar Saltus portrays the "Delights of Trying to be Somebody Else;" Alexander Harvey presents "Some Types of Egyptian Woman;" Howard W. Bell describes "Fossil Hunting in Wyoming;" Charles De-Kay gives "Some Impressions of Berlin; Kirke La Shelle portrays "The Theatrical Advance Agent," and A. V. Williams Jackson writes of "Zoroaster, the Magian Priest."

Park Theatre.

"Sag Harbor," James A. Herne's great play, is now in its next to the last week at the Park Theatre, Boston. Less than fourteen presentations of the great play remain for the Hub to witness owing to the fact that contracts with other cities now becoming operative compel the retirement of the distinguished author-actor and his superb company from their triumphant run in the "city of brains and culture."

On the night of Jan. 20, when "Sag Harbor" has its last performance, James A. Herne can conclude his engagement with the recollection that he has accomplished the longest and most successful theatrical engagement Boston has given to any star for many years. Mr. Herne has smashed all previous records for receipts at the Park Theatre to smithereens.

TODAY'S COURT.

T. J. Duffy and John P. Duffy were arraigned for assault on Officer Edward J. Curtin. T. J. Duffy was arraigned for assault on Catherine E. M. Curtin and Frank Stevens was arraigned for assault on John J. Curtin at Quincy. These cases grew out of one transaction, and all were continued until Monday.

The continued case of Mary P. Graynor, for violation of the liquor law at Randolph, was called and again continued until Jan. 27.

Originally clocks had only the hour hand, but the minute was added later, as it became the fashion to make the dials as decorative as possible.

It is estimated that at the beginning of the new century England will have 82,000,000,000 tons of coal still unused and available.

BACK BAY LAND

— AT — Point Holes.

Have you ever Considered that right at your very door in the good old city of Quincy lies your golden opportunity to make money on a safe and reliable investment. In less than eighteen months I have sold over thirty thousand dollars worth of this land, and four modern up-to-date houses have been built on the land and sold at prices ranging from twenty-eight hundred to five thousand dollars.

The Hanley Boat Building Co. are spending from eighteen to twenty-five thousand dollars in finishing the finest basin for yachts in New England.

L. G. Baker, the President of the Boston Fruit Co., is building a granite wall five hundred and sixty feet long and six feet high along his water front and expects to build a fine mansion in the near future. The Hanley Co. are also to build a new shop to employ a hundred or more extra hands.

This land will never be any cheaper. Why not look at plans and prices now? I have one block containing one hundred and fourteen thousand feet at a bargain, and a few house lots.

Invest at home, where you can see the advance and profit by it. Plans at my office.

Good Afternoon.

It is hoped by those who are familiar with Boston bay, that our city in its contention before the State Board of Health as to where the outlets for the Metropolitan sewage system are to be located so that the pollution of Hingham and Quincy bays will be properly safeguarded will insist that the pipes shall be carried to Peddocks Island on the northwesterly side, and that the outlet extend from that island in a northerly direction for not less than threequarters of a mile into Nantasket Roads. The water in this locality averages about seven fathoms in depth. The current is such in the roads that even though the sewage be one of continuous flow it would soon drift outside of Boston Light on an ebb tide, or be dissipated before it reached Quincy or Hingham bays on a flood tide.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is undoubtedly true that France would like to attack England at the present time but it is also patent to the whole world that she "darsent."—Barre Times.

☞ It cannot be altogether reassuring to those persons who are waiting for Aguinaldo to get to the end of his rope to learn that the hemp crop in the Philippines is extra large this season.—Old Colony Memorial.

☞ Honesty always wins in the long run, but that is not all. There is a long leap after the long run. Honesty will get one safely over this, but dishonesty will drop you into the pit.——Beverly Times.

☞ Expenses in Cuba last year were paid entirely from customs receipts, and not a dollar of debt remains unsettled. If the Cubans set up a government of their own they will have occasion to remember this rare experience.—Milford Journal.

☞ What true American philanthropist would not prefer to help young men to succeed and make themselves a credit to their country rather than have buildings, libraries and endowments multiplied that are making men medicants instead of self-sustaining citizens?—National Magazine.

☞ Andrew Carnegie has offered to give $25,000 for a free library building to Chillicothe, Missouri, with $3,000 annually for running expenses. We are sometimes disposed to wonder whether Mr. Carnegie is stimulating public spirit or the reverse by his gifts to municipalities, some of which, it would seem, should be able to provide their own public library buildings.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The principal object of the reciprocity treaties which have been framed under this administration has been to stimulate exportation of agricultural products. As their provisions look largely to the reduction of tariff on American farm products going into European countries and West Indian islands, these treaties, if ratified by the foreign governments as well as by the senate, cannot but increase our exportation of this class of articles.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ California and her neighbors to the north are thoroughly awake to the opportunities afforded them by our expansion into and across the Pacific, and regardless of party the people of those states are earnest advocates of our retention of the Philippines and becoming as we surely will the dominant power upon the world's greatest ocean. Mr. Bryan need expect no support in the far west of his vagaries in relation to anti-expansion.—Portsmouth Journal.

☞ The long drawn out Molineux case is becoming not only tiresome, but ridiculous. New York is paying big money that a few lawyers may get advertising and a few handwriting experts may gain small fortunes. Meanwhile the man on the outside cannot really see where the case has yet progressed beyond the circumstatial stage where it was when the case opened.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ The French government has decided to levy a heavy tax upon the flaring billboard and garish advertising signs which mar the beauty of the landscape in the suburbs and in the unoccupied spaces of Paris. This method will tend to decrease their number and to relieve the sections where they are now displayed of an unpleasing disfigurement. There is room for reform in this particular in Boston and its vicinity. Portions of the city and outlying sections are horribly marred by advertising devices that are as useless as they are inartistic and offensive.—The Beacon.

Whist Party.

The last whist party held in Odd Fellows Hall, Wollaston proved to be very enjoyable. On account of the weather the party was not as large as usual although there were twenty-three tables in use. The first ladies prize a set of nut picks was taken by Miss Sadie Thomas, the second a silver pieplate by Miss Florence Jones and the third a Boston Bag by Mrs. A. J. Jones.

The first gentleman's an umbrella was won by John F. Dunham, the second a fancy waste basket and the third a a silver mounted mirror was taken by E. M. Dunn he winning the cup from two others who were tie with him.

Veteran Town Clerk Dead.

Charles N. Marsh, the veteran town clerk of Hingham, died this morning after a brief illness of heart disease. Mr. Marsh was a native of Weymouth, and was 72 years of age. He has been town clerk of Hingham nearly half a century. For a number of years he has been a messenger at the State House during the winter and during the summer was employed as purser on the Nantasket steamboats. He was a member of Old Colony lodge of Masons and had been recorder of South Shore Commandry since 1873. He has been chairman of the Republican Town Committee for several years. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Charles Good of Denver, Col.

W. Y. C. Smoke Talk.

A smoke talk was held by the members of the Wollaston Yacht Club last Saturday evening at the club house, to which about fifty were present. The first of the evening was spent at whist. Later in the evening Mr. Pinkham and Mr. Fenno read some interesting accounts of their trip Down East on their yachts last summer, after which refreshments were served and all went home feeling happy.

The greatest depth to which a ship has been anchored is 2000 fathoms—considerably more than two miles.

A TRYING POSITION.

The Mayors' Task in Making Appointments.

Few Realize the Elements That Enter.

The Party Often Divided in Their Preferences.

One scarcely realizes the conflicting elements which enter into the appointment of city officials by a Mayor of Quincy, until he has filled the executive chair. Mayor Hall is by this time aware of the contentions, and the difficulty of pleasing all, even the Republicans of the city.

To his credit however, he has sought all the light possible. He has held numerous conferences in the various wards and at City Hall, not only with the Ward Committees, but the prominent and influential members of the party, and has listened attentively to the suggestions and grievances alike.

Unlike some of the Mayors in the past, he has not worried any, and it is said he has not lost a good night's sleep since his election. It is an open secret that many propositions or deals have been suggested, but these have been generally ignored.

The Mayor finds it necessary to distribute the offices among the wards; to select gentlemen who will work in sympathy with the administration and not antagonize the voters; to recognize the services of those who have been workers for party success; and is often embarrassed because in some cases gentlemen best qualified for an office will not accept.

A considerable number of Republicans desired the reappointment of Chief Engineer Williams, while many active workers in the party wanted ex-Chief Ripley. For Commissioner of Public Works there were as candidates two men of experience both of whom would be satisfactory to Republicans generally.

For Chief of Police and City Clerk there were candidates galore.

If the voters had not been emphatic for a Republican administration, both of the present incumbents might have been retained, but a Mayor must stand by his friends.

For Tax Collector there was one of the greatest fights, and many are in doubt as to the outcome.

When it comes to the Board of Health; there is the anti-Keniley faction to please, as well as those who see no reason for a change. There should be at least one doctor on the board, and the other positions should be filled with intelligent business-like men.

Then there is the anti-Sears element, who are jealous of the success of the officers of 1898, and it is not surprising if Mayor Hall does displease a few.

There was a large attendance at the vesper services at the Wollaston Unitarian church on Sunday afternoon. The pastor, the Rev. Frank W. Pratt, took for his theme "The inertia of life." There was music by a quartette. Miss Florence Emery was the soloist.

The light snow Sunday night made treacherous walking this morning and not a few had falls. In many places the sidewalks were covered with ice and no sand having been put on the walking was slippery at best, but when this was covered by a light fall of snow the walking was something fearful.

At the Washington street Congregational church, Sunday morning, Rev. Edward Norton preached a strong and eloquent sermon on "The Ideal Life and the Sources of Its Power," which is going about doing good. The choir was assisted by Mrs. Fred Drake. The subject of the evening service was "Our Father."

The grand reception of Miss Corlew's dancing classes is approaching, as is indicated by the announcement that the second quarter will begin Jan. 20. Her classes in past years have been very proficient, but her class of beginners this year has made wonderful progress, and Miss Corlew may well feel proud of them. Former pupils may enter the classes on Saturday of this week.

Ward Six Social Club.

Notices have been sent to all the leading citizens in Atlantic and Norfolk Downs, advising them of a meeting to be held Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the formation of a new social club.

The main object of this club will be to afford amusement to men and women who up to the present time have been obliged to seek such enjoyment as bowling, pool, entertainments and billiards in Boston. The club will have its Ladies' Day every month, as well as giving the women opportunity to bowl and play pool whenever they wished. One hundred and fifty notices have been issued, and the fee to join will be large enough to make the club self-supporting. The Norfolk Downs hall will be used, and the hall is well suited to all demands. The originators of this club have the highest hopes for its success.

RENOVATE
Long continued use of a hair mattress, is practically as perilous to one's health as if you were compelled to use the same water for several baths. With years of use a hair mattress grows flat, lifeless and becomes filled with oily and organic matter absorbed from the body. To make it absolutely sweet, clean, flexible and healthful it should be made over, hair picked, then scoured and ticking washed. Upholsterers with years of experience, ready to do this work for you just as it should be done. A postal or telephone calls the delivery wagon. Old mattresses made as good as new. Service prompt. Prices right.

POORLY VENTILATED.

State Inspector Orders Changes at Wollaston School.

Last week Wednesday, Joseph A. Moore, Inspector of Factories and Public Buildings of the State Police, at the request of several Wollaston citizens, made an inspection of the Wollaston school building. Two days later, Jan. 12, he served a written notice upon the School Committee, in which they were "directed to provide better and additional means of ventilation," in said Wollaston school building, "by means of brick and metallic flues or ducts, aided by heat or mechanical means to supply to each person accommodated therein at least thirty cubic feet per minute of properly warmed fresh air, to properly circulate such amount of air in the rooms and remove it therefrom in a proper manner when it becomes vitiated."

It is understood that this order applies to the four old rooms in the building and the inspector has intimated that the changes need not be made until the summer vacation.

WILL IT BE ATWOOD?

Said to Have Pretty Strong Grip on Nomination.

The political editor of the Herald assumes considerable when in his review of the congressional districts of Massachusetts, he says:

"If there is to be any opposition to the nomination of former Congressman Harrison H. Atwood by the Republicans of the 10th district the coming fall, it is hidden so deeply at the present time that the sharp politicians who keep tabs on the situation have not yet been able to discover it. To all appearances Mr. Atwood, whose persistency in seeking a vindication at the hands of the people was not abated in the slightest by his past failure to secure a nomination, has got a pretty strong grip upon the party machinery in the district and it will require a strong effort to prevent him from obtaining the Republican indorsement."

Story of the Bible.

The Federal Council has recently issued a very large edition of an article by Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy, pastor of Bethany Congregational Church, which appeared in the Brotherhood Star. It is "The Story of the English Bible," answering the question: Whence came our Bible? and telling of the three noted versions, the Patristic quotations, the church fathers, the Apostolic Fathers, the English versions, etc. Several hundred copies were distributed free at Bethany church on Sunday.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

VICTIMS OF ESCAPING GAS.

Fatal Results In Three Cases, While Others Have Narrow Escape From Death.

New York, Jan. 15.—John Woessner and George Lehman, German farmers from Ackley, Ia., on their way back to their homes in Germany for a visit, put up at the "True Blue," a Second avenue hotel, on Saturday night. One of them blew out the gas and Woessner's dead body was found yesterday, with Lehman in an unconscious condition lying beside it. Lehman was taken to a hospital, where he died last night.

Daniel Pearsall, the Brooklyn manager of a well-known hat concern, was asphyxiated by gas in a hotel on Dey street Saturday night, where he was in the habit of stopping. The gas escaped from a gas stove. Pearsall died soon after he was taken unconscious from the room.

Boston, Jan. 15.—Robert A. Coan and Elmer F. Murch, two freshmen in the college of liberal arts of Boston university, narrowly escaped asphyxiation at their room in Charlestown. Coan was awakened by gas which issued from a stove in the room, and with difficulty rushed and opened the window. He made noise enough to awaken other inmates of the house and they came to the rescue. Murch was found to be in a bad condition. Both are now doing well and will probably receive no permanent injury.

Charles Shepard, a Boston letter carrier, and his wife were awakened by a moaning sound made by their dog. Shepard realized that he and his wife were nearly overcome by gas and barely managed to arouse his brother, who slept upstairs. The latter opened the windows and called a physician, who placed the couple out of danger.

Prospect of a Lynching.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 15. — Frank Percell and two companions who are in jail here are in imminent danger of being lynched on account of the killing of William Riss. Riss was returning home from a party with two young men when he was met by Percell and two companions. Percell asked if the party was over and being told that it was drew his revolver and shot Riss in the eye, killing him instantly. Percell and his companions were arrested and hurried here by the officers to save them from the friends of the victim, who threatened to lynch Percell.

A Dose of Carbolic Acid.

St. John, Jan. 15.—West Indian steamer Taymouth Castle has arrived from the Indies. Captain Bell reports that while the steamer was at Antigua, John McGinnis, a fireman, complained of illness. Second Steward Spaulding gave him what was supposed to be a suitable medicine, but which proved to be carbolic acid, and McGinnis died in half an hour. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental poisoning.

Active Green Goods Men.

Boston, Jan. 15.—Green goods men of New York are flooding New England with their adroitly worded circulars inviting those who have $500 to spend to "come on" and buy an immense quantity of real greenbacks. Chief Inspector Watts has sent out a warning to destroy the circulars, and it is an old time, though somewhat broken down, gang of swindlers who are trying to trap the innocent.

Accidentally Shot and Killed.

Brockton, Mass., Jan. 15. — James Hixon, 13 years old, was accidentally shot and killed by Charles E. Johnson, a companion, also of the same age. The boys were out on Hayward's pond, and Johnson borrowed Hixon's rifle to fire at a crow. As he raised the weapon to his shoulder the charge exploded, the ball entering young Hixon's temple near the left eye, killing him instantly.

Students Won't Readily Yield.

Boston, Jan. 15.—The agitation begun recently by nine seceding divinity students at Boston university over the opinions held by Dean Mitchell on certain interpretations of the Bible is not ended, and the protestants have issued an open letter to President Warren and the faculty of the university in reply to the announcement of the latter that Professor Mitchell's teachings are endorsed. The letter is also a defense of the position of the students, and attempts an analysis in detail of the objections to Professor Mitchell, in addition to being a direct reply to an interview with President Warren in which the objections of the students were disposed of from the standpoint of the faculty.

Stevenson May Be the Nominee.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Mayor Carter Harrison yesterday refused formally the offer of the Democratic nomination for governor. He was waited on by delegates of the Democratic state committee and asked if his informal declination of the nomination was final. They urged that it was his duty to the state Democracy to accept the nomination and make the race. The mayor replied that there were plenty of good men who would make acceptable candidates, and he must decline. As a result of Mayor Harrison's action, friends of former Vice President Stevenson are urging him to accept the nomination.

Thought to Be the Falk.

Halifax, Jan. 15.—It is reported here that the steamer wrecked in St. Mary's bay, N. F., is the Falk, and that she has a black and red smokestack, with a black diamond. The Falk had been engaged during the past season in the coal trade by the Dominion Coal company, but was last reported as sailing from Philadelphia, Jan. 1, for Havana. The color of the funnel is that of black diamond, or Dominion Coal company's liner.

LED TO INSURRECTION.

Ex-Minister Barrett's Opinion of Speech Delivered by Senator Hoar.

Was Forwarded to Hong Kong at Very Heavy Expense.

Was Published and Then Freely Distributed Among the Filipino Troops.

Chicago, Jan. 15.—Senator Hoar for the first time was publicly named at Lake Forest university by John Barrett, ex-United States minister to Siam, as the United States senator whose anti-expansion speech was cabled to Hong Kong and subsequently put in the hands of the Filipino soldiers, causing, as Mr. Barrett believed, the open insurrection.

Frequently this speech and its presumed effect have been mentioned, and the reading public has connected the name of Senator Hoar with it, and it is probable that Mr. Barrett would not have used the lawmaker's name on this occasion had he not been facing an audience known to be largely hostile to the administration's policy in the Oriental islands.

It appeared further from the ex-minister's speech that the government has discovered privately the stages by which the anti-expansion address reached Luzon.

There was much interest as to the reception Mr. Barrett's speech would meet. At the close of the meeting he was cheered, and the audience of several hundred people waited in line to shake hands with him.

In the course of his address, which was on the general subject of the Philippines, the speaker said it had been discovered in the government investigation that Senator Hoar's speech was cabled in cipher and in fragments to Paris, where it was put together and forwarded to Hong Kong. The message included several thousand words, and the cost for transmission was said to have been $4000. It interested the government to know what friends the Filipinos had at this time, who were in a position to send the message.

"I was in Hong Kong at the time," said Mr. Barrett, and I remember the incident distinctly. I was coming down stairs in the hotel when I met the president of the Hong Kong junta, and he had in his hand the long dispatch he had just received. It gave a large part of Senator Hoar's speech in full, and a summary of the rest of it. I asked the president what he was going to do with it, and he told me that he meant to send it to the officers of the army in the Philippines. He was urged not to do it, but he protested that it had been printed in the United States, and was public property. Four days after that had been delivered it was in the hands of those who saw an opportunity to make political capital of it. The speech was published and distributed among the soldiers, and I believe it was the culminating influence that brought about the open insurrection. This speech, you must remember, was delivered before there was an open insurrection."

Won't Notice Statements.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Senator Hoar last night declined to take any notice of the statements attributed to Mr. Barrett, ex-minister to Siam, in an address on the Philippine question. The senator said that General Otis' reports give the fullest account of the events that led to hostilities, and that he expects, as he has already given notice, to deal with the whole matter in the senate.

Set a Bad Example.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 15.—Two special police officers who were employed for Saturday night duty in Central square by several of the merchants doing business in that locality, it is alleged, became very much under the influence of liquor Saturday night and attracted the attention of a crowd of men and boys, who chased them all around the square. They were finally taken to the police station, where the city marshal deprived them of their badges and buttons and then sent them to their homes.

Was an Authority on Hygeine.

Newport, R. I., Jan. 15.—Dr. Charles A Seigfried, medical inspector, U. S. N., in charge of the naval hospital at the United States training station here, died yesterday from pneumonia. He was 50 years old. He was an authority on hygiene, and his writings on hygiene and sanitation are accepted as standard works. His last term of sea service was on the battleship Massachusetts.

Medical Men Puzzled.

Montreal, Jan. 15.—Eva Roch, the famous French-Canadian sleeping girl, has been awake for a few minutes, during which she asked for a drink of cider, but is now again in a sleep or trance. The doctors say she cannot live this time. She fell asleep on Christmas evening. Last year she fell asleep at about the same time and slept for 28 days.

THE PHILIPPINE QUESTION

Very Likely to Consume Considerable Time in Both Branches of Congress This Week.

Washington, Jan. 15.—The senate will today resume consideration of the Pettigrew resolution making request for certain information concerning the beginning of the war in the Philippines. This will be succeeded at 2 o'clock by a speech on the financial bill by Senator Rawlings of Utah, if the present program is followed.

Senator Pettigrew will continue his speech on the Philippine resolution, and after he concludes, Senator Berry of Arkansas will take the floor for a general speech on the Philippine problem, if sufficient time remains of the morning hour. When the Pettigrew resolution is disposed of, the Hoar resolution will supply food for talk each day in the morning hour, and after that the Hale resolution, concerning the seizure of American goods by Great Britain, will be taken up.

It is Senator Aldrich's announced purpose to press consideration of the financial bill each day after the conclusion of the morning hour, but it is not probable that he will succeed in securing a daily speech on that subject. Senator Teller probably will speak some time during the week, after Senator Rawlings concludes. It is also understood that Senator Daniel will be heard soon on the question of the finances. Other addresses on this subject will come later.

The consideration of the Samoan treaty, in executive session, will be resumed if the legislative work permits, and Senators Bacon and Money will make speeches in opposition to it. It is also probable that the report in the Quay case may be presented late in the week.

The house will plunge into the routine work of the session this week. Most of the time, excepting Friday, which has been set apart for paying tribute to the memory of the late Vice President Hobart, will be devoted to consideration of appropriation bills.

It is expected that both the urgent deficiency and the pension appropriation bill will be passed this week. The former, containing as it does many millions for the army and navy, may raise the whole question as to the insurrection in the Philippines, with its allied issues, and lead to a very protracted debate.

How far the Republican leaders will allow the debate to run has not yet been determined, but if the Democrats are insistent and persistent they can hardly refuse them several days in view of the large amount of the appropriations involved. The pension appropriation bill is also likely to cause some spirited debate, owing to the disposition in certain quarters to criticise the conduct of the pension office. Attempts doubtless will be made to legislate upon the bill reversals of some of the pension commissioners' rulings, but as all such legislation is subject to a point of order it will fail. There is no present prospect that the Roberts case will get into the house before next week.

Washington Farms Under Water.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 15.—A down-pour of rain for three days, together with a prevailing Chinook rain is melting the snow, and has greatly flooded several western Washington valleys, and a portion of Latah county, Idaho. Hundreds of farms are under water, and the mountain streams are torrents.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The weather conditions are moderate over the whole country. It has grown warmer in the Atlantic states and the temperature has remained nearly stationary elsewhere. Light rain or snow has fallen in the lake regions and New England. There will be light snow or rain followed by fair in New England, with lower temperature. Light, variable winds, shifting to northwesterly, will prevail on the north Atlantic coast.

Good Afternoon.

It is hoped by those who are familiar with Boston bay, that our city in its contention before the State Board of Health as to where the outlets for the Metropolitan sewage system are to be located so that the pollution of Hingham and Quincy bays will be properly safeguarded will insist that the pipes shall be carried to Peddocks Island on the northwesterly side, and that the outlet extend from that island in a northerly direction for not less than threequarters of a mile into Nantasket Roads. The water in this locality averages about seven fathoms in depth. The current is such in the roads that even though the sewage be one of continuous flow it would soon drift outside of Boston Light on an ebb tide, or be dissipated before it reached Quincy or Hingham bays on a flood tide.

Drift of Opinion.

☞It is undoubtedly true that France would like to attack England at the present time but it is also potent to the whole world that she "darsent."—Barre Times.

☞It cannot be altogether reassuring to those persons who are waiting for Aguinaldo to get to the end of his rope to learn that the hemp crop in the Philippines is extra large this season.—Old Colony Memorial.

☞Honesty always wins in the long run, but that is not all. There is a long leap after the long run. Honesty will get one safely over this, but dishonesty will drop you into the pit.—Beverly Times.

☞Expenses in Cuba last year were paid entirely from customs receipts, and not a dollar of debt remains unsettled. If the Cubans set up a government of their own they will have occasion to remember this rare experience.—Milford Journal.

☞What true American philanthropist would not prefer to help young men to succeed and make themselves a credit to their country rather than have buildings, libraries and endowments multiplied that are making men medicants instead of self-sustaining citizens?—National Magazine.

☞Andrew Carnegie has offered to give $25,000 for a free library building to Chilicothe, Missouri, with $3,000 annually for running expenses. We are sometimes disposed to wonder whether Mr. Carnegie is stimulating public spirit or the reverse by his gifts to municipalities, 'some of which, it would seem, should be able to provide their own public library buildings.—New Bedford Standard.

☞The principal object of the reciprocity treaties which have been framed under this administration has been to stimulate exportation of agricultural products. As their provisions look largely to the reduction of tariff on American farm products going into European countries and West Indian islands, these treaties, if ratified by the foreign governments as well as by the senate, cannot but increase our exportation of this class of articles.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞California and her neighbors to the north are thoroughly awake to the opportunities afforded them by our expansion into and across the Pacific, and regardless of party the people of those states are earnest advocates of our retention of the Philippines and becoming as we surely will the dominant power upon the world's greatest ocean. Mr. Bryan need expect no support in the far west of his vagaries in relation to anti-expansion.—Portsmouth Journal.

☞The long drawn out Molineux case is becoming not only tiresome, but ridiculous. New York is paying big money that a few lawyers may get advertising and a few handwriting experts may gain small fortunes. Meanwhile the man on the outside cannot really see where the case has yet progressed beyond the circumstatial stage where it was when the case opened.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞The French government has decided to levy a heavy tax upon the flaring billboard and garish advertising signs which mar the beauty of the landscape in the suburbs and in the unoccupied spaces of Paris. This method will tend to decrease their number and to relieve the sections where they are now displayed of an unpleasing disfigurement. There is room for reform in this particular in Boston and its vicinity. Portions of the city and outlying sections are horribly marred by advertising devices that are as useless as they are inartistic and offensive.—The Beacon.

Whist Party.

The last whist party held in Odd Fellows Hall, Wollaston proved to be very enjoyable. On account of the weather the party was not as large as usual although there were twenty-three tables in use. The first ladies prize a set of nut picks was taken by Miss Sadie Thomas, the second a silver pieplate by Miss Florence Jones and the third a Boston Bag by Mrs. A. J. Jones.

The first gentleman's an umbrella was won by John F. Dunham, the second a fancy waste basket and the third a a silver mounted mirror was taken by E. M. Dunn he winning the cup from two others who were tie with him.

Veteran Town Clerk Dead.

Charles N. Marsh, the veteran town clerk of Hingham, died this morning after a brief illness of heart disease. Mr. Marsh was a native of Weymouth, and was 72 years of age. He has been town clerk of Hingham nearly half a century. For a number of years he has been a messenger at the State House during the winter and during the summer was employed as purser on the Nantasket steamboats. He was a member of Old Colony lodge of Masons and had been recorder of South Shore Commandry since 1873. He has been chairman of the Republican Town Committee for several years. He leaves one daughter, Mrs. Charles Good of Denver, Col.

W. Y. C. Smoke Talk.

A smoke talk was held by the members of the Wollaston Yacht Club last Saturday evening at the club house, to which about fifty were present. The first of the evening was spent at whist. Later in the evening Mr. Pinkham and Mr. Fenno read some interesting accounts of their trip Down East on their yachts last summer, after which refreshments were served and all went home feeling happy.

A TRYING POSITION.

Few Realize the Elements That Enter.

The Party Often Divided in Their Preferences.

One scarcely realizes the conflicting elements which enter into the appointment of city officials by a Mayor of Quincy, until he has filled the executive chair. Mayor Hall is by this time aware of the contentions, and the difficulty of pleasing all, even the Republicans of the city.

To his credit however, he has sought all the light possible. He has held numerous conferences in the various wards and at City Hall, not only with the Ward Committees, but the prominent and influential members of the party, and has listened attentively to the suggestions and grievances alike.

Unlike some of the Mayors in the past, he has not worried any, and it is said he has not lost a good night's sleep since his election. It is an open secret that many propositions or deals have been suggested, but these have been generally ignored.

The Mayor finds it necessary to distribute the offices among the wards; to select gentlemen who will work in sympathy with the administration and not antagonize the voters; to recognize the services of those who have been workers for party success; and is often embarrassed because in some cases gentlemen best qualified for an office will not accept.

A considerable number of Republicans desired the reappointment of Chief Engineer Williams, while many active workers in the party wanted ex-Chief Ripley. For Commissioner of Public Works there were as candidates two men of experience both of whom would be satisfactory to Republicans generally.

For Chief of Police and City Clerk there were candidates galore.

If the voters had not been emphatic for a Republican administration, both of the present incumbents might have been retained, but a Mayor must stand by his friends.

For Tax Collector there was one of the greatest fights, and many are in doubt as to the outcome.

When it comes to the Board of Health; there is the anti-Keniley faction to please, as well as those who see no reason for a change. There should be at least one doctor on the board, and the other positions should be filled with intelligent business-like men.

Then there is the anti-Sears element, who are jealous of the success of the officers of 1898, and it is not surprising if Mayor Hall does displease a few.

The light snow Sunday night made treacherous walking this morning and not a few had falls. In many places the sidewalks were covered with ice and no sand having been put on the walking was slippery at best, but when this was covered by a light fall of snow the walking was something fearful.

At the Washington street Congregational church, Sunday morning, Rev. Edward Norton preached a strong and eloquent sermon on "The Ideal Life and the Sources of Its Power," which is going about doing good. The choir was assisted by Mrs. Fred Drake. The subject of the evening service was "Our Father."

The grand reception of Miss Corlew's dancing classes is approaching, as is indicated by the announcement that the second quarter will begin Jan. 20. Former pupils may enter the classes on Saturday of this week.

Ward Six Social Club.

Notices have been sent to all the leading citizens in Atlantic and Norfolk Downs, advising them of a meeting to be held Tuesday evening for the purpose of discussing the formation of a new social club.

The main object of this club will be to afford amusement to men and women who up to the present time have been obliged to seek such enjoyment as bowling, pool, entertainments and billiards in Boston. The club will have its Ladies' Day every month, as well as giving the women opportunity to bowl and play pool whenever they wished. One hundred and fifty notices have been issued, and the fee to join will be large enough to make the club self-supporting. The Norfolk Downs hall will be used, and the hall is well suited to all demands. The originators of this club have the highest hopes for its success.

RENOVATE YOUR MATTRESS.

Long continued use of a hair mattress, is practically as perilous to one's health as if you were compelled to use the same water for several baths. With years of use a hair mattress grows flat, lifeless and becomes filled with oily and organic matter absorbed from the body. To make it absolutely sweet, clean, flexible and healthful it should be made over, hair picked, then scoured and ticking washed. Upholsterers with years of experience, ready to do this work for you just as it should be done. A postal or telephone calls the delivery wagon. Old mattresses made as good as new. Service prompt. Prices right.

POORLY VENTILATED.

State Inspector Orders Changes at Wollaston School.

Last week Wednesday, Joseph A. Moore, Inspector of Factories and Public Buildings of the State Police, at the request of several Wollaston citizens, made an inspection of the Wollaston school building. Two days later, Jan. 12, he served a written notice upon the School Committee, in which they were "directed to provide better and additional means of ventilation," in said Wollaston school building, "by means of brick and metallic flues or ducts, aided by heat or mechanical means to supply to each person accommodated therein at least thirty cubic feet per minute of properly warmed fresh air, to properly circulate such amount of air in the rooms and remove it therefrom in a proper manner when it becomes vitiated."

It is understood that this order applies to the four old rooms in the building and the inspector has intimated that the changes need not be made until the summer vacation.

WILL IT BE ATWOOD?

Said to Have Pretty Strong Grip on Nomination.

The political editor of the Herald assumes considerable when in his review of the congressional districts of Massachusetts, he says:

"If there is to be any opposition to the nomination of former Congressman Harrison H. Atwood by the Republicans of the 10th district the coming fall, it is hidden so deeply at the present time that the sharp politicians who keep tabs on the situation have not yet been able to discover it. To all appearances Mr. Atwood, whose persistency in seeking a vindication at the hands of the people was not abated in the slightest by his past failure to secure a nomination, has got a pretty strong grip upon the party machinery in the district and it will require a strong effort to prevent him from obtaining the Republican indorsement."

Story of the Bible.

The Federal Council has recently issued a very large edition of an article by Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy, pastor of Bethany Congregational Church, which appeared in the Brotherhood Star. It is "The Story of the English Bible," answering the question: Whence came our Bible? and telling of the three noted versions, the Patristic quotations, the church fathers, the Apostolic Fathers, the English versions, etc. Several hundred copies were distributed free at Bethany church on Sunday.

LIMITS OF THE UNIVERSE

Those of us who have always clung to the belief that this plant of ours has its position in

An aerial universe
Of unlimited expansion, at which the soul
Aches to think, intoxicated with eternity, will be startled by the announcement that the limits of the universe have been reached by human vision, says the Philadelphia Record. This astounding information comes from no less an authority than Professor Newcomb, who is recognized as one of the greatest of living astronomers, if indeed he be not the most eminent of them all. According to Professor Newcomb, evidence in accumulating which points to a probability that the small stars which our powerful modern telescopes have brought into view do not look small by reason of their distance from this earth, but because they are really of inferior size. Beyond them he believes it probable that there are no others. In other words, if Professor Newcomb's theory be correct we are actually able to see the boundaries of our universe.

The general form of this universe has been described to us. It is an enormous disk, the solar system being not far from the center. This disk, so inconceivably vast, has a diameter four or five times its thickness, but as to the length of the diameter we cannot speak with accuracy, because we are not acquainted with the precise distance of many of the stars. Fifty or a hundred years hence a great deal more will be known on that subject than we of today know. It has been estimated, however, that the distance across the disk from one side of the universe to the other is 20,000 (or may be 30,000) "light" years. In this estimate there is naturally a wide margin of guess. A "light" year is the distance which a ray of light will traverse in one of our years. The speed of light being 186,000 miles a second, a "light" year is equivalent to 5,869,588,980,000 miles. The distance across the disk in question would therefore be this stupendous number of miles multiplied by 20,000 or by 30,000. Again, it takes a little over eight minutes for light to come to us from the sun, 93,000,000 miles away. The light by which we are able to see a very distant star through a telescope may have started from that star 25,000 years ago. Assuming that to be the case, it is 25,000 "light" years away from us.

With the naked eye we can see about 5,000 stars, with a very powerful telescope we can see about 50,000,000, and there is no telling how many millions more there are unobserved. The radius of the earth's orbit, a line 90,000,000 miles in length, not only vanishes from sight before we reach the distance of the great mass of stars, but from that distance becomes such a mere point that the most delicate appliances fail to make it measurable.

Brigadier General A. D. Buffington, chief of the ordnance department of the army, in his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30 speaks in terms of commendation of the new explosive, thorite. All the tests of thorite have not been made, but those that have been carried out, he says, were very satisfactory and were designed to show that the mixture could not be exploded by friction or by shock and impact. The last tests were made by mechanical means and by firings made from cannon of various calibers, some of the firings being against plates. In the experiments against plates the shells penetrating were recovered without material deterioration. Tests were also made to show the insensibility of this substance to heat and its strength as shown by the fragmentation tests of projectiles. General Buffington says that as regards stability but little can be said at present, but a quantity of the mixture in storage for some time in an ordinary shed at the proving grounds, during which it absorbed considerable moisture, showed no deterioration. The subsequent drying of the substance indicated that its qualities when damp had not been impaired. In view of the results obtained in the tests of thorite the ordnance board, under whose supervision the tests have been made, reports that it is of the opinion that it is superior to any other material for adoption in service, at least pending the development of any better material for the purpose. It remains, however, to secure a good detonating fuse.

Dates In Arizona.

While able to withstand considerable frost in winter the date palm must have a very dry and exceedingly hot climate at the time of the ripening of the dates. The sandiest and, generally speaking, the poorest soils produce the best dates. While it will yield in any soil it takes most kindly to otherwise almost worthless land, even that which is white with alkali suiting it. Still, an abundance of water is at certain periods of its maturing quite necessary. Arizona is thought to be a good field for late growing.

Consciousness During Anaesthesia.

M. Philippe contributes an interesting article to Le Revue Philosophique entitled "La Conscience dans l'Anesthesie Chirurgicale" (consciousness during surgical anaesthesia). In this article the author says that the evidence of both patients and surgical operators goes to prove that under the influence of anaesthetics the patient does not lose his consciousness. In many cases also he suffers pain, but on waking he has no recollection of his experiences.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

TERRIBLE HARDSHIPS

Endured by Methuen's Men Owing to Lack of Water on the March.

Roberts Reports "No Change In the Situation."

Campaign at a Standstill, So For as Fresh News Is Concerned.

London, Jan. 15.—The Modder River battle, with its many dramatic incidents, its heavy losses, its long duration, proves a never failing topic for the war correspondent lucky enough to have witnessed it. Julian Ralph, in The Daily Mail, gives a lengthy and vivid account of this engagement. Speaking of the Boer losses, this correspondent declares:

"First in the mind of the Boer is the desire to hide his dead and to lie about their number. It is from their own that they most desire to hide the truth. The prisoners we took all said that only 18 had been killed, but the deserters said the loss of life was very great, and that in the river alone 100 were sunk with weights. For my part, I shall not be surprised if we learn some day that in killed alone the Boers lost quite 300.

"After every battle the veldt had been dotted with Boer horses in consequence of the custom of bringing two horses for each well-to-do man, and in consequence of the loss of riders by death and wounding. But both previous battlefields combined showed no such number of riderless horses as Modder River. There were literally hundreds of them. I had lost mine in the fight, but in the first half hour of the next morning I took my choice of four and might have made my pick from a hundred, saddled and bridled, before I had gone half over the field.

"One word as to that phase of their warfare which must be touched upon, in justice, in every account we correspondents write of it. With my own eyes I saw the dutt-putt gun and the fire of the sharpshooters trained upon our ambulances three times, and upon our stretcher bearers on innumerable occasions—in fact, whenever they rose to their feet (on the right of the line) and attempted to perform their work."

Ralph relates with the feeling of one who suffered the hardships which lack of water imposed on Methuen's men during their march towards Kimberley.

"We never joke about water now," he says. "The first time we really appreciated it we were starting out from Orange River. We were marching and watching the day break. In breaking it seemed to rend the earth's blanket of atmosphere and let the sun's heat out upon us as if we were so many thousand stokers in the broiling belly of a ship.

"On and on we marched, in heavy sand, or over stones, or stumbling across furrowed ground—all gasping like fishes thrown on a beach.

"At first our lips dried and cracked, then our mouths parched, and finally our throats became as if they were coated with plaster of paris. The hair shrivelled on our hands and our feet grew dry as devilled bones. Here and there a man fell forward on his hands and knees or stumbled out of the ranks and lurched prone on the veldt.

"We came to Finchams, a yellow, Spanish looking house, all set about with trees. In and out of its yard horses and mules passed in scores, and behind the house the Tommies crowded like bees around a honey pot, filling their cloth-clad bottles out of a stone tank, while other Tommies walked round and round a sort of windlass that pumped new water into the tank.

"Every man filled his bottle, emptied it down his throat and filled it again. A water mania, a thirst madness, was upon the army. We paddled in spilled water, and the sounds it made in pouring, gurgling and splashing were as delicate music to all our ears.

"We have learned what war is, and more about the Boer than we knew a month ago; but, above all, we have learned the value of water."

Lord Roberts' enigmatical announcement, "No change in the situation," does nothing to allay public anxiety or to explain the mystery surrounding General Buller's movements on the Tugela, and, although there is a disposition to regard the dispatch as disposing of Saturday's adverse rumors, the week has opened in a state of suspense almost equal to that of last week, because it is recognized that failure in General Buller's present attempt would seal the fate of Ladysmith.

Presumably, "no change in the situation" refers to previous dispatches sent to the war office, which have not yet been revealed to the public. Except the announcement of the seizure of Potgieter's drift and of the advance of General Warren, there has been no news from the Tugela for a week. A ray of hope is in the fact that the same silence prevails on the Boer side. Thus it may, perhaps, be fairly inferred that General Buller has not yet met a serious check.

If the announcement of General Warren's movement be correct, it is evident that General Buller's forces are spread over a very wide front, perhaps 25 miles, and in the event of a sudden fall of the river, his operations might be full of danger. It is believed that General Buller has no good survey maps of the district. This will add to his difficulties.

Sir Charles Warren's advance probably means an attempt to seize Klangwane Hill, the main post of the Boers south of the Tugela. Upon the success or failure of these operations depends the whole future of the campaign. Until the result is known, Lord Roberts will be unable to decide how to dispose of the two divisions and the reinforcements now arriving.

The news from other points is of no great importance. Boer accounts tell of another sortie from Kimberley, on Jan. 9, in the direction of Kamfer's dam, with a brisk exchange of firing, but no results. A heavy detonation was heard on Jan. 8 within Kimberley.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Modder River, dated Jan. 10, gives a rumor that Kimberley was being bombarded.

Bastard's Nek, mentioned in Lord Roberts' dispatch as the locality of a reconnaissance, is northwest of Colesburg.

Doubts are beginning to be raised whether it will be possible to get anything like 10,000 yeomanry. Only a very small percentage of the applicants satisfy the standard of riding and shooting. A large number of officers from the Egyptian army have just left Cairo for South Africa, to replace those killed and wounded.

A Pretoria dispatch says that President Kruger, in the course of a stirring address, just issued to the burghers, affirms that providence is on their side, that their cause is just and that they must succeed. Reports from Colesburg represent the position there as favorable to the Boers, but that the British are concentrating for operations on a large scale. The official list of the Boer casualties, in what is called the Plat-Rand fight, on Saturday, Jan. 6 (the attack on Ladysmith), shows 26 killed and 77 wounded. These figures are described as the first returns.

The embargo at Delagoa bay upon the Transvaal imports is the question of the hour with the burghers. If this be not removed, it is asserted that steps will be taken prejudicial to prisoners and aliens.

Cape Town advices say that the proceedings for treason instituted against the Dutch colonials who were taken in arms at Sunnyside are being pressed. Witnesses have been interrogated and the preliminary examination before the magistrate will be held later. The trial will probably be conducted by the supreme court.

The colonial Dutch point out that these prosecutions will serve to make more rebels, as they consider the treatment of the prisoners designed to terrify them. Some Britons regard the prosecutions as impolitic, in view of the fact that the Boers are able to retaliate upon the 100 British officers and the 2500 privates in their hands, and might do so unless all who fight in the Boer ranks are treated as prisoners of war.

A Durban dispatch states that there is a Boer commando in Zambaan's country, Sululand, within a day's march of the sea, with wagons. It is believed to be waiting for supplies and ammunition secretly landed near Delagoa bay. The Boers have looted all the stores and mines in the Swaziland territory, and the ruined native inhabitants are completing the work of destruction.

A special dispatch from the Hoofd Laager, at Ladysmith, dated Jan. 9, via Lourenzo Marquez, describing the assault on Jan. 6 upon Ladysmith, says:

The British made no attempt to hold the first line of breastworks, but made an exceedingly stubborn resistance at the next row. Every inche was stubbornly contested, and conspicuous bravery was displayed on both sides.

After 10 o'clock the British artillery fire slackened, and a terrible individual contest ensued among the riflemen for the possession of Plat-Rand ridge. At noon a heavy thunderstorm interrupted the battle, lasting for two hours.

Although the burghers succeeded in ultimately gaining possession of most of the British positions on the western side of the Plat-Rand they were finally obliged to retire from most of the ground they occupied. The British were most strongly entrenched, their redoubts being skillfully loopholed, and the combat was so close that rifles were frequently at arms' length. It was a hand-to-hand encounter. The men on both sides fought like demons, and the horror and bewilderment of the scene could scarcely be paralleled.

Lord Lansdown, secretary of state for war, has accepted the offer of Lord Strathcona, Canadian high commissioner in London, to provide, distinct from the Canadian contingents, a force of at least 400 mounted men from Manitoba, Northwest Territory and British Columbia, and to arm, equip and convey them to South Africa at his own expense. All will be expert marksmen, rough riders and scouts. It is estimated that the offer will involve an expenditure of $1,000,000. The war office regards Lord Strathcona's proposal as an extraordinary proof of colonial patriotism.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail, dated Jan. 12, from Pietermaritzburg, says: Sir Charles Warren marched with 11,000 men eastward from Frere, by way of Weonen. His scouts found no sign of the enemy at Grobler's Kloof, while Colenso was ascertained to be deserted. There are rumors that the Boers are preparing to leave Natal, discouraged by the failure to reduce Ladysmith. All the colonials and regulars have been placed under General Warren's command. Among the Free Staters killed in the attack on Ladysmith on Jan 6 was Commandant DeVilliers, who, but for his well-known friendliness to England, would have been commander-in-chief of the Free State forces.

A dispatch to The Times from Lourenzo Marquez says: The British consul has issued a notice warning British subjects against enlisting for service with the Boers trading with the republics, or treasonable conduct in the Transvaal.

Herr Pott has protested against this notice as constituting an interference with the sovereign rights of Portugal.

Five thousand Boers were sent from Natal last week to defend the Free State border and to resist the attacks of General Gatacre and General French, which are causing some alarm.

A leading Transvaaler says the Boers will make another desperate attempt to reduce Ladysmith.

Pastor Blair Resigns.

Marlboro, Mass., Jan. 15.—The members of the Universalist congregation were surprised yesterday when, instead of hearing the expected sermon by the pastor, Rev. A. A. Blair, they listened to his letter of resignation, which was read by John Kenyon, an agent of the Universalists in New York. Mr. Blair has been with the Universalist church here for three years past.

Interesting Figures Concerning United States Agricultural Exports.

Great Britain, Germany and France Furnis Three Most Important Markets.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Frank H. Hitchcock, chief of the foreign markets division of the agricultural department, has prepared an interesting collection of figures showing for the first time the respective amounts of our agricultural exports which go to the several countries of Europe and for other countries.

The period covered is 1894 to 1898. The statement shows that the agricultural products exported from the United States during the five years had an average annual value of $663,536,201.

Of these enormous exports, about 60 percent found a market in the United Kingdom and its various dependencies. The sum paid by the British people for the American farm produce purchased during the period mentioned reached as high as $403,958,954 a year. Great Britain alone took more than one-half of all our agricultural exports, the consignments credited to that country forming about 55 percent of the total shipments, and having an average annual value of $362,407,701.

Germany, which ranks next to the United Kingdom, received about 13 percent of the exports for 1894-1898, the average yearly value amounting to $86,320,274.

France, with purchases that averaged $43,988,790 a year, or about 6.6 percent of the total, was the third country in importance. These three countries, the United Kingdom, Germany and France, received nearly 75 percent of the total agricultural exports.

After the three countries just mentioned, the Netherlands, Belgium, Canada, Italy and Spain afforded the most important markets. The Netherlands bought 3.5 percent, Italy 2.2 percent and Spain 1.5 percent. The average annual values of the exports to these countries were: Netherlands, $28,802,156; Belgium, $23,751,669; Canada, $23,020,157; Italy, $14,264,424, and Spain, $9,761,870. Brazil took $6,258,729; Cuba, $6,099,824; Denmark, $5,930,952 (exports to that country doubling during the five-year period); the British West Indies, $5,241,657; Mexico, $4,636,486; British Africa, $4,138,920, and European Russia, $4,060,236.

The average yearly exports to Hong Kong were valued at $3,555,588, and those to Japan at $3,407,800. For Portugal, the average annual record was $2,709,694; for Sweden and Norway, $2,635,549; for Hayti, $2,281,966, and for British Australia, $2,020,804.

The other countries to which the United States sent agricultural products during 1894-1898, having an average yearly value in excess of $1,000,000, were Austria-Hungary, Venezuela, British Guiana, Puerto Rico, the Hawaiians islands and the French West Indies.

These figures show that with very few exceptions the leading foreign countries materially increased their purchases of American agricultural products during 1894-1898. In the total value of the agricultural exports there was an advance from $636,633,747 in 1894 to $858,507,942 in 1898, making a gain of $221,874,195. The countries of destination that contributed most to this increase were the United Kingdom, Germany, France, Belgium, Canada, the Netherlands, Japan, Italy, Denmark and British Africa.

Our exports of farm products to the United Kingdom increased $82,588,854 during the five years, to Germany $46,441,338 and to France $33,415,208.

The summary brings out the fact that about 88 percent of all the farm produce shipped from the United States during the five years mentioned was marketed in Europe, the annual average being $586,958,907. In 1898 it reached as high as $761,870,782, showing an increase of $195,588,939 over the value for 1894. Of the remaining 12 percent the chief part went to Canada and the other North American countries, averaging annually $48,724,257, or slightly more than 7 percent of the total. The records for the five years show only a slight gain. South America took 1.72 percent of the total, the average yearly value being $11,389,761, and were less in 1898 than 1894. To Asia there was a marked increase during the five years, the value advancing from $3,801,099 in 1894 to $4,467,349 in 1898.

Three Persons Cremated.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 15.—Alonzo Blanchard and his wife and a boarder by the name of William Mooney, who resided in the town of Merrimack, were burned to death Saturday evening, and the cause of the fire is unknown. It occurred shortly after 6 o'clock. The Blanchards had returned from the city, and when they passed the house of one of the neighbors both were said to have been quarrelling, and from their appearance they had been drinking. Theories of foul play have been advanced, but receive little credence.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Kruger Talks of Jameson Raid and Why He Lost Faith In England.

Nothing Definite Known as to Buller's Movements.

Every Available Man, Including Leading Merchants, Called Out by Free State.

London, Jan. 16.—J. B. Robinson, the South African millionaire, in a signed article in The Daily News, this morning, relates conversations he has had with President Kruger, and describes several interviews in which the Jameson raid was talked over. On one of these occasions, President Kruger said:

"Do you mean to tell me that you do not know that the men who organized and engineered the raid organized it for their own benefit? They had decided how they would divide the Transvaal and how each of the parties was to have certain interests in this country.

"Many reformers who were put in jail were perfectly innocent. They were ignorant of the schemes of the men from the inner circle. There were only 12 men in that inner circle, and they were to divide the Transvaal among themselves.

"They and their companies found the money for the raid. Do you think we are so innocent as not to know that Rhodes, metaphorically speaking, held a pistol at the heads of certain men in England, and said to them: 'If you do not support me, I shall denounce you and your complicity in the raid.'"

At this stage, according to Mr. Robinson, President Kruger became more excited and shouted so loudly that people in the street stopped to listen to the conversation. Mr. Kruger then said: "And now you are remonstrating with me about arming. It is true. I am arming, and it is because I see clearly that I must defend my country."

To this Mr. Robinson replied: "The British public is aroused. If any attempt were made again to enter this country there would be a great outcry in England, and the imperial authorities would take steps to punish the organizers and to prevent such free looting expeditions."

President Kruger approached Mr. Robinson, placed his hand on his shoulder, made a violent effort to suppress his excitement, and said: "You mean well, but I have lost all confidence. What has happened would take place again, and I am determined to guard against it.

Later Mr. Kruger said: "What is to prevent Rhodes and his coadjutors again engineering some diabolical attempt against the independence of my country?"

Mr. Robinson purposes to publish a book giving "the true history of the Jameson raid."

The Birmingham Mail, the organ of Joseph Chamberlain, says: We understand, on the highest authority, that, if the government is defeated in parliament on the question of the war, the cabinet will immediately appeal to the country, all the ministers having decided to stand together and not to permit any individual minister to be made the scapegoat.

General Buller's latest authentic word as to what he and his 30,000 men are doing was wired from Springfield after his first forward step. Striving to think out the unknown, London is confused by surmise and rumor and disquited by suspense.

Spencer Wilkinson, the lucid military expert of The Morning Post, asserts that the Boer force in northern Natal is larger than General Buller's and General White's combined, so that the Boers are able to leave a force around Ladysmith larger than that within the town and yet to oppose General Buller with a force superior to his own.

Reports from the Boer camps affirm that the circle of investment has been drawn closer by the occupation of some hills nearer the town, thus liberating reinforcements to oppose General Buller.

The Daily News suggests that a multitude of the rumors that originate in South Africa and London are given currency by the English military authorities in order to mislead the Boers. The war pages of the great dailies this morning are almost barren. Nevertheless, the instruments on the loops connecting the war office with the cables continue to click.

The yeomanry recruiters are disturbed by the fact that they are able to get only on 1½ companies out of upwards of 1000 applicants in the metropolitan districts. All the other applicants fall short of the requirements. One thousand would be regarded as a very small number, even were all accepted. The provinces are doing better, although to raise 10,000 appears far from the easy matter it did a fortnight ago.

Among the minor perplexities of the war office is a strike among the military tailors, which causes delay in uniforming the recruits.

The correspondent of The Times at Lourenzo Marquez, telegraphing last Saturday, says: The Free State has now called out every available man, including the leading merchants, who have expected to enjoy immunity. The Volksstem, in the course of an article obviously inspired, vindicates the gold tax as a political move, holding that, if the assumption be correct that the bulk of the Rand shares is held on the continent, Germany, France and other countries must recognize the desirability of bringing the war to a speedy close. It adds that every day the war continues costs the shareholders £17,000. A threat of confiscation will be used to enforce the tax.

With the invaluable assistance of a considerable number of British subjects, the Boer government is steadily increasing the yield from the mines, thus securing funds to pay foreigners employed in the manufacture of explosives, shells and other agents for the prosecution of the war. The time must come when the imperial government will proclaim that such British subjects will be prosecuted for treason or deprived of British citizenship.

The Boer government is feeding 14,000 British subjects. I am informed that the Portuguese customs officials recently seized three cases of contraband containing field signalling appliances consigned by a French firm.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail, dated Saturday, Jan. 13, from Lourenzo Marquez, says: President Kruger has issued a proclamation ordering all burghers to the front. The Volksstem, the Transvaal official organ, suggests that the moment the British cross the border the gold industry should be irretrievably destroyed. President Kruger also issued a circular, dated Jan. 8, to Boer commandants and burghers, urging them to show more energy in the Transvaal cause.

A Novel Proposition.

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—William J. Bryan and President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale university were interviewed yesterday relative to the latter's proposal to ostracise trust magnates. Both are agreed on the idea that social recognition should be denied to any man engaged in a trust or other business enterprise inimical to the public welfare, and that the public mind should be educated to see those evils that exist in the trust system. President Hadley said: "My opinion is that many of the evils commonly attributed to trusts do not properly belong there. The evils that do exist ought to be clearly pointed out and where it is shown that a man is engaged in an unworthy enterprise the people should deny him social recognition. I believe the time will come when they will do so." Mr. Bryan said: "A man who tries to rob the public by means of a trust or by wrecking a bank or a railroad should no more be countenanced by society than a plain highwayman."

Charges Against Dr. McGiffert.

New York, Jan. 16.—The Presbytery of New York yesterday listened to the formal charges of heresy made against Rev. Arthur C. McGiffert, D. D., by the stated clerk, Rev. W. F. Birch, and thereupon cited Dr. McGiffert to appear on Feb. 12 and plead. The charges brought by the stated clerk aver that Dr. McGiffert, in his book entitled, "A History of Christianity in the Apostolic Age," denies the immediate inspiration by God and the infallible authority of holy scripture by discrediting or contradicting statements of its writers; by teaching that the authors of holy scripture contradict each other, or that scripture contradicts scripture, and by denying the genuineness, truthfulness and authority of portions of the gospel to John, and the discourses of our Lord as they are contained in said gospel.

Actively Chasing the Insurgents.

Manila, Jan. 16.—Part of General Bates' troops are operating about Lake Taal. The insurgents continue to retreat south. Colonel Hayes, with the Fourth cavalry, is supposed to have reached Lipa, where many Spanish prisoners are held. Colonel Anderson, with the Thirty-eighth infantry, took Talisay, on the north shore of the lake, with but little opposition. Major Cheatham, with a battalion of the Thirty-seventh, on his way to San Pablo, dispersed 400 insurgents, whom the cavalry are pursuing toward Alaminos. A troop of the Third cavalry lost two men killed and three wounded in an encounter with the insurgents near San Fernando de la Union on Jan. 12.

Experienced Terrible Suffering.

San Francisco, Jan. 16.—Hong Kong advices say that the British steamer St. Helene, on the voyage from Hong Kong to Singapore, on the night of Nov. 14, during heavy weather, struck Bombay rock, 420 miles from Cape St. James. The crew remained on board eight days, when, seeing the vessel was about to sink, the crew left the wreck in boats. Fifteen days of terrible suffering from hunger, thirst and heat were experienced and then the boats arrived at Cape St. James. One boat with five Chinese was lost.

Big Piece of Skull Removed.

Beaumont, Tex., Jan. 16.—J. Scott Harrison of Kansas City, a brother of ex-President Harrison, who was kicked in the head by a horse Saturday, is more dangerously hurt than at first thought. His physicians have removed a piece of the skull an inch wide and three inches long. He has recovered from the shock of the operation and it is believed will recover. Physicians say that such an injury would ordinarily cause instant death.

Whallen and Ryan Indicted.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16.—The Franklin county grand jury yesterday returned indictments against John H. Whallen and Charles H. Ryan, charging them with unlawfully conspiring to bribe a member of the general assembly, Senator S. B. Harrell. Bench warrants were at once issued for Whallen and Ryan, bond being fixed at $1000 in each case. The cases were set for trial on the 25th instant.

IN WICKED NEW YORK.

Mazet Committee Reports the Result of Its Investigations.

Outlines Many Great Evils Which Were Disclosed.

"Pull" and Favoritism For Private Gain Appears to Have Been the Rule.

Albany, Jan. 16.—The members of the Mazet investigating committee presented their report last night to the assembly. The majority report is signed by Assemblymen Mazet, Fallows, Wilson, Costello and McEwan, and the minority by Assemblymen Hoffman and Boland.

The majority report opens by stating that a great part of the testimony was directed to the conduct and control of the various offices and departments in New York city, and in this connection says:

"In many of these great evils were disclosed. For such as were administrative in their nature, the remedy must be sought at the ballot box and not at the hands of the legislature. The one clear and distinct fact brought out by this investigation is that we have in this great city the most perfect instance of centralized party government yet known."

It declares that "we see the central power, not the man who sits in the mayor's chair, but the man who stands behind it. We see the same arbitrary power dictating appointments, directing officials controlling boards, lecturing members of the legislature and the municipal assembly. We see an enormous and ever-increasing crowd of office holders with ever-increasing salaries; the powers of government prostituted to protect criminals, to demoralize the police, to debauch the public conscience, and to turn governmental functions into channels for private gain. The proof is conclusive, not that the public treasury has been directly robbed, but that great opportunities have been given by manipulation of public offices to enable favored individuals to work for their own personal benefit. The people alone can remedy these evils. There is no legislative panacea for such administrative ills.

"The present mayor has not conceived his duties to be as contemplated by the charter commission. He has asserted that his view of the distribution of governmental power was that, after having appointed commissioners, they were responsible for their several departments, and that he would neither confer nor advise in advance, but would confine himself to acting upon their completed projects. So far as appointments were concerned, it is a fair inference from all the evidence that he has practically abdicated his powers and exercises merely a registering function of the determination of the leaders of the party which elected him.

"We are strongly of the opinion that the mayor's term is too long and advise that it should be shortened to two years, to take effect with the next incumbent.

"The conduct of the present police department of the city of New York is unqualifiedly bad. Not only are the laws against pool rooms, gaming houses, policy shops, excise violations, dance halls and wicked resorts of all kinds not enforced, or enforced in such a way as to be ridiculously ineffective, but the general discipline is lax; grave offenses of personal dereliction in the way of drunkenness, absence from post, inattention to duty, etc., go unpunished or are visited with such small fines as almost to be an encouragement and not a deterrent for wrongdoing.

"Robberies, bunco games, deceits, frauds, thefts, have increased in an alarming degrees, and the detection of these crimes and the recovery of property has steadily decreased during the last two years.

"We believe that the great mass of the rank and file of the departments under proper leadership would execute all the laws with courage and vigilance, but it is not in the nature of things that subordinates dependent on their superiors for continuance and promotion in rank should conduct themselves in direct opposition to the clearly known views of those superiors. When, at the direct instance of the gambling and pool-selling fraternity, officers have been 'pounded,' captains transferred and a chief retired, it is hopeless to expect any other administration of such laws than that which the overwhelming evidence proves to exist."

The proposed contract with the Ramapo Water company is discussed at great length. Attention is called to the administration of the building department, and the report says: "Here again we find the dominant theory of the present government corrupt, pull and favoritism for private gain in evidence.

"The tax department increased the assessed valuation of the real estate of the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx for the year 1899 over that of 1898 to the enormous amount of $327,000,000. The examination of very many of the officials of the department indicated ignorance and incompetence so gross as to be ridiculous if the material interests of the citizens had not been at the mercy of such officials."

The conduct of the dock department is criticised, especially in reference to the purchase of supplies.

Action to prevent the levying of political assessments on the judiciary is recommended.

In conclusion, the report urges that the meetings of all city boards be public because "in a free government publicity is absolutely essential."

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate.
To Let—House.

Good Afternoon.

The appointments of Mayor Hall are generally well received. Of course there are some disappointed ones, but that is natural where there were 100 applicants for 30 to 40 positions. Successful business men have been selected for all the positions, and many of them have had experience in the office to which they have been appointed, so that the city's business is in good hands.

It is a Republican administration, as was expected, but Mayor Hall has not make a "clean sweep" of all the Democrats in office. For the very important position of Chief of the Fire Department, he has retained Peter J. Williams, the efficient chief. He has reappointed Overseer Bass and Milk Inspector Hallowell and has also retained ex-Mayor Keith on the board of Library Trustees. There are but few changes in the Library Board and the Managers of Adams Academy, while some of the members of the Park board and Managers of Public Burial Places are retained.

The most important change is in the Board of Assessors, none of the appointees having served in 1899. Messrs. Ames, Sherman and Glover have given good services in the past. The Principal Assessor is new on the board, but his experience in the granite business, in real estate, as a bank official, Councilman and Representative to the General Court, admirably qualify him for the position. His many interests are closely allied with the city, he is hopeful for the future of Quincy, and believes in justice to all. It is doubtful if a better selection could have been made. [illegible] were pleased when Mr. [illegible] and many [illegible] Mr. Thompson, after much persuasion, agreed to accept the office. Mr. Johnson is a well known real estate man, and Mr. Newcomb and Mr. Murray both have acquaintance with the granite industry and the city generally.

The most satisfactory appointment of all is that of C. F. Knowlton, as Commissioner of Public Works. Mr. Knowlton was introduced to Quincy by a Democratic Mayor, Charles F. Adams, 2d, but he did not consider it a political office, and gave the city a good business-like administration with good success. The taxpayers felt that under him they were securing as near 100 cents in improvements for every dollar expended as was possible. After his experience of two years in the office, and a better acquaintance with the difficulties of keeping Quincy streets in repair, he will be a more valuable man than ever.

The appointment of Walter H. Ripley as Chief of Police is received with considerable favor. Ex-Mayor Sears, from his acquaintance with city affairs and partnership with the Mayor of Newton, should make a good City Solicitor.

Taxpayers who believe that the taxes should be collected, indorse the reappointment of Tax Collector Baker of 1898. City Treasurer Gray and City Clerk Cleaves will be at home in their offices after an absence of one year, and the affair of the City Physician will be more ably administered by Dr. Welch, who was for many years that official.

It is the duty of all Republicans now, and the voters generally, to unite and make the administration of Mayor Hall a happy and successful one. Mr. Hall has no political axes to grind, and will not tolerate politics in any of the departments. He will strive to give the city a progressive, business-like and economical government and we wish him and his official family success.

President Bryant of the City Council has probably distributed his committee appointments as well as was possible when it is considered that there are old and new members, Republicans and Democrats, and six wards to be considered. Mr. Freeman of Wollaston, who was elected at large, was the ranking member on the Finance Committee and was the logical candidate for chairman. This was the only chairmanship he gave Ward Five. Ward Six fared the best in chairmanships, obtaining three of the eight, while Wards Three and Four got none: Mr. Poland is at the head of the Street Committee, Mr. Hill at the head of the Sewer Committee, and Mr. Alden will have the difficult task of keeping the Election Committee together to receive the late returns. Ward One received two chairmanships; Mr. Packard on Public Buildings, and Mr. Wilson on Health, etc. Mr. Hultman of Ward Two continues at the head of the Fire Department Committee and Mr. Newcomb of the same ward at the head of the Ordinance Committee, which also dispenses licenses. The last committee is the only one which is entirely Republican, but to offset this, a more important committee is wholly Democratic, that of Health, Poor, State and Military Aid. On the other six committees, the minority have either one or two members.

The Committee on Welfare of the City is dead. It was a yearling at best, but does anyone recollect that it ever advocated anything. There are great possibilities for such a committee, but the opportunity was not improved during 1899.

BRILLIANT PAPERS.

The Atlantic Monday Evening club held a delightful session Monday evening. First, an exceedingly interesting paper on "Washington" was read by Mr. Pollard of Quincy Point, followed by a very bright original poem "Snowbound," an adaptation of Whittier's to the circumstances of the blizzard a year ago when so many of the trains were stalled and the passengers obliged to remain in them over night,—by Mrs. Wilson Marsh of Quincy.

Mr. Charles Merrick of Atlantic gave an address on the "Nineteenth Century Education" much of it in a humorous vein, with common sense deductions, all highly entertaining to the audience.

Rev. Edward Anderson of Quincy Point was expected to make an address, but a sprained ankle unfortunately prevented his keeping his engagement to the disappointment of the club.

After the intermission the following musical programme was carried out.

Trio—Violin, Cornet, Piano,
"The Ice Palace," "Whistling Rufus,"
Miss Teague, Miss Florence West and Miss Iva West.

Songs—"Plantation Lullaby" and "When Love is Done,"
Mr. Ulmer H. Manning.

Cornet Solo—"The Holy City,"
Miss Iva West.

Song—"Asleep in the Deep,"
Mr. F. P. Rafter.

Violin Solo—"Home Sweet Home,"
Miss Florence West.

Song, "When Mary was a Lassie,"
Mr. Ulmer H. Manning.

Cornet Solo, "Marguerite,"
Miss Iva West.

Song, "Fearless,"
Mr. F. P. Rafter.

Trio, Violin, cornet, piano, "Smoky-Mokes,"
Miss Teague, Miss Florence West, and Miss Iva West.

Every musical number was highly applauded. Mr. Manning's tenor and Mr. Rafter's bass were much enjoyed and elicited encores that were responded to. The trio each and all performed with excellent effect and won most generous applause and satisfaction from the club whose desires for repetition they also gratified.

Mrs. Cephas Drew and Mr. Charles Hall constituted the literary committee for the evening and Miss Maude Rice and Mr. Frank Thomas the committee on music.

One hundred and thirty-seven were present.

Whistling is said to be regarded as a violation of the divine law by Icelanders.

YOUR MATTRESS.

Long continued use of a hair mattress, is practically as perilous to one's health as if you were compelled to use the same water for several baths. With years of use a hair mattress grows flat, lifeless and becomes filled with oily and organic matter absorbed from the body. To make it absolutely sweet, clean, flexible and healthful it should be made over, hair picked, then scoured and ticking washed. Upholsterers with years of experience, ready to do this work for you just as it should be done. A postal or telephone calls the delivery wagon. Old mattresses made as good as new. Service prompt. Prices right.

The letter, after thanking the Council for its efforts to secure better street car service for Houghs Neck, said he should not bother them any more, but he should shortly present a petition to the Council asking for a location for a street railway from Quincy Centre to Houghs Neck. He would give a bond for the completion of the line, and would agree to give fifteen-minute service in the summer hourly service during January, February and March and half-hour service during April, May and December; that school children would be carried for half fare so they could go home to dinner that he would light the whole line at night free for one year and after that at cost. Placed on file. Adjourned 7.58.

Annual Meeting of the Quincy City Hospital.

Mortgages,	21,500 00
Demand loan,	3,528 45
Loan to general account.	4,200 00
Uninvested,	322 40

Mr. Rice spoke briefly in relation to the increase of the debt, which was due because he had failed to collect as he had agreed. He did not like to see the debt increase and he would subscribe $100 if the trustees would raise the balance.

Messrs. Reed, Bateman and Cobb were appointed a committee to raise the debt.

Mr. Keating did not like the idea of making another collection and suggested that the trustees wait until the Hospital Sunday and have it understood but one collection was to be made.

Mr. Reed said that there were papers now out that had not been turned in, and he thought when they were it would wipe out the increase in debt.

Dr. Gordon said that during the coming year necessary repairs would have to be made. The work has gone on in the regular way. At times the Hospital had plenty of room, but during the latter part of the year it was crowded. There was a constant need of enlargement. The increased number of deaths was due to the fact that with the exception of one or two, the cases were necessarily fatal when entered.

The following officers were then elected:

Clerk,—Warren W. Adams.

Rainy today.

Mr. Youngquest is erecting a house on Hamilton street, Wollaston Park.

An effort is to be made this year to wipe out the debt of the Quincy City Hospital.

Mrs. Fannie Hatch Thayer will sing at the entertainment at the Quincy Point church.

The rain this morning has made the walking treacherous again, and falls were frequent.

Miss Ruth Newcomb has gone to Lynn to spend the remainder of the winter with her sister.

The Singing school at Quincy Point holds its first class this evening under the direction of Mr. Adonirum Sidelinger.

Those who made bets on the Mayor's appointments and won, are busy today collecting, but there is a sorry crowd at Wollaston.

The Christmas operetta, "The changes of a night," will shortly be presented by the Sons of Veterans and Ladies' Aid Society.

The Daily Ledger extra took well last evening. In fact most everyone took one or more, so that two editions aggregating 1500 were printed.

It is reported that Charles F. Knowlton, who has been appointed Commissioner of Public Works has accepted the government position at Porto Rico, briefly referred to in Monday's Ledger.

The funeral of the late John O'Brien of Atlantic was held from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. John A. Duggan, of Atlantic street Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The deceased was 86 years of age and had been a resident of Atlantic for the past 60 years. The interment was in the family lot in West Quincy.

"At Sixes and Sevens" and "A Kiss in the Dark" are the plays which will be presented at Colonial hall this evening by local talent under the direction of Mr. Emery L. Crane. The former is a comedietta, and the latter a farce. As a large number of course tickets were sold, but 75 single admissions were offered for sale. They can be had at C. C. Hearn's while they last.

Bay View, L. O. L., held a regular meeting Monday evening. In the absence of the W. M., Henry M. Storms, D. M., M. McLeod, presided. Considerable business was transacted and two applications for membership was received. R. Whiteway, past county master of Kings county, Prince Edward Island, was present and made an interesting speech on the South African war. A paper was read by M. Lamont, and there were speeches by H. BRITAIN'S RIGHT HAND MAN.

Kitchener of Khartum, "Who Has Made Himself a Machine."

Lord Kitchener's achievements in the Sudan and his brilliant conduct of the campaign which made him famous are of too recent date to make a recapitulation of them necessary; but a few extracts of a personal and graphic character taken from the pen sketch by our war correspondent, Mr. G. W. Steevens, written just after the fall of Omdurman, will serve to show as clearly as may be the kind of man Lord Roberts will have to assist him in the South African campaign, says the London Mail.

"You cannot imagine the sirdar," says Mr. Steevens, "otherwise than as seeing the right thing and doing it. His precision is so inhumanly unerring that he is more like a machine than a man. You feel that he ought to be patented and shown with pride at the Paris international exposition—'British Empire; Exhibit No. 1, Hors Concours, the Sudan Machine.'

"The sirdar is never in a hurry. With immovable self control he holds back from each step until the ground is consolidated under the last. His officers and men are wheels in the machine; he feeds them enough to make them efficient, and works them as mercilessly as he works himself. He will have no married officers in his army; marriage interferes with work. Any officer who breaks down with the climate goes on the sick list at once; next time he goes, and the Egyptian army bears him on its strength no more.

"If you suppose, therefore, that the sirdar is unpopular, he is not. No general is unpopular who always beats the enemy. When the columns move out of camp in the evening to march all night through the dark, they know not whither, and fight at dawn with an enemy they have not seen, every man goes forth with a tranquil mind. He may personally come back, and he may not; but about the general result there is no doubt. You bet your boots the sirdar knows, and he wouldn't fight if he weren't going to win. Other generals have been better loved; none was ever better trusted.

"So far as Egypt is concerned, he is the man of destiny—the man who has been preparing himself for 16 years for one greaty purpose, * * * the man who has sifted experience and corrected error, who has worked out small things and waited for great, marble to sit still and fire to smite, steadfast, cold and inflexible, the man who has cut out his human heart and made himself a machine."

EXTENT NOT DECIDED

But Committee Appears Unanimous For Increasing the Navy.

Pettigrew Denounces Action of President McKinley

And Incidentally Attacks Great Britain In Speaking on His Resolution.

Washington, Jan. 16.—While the house committee on naval affairs has already taken up the matter of the naval appropriation bill, there is no intention to hurry it to the house. It will be some time, probably two months, before it is reported. Unusual care will be devoted to the preparation of the bill by the committee. The opinion of the members of the committee seems to be unanimously in favor of increasing the navy, although there is doubt in the minds of several as to how far this increase should go.

Secretary Long has recommended an appropriation for three armored cruisers of 13,000 tons, three protected cruisers of 8000 tons and 12 gunboats of 900 tons. Last year, the appropriation act gave the navy three battleships, three armored cruisers and six cruisers. This was considered a liberal addition, although provision for three protected cruisers asked by the secretary of the navy was withheld. During the warm dispute over the matter of armor and a government armor plant, a clause was inserted in the bill providing that contracts for the hulls of the vessels could not be let until after contracts had been made for the armor within the price fixed by congress.

The importance of the situation confronting congress this session in regard to this armor question is much greater than it was last session. Not only is there less probability that the manufacturers will consent to accept the price fixed by congress because they have been able to hold out so successfully, but the great advance in the price of steel and iron makes it practically certain that no armor can be obtained within the price set, and it is doubtful if even at the old figures the manufacturers of armor plate would care to risk a contract for the enormous amount of plate which will be needed for the battleships and cruisers under the last bill and those which will be included in the next appropriation bill.

At present the United States has under construction or authorized 61 vessels. The list comprises eight battleships under construction; three sheathed battleships, authorized; three sheathed armored cruisers, authorized; seven sheathed protected cruisers, four monitors and one gunboat, authorized; one training ship, 10 torpedo boat destroyers, 17 torpedo boats and one submarine torpedo boat.

Spirited debate on the Philippine question occupied the attention of the senate for nearly three hours yesterday. Mr. Berry first addressed the senate in support of the resolutions recently introduced by Mr. Bacon, regarding the disposition of the Philippines. He was followed by Mr. Pettigrew, in support of his resolution of inquiry. Mr. Pettigrew was very bitter in his attacks upon the administration, and refused to substitute for his measure that of Mr. Hoar.

He declared that the president, when he made the Sulu treaty, laid himself liable to impeachment. He expressed the opinion that the British government had influenced the action, and then assailed the British electoral system, and declared Kipling's literature "miserable contemptible rot." He then passed to his familiar argument that our race cannot live in the tropics. He said he would withdraw the army from Manila and recognize the native republic.

Mr. Wolcott replied to Mr. Pettigrew, scathingly arraigning the South Dakota senator for the attitude he had assumed on the Philippine question. He declared his belief that if Aguinaldo himself occupied the seat in the senate occupied by Mr. Pettigrew, representing the people of South Dakota, who had sent their sons as soldiers to the Philippines, he would be too patriotic, too devoted to the interests of the country, to assume the attitude assumed by the present South Dakota senator. He accused Mr. Pettigrew of never saying good of anyone in all his experience, and said his example should be a warning to the young people of the nation.

Mr. Wolcott adverted, also, to the speech recently delivered by Mr. Beveridge, sharply criticising it for the spirit of greed which seemed to animate the senator in making such a deliverance.

At the conclusion of the Philippine discussion, Mr. Rawlins addressed an elaborate argument to the senate in opposition to the proposed financial legislation.

Senator Butler gave notice of a substitute he will offer for the financial bill. It provides for the manufacture or coinage of money out of gold, silver, paper and copper. The bill provides that no piece of money shall be of greater denomination than $20, and it makes gold, silver or paper money legal tender for free coinage of both silver and gold.

The senate in executive session confirmed the nomination of S. D. Warfield to be postmaster of Baltimore. This ends a long fight in which Senator Wellington opposed and Senator McComas favored confirmation.

Yesterday's session of the house was devoted to consideration of business pertaining to the District of Columbia. Representative June W. Gale of Kentucky, who succeeds the late Evan Settle, was sworn in, and the urgent deficiency bill was reported by Mr. Cannon, with a notice that he would ask that it be taken up at once.

"FATHER" CLARK'S MISSION.

Will Endeavor to Promote Larger Christian Endeavor Work in China and Japan.

Boston, Jan. 16.—Dr. Francis E. Clark of the Christian Endeavor society started today for an extended trip abroad in the interest of that organization. His wife accompanies him.

REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

In Chipman hall, Tremont Temple, last night, Dr. Clark was tendered a farewell by the Boston Christian Endeavor union. Addresses were given by Rev. G. C. Lorimer, D. D., Rev. A. H. Plumb, D. D., Rev. W. R. Campbell, Rev. James J. Dunlop, and Dr. Clark responded.

Dr. Clark will attend the triennial Christian Endeavor convention for all China in Foochow, on April 4, and other meetings of no little importance in Shanghai, Tientsin, Peking, and various other points in the northern part of China. Before reaching China he will spend a month in Japan, to attend the Japanese national Christian Endeavor convention, to be held in Kobe, besides several other meetings in various parts of the empire. His purpose is not simply to attend these gatherings, important as they are, but to do what he can to promote the systematic organization of these countries, especially China, for a much larger Christian Endeavor work in the future.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 16.—While Messrs. Mellen, Saunders, Dean, Adams, Mooney and Haskell were discussing the Mellen resolutions in the legislature yesterday, intended to provide a place for Silas D. Reed of Taunton on the railroad committee, he having been dropped by Speaker Myers in the recent appointments, the member from Taunton sat in the reading room of the house quietly meditating. After the discussion was all over, and the house decided that he should not have a place on the committee, he took his seat and remained during the rest of the session.

Although the debate was on the resolution increasing the railroad committee so that Mr. Reed of Taunton could have a place in that body, underneath the whole discussion was the matter of the proposed Boston and Albany lease. Mr. Mellen was vigorous and denunciatory in his remarks regarding corporate influence, and went so far to declare that the railroad committee was an "outside inspiration."

There was a tilt between Mr. Mellen and Mr. Saunders. The latter was one of Speaker Myers' energetic opponents in the fight for speaker, but he went to the defense yesterday of the man he fought only a few days ago.

There was another surprise caused by Mr. Mooney of Boston, a Democrat, taking Mr. Mellen to task for his reference to the speaker's appointments.

The debate lasted for over two hours, and there is a prospect that it will be renewed, although the Mellen resolutions fell by the legislative wayside.

Mrs. Mason Wants Divorce.

New York, Jan. 16.—The Times says: Marion Manola Mason, the comic opera singer, signed papers yesterday in a suit for divorce against her husband, Jack Mason, the actor. A Massachusetts woman, said to be prominent in society, will figure in the complaint, it is said. Mason and his wife, besides their own domestic difference, met with many reverses while they were playing together as co-stars. They separated more than a year ago. An arrangement has existed for some time by which Mason paid his wife $25 weekly.

Railroad Emp'oyes Pleased.

Boston, Jan. 16.—There is much rejoicing among the railroad union men in the New England states because on Thursday next the consolidation known as the American Federation of Railroad Employes will go out of existence. The men claim that, being bound by the rules of the order, they had not the power to quit work on a few hours' notice, and without that power there was no chance that their complaints against unfair treatment would be attended to by the officials of railroads.

Reese's Release Ordered.

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—Judge Thayer, in the court of appeals, yesterday rendered a decision in the case of John P. Reese, a member of the executive committee of the United Mine Workers of America, who is now in jail at Fort Scott, Kan., for contempt of court, ordering his release. The contention of Reese, that the injunction under which he was imprisoned for addressing striking miners, did not apply to him, was upheld by Judge Thayer.

Alleged Poisoning Case.

Tiffin, O., Jan. 16.—Miss Orpha Sheets, a handsome young lady of Green Springs, was arrested yesterday, charged with the murder of her lover, Claude Tuttle. He died under peculiar circumstances several weeks ago with symptoms of strychnine poisoning. The coroner's verdict charges Miss Sheets with his death.

Sent to State Prison.

Boston, Jan. 16.—For performing a criminal operation, Pearl G. Kimball was yesterday sentenced to state prison for not more than six years and not less than four, and fined $1000 by Judge Sheldon.

BARNET AND BLANCHE CHESEBOROUGH.

Effort to Show That Their Relations Furnished Motive For Poisoning the Former.

New York, Jan. 16.—With the beginning of the 10th week of the trial of Roland B. Molineux Assistant District Attorney Osborne asserted that the end of the prosecution is near. For the first time evidence was introduced yesterday by the state for the purpose of proving, if possible, a motive for poisoning H. C. Barnet by Molineux.

While Molineux is not on trial for the murder of Barnet, it is extremely important for the prosecution to connect Molineux with Barnet's death, as showing Molineux's character, his letter writing habits and his alleged use of cyanide of mercury to kill those whom he hated.

Rachel Green, colored, of Washington was called to the stand, and said that she had at one time lived at 257 West Seventy-fifth street, where a Mrs. Bell lived. Asked if she knew the defendant, she replied that she knew a Mr. Chesborough, who lived there with Mrs. Chesborough. Asked if she saw Mr. Cheseborough in the room, she walked through the court room in front of the recorder's desk, stepped up to within three feet of the defendant, and pointing her finger straight at Molineux exclaimed:

"That's the man." She went on to say that Molineux had in the room where she had been employed in the capacity of chambermaid, a dressing case, which his valet brought. A Mr. Fiske was asked to step to the front, and the witness identified him as the man who, in her opinion, brought the dress suit case to the house. All eyes in the court room were on the recorder when he inquired as to why the testimony was material. Assistant District Attorney Osborne replied that he would show that the evidence was germane by the next witness. He added: "We have proved that the defendant lived with Blanche Cheseborough in 1897, and we will now prove that he did not after a while. Another man intervened."

The next witness was Minnie Betts, another colored woman. She testified that she had been employed as waitress and had tended the door at Mrs. Bellinger's in West End avenue, and that Miss Blanche Cheseborough had lived there, but that she went away in the summer of 1898. The witness testified that she never saw Mr. Molineux until after he was married to Blanche Cheseborough. Asked if any other man ever called on Miss Cheseborough there, the witness replied in the affirmative. To the question of what he looked like, Mr. Weeks objected, and the objection was sustained by the court.

Mr. Osborne then said that he proposed to show that from November, 1897, to January, 1898, the defendant and the woman whom he afterwards married, lived together as man and wife before they were married, and were so known at 257 West Seventy-fifth street; that Blanche Cheseborough then went to live at 257 West End avenue, and lived there alone; that the defendant dropped out of sight and was not heard of until they were married; that there was another caller on Blanche Cheseborough before she married the defendant, and that that man was H. C. Barnet. Mr. Osborne, by way of explanation of a motive, said that he had shown a system in the Cornish case in the hiring of the letter boxes and the writing of letters to medical concerns, and that he would show a similar system in the Barnet case.

The recorder finally excluded the question of a description of the male caller on Miss Cheseborough. Mr. Osborne was, however, afterwards allowed to show the witness a picture of H. C. Barnet. After an inspection of the photograph of Barnet witness said that it looked like the man who called on Miss Cheseborough, but that she could not remember positively.

The Pugilistic Arena.

New York, Jan. 16.—Frank Patterson of this city and Solly Smith of Los Angeles, Cal., fought 25 rounds to a draw before the Hercules Athletic club of Williamsburg last night. They agreed to meet at 122 pounds, but Patterson was four pounds overweight and had to forfeit $100 in consequence. Patterson had the advantage as to points.

Cincinnati, Jan. 16.—Matty Matthews knocked out Jack Bennett here last night. The men fought at the welterweight limit for a purse of $800. Bennett up to the time of the knockout had the advantage in points. Matthews was aggressor throughout. Bennett was knocked out in the seventh round.

John J. Albright has announced to the directors of the Buffalo fine arts academy his intention to present to the city an art gallery to cost about $300,000.

Like a flash of lightning, sudden and startling, disease strikes down many a man. Yet there have been warnings upon warnings, unheeded. Food has lain like a heavy weight in the stomach after eating. There have been belchings, bitter risings in the mouth, nervousness, sleeplessness and growing irritability. Instead of listening to these warnings, recourse has been had to some of the nerve numbing palliatives that cover but never cure disease. Many serious diseases begin in a diseased condition of the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. For such diseases there is one medicine which rarely fails to effect a complete cure. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures ninety-eight per cent. of all who give it a fair and faithful trial. It is a temperance medicine and contains no alcohol.

"I was afflicted with what the doctors called nervous indigestion," writes Mr. Thos. G. Lever, of Lever, Richland Co., S. C. "I took medicine from my family physician to no avail. In looking over one of Dr. Pierce's Memorandum Books, I found my case described exactly. I wrote to you and made a statement. You sent me a descriptive list of questions, also some hygienic rules. I carried those out as best I could, but thought myself incurable as I suffered so much with pain under my ribs and an empty feeling in my stomach. At night would have cold or hot feet and hands, alternately. I was getting nervous and suffered a great deal mentally, thinking that death would soon claim me. Always expected something unusual to take place; was irritable and impatient, and greatly reduced in flesh. I could scarcely eat any thing that would not produce a bad feeling in my stomach. After some hesitation, owing to my prejudices against patent medicines, I decided to try a few bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets.' After taking several bottles of each, found I was improving. I continued for six months or more, off and on until I was cured."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are a positive cure for constipation.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S OFFICE. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

EVEN RUMORS LACKING

Nothing Decisive Thought to Have Occurred Recently In Natal.

Boer Attack Repulsed by British Near Colesberg.

Numerous Reports That the Free States Are About Ready to Quit Fighting.

London, Jan. 17.—Even rumors are no longer telegraphed from Natal. The conclusion deduced from this silence from the military experts generally is that no decisive blow has been struck either way, as, in such an event, there would be no necessity for silence.

The South African conciliation committee, quietly formed to represent the peace minority, announces itself to the country today and asks for support. Among the members are Lord and Lady Coleridge, Herbert Spencer, Sir Robert Threshie Reid, George John Shaw-Lefevre, Frederic Harrison, Stephen Gladstone, the Countess of Carlisle and other notable persons. Leonard Courtney, Unionist member of parliament, is president of the committee.

This movement should be distinguished from the "stop-the-war" group of extremists, of which William T. Stead is the most active member. Its program, summarized, is to wait until a proper opportunity arises for some peaceable settlement. Meanwhile it will gather and distribute correct information and sound views. The manifesto affirms that "as the war was begun amid misunderstandings on both sides, a pacific settlement is possible."

There is no indication that such an arrangement would be tolerated by any considerable portion of the public. National emotion is now in a state of disquietude over the reverses to British arms; dissatisfaction with the conduct of military business is intense and there is an almost universal determination to see the thing through.

The war office has issued orders for the formation of five new batteries.

Seventeen more militia battalions will be embodied in the course of a fortnight. All the regulars are now out of the country except 14 infantry battalions and 11 cavalry battalions. The war office has placed an order for 32,000,000 cartridges in cases.

The yeomanry committee announces that it has accepted 3000 out of the 10,000 which it wishes to raise, and still has 20,000 applicants to be examined.

The war office has wired to countermand the departure from Egypt of a number of officers previously ordered to South Africa. The Daily Chronicle, commenting upon this and upon other news related to it, says: There are some curious reports in circulation, apparently with some authority behind them—which point to the stoppage of the dispatch of further reinforcements when the troops now mobilized shall have embarked. The new cavalry brigade is not to leave England at present.

The military and civil authorities at the Cape are in conflict over the treason cases. A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Sterkstroom says on this point: Kegkumons and Nel, two Dutchmen, who were tried by court-martial during Christmas week, with General Buller's sanction, were committed on Jan. 12 for civil trial, the court-martial proceedings having been stopped by the intervention of the attorney general of Cape Colony.

A Rensburg dispatch says that the Boers yesterday attempted to rush a hill held by a company of the Yorkshires and the New Zealanders, but they were repulsed at the point of the bayonet. The Boers had 21 men killed and about 50 wounded.

The hill commands a tract of country east of the main position of the Boers, and they had determined to make an attempt to seize the heights. They advanced cautiously, directing their fire at a small wall held by the Yorkshires and compelling the latter to keep close under cover. When the Boers rushed the wall the Yorkshires fixed bayonets and charged. Just at that moment Captain Maddocks, with a small party of New Zealanders, came up, and the combined force leaped over the wall and charged straight for the enemy, who fled, followed by a withering fire at close range. The Boers literally tumbled over each other in their hurry to escape, but the persistent fire of the British inflicted a heavy loss.

Desultory firing continued for some time, but the attack was an utter failure and the Boers retreated to the shelter of the small kopjes at the base of the hill.

The Durban correspondent of The Standard deals today with the numerous reports that the Free Staters have tired of the war and will abandon the struggle as soon as the British cross the border. He mentions an extraordinary story with reference to a journey of President Kruger's son-in-law, Eloff, to Delagoa Bay in a German warship. According to this, Eloff has been making arrangements for President Kruger's escape through German Damaraland in the event of the capture of Pretoria.

The Times publishes the following from Pietermaritzburg, dated Tuesday: Very heavy artillery firing was heard yesterday in the direction of Springfield. The Delagoa Bay correspondent of the Natal Times asserts that six big Creusot guns and 50 tons of shells were landed from the French steamer Gironde about the middle of last month, under the noses of two British warships, and were dispatched to Pretoria, causing much rejoicing at the ease with which contraband of war can run the blockade. The Swazi Queen Mother, since the death of King Bunu, has killed all the chiefs who were ever in England or Cape Town, and is now plotting with the Boers. The situation may fairly be considered grave, and it would be well to send regiments of Gurkhas to Swaziland, and immediately.

The correspondent of The Times at Lourenzo Marquez, telegraphing Monday, Jan. 15, says: I am informed on the best authority that six days ago Mafeking was holding out as pluckily as ever. There was then no likilhood of capitulation. The garrison had a plenty of cattle and tinned meats. It is openly stated at Johannesburg that 20 field guns were recently smuggled through Delagoa bay.

The Exchange and Telegraph company has received the following dispatch, dated Jan. 16, from Petermaritzburg:

"There is no news from the front, but heavy firing was heard today in the direction of Frere. It is probable that General Buller is engaging the enemy. A rumor is current here that a portion of the British force is near Ladysmith."

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Pietermaritzburg, dated Tuesday, says: There was very heavy firing to the north yesterday. I believe the Boers are contesting General Buller's passage of the Tugela. Howitzers were evidently busy, as the firing is described as the heaviest yet heard in Natal.

Sir Alfred Milner has proclaimed martial law in the districts of Hopetown and Philipstown.

A dispatch from Modder river, dated Tuesday, Jan. 16, says: There was a brisk exchange of shells this morning, the Boers returning our fire for the first time in several days. The British entrenchments are being continually strengthened and extended. The permanent railway bridge is almost completed. Heavy rains have fallen in the hills recently, and the fords at Reit river are all impassable. It is reported that it will be necessary to relay the rails over almost the entire distance from Modder river to Kimberley, the Boers having used the rails and sleepers in building their fortifications.

Put Off For a Week.

Boston, Jan. 17.—A majority of the Fitchburg directors met yesterday in the directors' room of the old Fitchburg station and postponed action on the question of leasing the Fitchburg to the Boston and Maine until Jan. 23. The result is looked upon as a victory for Dr. William S. Webb, who remained away from the meeting, giving illness as the cause of his absence. It was the regular monthly meeting, but the routine business was quickly despatched, and the directors' interest was absorbed in the question of leasing the road to the Boston and Maine. Inside of five minutes it was put to a vote of adjournment for one week.

Hoar Sympathizes With Boers.

Boston, Jan. 17.—Faneuil hall will be used tonight for a pro-Boer meeting arranged by the Hibernians of Boston, assisted by societies of several nationalities. Senator Hoar was invited to be present, but instead he has sent a letter, saying: "I cannot leave my duties here, even to accept your most attractive invitation to speak in Faneuil hall, and to meet the men who are to express their sympathy with the gallant people of a republic of 1,000,000 against an empire of 400,000,000—who are making the best fight since Thermopylae for a cause for which Leonidas and his Spartans gave their lives."

Substantial Contributions.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—Some large amounts are being subscribed to the Canadian patriotic fund for the South African soldiers. The Canadian Pacific railway yesterday donated $15,000 to the fund, while the Bank of Commerce and the Bank of British North America have sent in $5000 each. The Grand Trunk railway has contributed $15,000. The fund started by the Toronto Globe, a week ago, has already reached the neighborhood of $10,000.

RESULT OF A FEUD.

Ex-Congressman Colson Kills Three Men In a Crowded Hotel Lobby.

Bullets, However, Were Intended but For One Man.

Several Shots Were Fired Into Dead Body of the Victim of His Wrath.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 17.—As the result of a renewal of a feud between ex-Congressman David G. Colson and Ethelbert Scott, Colson shot and killed Scott, Luther Demaree and Charles Julian and wounded James Golden and Harry McEwing in the Capitol hotel yesterday. Demaree, Julian, Golden and McEwing were bystanders and were shot by accident. Colson was shot in the arm, but not seriously hurt. After the shooting he gave himself up. Later a warrant was sworn out by Clint Fogg, who witnessed the killing. Fogg says Colson shot first. Julian was thought to be only slightly hurt, but he died of shock and loss of blood.

The killing occurred in the lobby of the Capitol hotel, which was densely packed with people, who are here attending the trial of the contests before the legislature. Persons who were in the hotel when the tragedy occurred say fully 20 shots were fired. Scott, who was the first killed, was a nephew of ex-Governor Bradley. Demaree was assistant postmaster at Shelbyville and a prominent Republican politician.

The trouble between Scott and Colson, which began in the army last year, resulted in Colson being shot by Scott, and it has been predicted since that one or both would be killed should they meet as they did yesterday. Colonel Colson is in a highly nervous state resulting from excitement attending the tragedy.

Accounts of the killing differ, and it is impossible to give detail further than that while Colson and a party of friends were standing in the southwest corner of the hotel lobby, Scott came into the hotel and when near Colson the firing began. Scott, after being shot, walked backward toward the stairway leading to the barroom and fell down the stairs, dead, as he reached them. His body rolled over against the barroom door, and as it did Colonel Colson, who followed, shooting at every step, fired one or more shots into the prostrate form.

Demaree, who was killed in the general fusillade, was shot twice, one ball piercing the head and the other either penetrating the heart or going directly under it.

The most profound sorrow exists over the accidental killing of Demaree and Julian, and the feeling against Colson among their friends is exceedingly bitter. Charles Julian was one of the wealthiest farmers of this county and belonged to one of Kentucky's best known families.

Examination of Scott's body shows that he was shot at least six times. The fact that a part of the bullets were of 38 and part of 44 caliber indicates that he was shot by somebody else, or that Colson had two revolvers. Witnesses to the killing say that Demaree was directly between Scott and Colson when the shooting began, and that he was killed by the first shot fired.

Colson lives at Middlesboro and represented the Eleventh district in congress for two terms. Scott was a young lawyer living at Mount Sterling and was a lieutenant in Colson's regiment in the Spanish war.

When the killing occurred the city was thrown into a state of the greatest excitement, it being supposed at first that it was the result of a clash growing out of the political contests or trial in the legislature.

Captain B. B. Golden, who is thought to be fatally wounded, is a lawyer, who lives at Barboursville, and was captain of the Kentucky cavalry troop during the Spanish-American war.

Captain Golden made a statement in which he said no words passed between Scott and Colson before the shooting, and that Colson fired first.

W. O. Ridpath of Chicago sustained a broken leg by the lifeless form of Scott falling against him as it rolled down the stairway. Captain Golden, when shot, reeled to one side, faling into the arms of ex-Governor McCreery.

It was later learned that Colson used two revolvers, one of 38 and the other of 44 calibre. The battle was terrific, and bullets fairly rained through the lobby, several going wild and piercing window glass, walls and furniture. When Colson reached the residence of Chief Williams he was almost exhausted, and gasped "I am sorry he would not let me alone. There were three of them shooting at me."

The wildest excitement prevailed at the hotel when the fusillade began. Men fell over each other in frantic efforts to get into places of sefety, women fainted and it was several minutes before the awful scope of the tragedy was fully known.

Colson is in jail, charged with murder, but claims self-defense. He was colonel of the Fourth Kentucky regiment during the Spanish war. Scott was a lieutenant, and Golden was captain of a company in Colson's regiment. A feud sprang up between Colson and Scott, while the troops were at Anniston, Ala. It is said Golden was a partisan of Scott. The men met in a restaurant and Colson was shot by Scott. The regiment was mustered out as a result of the feud.

RENOVATE YOUR MATTRESS.

Long continued use of a hair mattress, is practically as perilous to one's health as if you were compelled to use the same water for several baths. With years of use a hair mattress grows flat, lifeless and becomes filled with oily and organic matter absorbed from the body. To make it absolutely sweet, clean, flexible and healthful it should be made over, hair picked, then scoured and ticking washed. Upholsterers with years of experience, ready to do this work for you just as it should be done. A postal or telephone calls the delivery wagon. Old mattresses made as good as new. Service prompt. Drift of Opinion.

☞ Rev. Alan Hudson probably chuckled last evening at the First church when in speaking of personifications he referred to the custom of characterizing a ship as "she" and then incidentally added "and probably because her rigging cost so much." The congregation chuckled anyway.—Brockton Times.

☞ Let the postoffice employes have a day of rest Sunday. The effort to find work for men and women through seven days a week is detrimental to a decent regard for Sunday. Recognizing that some things must be done on Sunday why not be content with that and give up eternally trying to find more and more work for mankind? Every man wants to work or ought to but no one wants to be worked to death though some people are perfectly willing that that should be the fate of others.—Lowell Courier.

☞ The disposition on the part of the legislature to take the control of purely municipal affairs out of the hands of the city governments and vest it in that of state commissions of one kind and another, has increased to an alarming extent and should be fought against. Home rule is a privilege of every American town and city and state, and the state legislature has no more right to take it away from the towns and cities than the national congress has to take it away from the states.—Worcester Spy.

☞ New York city has been doing a great deal of bragging about its new zoo, established in the borough of the Bronx for the education and the pleasure of the public. Yet the enterprise is so short of funds that it is doubtful whether the animals can be fed and the keepers paid. The zoological society maintained the park in November and December at an expense of $8,500. Education has a hard row in New York. School teachers and free public libraries and zoological gardens find scant favor at the hands of the rulers of that town.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ No matter how we explain the difference, the fact is certain that the Negro voters of North Carolina are a constant menace to the public welfare. While those of Georgia are not. Our general assembly recognizes this when the members of the house, with only three dissenting voices, voted down a measure aimed at Negro suffrage. If matters stood here as they stand in North Carolina, considerations of sound public policy would have required the legislature to submit such an amendment to the people; but the Negroes of Georgia have always, even while supporting the Republican party, maintained a very conservative attitude toward their white fellow citizens, and this attitude has commended them to the consideration of the controlling element.—Atlanta Constitution.

FOR PRESIDENT.

Ward Three Republicans Have a Candidate.

To Place at Head of the City Committee.

Ex-Councilman John P. Bigelow the Man Suggested.

The Ward Three Republicans who awoke a little late in the recent Municipal campaign, propose to be heard from in the future. Although their first choice did not receive the nomination for Mayor, they did not sulk, but went to work with a will and rolled up a majority for Mayor Hall which surprised the city. Not only this, but they elected all three of the Republican candidates for Councilmen, so that the South Quincy ward may now be regarded as a strong Republican ward.

There were many candidates from this ward for appointments to city offices, and naturally some were disappointed, but the ward realizes that it should not expect everything, and is generally satisfied with what it did receive. James Thompson, the new Principal Assessor, is a "favorite son" of Ward Three and they are pleased that he should have been selected for that responsible position. Then the ward has on the same board John C. Murray for many years active on the Republican Committee. Frederick L. Jones will continue on the board of Sewer Commissioners with good prospects of being chairman, and will be in the majority instead of the minority. The ward also has a member of the Board of Registrars, the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library, etc. Certainly no great reason to complain.

Ward Three, however, is anxious to extend its good work to all parts of the city and increase the Republican majority to 500 next year and believes it can be done with another "favorite son" of Ward Three at the head of the Republican City Committee.

The Ward Three Committee met Tuesday evening and organized with William T. Spargo as chairman, James W. Young as secretary, and Harry S. Nicol as treasurer. The committee also expressed its preference for president of the Republican City Committee, and John P. Bigelow, the ex-Councilman, was the choice.

JOHN P. BIGELOW.

Mr. Bigelow may be regarded as one of the "old war horses" of the Republican party, although still a young man. Years ago he was on the Republican Town Committee, and later in the internal revenue service. In the early days of the city government he was elected as Councilman, and has continued to be interested in the city and the Republican party since. He is an ardent Protective Tariff Republican with strong convictions on National affairs. Mr. Bigelow was Quincy born, in the old Bigelow homestead, and was graduated at the Adams school. Few would say he was in his 52d year, but, on the quiet, he was born June 17, 1848. When one notices the day of his birth, he is not surprised that Mr. Bigelow is such a patriotic orator.

W. Y. C. Whist.

The fourth series of whist parties at the clubhouse of the Wollaston Yacht club was ended Tuesday evening, a large number of ladies and gentlemen enjoying a very social evening. The serial prize, a large picture, was awarded to Mr. Thorp. The ladies' prizes of the evening were won by Miss Cody, a diary in a morocco case, and Mrs. Albert Shay, a picture for the piano. The men's prizes went to W. H. Bennett, a gold pencil, and Charles Marr, four sheets of music. Light refreshments and dancing closed the evening's enjoyment.

The following from Quincy attended the annual banquet of the Y. M. C. A. of Massachusetts and Rhode Island at Hotel Vendome, Boston, Tuesday evening: H. H. Faxon, Miss Eva Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Albee, E. D. Gourd Wm. Hoehn, Theophilus King, Delcevare King, F. W. Crane and F. H. Crane.

There is a small pond over near the quarry in Norfolk Downs which will be excellent for skating when it freezes. The quarry itself is somewhat dangerous unless the weather has been very cold for several days. Through the thoughtfulness of Mr. Snow of Norfolk Downs, this little pond has been flooded and is in readiness for the next cold snap.

Two extra exits have been added to St. Mary's church. Up to the present time the only means of leaving the main church was by the one door in the front, and should a fire have occurred during service it is doubtful if all could have got out uninjured. The two exits are at the northerly end of the church near the altar, one door being on each side. Last Sunday at the children's mass it was found that the church could be emptied in less than three minutes.

Flim-Flam Game.

A Boston paper reports that a pleasant-looking young man entered a store at Wollaston, Monday, afternoon, and asked the woman clerk to measure off a few yards of cambric. This she proceeded to do, while the purchaser fumbled around for his money. He pulled out a bill, which happened to be of the $10 denomination, and, with an apologetic air for offering such a large bill in such a small town, said he guessed he'd have to trouble the proprietor to make change so that he could pay the clerk. Suburban storekeepers are very obliging, so the woman took the bill and handed out its value in smaller bills. This suave visitor then suddenly discovered that he had some small change, and requested the storekeeper kindly to give him back the $10 and he would pay for the cambric in small change. She did so, and now is trying to figure how she lost $5.

Prof. Pagensiecher, the famous German oculist, was paid $10,000 to take a trip to London and examine the eyes of a great English millionaire.

CITY MEN HURT.

Were Opening a Water Trench on Main Street.

Dynamite Cartridge Accidently Discharged.

One of Seven Men at Hospital—Two Others Injured.

Four men employed in the Quincy Water Department were blown up this morning by the accidental discharge of a dynamite cartridge in a water trench on Main street. The department was opening a trench through private property near the residence of Patrick O'Neil, to connect the new houses on Newcomb place extension. The soil here is full of ledges and it was necessary to blast the rock.

Late Tuesday afternoon several dynamite cartridges were put in and a blast fired. It is now supposed that one of the cartridges failed to explode.

This morning seven men entered the trench and it is thought that one of the men hit the unexploded cartridge with a pick or bar. Suddenly there was a loud explosion and several of the men were blown some distance.

When the smoke cleared away two men were apparently dead and two others were bleeding from cuts about the face and hands.

The four men injured were Fred Dwyer, Daniel Kelliher, Michael Connors and Thomas Cotter. The injured men were taken into houses near by and physicians called and the ambulance summoned.

Dr. Sheahan was the first to arrive and it was found that Dwyer and Kelliher were the most seriously injured. Dwyer's condition was the most serious and was taken to the City Hospital. He received a compound fracture of the shoulder blade, and his side was filled with small pieces of stone He was also severely bruised. His condition, however, is not necessarily dangerous and he will probably recover.

Kelliher had several ribs fractured, also severely bruised and cut. His condition however was not as serious as that of Dwyer, and he was taken to his home in the ambulance.

Connors and Cotter escaped with cuts about the face and body, although they were somewhat bruised.

Does the Sewer Leak?

For the past few days water has been boiling out of the sewer manhole off Hancock street, just north of the Butler estate. This is a section of the main sewer, and the water that comes out is clear and has force enough to send it at least six inches above the top of the manhole.

The common sense view of the case would be that somewhere on the line of the sewer south of manhole there is a leak, and a big one at that, for the water comes faster than the main sewer can take care of it, also that the leak is at some place higher than the top of the manhole.

That the Sewer Commissioners know there is a leak, is apparent from the fact that for several days past the sewer trenches have been opened in several sections south of the manhole in question, and appearances would indicate that they were looking for the leak.

Engineer Branch when seen this morning was as close as an oyster, and professed to know nothing of any water coming out of the manhole in question, although he probably knew more about it than he desired to state. Chairman Shea was equally as uncommunicative on the subject.

The fact remains, however, that there is a leak somewhere in the pipes, and has been for some time, for this is not the first time that this self same manhole has boiled over.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

COST OE SCHOOLS.

The State Board of Education Report to Legislature.

The Distribution of School Burdens Very Uneven.

Oppressively Heavy for Some Towns.—Light for Others.

From the sixty-third report of the State Board of Education, presented to the Legislature this afternoon, and covering substantially the school year of 1898-99, the following facts of general interest have been taken:—

The number of public schools, the unit being a single school with one principal, is 4,628, an increase over last year of 12. The number of public schools, the unit being a single class room, is 10,121 an increase of 258.

The returns give 449,099 as the number of children in the State May 1, 1898, between five and fifteen, an increase of 7,747 over the preceding year; 471,977 as the number of different persons in attendance upon the public schools, an increase of 15,836; 390,900 as the average membership, an increase of 12,130; and 360,317 as the average attendance,—an increase of 11,170. The percentage of attendance for the State was 92. The number of children under five years of age attending school was 8,954, an increase of 1,252; of children over fifteen attending school, 45,318, an increase of 618.

The number of different teachers employed was 13,402, of whom 1,197 were men and 12,205 women, the increase being 199. The ratio of men to women was 1 to 10.2. During the first half of the past decade the number of men kept relatively diminishing, during the last half it has been relatively increasing. The number of positions to be filled was 11,959, the increase being 281. The ratio of the number of different teachers to the number of positions was 1.12 to 1; from 1890 to 1896 it was 1.16 to 1. This indicates an increase in permanency of tenure. Changes in the teaching force are most numerous where poor salaries are paid; least numerous where good salaries are paid. In 60 towns of lowest salaries, for example, the number of different teachers to the number of positions is as 1.41 to 1, while in Boston the ratio is only 1.02 to 1. The number of teachers who have attended normal schools was 5,404, a gain of 317 over the year before. The percentage of teachers who have received normal school training has increased during the last decade from 34 to 40.3, most of the increase belonging to the last five years. The average pay of men per month was $136.23, a decrease of $1.27; and of women $51.41, a decrease of 3 cents.

The average length of schooling for the State was 9 months and 8 days, as against 9 months and 6 days the year before. The law of 1898, making the minimum length 8 months instead of 6, is just beginning to make itself felt in the State average.

COST OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The State valuation for 1898 was $2,764,242,784, and the average rate of taxation for the State for all purposes municipal, county and State was $15.84 on each thousand dollars of this valuation, as against $15.39 the preceding year. Of this $15.84, the following proportions were expended on schools for 1897-98:—

Current expenses, $8.63, or 22.9 per cent.

Buildings and repairs, $1.30, or 8.2 per cent.

Total $4.93, or 31.1 per cent.

The corresponding proportions of of $15.39 expended on schools for the preceding year were as follows:—

Current expenses, $8.53, or 22.9 per cent.

Buildings, etc., $1.41, or 9.2 per cent.

Total, $4.94, or 32.1 per cent.

The comparison shows that a slightly smaller proportion of the total sum raised by taxation was expended on schools than the preceding year.

Boston is limited by law to $2.90 per thousand dollars for her schools which is 63 cents less than the State average. Moreover, the States average does not include alterations and repairs of school buildings ($860,693,), while Boston's limit of $2.90 does include them ($292,037.) Including alterations and repairs, the States average becomes $3.93, or $1.03 in excess of Boston's limit. Some 280 towns raise money for schools in excess of the State average.

The total amount raised by taxation in the State for all purposes was $43,792,378 as against $41,593,555 the year before of which total $10,021,504 was expended for ordinary school expenses the increase for the year being $467,696 as against an increase of $616,401 the preceding year; $3,603,310 for buildings, alterations and repairs, the decrease for the year being $210,760, as against an increase of $555,724 the preceding year; and $13,624,814 for all school purposes, the increase being $256,936, as against an increase of $1,172,129 the preceding year. A careful analysis of the school expenditures of the State as a whole for the past ten years indicates that their proportionate relations to the valuation of the State and to the total amount raised by taxation have shown no material change. These unchanged relations, however, annually yield increasing sums of money for the schools, and permit more to be expended per pupil than in the past. The distribution of the school burdens among the towns of the State is, however, very uneven, being as oppressively heavy for some towns as it is conspicuously light for others.

The cost of schooling each pupil in the average membership of the public schools, as determined by expenses exclusive of buildings, was $25.63,—an increase from the preceding year of 41 cents; as determined by the expenses inclusive of buildings, $344.85,—a decrease from the preceding year of 44 cents.

Modern Works for Quincy.

It is rumored that Thomas & Miller will utilize the time while the granite cutters are on strike to remodel their works, and build one of the most up to date granite works in New England. They will put in all the latest machinery such as turning lathes, saws and pneumatic cutting machines, with a travelling crane capable of hoisting thirty tons, and travelling the whole length of the works. With the addition of the latest polishing machinery it is thought the cost of production will be reduced one-half.

Reception to New Pastor.

A grand reception is to be tendered Rev. A. F. Roche tonight at St. Mary's hall, West Quincy. The first part of the evening will be devoted to the reception, during which an opportunity will be given the people of the parish to greet their pastor socially. Meanwhile an orchestra will give a concert. A social dance will follow, during which refreshments will be served in the lower hall.

New Church.

West Quincy is to have a new Catholic church. St. Mary's edifice has long been inadequate to meet the wants of the people and now that it has become a separate parish the need of more room is seriously felt. A new church will therefor be built on Crescent street on the vacant lot just east of Hall place. The lot also adjoins the new part of St. Mary's cemetery an ideal site for a church. Work on the foundation will be commenced immediately.

Ladies in Office.

A KISS IN THE DARK

A Comedietta and a Farce Presented by Local Talent.

Mr. Emery L. Crane scored another great success Tuesday evening in the presentation of dramatics at Colonial hall. The people of the city were confident that he would, so they crowded the hall long before the hour announced for the curtain. While waiting, the audience was entertained by some lively piano selections by Mr. Bradford which were encored.

A comedietta in one act, entitled "At Sixes and Sevens" came first, and prominent young society people will be recognized in the cast:

Colonel Scrimmage,	Dr. Davis.
Hector Scrimmage,	Mr. Barker.
Teddington Locke, a barrister,	Mr. Rice.
Mrs. Scrimmage,	Miss Randall.
Jessie Wharton, ward of Colonel Scrimmage,	Miss Whicher.
Mrs. Delancy,	Miss Ruth Randall.
Mary, servant,	Miss Lull.

Dr. Davis took the part of the Colonel very acceptably, and Miss Edith Randall as Mrs. Scrimmage pleased her friends when she had her "little say," and later in her interview with the barrister. Mr. Rice, as Teddington Locke, was the star of the comedietta, but shared the honors with Miss Ruth Randall as Mrs. Delancy, his wife incognito. Both were placed in trying positions when interviewed separately by the Scrimmages. The Colonel had reached a very critical stage in his tete-a-tete with Mrs. Delancy, and just as he remarked, "Now we're in for it," all the electric lights in the hall went out. Had this occurred in the farce which followed, it would have been considered part of the programme, but now people are wondering if it was a joke. They "were in for it" for several minutes, when the play continued. Mr. Barker, as Hector, and Miss Whicher as Jessie Wharton, added interest, and Miss Lull, as Mary, was such a pretty servant as many would like.

It was not until the farce in one act, "A Kiss in the Dark," that Mr. Crane made his appearance, but then he continued much in evidence, and enthused considerable life. The characters were:

Mr. Selim Pettibone,	Mr. Crane.
Frank Fathom,	Mr. Burke.
Mrs. Pettibone,	Miss Kendall.
Mary,	Miss Sibley.
Unknown Female,	Mrs. Hunting.

The scene of the farce was in London; time, 1850. The make-up of the characters provoked mirth among the audience when they first entered. There was quite a contrast between little Mrs. Pettibone and the two gentlemen who wore tall hats. Frank Fathom was an old flame of Mrs. Pettibone, and all was happiness in the family until he arrived, and would have continued so, but Mr. P. was not sure the was "completely happy," so he wanted Fathom to put his wife to the test. Mrs. Pettibone overheard the plan and entered heartily into the plot, much to the annoyance of Pettibone. Finally he mistook an unknown female for his wife who proved to be Fathom's wife and all came out well. All the artists took their parts to the satisfaction of the audience, and the kisses by light were as much enjoyed as the kiss in the dark.

Coffee Goes up in Price.

Public interest was excited a month or so ago by the detention in New York harbor of several vessels having in their cargoes coffees which it was feared had been taken aboard at South American ports, where there existed more or less of the bubonic plague. This proved quite an unnecessary alarm, as the government authorities decided that no danger existed, and after a thorough fumigation of the cargoes the coffee was admitted, and no bubonic plague exists today in New York or in the United States.

Public attention, however, is forcibly attracted still to the bubonic plague question, which not only exists in the coffee districts then mentioned, but later reports announce it as having appeared at the port of Rio. The result is very light shipments of coffee are being made from South American ports which produce a large majority of the coffee consumed in the world. This is naturally making an increased demand for the higher grades of coffee which are grown in other countries, with the result that a strong advantage in coffees of all kinds has occurred during the last several weeks.

Peas and beans are the most nutritions of vegetables, containing as much carbon as wheat and double the amount of muscle forming food.

HOTEL PROPERTY LEASED.

A new lease from January 1st, 1900, for a long term of years, of the Broadway Central Hotel, has just been made to Tilly Haynes, the present very successful manager of the property. Mr. Haynes has now conducted the hotel for eight years, during which time he has completely rebuilt, refurnished, reorganized, and enlarged the original plant, at an expense of over a quarter of a million dollars, until now it is not only one of the largest, but one of the most complete and liberally conducted hotels in New York. 17-1t

TO CLEAN MATTING.

To make soiled matting look fresh and bright prepare a pailful of warm water with a handful of salt and four tablespoonfuls of Ivory Soap shavings dissolved in it. With a clean cloth squeezed out of the mixture, wipe every breadth of the matting, rubbing soiled spots until they disappear.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY THE PROCTER & GAMBLE CO. CINCINNATI

Season's Theatrical Novelty.

A reproduction of the entertainment given at the Grand Opera House, Boston, by the Graham Genuine Southern Specialty and Cake Walk Company will be given at Music Hall, Friday evening, January 19th.

This unique entertainment which is refined in every particular, is an exact duplicate of the affair given by Mrs. W. E D. Stokes, one of the leaders of New York's Four Hundred, at her Kentucky Plantation. The competing participants in the cake walk will give a representation of the old time southern negro pastimes indulged in the Sunny South—Solo and chorus singing, shout songs, buck and wing dancing being prominent features.

TODAY'S COURT.

Charles Beales was arraigned for cruelty to a horse at Braintree. He entered a plea of nolo contendere and was discharged upon payment of costs.

Wreck Probably Identified.

St. John's, Jan. 17.—Everything goes to show that the wrecked steamer in St. Mary's bay is the Helgoland, the property of the Dutch-American Petroleum company. Among a number of flags picked up last evening near Holyrood was one with the colors blue, white and red, with the letter "R" in the center. This is the house flag of that company. Taken with the finding of a boat off Cape Pine it seems to leave no doubt as to the identity of the vessel. Landsmen are unable to get down to the beach and, therefore, unable to recover the bodies which have been lying there exposed five days and nights. Seven bodies are now ashore and can be reached when the sea becomes smooth. There are five others in the wreckage near the ship. Others still were seen driving south yesterday.

Equal Wages For Men and Women.

Columbus, O., Jan. 17.—At the request of the legislative committee of the Ohio Federation of Labor, Representative Ross yesterday introduced in the house a bill providing for equal wages for men and women. The provisions of the bill are: That in any profession, pursuit or service of any kind where female labor of professional service is employed, such female shall be paid for such labor or professional service the customary amount of compensation paid male employes for like service. Any person, firm, corporation or public board violating the provisions of this act, shall, under conviction thereof, be fined in any sum not less than $100, nor more than $500 for each such offense.

ALTERING EVANS' PALACE.

Work on the Paris Mansion Which Is to House Royalty.

Work began the other day on the house of the late Dr. Thomas Evans, the American, in Avenue Bois Boulogne, Paris, which the government has leased to serve as a residence for visiting royalty during the exposition. Though the mansion is palatial, many improvements are contemplated.

The five floors will be rearranged so as to provide several independent suits. The government does not expect more than one reigning sovereign at a time, yet, to guard against contingencies, two floors will be fitted with accommodations for monarchs, says the New York World's Paris correspondent. The rest of the house will be for minor personages of royal blood.

The palace is one of the most impressive in Paris. It was built by the famous American millionaire dentist, who spent the last eight years of his life there. Empress Eugenie took refuge in it for a few hours on that memorable night in 1870. Dr. Evans helped her to escape from the populace, which had invaded the Tuileries and was hunting for her.

Methods of a Marriage Club.

A marriage club, organized something in the manner of the notorious suicide clubs, is the latest thing in Parkersburg, W. Va. The membership is limited to 15, and no new candidate can be initiated until a member has either died or is married, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune. Drawings take place every six months, and the member drawing the fated p[aper] must either marry within [six] months or pay a forfeit of [$]100 to the next six treasury. Committing [the] large sum into the treasury toward the club's maintenance. Should he prove that he has proposed to two different ladies and been rejected and that he used due diligence in his endeavor to keep his oath, the fine will be remitted. The names of the members and the details of their plans are club secrets, which were, in part, given away by a confirmed bachelor who, when urged to join the club, declined "because he would take no chances of losing his personal liberty."

Their Preference Explained.

May Never Regain Full Vigor.

Boston, Jan. 17.—When McLean hospital was asked about Congressman Boutelle's true condition last evening, it was answered that Mr. Boutelle's condition was very favorable. Relative to the statement that the congressman has suffered two or three strokes of apoplexy, the physician in charge said he had not heard of these at all. While at the congressman's advanced age there is little hope after what he has gone through that he will ever regain the full vigor of life, there seems to be every expectation that he may sufficiently recover to take up active interest in affairs once more.

No Charges Intended.

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—John Barrett, ex-minister to Siam, has arrived here. Barrett is anxious to efface the impression that he intended to make charges against Senator Hoar in his recent Chicago speech. He, however, reiterated his belief that the telegraphing to Hong Kong of Senator Hoar's speech on the treaty was one of the first causes of the outbreak of the Filipino insurrection.

Knocked Down and Badly Hurt.

Boston, Jan. 17.—While Emil M. Bauer, 60 years old, was crossing Atlantic avenue last evening, he was struck and knocked down by the horses of a fire engine which was responding to a fire alarm on State street. The horses stepped on his right hand, crushing it, and the wheels passed over his body. Mr. Bauer is in a critical condition.

AN ATTACK UPON GAGE.

Philippine Question Again Aired In the Senate.

Ratification of Samoan Treaty, Without Division, In Executive Session.

Washington, Jan. 17.—The urgent deficiency appropriation bill was taken up in the house yesterday under an agreement which limited the general debate to Tuesday. It was the general expectation that it would open up a stormy debate on expansion in view of the large army and navy items it contains, but the members early became very much engrossed in a discussion of an item of $150,000 for rural free delivery, in which all are personally interested, and the subject of expansion was barely touched upon.

The last hour of the debate was enlivened with an attack by Mr. Richardson, the minority leader, upon the secretary of the treasury for his course in connection with the sale of the New York custom house. He rehearsed the charges that Secretary Gage had been guilty technically of embezzlement in connection with the sale of the custom house in dep[ositing] the proceeds in a national bank which was a government depository in[stead] of the treasury of the United States, but declared that this charge would not hold. His purpose, he said, was to show that the National City bank had been favored on account of the contributions of its directors to the Republican campaign fund of 1896, and to show that the course of the secretary in allowing the purchase price to remain in the bank, while at the same time paying rent for the property and keeping it exempt from taxation, was not dealing fairly with the trust funds of the government.

Mr. Hopkins of Illinois championed the course of the secretary, declaring that his reply to the house resolution answered every charge brought against him and displayed business ability that must meet the approval of all fair minded people. He insisted furthermore that the title to the custom house passed to the bank when it purchased and took possession of the property, and that the property had not been exempt from taxation since it had been purchased, as alleged by counsel for the plaintiff.

The debate cause[d] very little excitement and [there] was no attempt to renew the assault upon the secretary after Mr. Hopkins closed.

The urgent deficiency bill will be taken up for consideration under the five-minute rule today.

The senate is still in the throes of discussion of the Philippine question and apparently there is no near approach to a deliverance from the subject. Mr. Vest yesterday voiced the opinion of many senators when he said that such discussion as was now in progress was of no consequence, as the country was confronted by a state of facts that could not be changed by talk.

Mr. Pettigrew's resolution of inquiry and Mr. Lodge's substitute for it were laid on the table, and Mr. Hoar's general resolution of inquiry as to the facts of the Philippine war was taken up. An effort of Mr. Pettigrew to amend it so as to call for the president's instructions to the Paris peace commissioners led to a prolonged debate. After the senate had considered the matter behind closed doors, the amendment was rejected by a vote of 41 to 20.

The debate for the day was concluded by Mr. Vest, who made a notable speech in opposition to the assumption in some quarters that every man who does not agree with the policy of the administration is a traitor to his country. Mr. Vest threw into his utterances all the nervous force and energy and the oratorical ability for which he is famed and commanded the attention of the senate throughout.

Mr. McLaughlin (Dem., S. C.) addressed the senate on the financial question, making an argument in favor of his proposition to confer authority upon sate banks to issue circulating notes.

Senator Cullom presented a beautifully bound petition, signed by 3,00[0] colored people, asking protection for their race. Mr. Hoar favored some action to suppress the wrongs referred to in the petition. Mr. Chandler, however, declared that there is no power in congress to prevent or punish crimes committed in the various states.

The senate yesterday ratified the Samoan treaty without division. The ratification occurred in executive session and after two hours of debate. Messrs. Davis, Foraker and Spooner advocated and Senators Bacon, Money and Tillman opposed ratification.

Senator Bacon made the leading speech in opposition. He based his objection upon the general ground that it was contrary to the spirit of our institutions to attempt to govern any people in opposition to their wishes. He said that he was not opposed to the new convention because of any partiality felt for the old tripartite agreement, which was repugnant to him. He thought, however, a means might be found to get rid of it without resorting to a subterfuge, which was repulsive to all American ideas of liberty and independence.

There was no doubt of the intention to annex and exercise sovereignty in place of the protectorate, which was the distinguishing feature of the tripartite agreement of 1890. To this proposed change of policy he objected strenuously. He showed that the old agreement guaranteed the independence of the Samoan government, whereas the pending instrument annulled all sovereignty of the Samoan government and partitioned the islands between the United States and Germany.

Mr. Bacon said that the friends of the treaty supported it upon the two grounds that it simply divided authority heretofore exercised jointly, and that the Samoan people, being "only savages" there was no reason why they should not be despoiled of their country. He contended that it was not true that the old arrangement was simply to be continued under the division of authority, and asserted that the declaration that the Samoan people were savages was untenable. He said that the United States had in many ways recognized the Samoan government, guaranteeing its independence and making a treaty of amity and friendship with its government.

"We don't," he continued, "make treaties of friendship with savages." He claimed that the proposed change should not be made without the consent of the natives. He was entirely willing that the United States should acquire the island of Tutuila with its Pago-Pago harbor if that could be done in the proper manner and without violating all our principles.

Senator Money and Senator Tillman spoke in practically the same line.

The friends of the treaty repudiated the assertion that the old treaty provisions were annulled. They claimed that this country, by the new arrangement, retained all the old advantages and avoided complications liable to grow out of the tripartite agreement. They urged that the opportunity should not be lost, both to get out of an awkward predicament and to control in our own right the harbor.

HIS WIFE WAS INSURED.

"Dream" Slayer Alfred Morrison Promptly Presented the Policy For Payment.

Mt. Vernon, Jan. 17.—The mystery surrounding the death of Mrs. Alida Morrison, who was shot by her husband, "Professor" Alfred Morrison, "the dreamer," on the night of Dec. 28 in their home here, is being rapidly dispelled.

Another motive for the act, besides a desire to get rid of one of two wives, was discovered yesterday. It is now positively known that Mrs. Morrison's life was insured. The policy was issued by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance company of Boston, through Charles E. Guy, their representative in Mt. Vernon. It is in the form of industrial insurance, and calls for weekly payments. The date of issue is Feb. 17, 1897. The premiums were promptly paid up to the time of Mrs. Morrison's death.

Scarcely had the unfortunate woman been buried before her husband called at the local offices of the insurance company and presented the policy for payment. He complied with all the formalities required in the collection of insurance money, and the papers were forwarded to Boston. The [amount] paid.

Mr[s]. [re]ceived a claim is still unpaid.

Mrs. Morrison's desk and bureau were removed from Walker's furniture store and taken to the police station. The contents were carefully investigated by the detectives, with the expectation of finding new evidence.

Adopting the Southern Idea.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 17.—The southern idea of running mills day and night has been adopted in this city, the carding, ring spinning and mule spinning departments of Hargraves mill No. 2 taking the initial in this line. Superintendent Hamilton states that the idea of running the mill all night long is to avoid the possibility of being charged with a violation of the state laws. Last night the mill ran all night, three sets of help being employed.

An Increase Granted.

Salem, Mass., Jan. 17.—The striking cutters of the Jonathan Brown Shoe Manufacturing company, 44 in number, returned to their places this morning under an increase of 10 percent. The workmen left work a week ago because their demands for increases of from 10 to 18 percent on several kinds of work were refused. The new schedule at which they return gives all the cutters an equal increase.

Failure Affected Stock Market.

Boston, Jan. 17.—The assignment of H. C. Wainwright & Co., bankers, caused a disturbance in the stock market yesterday. Mining stocks were decidedly weak, and other specialties suffered sharp losses. The whole market was heavy, and trading was narrow.

Mrs. Hannah May Stetson, leading lady of the Donnelly stock company, died suddenly at New York. The cause of death is supposed to be apoplexy. She was known on the stage as Hannah May Ingham. She had been studying very hard of late.

Rev. Hezekiah H. Davis, founder of the People's church at New Britain, Conn., and for 13 years its pastor, is dead, aged 59. Death was due to heart trouble. Mr. Davis was the son of a Methodist clergyman, and was born at Dudley, Mass., in 1840.

At Phoebus, Va., a fight began between several soldiers and some saloon men. Joseph M. New, a private, was shot and killed. William Gurley, proprietor of the saloon, is charged with the murder.

HANDWRITING TESTIMONY

New York, Jan. 17.—Handwriting Expert Albert S. Osborne of Rochester was recalled yesterday in the Molineux trial. Bartow S. Weeks cross-examined, his questions seemingly being formed with the intention of showing that the expert had made a very hasty examination of the writings.

The second witness of the day was Andre Bustanoby, superintendent of the Knickerbocker Athletic club. Assistant District Attorney Osborne presented several bills made out to the Knickerbocker Athletic club, and witness identified them as having been presented for goods delivered at the address at which Rachel Green had claimed that the defendant had formerly resided under the name of "Mr. Cheseborough." Mr. Bustanoby testified that the goods were delivered there in accordance with the order of Molineux, and that he was of the opinion that the defendant purchased the goods, had them charged to the Knickerbocker Athletic club, and that he afterwards paid the bills. To this line of questioning Mr. Weeks objected, and the court sustained the objection, but by framing his questions in a different fashion Mr. Osborne got in a considerable portion of the evidence which he desired to produce.

Minnie Betts, the servant of Mrs. Bellinger, being recalled, testified that the name on the card of the man who called on Blanche Cheseborough was Mr. Barnet, but this testimony was ordered erased from the records by the recorder. The witness was again shown a photograph of Barnet, but the court would not allow her to identify it. A dispute arose between counsel, and the court finally reprimanded the counsel, and said: "I regard this testimony as irrelevant. The Barnet case is not the one on trial. The question of motive in the Barnet case has nothing to do with this case. Motive is not action, and what is relevant in the Barnet case is not material in the Cornish case."

By framing his questions in a different way, however, Mr. Osborne succeeded in bringing out portions of the information desired.

Joseph J. Koch, the advertising agent at 1620 Broadway, was called as the last witness of the day. In 1897 he was manager of the Studio Publishing company at the same address. He told the familiar story of the correspondence which he had with Molineux while the prisoner was connected with the factory of a [simi]lar name engaged with the laboratory of a New York chemical manufactory at Clark, and about the visit which the defendant made to his place of business for the purpose of hiring a private letter box. He positively identified Molineux as the man. The day's proceedings wound up with queries as to how much money had been paid to the witness for furnishing two of the daily papers of this city with exclusive stories for publication.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 17.—The senate yesterday made short work of the Mellen order, amended in the house on motion of McNary, that the Boston and Albany furnish the general court with copies of the proposed lease to the New York Central, "together with any and all other papers and documents having any bearing on or allusion to said lease and contracts." Senator Washburn moved that it be tabled, as the matter was now in the hands of a committee, which would give the subject full investigation. The order was tabled without a count.

Senator Tolman offered a bill to permit trust companies to be organized with a capital of $100,000. The present limit is $200,000.

Three petitions of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage association were offered. They asked for equal suffrage for women; for the right to women to vote for municipal officers, and for the right to vote for presidential electors.

The house was in session but about a quarter of an hour. Various routine appropriation bills were given a second reading, and ordered to a third. A number of bills of minor importance were introduced.

Sensational Murder and Suicide.

Columbus, Jan. 17.—J. W. Murphy, cashier of the Third National bank, instantly killed Teller P. T. Shutze yesterday, and then committed suicide. The affair occurred while the bank was filled with customers, and in the presence of the full corps of clerks. Murphy had been in ill health, and had suffered two strokes of paralysis. It is believed that he was temporarily insane when the shooting was done, as he and Shutze had long been the closest of friends.

Many Victims of Dynamite.

Turin, Jan. 17.—A dynamite factory at Avigliano exploded yesterday, with the result that five buildings were reduced to ruins, the whole surrounding district was shaken, and many houses were badly damaged. Ten bodies have been recovered from beneath the ruins. In addition several persons were injured.

Will Furnish Work For Thousands.

New York, Jan. 17.—John B. McDonald, the successful bidder for the underground rapid transit railroad, will begin work within 30 days. He will probably emply 10,000 men when he gets well under way. McDonald's bid price for the contract, which was awarded yesterday, was $35,000,000.

Charged With Forgery.

St. John, Jan. 17.—Charles A. Love, a carpenter employed at Boston, and who lived at Arlington, Mass., was arrested here last evening, charged with forgery in connection with a deed to some property and a release of the mortgage. The release, it is claimed, is a forgery.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

No marked changes in the weather have occurred during the past 24 hours. Light rain or snow has fallen in the lake regions, New England and the middle Missouri valley. A storm appears to be developing in the west gulf, but its probable intensity and direction of movement it is impossible to determine at present. It will be generally fair in the New England states. The temperature will fall slightly in New England. Brisk northeasterly winds will prevail on the north Atlantic coast.

INTO JAWS OF DEATH

The Highland Brigade Unflinchingly Marched at Magersfontein.

Men and Officers Fell In Heaps Before Hail of Lead.

Boers Said to Have Lost Heavily In a Hot Engagement Near Colenso.

London, Jan. 18.—The correspondent of The Daily News thus depicts the way in which disaster overtook the Highland brigade at Magersfontein:

During the night it was considered expedient that the Highland brigade, about 4000 strong, under General Wauchope, should get close enough to the lines of the foe to make it possible to charge the heights. At midnight the gallant, but ill-fated, general moved cautiously through the darkness toward the kopje where the Boers were most strongly entrenched. The troops were led by a guide who was supposed to know every inch of the country out into the darkness of an African night.

The brigade marched in line of quarter column, each man stepping cautiously and slowly, for they knew that any sound meant death. Every order was given in a hoarse whisper, and in whispers it was passed along the ranks from man to man; nothing was heard as they moved toward the gloomy, steel-fronted heights but the brushing of their feet in the veldt grass and the deep drawn breaths of the marching men.

So, onward, until 3 o'clock of the morning Monday. Then out of the darkness a rifle rang, sharp and clear, a herald of disaster—a soldier had tripped in the dark over the hidden wires laid down by the enemy. In a second, in the twinkling of an eye, the searchlights of the Boers fell broad and clear as the noonday sun on the ranks of the doomed Highlanders, though it left the enemy concealed in the shadows of the frowning mass of hills behind them.

For one brief moment the Scots seemed paralyzed by the suddenness of their discovery, for they knew that they were huddled together like sheep within 50 yards of the trenches of the foe. Then, clear above the confusion, rolled the voice of the general—"Steady, men, steady"—and, like an echo to the veterans, out came the crash of nearly a thousand rifles not 50 paces from them. The Highlanders reeled before the shock like trees before the tempest. Their best, their bravest fell in that wild hail of lead. General Wauchope was down, riddled with bullets; yet gasping, dying, bleeding from every vein, the Highland chieftain raised himself on his hands and knees, and cheered his men forward. Men and officers fell in heaps together.

The Black Watch charged and the Gordons and the Seaforths, with a yell that stirred the British camp below, rushed onward—onward to death or disaster. The accursed wires caught them round the legs until they floundered like trapped wolves, and all the time the rifles of the foe sang the song of death in their ears. Then they fell back, broken and beaten, leaving nearly 1200 dead and wounded just where the broad breast of the grassy veldt melts into the embrace of the rugged African hills, and an hour later the dawning came of the dreariest day that Scotland has known for a generation past. Of her officers, the flower of her cavalry, the pride of her breeding, but few remained to tell the tale, a sad tale truly, but one untainted with dishonor or smirched with disgrace, for up those heights, under similar circumstances, even a brigade of devils could scarce have hoped to pass. All that mortal men could do the Scots did; they tried, they failed, they fell and there is nothing left now but to mourn for them and avenge them.

All that fateful day our wounded men lay close to the Boer lines under a blazing sun; over their heads the shots of friends and foes passed, without ceasing. All day long the battle raged; scarcely could we see the foe—all that met our eyes was the rocky heights that spoke with tongue of flames whenever our troops drew near.

Once our guards made a brilliant dash at the trenches, and like a torrent their resistless valour bore all before them and for a few brief moments they got within hitting distance of the foe. Well did they avenge the slaughter of the Scots; the bayonets like tongues of flame passed above or below the rifles guard and swept through brisket and breastbone. Out of their trenches the guardsmen tossed the Boers, as men in English harvest fields toss the hay when the reapers' scythes have whitened the cornfields; and the human streams were plentiful where the British guardsmen stood.

Then they fell back, for the fire from the heights above them fell thick as the spume of the surf on an Australian rock-ribbed coast, but the guards had proved to the Boers that man to man the Briton was his master.

In vain all that day Methuen tried by every rule he knew to draw the enemy; vainly the Lancers rode recklessly to induce those human rock limpots to come out and cut them off. Cronje knew the mettle of our men and an ironic laugh played around his iron mouth, and still he stayed within his native fastness; but death sat ever at his elbow, for our gunners dropped the lyddite shells and the howling shrapnel all along his lines, until the trenches ran blood, and many of his guns were silenced.

In the valley behind his outer line of hills his dead lay piled in hundreds and the slope of the hill was a charnel house, where the wounded all writhed amidst the masses of the dead; a ghastly tribute to British gunnery. When at 1:30 p. m. of Tuesday we drew off to Modder river to recuperate we left nearly 3000 dead and wounded of grim old Cronje's men as a token that the lion of England had bared his teeth in earnest.

General Buller completely surprised the Boers and occupied the hills beyond Potgieter's Drift, 15 miles west of Colenso, on Jan 10. This intelligence is contained in an exclusive dispatch the The Times, dated yesterday. He followed up the movement by shelling the Boer trenches.

The force marched westward on Jan. 10. Lord Dundonald, by a dashing movement, occupied the hills above Potslators Drift, 15 miles west of Colonso, taking the Boers completely by surprise. The same evening the infantry followed. General Lyttleton's brigade crossed the river yesterday and today shelled the Boer trenches beyond with Howitzers.

The Boers lost heavily. They admit the engagement was the most severe blow their arms had sustained since the opening of the campaign. They were confident of their ability to capture the town, and had called upon reinforcements from Colenso to assist at the expected victory. Our losses also were considerable.

Early in the morning the Earl of Ava was mortally wounded, while accompanying Colonel Ian Hamilton to the scene of action. The garrison can now await the coming of relief with renewed confidence.

General Warren's force is now crossing Tricharite Drift, five miles above. He is not opposed, although the Boers are holding a position five miles from the river.

Another special dispatch from Spearman's farm, dated Jan. 17, says: The British column moved to Spearman's farm, beyond Springfield, on Jan. 11. The difficulties in crossing the swollen river were great, the wagons being quite covered.

The other morning papers are out with extra editions confirming the dispatch from Spearman's farm to The Times.

This news completely disposes of the statement that Sir Charles Warren's force went in the direction of Weenen, and it tends greatly to restore confidence in General Buller's tactics. The supposition that he had divided his forces into three columns had given cause for anxiety. It is now seen that such a view was erroneous, as General Buller's forces are concentrated.

In Cape Colony General Methuen has made a demonstration in force, shelling the Boer works.

General Gatacre is skirmishing around Moltena, and General French has been throwing a few shells at the Boers at Rensberg.

Colonel Plumer is moving to the relief of Mafeking from Bechuanaland. He is now in command of less than 2000 men. Mafeking is in a bad way; the siege is being pressed with determination, and the Kaffirs are deserting because of pinched rations, and the necessity of eating horse meat.

The Standard's account of the assault upon Ladysmith shows that the garrison was surprised and that several times the situation was critical. Of a detachment of 30 Gordon Highlanders, who surrendered, every man was wounded, says the correspondent. Curiously enough this is the first mention of the capture of the highlanders. The Boer repulse at Ladysmith was the heaviest counterstroke of the war.

The government is relaxing its efforts to send out reinforcements. It is quite undecided as to when the eighth division will be shipped.

The war office declines the offer of a third battalion of Northamptonshire militia, saying that no more militia will be sent abroad. It is probable that only 5000, instead of 10,000 yeomanry, will be mobilized.

The war office sent for Lord Strathcona yesterday, and he had a long conference with the officials, particularly General Evelyn Wood. The details of his force have been arranged and cabled to Canada.

The Pietermaritzburg correspondent of The Daily Mail, telegraphing late last evening, says: Arrivals from Estcourt report that there was fighting on the Tugela today. The result is not known here.

MOLINEUX IDENTIFIED

As the "H. C. Barnet" Who Hired a Private Letter Box of Heckman.

The Latter Makes Clear and Emphatic Statements.

Another Owner of Private Letter Boxes Identifies a Cornish Letter.

New York, Jan. 18.—Roland B. Molineux was positively identified yesterday by Nicholas Heckman as the man who had rented a letter box from him at 257 West Forty-second street under the name of H. C. Barnet. Heckman said that he had known Molineux for at least five years, and that he had seen him at least 150 times. He said the box was rented on May 27, 1898, and that he had given mail to Molineux 20 times.

When Molineux hired the private letter box, under the name of H. C. Barnet, witness said that he put down the name with a double "tt," but the defendant corrected him, and asked him to spell it with one "t." Witness produced his memorandum book, containing the name with the extra "t" crossed out, and it was admitted as evidence. The witness described a package containing a Kutnow powder box which had been received after Molineux stopped calling for his mail.

During a severe cross-examination, Mr. Weeks brought out the fact that a newspaper had agreed to pay Heckman $250 if he could identify Molineux as his customer. He told of a visit which he made with a reporter to the factory in Newark, where Molineux was employed, and of a positive identification which he made of the defendant as "H. C. Barnet." The witness said that Molineux almost fainted when he called upon him, and that the defendant left immediately, saying that he did not want to talk to newspaper men.

The questions which followed were asked evidently for the purpose of reflecting upon the honesty of the witness. He said that his conscience commenced to trouble him about the time of the coroner's inquest, because he thought Cornish was going to be accused of the murder, and that accordingly he told all that he knew about the case.

Asked by Mr. Osborne if anyone had given him a cent or offered him a cent in connection with the case, he replied in the affirmative. Mr. Osborne inquired whether it was for the identification of Molineux, and Heckman answered "No." Then Mr. Osborne inquired: "It was the other way, wasn't it?"

"Yes," was the reply of the witness. "It was Mr. Walsh."

Mr. Weeks thundered an objection, and the recorder refused to allow this line of questioning to continue.

J. C. Walsh is said to have been interested in extradition proceedings brought some months ago for the purpose of securing the removal of Heckman to Tennessee, as an escaped convict. Heckman proved that he had never been in Tennessee.

Recorder Goff impressively cross-examined the witness, questioning him closely as to whether he had ever been promised anything or offered any inducements to testify as he had, but the denial of the witness was clear and emphatic. Finally the recorder said:

"You are positive that you have made no mistake when you say that this defendant is the man who rented a letter box of you in the name of H. C. Barnet?"

"I am certain. I know I am right," was the reply.

The only other witness examined yesterday was Joseph Koch, also owner of a private letter box, alleged to have been used by the defendant. Koch identified an envelope which contained a letter received by him at his place of business for "H. Cornish." The letter was from the Von Mohl company of Cincinnati. The witness was cross-examined, and gave a detailed description of the man who rented the private letter box under the name of "H. Cornish."

Mr. Weeks inquired whether the man wore a white alpine hat, and received an affirmative reply. The significance of this line of questioning is found in the fact that Mr. Weeks, in his cross-examination of Harry Cornish, asked that witness whether he wore a white alpine hat in 1898.

Mr. Weeks drew from the witness the admission that he had said that the man who hired the letter box was of the size and general appearance of Harry Cornish, except for a difference in moustache.

Mr. Weeks endeavored to discredit the witness by showing that he had received money from certain newspapers. Koch said that the money for one paper story was not to be paid until after he had testified at the trial.

Mr. Weeks inquired whether the witness had ever had anything to do with sending a letter to General Molineux, saying that for certain prices facts could be suppressed. This the witness emphatically denied. Mr. Weeks then produced a typewritten letter containing statements of this nature, but Mr. Koch said that he had never seen it.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The delegates to the Boston Central Labor Union are in doubt as to whether Mayor Hart's reply to their committees that waited on him is an indication that he is really unfriendly to labor organizations. Well, time will demonstrate whether he is or not, but we do not think that his rather curt manner toward the committees can safely be taken as indicating animosity toward the cause they represent. Our interpretation of his attitude, as judged from that brief conference, is that he is disinclined to permit anything that savors of dictation of what course he shall pursue in such matters, while at the same time he proposes to show that he can treat labor fairly and squarely without demand or solicitation on the part of the representatives of interested unions. Mayor Hart does not appear to be a man who will devote any share of his time to throwing sops to labor with one hand, and fleecing it with the other.—Lynn Item.

The Injured City Men.

The men injured in the explosion in the Water trench on Main street Wednesday morning are reported as doing as well as could be expected. Dwyer who is at the City Hospital passed a good night and is comfortable; so is Kelliher also, who is at his home on Summer street. Collins who was cut about the face, is not able to work as yet, as he was somewhat bruised. Cotter was more frightened than hurt, and is at work today.

The alarm from Box 171, at 9.03 Wednesday night, was for a slight fire in the boiler room of Col. White's pattern manufactory on Baxter street. It is reported that they were drying a lot of green cord wood, which had been placed near the hot furnaces and became ignited. The loss was trifling.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

— ON —

"Ben Hur."

Rev. W. W. Dornan will deliver at the United Presbyterian church, on School street, THURSDAY evening, at 7.45, a lecture on "Ben Hur," illustrated by 8 views.

Quincy, Jan. 17. 2t

A PROSPEROUS CHURCH.

Grand Supper, Encouraging Reports, and a Very Enjoyable Evening for 400 People.

Among the foremost churches of Quincy, if not the leading Protestant church of South Eastern Massahusetts, is Bethany Congregational church, which held its annual meeting Wednesday evening. This rank may be explained in a large measure by the report of the Church Committee, as submitted at the meeting. It says in part:

"In reviewing the work of Bethany church for the past year we believe there is much for which we should be devotedly thankful. Not only have we been free from internal discord and dissension, but there has been a constant and uniform growth and a gratifying prosperity in every department of our work.

"We are confident that the influence of Bethany church for good in the community grows stronger and wider every year. Surely there is an increasing number who look to this church for spiritual guidance and inspiration. Regardless of our preference in the matter, this church because of her environment is rapidly changing from a family and village to a metropolitan communion. This necessitates wise adaptation and stronger and more efficient organization. The incorporation is proving the greatest assistance in the period of transition, while the membership is more and more awaking to the urgent needs of our growing work.

"All our religious services have been well attended and sustained. The contributions for strictly missionary purposes being larger the past year than for a long time. The interest in benevolent and missionary work is steadily increasing.

"Our various organizations have worked together in delightful harmony. Our Bible school now by considerable, the largest in this district, comprising over 50 churches, is at once our pride and joy and a fertile field for a larger number of laborers. Our whole church work is now so organized as to touch life at every age, and to afford opportunity for every talent in the Christan worker."

SOCIAL AND SUPPER.

The members of the church, and all those who worship at the church, were heartily invited to the annual supper. From 5.30 to 6.30 there was a social hour, during which the people arrived, deposited their wraps in the auditorium, and passed into the rooms of the Bible school. There was no receiving party, but everybody was made welcome.

Promptly at 6.30 an adjournment was made to the dining room in the basement, where a supper was furnished by Remick, the caterer, and served by a bevy of pretty young ladies of the church. The capacity of the room and annexes was fully tested, nearly 400 being seated at the tables. There were cold meats and salads, cranberry sauce and rolls, ice cream and cake, coffee, etc.

BUSINESS MEETING.

Bethany church is a duly incorporated body and does its business by business-like methods. The meeting was called to order at 8 P. M. by E. W. Branch, the moderator. After singing the favorite hymn, "Blessed be the Tie that Binds," the meeting was led in prayer by Theophilus King.

It was voted to proceed immediately to the election of officers for the ensuing year.

The Nominating committee presented an Australian ballot, with a double list of candidates. There were cast 142 votes and the following were elected:

The annual report of Ernest D. Gourd, the clerk of the parish, contained these figures:

Rev. Edwin Noah Hardy, the pastor, for the Church committee, read greetings from Dea. and Mrs. R. D. Chase, Mrs. C. B. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Steer of Waterbury, Conn., Miss Frances Lance of New York, Mrs. Rogers of Marshfield Hills, Mrs. Elizabeth Hardwick Alden, Mr. and Mrs. Legalie, Mrs. William H. Ryder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shand, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Baxter and other absent members.

In the report of the church committee, which in part introduces this article, the pastor spoke of the increase in the church and alluded feelingly to the deaths of Mr. T. Henry Wason, Mrs. Ephraim Thayer, Mr. William Birnie and Mrs. Mary Hobart.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Sad Death of Mrs. Nathaniel Nightingale at Home Alone.

Mrs.. Nathaniel Nightingale was found dead in bed at her home on South Walnut street this morning. Some few months ago Mr. Nightingale was removed to the Quincy City Hospital, since which time the Poor department of the city has been supplying Mrs. Nightingale with food.

Of late, however she has been rather eccentric, and has refused admittance to all callers, and no one knew just what she needed in the way of supplies or what she had in the house in the way of wood, coal and other necessities for winter.

Overseer of Poor Bass had called upon her several times but has been unable to gain entrance. In response to his knock, she would appear at the window and give unintelligible answers to his questions. She has, however, been seen about the streets every day, and was out no later than Wednesday.

This morning the necessary papers to gain entrance to her house were obtained from Judge Humphrey of the District court. Armed with these, Chief of Police Hayden and Mr. Bass visited the house. They were unable to obtain any reply, whatever, to their knocks and as a last resort a window was smashed and entrance gained. Upon going up stairs they were horrified to find Mrs. Nightingale dead in bed. Medical Examiner Jones, who later viewed the remains, attributes her death to natural causes.

Mrs. Nightingale's maiden name was Anna E. Rose, and she originally came from Bangor, Me. She married David Robie for her first husband, and after his death married Mr. Richards. He died and on Sept. 28, 1882, she married Nathaniel Nightingale, and has been very devoted to her husband who is many years older. Mrs. Nightingale was about 63 years of age.

The Case of General Wheeler.

Washington, Jan. 18.—It is said at the war department that there is no special significance in the fact that General Wheeler has been relieved from further military duty in the Philippines and ordered home. Although he made no complaint, it is understood that active duty in the field has undermined General Wheeler's health, and that it was dangerous for him to remain in the tropical climate of the Philippines much longer.

Jailbirds Commit Murder.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in the court of law. While great pains are taken in this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

RENOVATE YOUR MATTRESS.

Long continued use of a hair mattress, is practically as perilous to one's health as if you were compelled to use the same water for several baths. With years of use a hair mattress grows flat, lifeless and becomes filled with oily and organic matter absorbed from the body. To make it absolutely sweet, clean, flexible and healthful it should be made over, hair picked, then scoured and ticking washed. Upholsterers with years of experience, ready to do this work for you just as it should be done. A postal or telephone calls the delivery wagon. Old mattresses made as good as new. Service prompt. Prices right.

A HEARTY RECEPTION.

Seldom, if ever has St. Mary's hall held a larger gathering of people than that assembled Wednesday evening at the reception and coffee party tendered to Rev. Ambrose F. Roche, the pastor of the new Catholic parish at West Quincy, known as St. Mary's parish. There certainly must have been in the vicinity of a thousand persons present for every available space of room was occupied. The gathering was by no means confined to Catholics for in the vast crowd were many of other faiths, who knew Fr. Roche when he was located in Quincy before and had learned to admire and reverence him for his sterling worth of character and steadfastness of purpose.

The decorations of the hall were simple yet striking. They were confined wholly to the wall in the rear of the platform. Here was an arch of American flags beneath which was a shield upon which were the words "Welcome to our pastor." Beneath this was a painting of the reverend gentleman. On one side of the picture was the American flag while the flag of Ireland occupied equally as prominent a position on the other side. The whole was surrounded by evergreen. Along the front of the platform were many beautiful potted plants the effect being brightened by numerous large lamps.

Seated on the platform were the members of the reception committee viz: Mrs. Michael Rowley, Mrs. Fred Grignon, Mrs. Robert Teasdale, Joseph H. Vogel, Thomas F. Mannex, Thomas J. Lamb, James N. White, Willard Dalpe, John Vogel, the chairman and Dr. John H. Ash the secretary and treasurer of the committee.

Ames' orchestra was also seated upon the platform and rendered several selections during the early part of the evening, and later furnished music for dancing.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Rev. Fr. Roche and his assistant Rev. Fr. Foley entered the hall, and were escorted to the platform. A few minutes later Mayor Hall, Henry H. Faxon, George H. Field and Dr. T. J. Dion, arrived, and were also escorted to the platform. Then followed a brief entertainment, consisting of a solo and reading by Edward McCue; soprano solo by Miss Mary Elcock; humorous selections by Daniel C. Ring and a baritone solo by William Biganess.

Thomas J. Lamb read a brief history of Catholicism in Quincy, from the time of celebrating the first mass at West Quincy in 1828, up to the present time when West Quincy becomes a parish by itself. He spoke briefly of Fr. Roche and the work he accomplished when in Quincy four years ago. He also spoke of the need of a larger church, and felt sure that when the proper time came, West Quincy would stand up and be counted. He then presented Fr. Roche with a check made out for a substantial amount, as a gift from his people.

Fr. Roche, in replying said, your welcome is overpowering. I thank you for it, and hope by my life to merit some of the good things outlined by Mr. Lamb. It is not for me alone that you are present, but in honor of being a parish after 58 years. You deserve congratulations on the result and the love, assistance and the praise of undivided help and spirit. He then spoke of his assistant Fr. Foley, and said any love you give him will be appreciated by me and the more love you give him the more I shall love you. He then spoke of his work of looking to the spiritual welfare of nearly three thousand people and a Sunday School of 650, which was something only a priest can appreciate. He intended shortly to form a Sodality for young ladies, and a Holy Name society for young men. He did not intend to interfere in political affairs, and hoped no one would ask him to while he was in West Quincy. He then spoke of the St. Mary's, Foresters, Hibernians, Charitable and other societies, and pledged his best efforts to them.

To accommodate our nearly three thousand people, we have a church that will seat but 450. This must be replaced by an edifice that will accommodate the people of the West Quincy parish He could build a one story church, of stone that would seat one thousand people for $10,000. The money could be borrowed for 4 1-2 per cent or $450 a year. Twenty-seven men had pledged themselves to give $25 a year for five years to pay the interest. Plans are being made and the basement will be built and occupied before next November. John Ballou and Peter Fallon will each give one hundred loads of stone for the church, and he believed every stone needed would be given without expense.

He then briefly touched upon the pending labor trouble, and said it was for the common interest of Quincy for both sides to get together and settle the difficulty, which he believed would be done.

As to railroad matters, he believed a new station near Robertson street would be a benefit to the people, and would bring land into the market.

He had also with Mr. Lamb visited the superintendent of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. in the interest of having express trains to West Quincy. We should also have a savings bank, and he believed one would result in thousands of dollars being saved. Also an improvement society that should be non-partisan and non-sectarian. In closing he spoke of the kindness shown him by the Hingham people.

Rev. Fr. Foley spoke briefly and paid a tribute to Fr. Roche.

Mayor Hall was glad to grasp Fr. Roche by the hand and bid him again welcome to Quincy. He was glad to add his testimony. He did not like to say Father Roche, as he had rather call him Brother Roche, for he seemed more of a companion than a citizen. He was struck deeply with the thought of this vast congregation, and also realized that power going out to feed those hearts. It will not be hard for the pastor if his people return to him but a tithe of that love that burns in his heart for them. He never knew a priest that came so close to him as Fr. Roche, and he was glad to come and say welcome. He also touched briefly upon the impending labor trouble, and urged both sides to come together and bring about that unity that shall cause peace of mind. They should meet together like men and bring a blessing to the whole community.

Henry H. Faxon smiled when called upon. He expected, and wanted to speak, and after a few rambling remarks, he placed his hand in his pocket and drew forth, not a check, but a typewritten speech which he read as follows:

It gives me great pleasure, Father Roche, to welcome you as a permanent resident of our city. Well do we remember your valiant work for temperance and good citizenship when you were with us in the years past. Your present higher sphere of usefulness and influence leads us to expect proportionate results. It is especially fortunate that you should have become a resident of Ward Four which, to its shame and disgrace, gives the largest vote in favor of legalizing the sale of intoxicating liquors, and it is the only one where rumsellers and those who are in sympathy with the whiskey traffic dare to come forward as candidates for important offices.

Just here let me say that no man who uses intoxicating liquors as a beverage should be allowed to serve as a policeman, and those in authority should carefully investigate the habits of those who seek such responsible positions. There are now men on the force who are about as efficient as would be a stuffed dummy set up against a lamp-post and labelled "policeman."

For the last twenty years it has required eternal vigilance to keep the evils of liquor selling within narrow limits in this part of the city, for the reason that some of the police who have been located in this section have been derelict in their duty. Now that you, Father Roche, have taken up your abode here, and as this is also the home of the Chief of Police, I believe that the violators of the law will soon realize the effects of the influence of a staunch temperance advocate, reinforced by a public official who will fulfil all the obligations of his position.

Dr. John H. Ash was the last speaker and he briefly referred to the good work Fr. Roche had done when in Quincy before, and bespoke for him and the new parish great success.

An opportunity was then given those present to grasp the hand of their pastor and many was the blessing showered upon him as he was grasped firmly by the hand, and his arm must have ached before they got through.

While this was in progress, coffee and refreshments were served in the lower hall.

At the conclusion of the reception, dancing was in order which closed the affair. John Vogel was floor director, and was assisted by J. J. Reardon, J. N. White, Adam Vogel, W. P. Hughes, W. T. Shea, R. J. Teasdale, John H. Ash, M. D., Richard Welsh, Thomas Keating and J. A. White.

The entertainment committee were: Ellen Desmond, Mary F. White, Delia Burke, Adam Vogel, R. J. Teasdale and John McGowan.

HIGH AND NORMAL.

High Schools Must Now Conform to a Standard.

Higher Standard at Normal is Attracting Pupils.

Larger the City, the Smaller the Relative High School Attendance.

Continuing the review of the 63d report of the State Board of Education, we find this reference to State Normal schools:

The higher standard of admission has been in force four years. Its effect has been not to repel student as some feared, but to attract them. The admission during the four years the new policy has been on trial have been 456, 780, 743 and 779, respectively,—number far in excess of any under the old policy. The new schools cannot fully account for this increase, because the old schools have shown gains, not withstanding the new have appropriated some of their territory. There were 517 graduates in June, 1899,—the largest number in the history of the schools. Indeed, the four largest graduating classes in their history have been those for the last four years in order,—307, in 1896, 334 in 1897, 341 in 1898 and 517 in 1899. The number of pupils in attendance Dec. 1, 1898, was 1,624,—the largest attendance ever recorded. The interior signs of efficiency and prosperity are as numerous and trustworthy as the exterior.

HIGH SCHOOLS.

The State law now recognizes but one kind or grade of high school, instead of two, as formerly. This high school, to comply with the statute, must conform to the following standard:

(a) It must be adequately equipped.

(b) It must be taught by a principal and such assistants as may be needed, of competent ability and good morals.

(c) It must give instruction in such statutory subjects as it may be deemed expedient to teach, and in such additional subjects as may be required for general culture or for admission to normal schools, technical schools and colleges.

(d) It must maintain one or more courses, at least four years in length.

(e) It must be kept forty weeks, exclusive of vacations.

A town may meet a portion of the foregoing requirements in its own high school, provided it meets the rest in outside high schools.

There are 262 high schools in the state, with 1,440 teachers,—an increase of 56; and 40,003 pupils, an increase of 1,870. The ratio of the number of high school pupils enrolled to the total number enrolled in the public schools in 8.5 per cent. This means that 25 per cent. of the children avail themselves in due season of high school privileges, the percentage of enjoyment rising in many towns to 30, 40 and even 50. There is a good deal of popular misapprehension about the number of children attending high schools, some people asserting that only 4 or 5 children out of 100, or a the most 8 to 10, ever reach the high school. To throw light on this point, the reduction in membership of three classes in Cambridge and four in Somerville from the lowest primary grade to graduation from the high school has been carefully studied. The facts show that in Cambridge 20 per cent. of the lowest primary class entered the high school and in Somerville 26 per cent., 9 per cent. graduating from the high school in Cambridge and 14 per cent. in Somerville; or, taking the second primary grade as a basis for computation, which, for many reasons, is fairer, 30 per cent. of this grade entered the high school and 12 per cent. graduated therefrom in Cambridge, the corresponding percentages for Somerville being 38 and 20. The larger the city, the smaller relatively the high school attendance; but, whatever it is, it is far larger than popular misapprehension frequently asserts it to be. About 100 of the high schools number from 100 to 1,000 pupils each. They enroll 80 per cent. of all the high school pupils. These larger high schools are generally well officered, well provided with good buildings, and well equipped with sanitary, laboratory and teaching appliances. Some of the later high school buildings are superbly planned and furnished.

Replies Are All Favorable.

Washington, Jan. 18.—It is stated at the state department that no notes have been received from any European powers making demands upon this government respecting the "open door" and the Philippines. Such communications as have come from the continental powers have been entirely favorable to the proposition made by the United States respecting China, and all that remains to make the "open door" negotiation a complete success is the return of two or three definitive notes reducing the arrangement to an absolute and final form.

No More Puts and Calls.

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Trading in "puts" and "calls" on the board of trade was finally and absolutely prohibited by the directors of the board yesterday, and the rule to that effect was read from the gallery by Secretary Stone. At a meeting of the directors so-called privilege trading was defined as dishonorable conduct. It is said that the action of the directors not only prohibits the passing of money around the floor in payment for privileges, but makes it a violation of the rules to operate in puts and calls in the regular market in any way.

Had Been Missing Since Last Spring.

Brockton, Mass., Jan. 18.—The badly decomposed body of a man that was found in a brook here yesterday was later identified as that of Dennis Fenton, who had resided in this city for several years. Fenton was about 45 years old. It is supposed that the body had been in the brook since last spring, as he was last seen alive about that time. It is supposed that he fell into the brook while on his way home from one of the liquor resorts in the suburbs of the city.

Moore Fighting Extradition.

Boston, Jan. 18.—A cablegram received from Inspectors Houghton and Harris by Chief Inspector Watts says that the case of Fred Moore, who is charged with embezzling $53,000 from the National Bank of Commerce, has been postponed another week. Counsel for Moore is making a strong defense for his client against extradition, but the inspectors believe that they will bring Moore back to Boston with them when they come.

Flower has presented $100,000 to the hospital, and Mrs. Emma Flower Taylor, the daughter of Roswell P. Flower, also gave the institution $100,000. Roswell P. Flower was the founder of the Flower hospital, which is a homeopathic institution.

STARTED BY SULZER.

Long Debate Over Recent Transactions of Secretary Gage.

An Agreement That Roberts Is a Polygamist.

Senate Resolution Regarding Conduct of the Philippine War Is Adopted.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The house had another inning yesterday over the sale of the New York custom house by Secretary Gage. Mr. Sulzer of New York, the author of the resolution for an investigation of the secretary's transactions with the New York banks, started the ball rolling by charging that the mandate had already gone forth to suppress it. Mr. Sibley, a Pennsylvania Democrat, formerly a radical advocate of free silver, who is now out of sympathy with the Democrats in the house, warmly commended Mr. Gage's course.

These two speeches precipitated a debate which lasted about three hours. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio explained that the committee on rules, to which the Sulzer resolution had gone, had not acted because no evidence had been produced before the committee to warrant the ordering of such a far-reaching investigation. Not a single person had appeared before the committee to press it.

Mr. Hepburn (Rep., Ia.) assailed Mr. Sulzer for some of his extravagant statements and declared there ought to be some way to rebuke a member for slandering honored officials.

Later in the day, during the discussion of the appropriation for the army, Mr. Cannon, in charge of the bill, challenged any member to move to strike it out. Mr. Williams (Dem., Miss.) replied to Mr. Cannon in an eloquent speech, in which he affirmed the loyalty of every American citizen to the flag, and charged Mr. Cannon with shrewdly issuing a challenge that he knew would not be accepted. He maintained the right, however, of members to criticise the policy of the government, asserting that loyalty to the flag was often confounded with loyalty to a policy of the government.

The urgent deficiency bill was passed with only one unimportant amendment.

The house committee discussing the Roberts case agreed on the polygamous status of Mr. Roberts, but not on the method of procedure. A statement of facts is presented by the committee, showing that he had married three times, and that he had not made any denial of these facts, which were generally known in Utah.

The culminating session of the committee followed many prolonged executive sessions, which left no doubt as to the attitude of the several members, with the exception of Mr. Miers of Indiana, who has been out of the city. He returned yesterday, and it was determined to bring the matter to a direct issue. Accordingly, when the committee met, McPherson of Iowa offered a resolution for the exclusion of Roberts.

Mr. De Armond immediately proposed a substitute, recognizing the constitutional rights of Roberts to take his seat on his credentials, and providing for his expulsion.

There was no discussion beyond informal remarks, and the vote was first taken on Mr. De Armond's substitute, Mr. Littlefield joining him in the affirmative, and the others voting in opposition. The vote was then taken on Mr. McPherson's motion to exclude, resulting as follows:

Yeas—Taylor (Ohio), Frear, Morris and McPherson, Republicans; Lanham and Miers, Democrats.

Nays—Littlefield, Republican; De Armond, Democrat.

Chairman Taylor was authorized to prepare the majority report. It will be ready in a few days, and the prospects are that the subject will be brought before the house early next week.

Mr. De Armond will submit the views of the minority. He will include an exhaustive review of the law, covering about 70 typewritten pages, prepared by Mr. Littlefield. The main point of this is that the house cannot add to the requirements that the only constitutional remedy is to admit and then expel on the finding of facts.

Chairman Taylor says the report of the committee will be made on Saturday and that the subject will be taken up in the house next Tuesday.

The house committee on appropriations agreed on the pension appropriation bill and reported it to the house. It carries a total of $143,245,230, exactly the amount estimated by the pension office.

An agreement was easily reached in the senate to take the final vote on Feb. 15 on the pending bill fixing gold as the standard of value in the United States. In the intervening time the measure will be discussed.

After several days of debate the dragnet resolution of inquiry regarding the conduct of the Philippine war was adopted. It was introduced by Mr. Hoar (Mass.) and practically was adopted as a general substitute for resolutions of a similar, but less extended character, offered by Mr. Pettigrew and Mr. Lodge. Beyond a vigorous speech by Mr. Pettigrew the resolution aroused no debate, as it is within the discretion of the president to send or not to send any information required.

The resolution offered by Mr. Hale of Maine as to the seizure of flour by the British authorities was adopted, but only after a spirited debate and after the resolution had been materially amended. Mr. Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, made a sharp attack upon the resolution, but withdrew his objections after it had been amended.

Mr. Teller (Sil.-Rep., Colo.) addressed the senate upon the financial bill and will continue his speech today.

BOER CAUSE IS ENDORSED.

Citizens of Boston Besiege Faneuil Hall to Give Expression to Their Snmpathy.

Boston, Jan. 18.—The echoes of Faneuil hall rang loud for "The Farmer of the Transvaal" last night. For the Boers doing battle in South Africa went forth the good wishes of a thousand citizens assembled within the newly-bedecked cradle of liberty, while half as many more struggled vainly for admittance outside the doors.

Joseph Chamberlain was roundly hissed, and President Kruger cheered in proportion. And when Mr. Williams referred to the possibility of a secret understanding between the President of the United States and the Queen of England hisses again followed.

George F. Hollis, former United States consul at Pretoria; George Fred Williams, P. J. Flatley, Professor Camille Ried of Harvard university, Robert Sturn, a German-American resident of Boston, and Mr. Gulesian, a naturalized Armenian resident of this city, were the speakers. Letters were read from Senator Hoar, ex-Attorney General Pillsbury and others, assuring their entire sympathy with the objects for which the meeting was held. Resolutions, embodying the sentiment of the meeting, were adopted and copies will be sent to President McKinley, President Kruger and Joseph Chamberlain, the English colonial secretary.

The sympathies of the audience were enlisted in the movement at the opening of the meeting in a speech by Chairman Flatley, in which he asserted that the real cause of the South African war was England's attempt to burglarize the gold fields. There was no doubt in his mind that the ultimate result would be a united confederacy in South Africa.

Ex-Consul Hollis spoke from the standpoint of one personally acquainted with the Boers and their leaders. His address was chiefly of an historical nature, describing the Boer nation, and their work in building up the South African country. There was no trouble until the natural arrogance of the Englishman asserted itself. They wanted a voice in the making of the laws. There was no objection to that. But when shown that the privileges carried responsibilities, they wanted none of it. They wanted the privilege to call on the mother country in time of trouble. Then they claimed that they were taxed unduly and without representation. The products of the mines were only taxed 5 percent. Was that onerous?

The speaker believed it to be an unnecessary, causeless war, and he thought public opinion was awakening to this belief on the other side of the water. He ridiculed one of the excuses given for carrying on the war—that the Dutch in Cape Colony would be forced to join the Orange Free State—saying that England never had more loyal allies than the Cape Dutch. Should England gain the day, racial hate would be so strong that the whole of South Africa would throw off the yoke of England.

Bugbee Convicted of Murder.

Woodstock, Vt., Jan. 18.—Selim M. Bugbee, whose trial on the charge of killing Robert Emerton at Norwich on Nov. 18 last occupied the attention of the court for this county for eight days, was found guilty of murder in the second degree. Sentence was deferred. Emerton was night fireman at the heating plant at Dartmouth college in Hanover, N. H., while Bugbee resided at Wilder, his occupation being that of a fish peddler. The tragedy occurred near the store of I. L. Niles, father-in-law of Emerton. The two men had met in Niles' store, some words passing between them, and upon leaving the premises the dispute was resumed and finally resulted in the stabbing of Emerton.

Sweeping Charges by Republicans.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 18.—Governor Taylor and Lieutenant Governor Marshall last night filed their counter notice of contest against Mr. Goebel and Mr. Beckham. The document goes into details regarding alleged Democratic frauds all over the state. It is charged that the Democrats prevented many votes from being cast in Louisville by fraud and intimidation; that returns were wilfully made inaccurate, and that the thinnest ballots used during the election were used by the Democrats.

Hospital Attendants Poisoned.

New York, Jan. 18.—One hundred and eighty employes in Bellevue hospital were poisoned by something they ate or drank at dinner yesterday. All exhibited intestinal symptoms of more or less severity. It is suspected that the assistants in the hospital kitchen did not clean the big urns in which the coffee is made, and that the metal of the urns or an accumulation of sediment in them caused the poisoning.

"Faith Healer" Indicted.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Jan. 18.—The grand jury has returned true bills against S. F. James, the "divine healer," and Mrs. P. B. Yates on the charge of being criminally responsible for the death of the latter's daughter, Ethel Yates, which occurred here Jan. 5. Miss Yates' death was the result of appendicitis. A physician who had been in attendance upon the case was discharged and the girl was treated by faith cure.

Concessions on Both Sides.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 18.—The general strike in the woolen mills of the Cook Manufacturing company, in this city, which has been in operation since Saturday, was declared off yesterday, and the men went back to work. Both sides made concessions, the question at issue being the amount of the increase of wages.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The temperature has fallen in New England, the middle and north Atlantic states, and in Arkansas, and has remained nearly stationary elsewhere. Rain or snow may be expected in New England, probably clearing Friday. It will grow slightly warmer in northern New England. A storm will probably move over Lake Michigan, and this, in conjunction with the high pressure over New England, will cause easterly gales on the southern New England coast. Brisk easterly winds will increase on the northern New England coast.

MUST WAIT TILL STORM ABATES.

May Be Many Days Before Wreck In St. Mary's Bay Can Be Reached.

St. John's, Jan. 18.—No further news in regard to the steamer wrecked in St. Mary's bay has been received here this morning. The weather is stormy and it is feared that it will be difficult for the men or the boats at the scene of the disaster to do much.

The magistrate expects to receive the damaged life buoy picked up which has the name of the steamer painted on it, but the lettering of which was partly illegible from fire and water.

On the life buoy are the letters "elgoland," and underneath is the latter part of another word. What is legible is "munde." No doubt these letters are part of the word Geestemunde, the Helgoland's port of registry.

The reported recovery of several bodies is now denied. It seems that this grew out of the fact that three additional bodies have been located on the coast.

People along the shore fear that several days must elapse before anyone can get at the wreck, owing to the continuance of the gale, which is raising heavy seas where the bodies have been located on the coast.

The tug Ingraham is returning, after a succession of vain efforts. The shore folks and their boats will endeavor to collect the bodies.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 18.—A somewhat ingenious attempt to involve the state in the introduction of a system of phonetic spelling was evidenced in a bill put into the house by Mr. Fitts, who wishes to drop the silent letters in words used in all the ordinary state documents.

Among the documents of interest were two calling for election of the presiding officers of the Boston city council by popular vote, and the petition of certain suburban street railway companies for locations in the metropolitan park reservation. The house discussed the proposed gypsy moth investigation for a few minutes.

A convention of both branches was subsequently held to allow the qualification of Oliver H. Durrell of the executive council. Mr. Durrell was prevented from qualifying with the other members by absence in Europe.

Hearings before committees began with an interesting hearing before the judiciary committee to Mr. Carey on his bill to require legislative counsel and agents to wear badges.

Governor Crane wrote to President Codman of the Fitchburg railroad, declining to give any intimation of the state's position regarding the proposed lease to the Boston and Maine until the matter is brought before the stockholders.

Senator Currier of Essex introduced bill providing for the abandonment the work of the gypsy moth commission, but giving owners of property the same rights to claim damages for entry upon and acts done on land by the commission, the state to refund one-half of the damages recovered against a city or town.

"Merely Colonizing."

Chicago, Jan. 18.—The Times-Herald says: A movement, which is being carried on under the name of the Liberty Alliance, to give aid to the Boers has been on foot in Chicago for the past 10 days. Associated with it are a number of well-known citizens of Chicago. Several United States senators, it is said, have signified their intention of giving the organization support. When asked if the alliance was recruiting men for service in South Africa, one of the promoters said: "No." He said that the organization was merely "colonizing" in the western states, and in the Transvaal.

A Novel Invention.

London, Jan. 18.—Lieutenant Commander Colwell, United States naval attache in London, witnessed yesterday at Yoevil the test of an invention offered to the United States government for steering torpedoes and submarine craft by means of a wireless electrical device. The experiments left no doubt that craft can be directed by means of an ether wave, the model being controlled by a shore motor with no other connection save the current working upon the rudder. The inventor claims that this can be applied to torpedoes and submarine craft.

In Grandma's Day,

Women were straight and strong. They could walk or work side by side with the men of the family. They lived under healthier conditions; there was more simplicity and less strain. To-day it's different. The woman has all the care of the house and the wear of motherhood with duties superadded which were never dreamed of in Grandma's day. As a natural result she's worn out when she ought to be in the full beauty of mature womanhood. Women who would preserve their health and strength should guard the delicate womanly organs. When these are diseased the whole body suffers loss of strength and beauty. Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the diseases that weaken women. Inflammation, ulceration and female weakness promptly yield to the power of this great remedy.

"I had been a great sufferer from female weakness for about two years," writes Mrs. Emma Richardson, of Goss, Wayne Co., Ky. "Could not do my work part of the time. I took four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt as well as I ever did."

CROSSED THE TUGELA.

Boers' Position Being Bombarded by Buller's Forces.

General Conflict Can Hardly Be Delayed Beyond Today.

Thirty-Five Thousand Men Against an Unknown Number.

British Victory Would Prevent a Further Spread of Dutch Disaffection.

London, Jan. 19.—The war office has issued the following:

From Buller, Spearman's camp, Jan. 18: "One field artillery, Howitzer battery and Lyttleton's brigade are across the Tugela at Potgeiter's Drift. The enemy's position is being bombarded by us.

"Five miles higher up Warren has crossed the river by a pontoon 85 yards long. He hopes his forces will by evening have advanced five miles from the river to his right front. The enemy is busily entrenching."

From Roberts, Cape Town, Jan. 18: "Gatacre reports that 300 men of all ranks have been moved from Bushman's Noeck to Hoperberg and the Seventy-fourth field battery and one company of mounted infantry from Sterkstroom to Bushman's Hoeck. Otherwise there is no change."

At midnight the war office announced that it had no further news for publication. When questioned with regard to the rumored British victory and the relief of Ladysmith, the officials replied that they had received no information to bear out either feature of the rumor, and were inclined to think that serious fighting must precede the relief of the town.

Military critics in affiliation with the war office consider that the expected battle, along the wide arc south and west of Ladysmith, can hardly be delayed beyond today. From Durban it is reported that fighting has already begun.

General Buller has issued a spirited appeal and instructions to the forces, beginning: "We are going to the relief of our comrades in Ladysmith. There will be no turning back." The order proceeds to advise the men, when they charge, regarding the conditions under which they should receive the surrender of any of the enemy. It also warns them that the Boers are treacherous in the use of the white flag.

The order has been received with enthusiasm in every camp. The march was very trying, but the troops are now encamped amid very pleasant surroundings. Their health is excellent, and all are confident.

General Buller's forces, engaged in the flanking operation across the Tugela, are some 13,000 or 14,000 bayonets, 1200 horses and 40 guns. The disposition of his other 15,000 or 20,000 men is not known, although the assumption is that the whole army will be in action when the hour for combined movement arrives.

Three weeks ago General Buller had 30,000 men. Considerable reinforcements have since reached him, giving him probably 35,000 men and 80 guns all told. Estimates of how many men and guns the Boers have to oppose him are mere guesswork. In not replying to General Lyttleton's shells they are using the tactics that proved so successful in the battles of Magersfontein and Colenso—lying low in their trenches and thus hoping to conceal their precise position until the infantry advances.

The Daily Chronicle's military expert sees a curious analogy between General Buller's situation now and the eve of Magersfontein. Now, as then, the Boers are making a stand, with their backs to investing lines within a few miles. As Lord Methuen, after crossing Modder river, had to attack the Spyfontein and Magersfontein hills, so General Buller, after passing the Tugela, faces invisible entrenchments in a rough country.

One correspondent mentions General Buller's wheeled transport of 5000 vehicles, which connect him with the rail head, about 30 miles to the rear. Among these vehicles are 30 traction engines, which draw from 10 to 15 wagons each.

General Buller's warning about the misuse of the white flag by the Boers in his proclamation to the troops is considered a rather broad hint to give no quarter. His phrase, "there will be no turning back," is played upon editorially by the morning papers as presaging cheerful announcements.

The absorbing interest felt in the situation in Natal makes other points in the theater of war seem miscroscopic. Lord Methuen lies behind his works at Modder river. It is estimated that his forces will have to be nearly or quite doubled before he can relieve Kimberley.

British reinforcements are moving toward General French at Rensburg. With these he is expected to advance. General Gatacre's men occupy Lopsburg, a slight advance.

The war office announces that next week will be embarked 72 guns, 3710 men and 2210 horses. This is the largest consignment of artillery ever sent abroad. The war office invites 500 volunteers to form a sharpshooters' battalion of yeomanry.

Sir William MacCormac, in The Lancet, says that of the 309 wounded in the hospitals visited by him only eight had been hit by shells.

The British losses in killed, wounded and captured up to date are 7987 officers and men.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Times, discussing Afrikander disloyalty, says: I believe the sympathy of every Dutchman in South Africa is with the two republics, and that a general rising is still quite possible. However, there is nothing to implicate the Bond party as a whole in an officially organized conspiracy against the imperial government, although the Bond leaders have winked at or pandered to sedition in order to preserve their popularity. The British failures and the appearance of the Boers on British territory have fomented rebellion; but, even now, a decisive British victory would prevent its further spread.

This correspondent testifies to the value of the services rendered by Mr. Schreiner, the Cape premier, in an embarrassing position. He speaks less highly of Mr. Hofmeyer, the real leader of the Bond party, and severely condemns the Dutch press of the colony, which he says, is doing its utmost, while keeping on the windy side of the law, to promote rebellion and to envenom radical antagonism.

As Buckner Sees It.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—General Simon B. Buckner of Kentucky, who was the vice presidential candidate on the gold Democratic ticket in 1896, was in Chicago yesterday, and said, in an interview: "The Democratic party has no future until the element now in control has been wiped out and this promises to be done at the elections this year. Expediency, not principle, is the motto of this element. With Bryan's defeat, which promises to be more overwhelming than in 1896, there is reason to believe the conservative element of the party once more will come into power. The controlling element of the party today would commit it to opposition to expansion, when expansion was the essence of Jeffersonian Democracy. As a practical proposition, there can be no doubt in my mind as to the wisdom of this country retaining the Philippines."

An Old Home Week In Maine.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Maine will have an "Old Home Week" the coming summer, similar to the custom inaugurated in New Hampshire last year. The idea met with endorsement at the meeting of the Pine Tree State club at the Parker House last night, and a committee of five was chosen to decide upon the date for carrying the idea into execution. Governor Rollins of New Hampshire, who had to divide his evening between the Sons of New Hampshire and the Pine Tree State club, spoke of the great success that attended "Old Home Week" in New Hampshire last year, when 10,000 people were brought into the state, and predicted that twice that number would be attracted to the state this year.

Boston and Maine Won't Get It.

Boston, Jan. 19.—It now looks as if the Boston and Maine railroad had lost the Fitchburg railroad, or in other words, that the proposed lease of the Fitchburg had fallen through. President Codman of the Fitchburg road announced yesterday that he had sent a communication to Governor Crane, asking how the state looked upon the proposed lease, but the governor replied that the state would not act until the lease was submitted to the stockholders of the road. The Fitchburg official regarded this as an indication of opposition on the part of the state.

Daring Jailbreakers.

Springfield, Ills., Jan. 19.—A well planned jail delivery was carried out yesterday at the Sangamon county jail by Robert Baungartner, Frank Burns and John Herney, all imprisoned for burglary. Jailers Brand and Taylor opened the prison doors to release another prisoner, when they were attacked by the three men. A terrible fight ensued, in which the jailers were severely beaten. Brand's injuries are considered dangerous. Baungartner and Herney were captured after a chase. Burns is yet at large, with a posse in pursuit.

Borders on the Miraculous.

Baltimore, Jan. 19.—The post mortem examination of the body of Charles F. Seeberger, who was shot last Saturday night at Brunswick, Md., by Jerome Swartley, and died Tuesday, revealed the fact that Seeberger lived 60 hours with a bullet hole through the center of his heart. The doctors say that instantaneous death should have resulted, and that the man lived 60 hours after receiving it is regarded little short of miraculous.

THE COUNT IS BROKE.

Now on His Way to America to "Hit" George Gould.

Father of Count Challenges Editor of Figaro to Fight a Duel.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The father of Count de Castellane, who left Paris last week for America, has taken up the cudgel in his behalf and has challenged M. Fernand Derodays, editor of Figaro, to a duel because of remarks that paper has made about the count.

The Figaro made the announcement that Count Boni Castellane, "profligate, gambler and plunger in speculation," has been posted on the Bourse—"executed" is the Paris term. The Matin comes out more boldly, naming names. Both hint that the count is "broke."

The Matin has investigated the rumors that Count Boni's losses aggregate 20,000,000 francs ($4,000,000), and says the figure is exaggerated. But it asserts that he has lost 3,000,000 francs ($600,000), and even that is a sum which the impoverished prodigal and his wife cannot afford to lose.

A few days ago he left Paris to seek resources for meeting his engagements, and the belief is prevalent here that he is going to New York to see if he cannot melt the hard heart of "Brother George," chief custodian of his sister's millions.

The Matin's assertions were the leading topic of conversation at the clubs and other social meeting places throughout the day. The evening papers reproduced the story.

The count's father gave a fresh turn to the affair by writing a letter to the editor of Figaro, M. Fernand Derodays, intimating that he must be prepared to fight a duel with the count on the latter's return, or even with the marquis himself. In the course of the communication, after denouncing the statement of The Figaro as "canaillerie," the marquis said:

"If my son were not on the sea for New York he would undertake to demonstrate to you the emptiness of this tittle tattle, and would request from you reparation on grounds he would choose. In his absence I take his place. Your scandalous insinuation is a mere political trick, which others would describe as Dreyfusard."

The young count figured in a duel before, having signalized his election to the chamber of deputies by wounding Henri Tourot in a duel.

Made Desperate by Poverty.

New York, Jan. 19.—Leaving his wife and three children at his home in Hoboken, N. J., yesterday, Oscar Comenseu, an expert bookkeeper, came to this city determined to obtain employment or not return home. He was unsuccessful in obtaining anything in his line, and when he applied to the barge office for laborers work was refused. He then went to a lodge of a Hebrew benevolent society to which he belonged and in the meeting asked for help for himself and his starving family. Comenseu stepped into an ante-room while his application was being considered and, hearing part of the discussion, which he thought unfavorable, killed himself by taking carbolic acid.

Elected by Republican Vote.

Boston, Jan. 19.—Edward J. Donovan was elected city clerk on the part of the common council last night. Donovan's election was made possible by a combination of Republicans with the anti-organization Democrats. Of the total of 45 votes, 28 were Republicans and only 17 Democratic. Donovan is at present a member of the legislature. He was a member of the legislature in 1897 and 1898, and the two succeeding years he was in the senate. In 1894 he was appointed internal revenue collector by President Cleveland.

A Result of Drink.

Chester, Pa., Jan. 19.—Mrs. Ida Sible and Mrs. Mary Blizzard were so badly scalded by falling into a vat in the dye house of the South Chester Manufacturing company that they died. Nicholas Thomas and the two women had been drinking heavily and visited the dye house on invitation of Night Watchman Bell. While romping around the place Mrs. Sible fell into a vat of boiling water and Mrs. Blizzard, in attempting to rescue Mrs. Sible, also fell in. The coroner severely censured Bell and Thomas.

Blackstone Birds Won.

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 19.—A cocking main was pulled off near here last night between birds from Blackstone, R. I., and Boston. The stakes were $100 a side on the result of each of the battles and $2000 a side on the result of the main. At the end of eight battles the contestants stood four each. The ninth and deciding contest was won by the Blackstone bird. A great deal of money changed hands on the result.

Good Afternoon.

This paragraf looks queer, but the new program would spell words this way: alfabet, cigaret, demagog, filosofy, esthetic, telegraf, favorit, etc.

The good fellowship at the reception at West Quincy to Rev. A. F. Roche must be very pleasing to that reverend gentlemen and the new parish. It was a hearty welcome which he received to his new field of labor, after an absence of a few years from the city. The words spoken were sincere, and the check presented was a substantial token of love and esteem. It was another example of the breaking down of religious barriers and the uniting of the people in one vat from one of the [illegible] Nothing is [illegible] people as [illegible] brotherhood.

Moore Fighting

Boston, Jan [illegible] disgusting to many [illegible] church quarrels and religious bigotry, and nothing so handicaps the churches in their influence for good in a community.

That a congregation of wealthy people is not necessary to the success of a church is clearly illustrated by the progress made by the Bethany Congregational society of this city. It is a people's church where everybody is welcomed and where it is the desire to make everyone a co-worker. No church is Quincy or the South Shore is better organized or more prosperous. It is no longer the old Orthodox church or a church for Quincy Centre alone but an up-to-date church which includes in its congregation worshippers from Wards One, Two, Three and Four of the city and a few from Braintree. It has an able pastor, an accomplished organist and a quartette choir, a Bible school with departments for all ages under a skilful superintendent, and auxiliary societies which are doing excellent work; but what is better all work harmoniously together. Bethany may well be termed a model church and the pastor and people are to be congratulated. The large sums annually contributed by this church to benevolences is a surprise to many.

☞The spelling reform which Representative Fitts of Somerville would have the Great and General Court institute in the Legislature and State Departments is not of a nature affording any assistance to-ward improving the perfection in spelling of the graduates of the public schools.—Lynn Item.

THE Q. Y C. ANNUAL.

Will the Local Club Withdraw from the Y. R. A. M?

These names will be placed on the ballot for the annual meeting of the Quincy Yacht club, which will be held at City hall on Saturday evening, Feb. 3.

Commodore,—Edwin E. Davis.
Vice Commodore,—James S. Whiting.
Secretary, (vote for one),—Harold B. Faxon, George D. Follett.
Treasurer,—George W. Jones.
Executive Committee,—William P. Barker, Henry M. Faxon, George E. Pfaffmann, John W. Sanborn.
House Committee, (vote for seven),—Herbert W. Barker, William Edwards, C. Frederick Howe, C. Allen Howland, Jr., Herbert W. Robbins, Joseph L. Whiton, Jr., Ira M. Whittemore, Frank F. Crane, Amos L. Merritt.

It will be noticed that the officers of secretary and treasurer, which have heretofore been combined, will appear separately on the ballot. The club has grown to such a size that the work which has heretofore devolved upon the secretary-treasurer is more than one man can attend to, thus the necessity of the division.

Preceding the annual meeting by about fifteen minutes a special meeting will be held to see if the club will vote to divide the office. As it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the club will vote in the affirmative, the new by-law will then become operative at the annual meeting which immediately follows.

Another matter of importance which will come before the meeting is to see if the club will vote to withdraw from the Yacht Racing Association of Massachusetts. This will without doubt be the most important question discussed at the meeting.

RUNAWAY BOYS.

Three Overhauled in Quincy Bound for California.

Inspector McKay overhauled three boys on Hancock street this morning who had evidently been reading something besides Sunday School books. The boys gave their home as Dorchester and their names and ages as: Fred C. Ritchie, 10 years; Arthur G. Craig, 13 years, and Florence J. Curley, 13 years.

Upon being taken discussing the station [illegible] agreed on the police [illegible] status of Mr. Roberts [illegible] to the police method of procedure [illegible] facts [illegible] and seached, two revolvers were brought to light as well as cartridges, jack-knives, etc., and a letter written by one of the boys which outlined their plan of action.

The letter stated that they were to get all the money they could, to take reefers, jackets and overhauls, and a good pair of shoes and stockings, a pop with plenty of amunition, knife and belt and two pints. They were then to jump a freight train at B street for Albany, N. Y. From there they planned to jump freights for Chicago, Cheyene, and Seattle. From the latter place, they were going to California in a cattle steamer. If upon arriving there they found the detectives were after them, they were either going to Texas, Africa or India. This depended upon which steamer they could stow themselves away in.

The boys started all right on their trip which ended in Quincy. They certainly meant business, for they had about all the articles mentioned in the letter about them. Their parents were notified and the probability is, after having their jackets warmed with a stick, they will pass the night at home instead of on a freight train.

Some of the members of the administrative boards have also taken the oath. George A. Sidelinger who was elected last Monday evening by the City Council as City Auditor has also been sworn in.

HELD RESPONSIBLE.

Liquor Dealer Must Pay Damages for Injuries.

Three cases of unusual interest to temperance people were heard in the Superior Court at Dedham, Thursday. Those of Mary E. Colburn and her sons Alvah F. and Kenneth W. Colburn, who sued James H. Spencer of Canton for $2,000 each.

Mrs. Colburn in her declaration, as wife of Alvah B. Colburn, alleged that the defendant's saloon keeper at Canton on July 5, 1899, sold to her husband liquor by which he was made intoxicated and that he while so intoxicated fell under a train at Canton and had his feet crushed so that they had to be amputated and that because of the loss of his feet her husband had become totally incapacitated and prevented from giving her the support upon which she was dependent.

The two sons claim the loss of a father upon whom they were dependent.

Mrs. Colburn was given a verdict for $1200; the three-year-old son $1200, and the 12-year-old son $600.

WHO FOR PRESIDENT?

Two Candidates for Head of Republican Committee.

There promises to be a contest for President at the organization of the Republican City Committee of 1900 on Saturday evening. It is not definitely known whether Mr. A. G. Dolliver, the chairman of 1899, is a candidate for re-election, as his friends are non-committal. Without desire to antagonize, but to elect one from their midst, the South Quincy Republicans will nominate for president John P. Bigelow, the ex-Councilman and a life-long Republican.

Mr. Bigelow will undoubtedly have the solid support of Ward Three but with a full attendance of the 42 members, 7 from each ward, it will require 22 votes to elect a president.

Ward One [illegible] the war—that the Dutch in Cape Colony [illegible] the Orange [illegible],—Charles F. Pettengill, Isaac M. Holt, Andrew Olsen, Archibald F. Macleod, John McKnight, Edward L. Goodridge, Albert G. Dolliver, Ward Three,—John P. Bigelow, William T. Spargo, Harry S. Nicse, Daniel McLennan, James W. Pierce, James W. Young, Frank L. Carlton.

Ward Four,—Hiram W. Campbell, Tobias H. Burke, Charles H. Owens, John Heuss, William P. Barry, William E. Badger, James F. Allen.

Ward Five,—Richard R. Freeman, Charles F. Marr, Edward E. Jameson, Eugene F. DeNormandie, Walter S. Pinkham, Eugene H. Sprague, George E. Thomas.

Ward Six,—Roger H. Wilde, David C. Nelson, Ralph W. Hobbs, Louis F. R. Langelier, Herbert S. Barker, Walter P. Hill, Charles A. Hall.

Quarryman Killed.

The Barre Times reports that James McKay, a quarryman, working for Fred Webber, on the latiers' quarry about a mile from Groton, Vt., was instantly killed Tuesday afternoon by the discharge of a blast which he was endeavoring to remove.

The blast had been set but failed to explode, and after one waiting McKay approached and began to remove it, when in some way, it was set off, the bulk of the charge striking McKay in the breast and passing through his body, taking his right lung with it. His face and eyes were also fearfully mangled.

McKay was a Scotchman by birth and was about 34 years old. He leaves a wife and two children. He had resided in Groton about two years, coming here from South Rvegate.

From Madison To McKinley

In 1810, when Madison occupied the President's chair, JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT was originated by Dr. A. Johnson. For nearly a century it has remained a household remedy of the first rank. The grandparents of many who now use JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT were brought through whooping cough, croup and all the accidents of childhood in safety by this remedy. Many a time a bottle of JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT in the cupboard of some remote farm house, has saved life when sudden and acute disease has developed in the night. Many are now living in old age who owe their lives to this remedy. You can safely put your trust in a remedy that has stood the test of nearly a century and gained such a high reputation as has

Johnson's ANODYNE LINIMENT

A majority of the ailments of humanity begin, or are accompanied, with inflammation, and it is by controlling and removing this condition that JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT cures widely different diseases, such as colds, coughs, croup, catarrh, bronchitis, la grippe, lameness, colic, cramps, diarrhoea, cholera morbus, bites, bruises, burns, stings, chafing and pain and inflammation in any part of the body. Sold in two size bottles, 25c. and 50c., the larger size being the more economical; it holds three times as much.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Thirty-two cities and 7 towns are required to maintain evening elementary schools, all complying with the law except one city and three towns. Ten cities are required to maintain evening high schools if properly petitioned to do so, 7 of which have responded to petitions to that effect. There were last year 9 evening high schools, 146 evening elementary schools, 45 evening drawing schools and 6 other evening schools, with a total membership of 36,404 or an average attendance of 3,986 more than the year before, and a cost for each pupil of the total membership of $5.71, as against $6.11 a year ago and $6.24 two years ago. With the percentage of the day schools based on their total membership, like that of the evening schools, instead of on their average membership it would be 76 instead of 92.

Supervision by Superintendents of Schools.—There are 168 superintendents of schools whose salaries from all sources, State and municipal, amount to $295,818 the average being $1,761. One is paid $4,200, 3 are paid $4,000 each, 13 between $3,000 and $4,000 each, 35 between $2,000 and $3,000 each, 101 between $1,000 and $2,000 each and 11 less than $1,000. The cost of supervision of school committees is a little less than one per cent., of supervision by superintendents a little over one and one-half per cent. of the amount raised for all school purposes. There are 52 district superintendents, who serve 152 towns. Ninety-six per cent. of the children of the State and 94 per cent. of the schools are now under supervision by superintendents. Eighty-three towns are without superintendents; of these 78 are eligible to large State help if they appoint district superintendents. The growth of superintendency districts has been very nearly at a standstill for five years past. The growth of superintendencies during that time has been confined almost wholly to towns that have established them without any right to help from the State. Of these 78 towns 39 or just one-half have in times past voted once twice or oftener in favor of employing a superintendent of schools 27 have voted adversely and 12 not at all. A large proportion of the people without such supervision want it but cannot get it. The limits of successful action in a voluntary way have been substantially reached.

Conveyance of Children.—The conveyance of children to school at public expense was first authorized by chapter 132, Acts of 1869. No returns of expenditure under the law were made until 1889; the amount then reported for the year preceding was $22,118.38. The amount has now reached the sum of $127,409.22. The increase means a gain in the policy of consolidating schools and increasing their efficiency.

Text-books and Supplies.—The total expenditures for text-books, stationery and school supplies was $585,376.27 the cost for each child in the average membership of the public schools being $1.50, or 13 cents less than the average for the past ten years. The towns and cities generally report lower averages. Supplies of all sorts, including apparatus, library books, maps, chemicals, material for kindergarten, sloyd and manual training work, etc., are included in the State returns, while local reports often confine themselves either to text-books proper or to such books and a narrower range of supplies.

State Reimbursement of Certain Expenditures for Salaries of Teachers in Small Towns.—In accordance with chapter 408, Acts of 1896, as amended by chapter 498, Acts of 1897, 55 towns are now eligible to certain aid from the State in paying the salaries of their teachers, provided they comply with the conditions of the law. Twenty-three towns in 1896-97 availed themselves of the law, receiving from the State $4,117.84 for 127 teachers. In 1897-98, 45 towns took advantage of the law, receiving $7,883.19 for 220 teachers. In 1898-99, 49 towns received $10,532.19 for 282 teachers.

The School Fund.—The school fund now amounts to $4,270,548.14. The law requires that each year it shall be increased by $100,000, until it amounts to $5,000,000. Half the income is devoted to the general educational expenses of the State, the other half goes to towns whose valuation is under $3,000,000 each. For 1899 $94,521.12 was distributed among 252 towns, in amounts varying from $50 to $559.24, the average per town being $375.08, as against an average of $353.01 the preceding year.

Private Schools.—Four hundred and twenty-four private schools were returned, 6 more than the preceding year, with 71,460 pupils, — a decrease of 2,010. Boston loses 2,527, and the rest of the State gains 517. There are 56 incorporated academies in the list of private schools, with 5,523 students,—a decrease of 294. In 1837, 1 child in 6 attended a private school. Thirty years later, in 1867, the private school attendance was relatively at its lowest point, including only 1 child in 14. With the establishment of parochial schools, private school attendance increased, reaching a maximum in 1894, when the ratio was 1 in 7. Since 1894, private school attendance has been relatively diminishing, the ratio for 1899 being 1 to 7.6.

Good Influence of Music.

Last night the City Band Literary and Musical society were treated to an able essay on "The Good Influence of Music" by the Rev. Robert W. Peach. Being a musician of no mean ability he expressed his sympathy with the subject in the highest terms.

In the enthusiasm of youth the speaker said he used to hold that all music, that deserved the name of music, was divine. But with larger thought he had come to realize that music, like poetry, sculpture or painting, could be made the vehicle of expression of emotions low and degrading, as well as uplifting and holy. His subject, then, must be really "the good effect of good music on good people,"—or on people who had noble traits and high ideals. On such people, such music had the threefold effect of producing refinement, quickening aspiration and ministering rest. The talk was illustrated by references to symphony orchestral, choral and other powers of music, and enlivened with reminiscences.

The essay was greatly appreciated, the members being almost unanimous in their support of the sentiments of the essayist.

The society is flourishing, eight applications for membership being received at the meeting and several being admitted.

In His 89th Year.

Mr. James H. Burkett, one of Quincy's oldest citizens, passed away Thursday at his residence on Adams street, having reached the advanced age of 88 years. Mr. Burkett was born in Warren, Me., and came to Quincy from Waldoboro, Me., about six years of ago. He was at one time a storekeeper, and later followed the sea. Of late years, however, he has been engaged in the real estate business. He leaves a widow, one son and three daughters.

Ate Turkey and Entertained.

The principal feature of the sociable given at the Wollaston Unitarian vestry on Thursday evening was the turkey supper, which preceded the entertainment. There was a large crowd of people present. The committee consisted of Mrs. Henry R. Smith, Mrs. F. C. Merrill, Mrs. Rufus W. Poole, Mrs. George W. Bennett, Mrs. William M. Chase, Mrs. Henry G. Fay, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Walter O. Parker, Mrs. Charles S. Comins, Mrs. Foss, Mrs. H. L. Paige, Mrs. E. L. Cummings, Mrs. Charles K. Crane and Mrs. Frank F. Shurtleff.

The entertainment was in charge of Mrs. F. C. Merrill, and was unusually brilliant. The trio, consisting of Mrs. Merrill, Mrs. N. G. Nickerson and Mrs. George H. Collyer, sang "Down in the dewey dell," "Distant Chimes," and "Fast the night is falling." Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Collyer also sang the duet, "Gentle be thy slumbers still," and John and Ernest Merrill played a duet for violin and piano. Miss Belden of the Emerson of School of Oratory was the reader.

Runaway and Broke His Leg.

Fred Betts lost a valuable horse Thursday night. The animal, attached to an open wagon, was left alone for a few minutes on Goffe street and became frightened. He dashed down Goffe street and as he turned into Adams street he was going at a breakneck speed. Crossing Adams street he leaped the stone wall that surrounds the Charles Francis Adams estate. The wagon brought up against the wall where it remained but little injured, but when the horse brought up on the opposite side of the wall he struck in such a manner as to break one of his hind legs. From this point the animal managed to pass over a lot of ice until he reached the stable door, when he was found by the hostler. The police were notified and Officer Bradley went down and put the animal out of misery. The horse was valued at $500.

Commissioner Knowlton.

Editors of Quincy Ledger:

The Herald says, "We have it from a most reliable source" that Mr. C. F. Knowlton has accepted a position as Commissioner of Public Works at Porto Rico. Our citizens have more evidence than Dame Rumor that Mr. Knowlton has been tendered the most important office in our City by His Honor, Mayor Hall, and with most candid expectations of the Mayor that Mr. Knowlton would accept and retain the position.

At present Mr. Knowlton is not here to accept or resign, but his large circle of friends may feel confident that they are still with him in thought, and that before he accepts any position he will give more than a little consideration to his supporters here. Surely this is the case where—"The offices are seeking the man." Splendid recommendation is it not? And surely it reflects credit on Mayor Hall in his choice. A little bird" says that Mr. Knowlton will not disappoint Mayor Hall, or his host of friends, but will return in ample time to enjoy a warm reception at City Hall on February 5, 1900.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture. The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces (one-quarter of the small size cake) of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in an air-tight glass jar.

MILTON.

Milton people are considerably aroused over the action of the trustees of the library, in transferring Miss Chapman the librarian who receives a salary of $450, to the Mattapan branch, and installing in her place a lady from Lowell at salary of $1,200.

A petition is being circulated to have the tracks of the Boston, Milton & Brockton street railway extended across the bridge at the Lower Mills so as to connect with the Boston Elevated system.

Master Stephen A. Reed is the proudest 14-year-old boy in East Milton, for he has just been awarded a silver medal by the Massachusetts Humane society for saving Edward Crockey, a ten-year-old companion from death by drowning, on August 7, last year. The two boys were in bathing off Squantum street when some older boys came along and began to chase the Crockey boy. The little fellow became frightened and in his fright jumped overboard in the deepest part of the river. He was unable to swim and was going down the third time when Master Reed went to the rescue and with no little difficulty was enabled to save his life. The medal is fitly inscribed.

The King's Daughters of the East Milton Congregational church will hold a sale Saturday evening. The proceeds will go to the King's Daughters Home for the Aged.

A petition is being circulated to have Crafton avenue accepted as a public way.

J. B. Newcomb, Jr., is in New York representing the American Rubber Co.

A recent report issued by the Milton branch of the Volunteer Aid Association, shows the cash receipts to have been $870.96 and expenditures $851.51, leaving a balance of $54.45. During the Spanish-American war $175 was sent to Col. Higginson, and a large amount of supplies were sent to the soldier boys as well as to the hospital ship, Bay State.

There is but little excitement over town politics and it looks as though Messrs. Simpson, Bradlee and Turner would have no opposition for reelection as Selectmen.

The Single Tax.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

HEARD ENOUGH ABOUT HANDWRITING.

No More Experts Will Testify In Molineux Trial—The Barnet Case.

New York, Jan. 19.—The prosecution in the Molineux trial yesterday introduced two more handwriting experts, who testified briefly that the handwriting of the Cornish and Barnet letters and of the poison package address was identical with that of Molineux. Recorder Goff ruled that the prosecution would not be permitted to call any more handwriting experts, and one of the jurors expressed his weariness of expert testimony.

The most important testimony yesterday related to the poisoning of H. C. Barnet, and while Mr. Osborne was always choked off by the court when he asked his witness questions that connected Molineux with the Barnet case, still the prosecution scored effectively.

Mr. Osborne, it appeared later, was seeking to prove that previous to Barnet's receiving the poison powder which it is alleged caused his death, he had received other medicines through the mail, presumably from the defendant.

James S. Hudson, a salesman formerly associated with Barnet, testified that late in the summer of 1898, shortly before Barnet's death, Barnet received by mail a package about 1½ inches long and high, in a light-colored wrapper. Witness continued: "I saw Mr. Barnet open the package. I saw him take out the contents. As I recollect it there was some cotton, a smaller box inside and in it were some pink or red capsules.

"Do you remember what he said?" Objected to.

"He put the pellets in his hand, examined them, then put them in the box and then put the whole thing back in his pocket."

"How does all this become relevant?" asked the recorder.

"I'll show," said Osborne, "that Barnet received things anonymously through the mails, and that this defendant bought such remedies as have just been described, in the name of H. C. Barnet."

Edmund Barnet, brother of H. C. Barnet, was recalled, and was asked: "Did you find anything such as was described by Mr. Hudson?"

"Yes."

"What was it?"

"A small white box containing 15 pink pills and also a box containing a salve labelled 'Calthos, five days' treatment.'"

"What about the capsules?"

"They were filled with white powder."

Dr. Robert Boocock, a homoeopathic physician of 40 years' experience, testified that small doses of cyanide of mercury, often repeated, would produce all the symptoms of diphtheria. Witness was very positive in his statements, and the searching cross-examination only resulted in emphasizing his testimony. Barnet, it will be remembered, was treated for diphtheria, and the physician still insists that diphtheria was the cause of his death, in spite of the discovery of mercury in Barnet's body, after death.

Other witnesses were Vincent G. Hammill, president of a private remedy agency, who treated by mail the bogus H. C. Barnet, alleged by the prosecution to be Molineux, for impotency, and who testified to his correspondence with the so-called Barnet, and William O. Inglis, a newspaper reporter, who identified a new "Barnet" letter to a western medical house, asking for a prescription. The handwriting is identical with that of the other "Barnet" letters.

Three Would-Be Bandits.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 19.—The police arrested last night Thomas J. Leecham, Chester A. Eaton and John Handy, Jr., for complicity in several breaks which have recently occurred. These boys are the leaders of a gang whose heads have been turned by dime novel reading, and they had planned an elabcrate series of hold-ups and burglaries. Their first break was at the gun store of George A. Eggers, where they secured revolvers and a supply of ammunition, and they were supplied with masks to conceal their identity.

Goes to Supreme Court.

Santiago, Jan. 19.—The Chilian court of first instance has acceded to the proposal to deliver to the United States authorities Frederick T. Moore, accused of embezzling $53,000 from the National Bank of Commerce at Boston. Moore has appealed to the supreme court, which will render a decision next Monday. The press condemns the Chilian authorities, and expresses the hope that the supreme court will not confirm the decision to surrender the accused.

A VERITABLE GARDEN.

Climate and Soil of Puerto Rico Admirably Adapted to Husbandry.

Natives Are Very Hospitable, Polite and Sociable.

Forty-Eight Percent of Births Illegitimate. Ecclesiastical Marriages Being Expensive.

Washington, Jan. 19.—Henry K. Carroll, special commissioner for the United States to Puerto Rico, under appointment by the president to investigate the civil, industrial, financial and social conditions of the island, has made his report. The report says that Puerto Rico has an area estimated from 3130 to 3860 square miles. The climate is tropical, but not torrid. The thermometer rarely rises to 100 degrees, the highest monthly average on record in nine years in San Juan being 86 degrees. The mountains are generally covered with verdure, and even the peaks are gardens of the husbandman. The death rate is moderate. Yellow fever is not indigenous, but smallpox sometimes becomes epidemic.

The health bill of Puerto Rico, however, will compare favorably with that of countries in the temperate zone. The population in 1897 numbered 890,820, exclusive of the Spanish military then occupying the island and the penal population. A comparison of the census of 1887 and 1897 shows that the colored race is decreasing, the whites now numbering 64 percent of the whole. The Catholic was the state religion, and at the time of the American occupation there were only two churches of any other faith in Ponce and another at Isabell II, in the island of Vilques. The public charities are few and poorly supported. Crime is not excessive.

The statistics of births in 1897 show that about 48 percent were illegitimate. At most of the hearings had by the commissioners, persons insisted that the fees exacted by the priests were too heavy for poor people, who preferred living together unwedded than to meet all the conditions of ecclesiastical marriage. These persons, it was said, are rarely untrue to each other.

The Puerto Ricans, the report says, are a kindly, hospitable, polite people, very sociable and always ready to do Americans a friendly service. One of the greatest needs of the island, it is said, is good roads. This is of the highest importance and affects all human interests—social, educational, industrial, commercial and political.

The common estimates of Puerto Ricans is that only one-tenth of the cultivatable lands are in actual cultivation at any one time. The soils of the plains and valleys are generally very rich, and have borne crops for generations without the use of fertilizers. The crops most generally raised are, in the order of areas occupied in 1896: Coffee, 121,176 acres; cane, 60,884 acres; tobacco, 4222 acres. Coffee cannot be raised without shade, as in Brazil. The coffee bushes need five years for full development under the shade of banana or other trees, and continue bearing 25 and even to 50 years. Bananas give both shade and fruit the first year. Coffee farms are exempt from taxes for the first five years. The grades of coffee are among the finest.

The fruits of the island are such as are common to tropical countries. The raising of cattle is an important and lucrative industry. The daily wages of the common field laborer range from 35 to 50 cents, native money. Women are rarely seen in the fields. The people are industrious.

Commissioner Carroll recommends that the constitution and laws of the United States be extended to Puerto Rico, and that a territorial form of government, similar to that established in Oklahoma, be provided; that the legislative power shall extend to all regulations for the exercise of the elective franchise; that the legal voters of the island be permitted to elect a delegate to congress; that a commission consisting of three persons who shall be natives of the island and two of the United States be appointed by the president to revise the codes; that the jury system be adopted; that the banking and patent laws of the United States be extended to the island; that a court of claims be established to adjudicate all claims to property, secular and ecclesiastical, arising under the treaty of Paris; that the rule adopted by the military government as to civil marriages be continued in force; that the Spanish silver coins be retired and the coins of the United States be substituted; that the lottery be prohibited; and that the governor general and the legislature be required to provide for universal and obligatory education in a system of free schools, where English shall be taught, and that an experimental station for agriculture be established for the island.

For an hour yesterday, Mr. Wellington (Rep., Md.) occupied the attention of the senate, continuing the debate on the Philippine question. He took as his text the resolution he introduced last Tuesday, declaring that the United States should not take permanent possession of the archipelago, but after subduing the insurrection—which he sincerely deplored—should confer upon the Filipinos the right to govern themselves, affording them such protection as they might need.

Mr. Teller (Sil. Rep., Col.) resumed his speech on the financial bill, in the course of which he arraigned Secretary Gage for his negotiations with the National City bank of New York.

The house passed the senate bill to extend the powers of the director of the census after striking out the committee amendment to authorize the director to contract for extra printing with private contractors. The whole fight was upon that amendment. The influence of the public printer and the labor organizations of the country were employed against it.

LABOR MEN ARE DISTURBED

At Prospect of Overtime and All-Night Running In New England Mills.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 19.—The all-night running of the No. 1 and No. 3 Hargraves, Parker and Arkwright mills bids fair to bring about an epidemic of night and overtime running. Last night the shove mill, No. 3, just across the Rhode Island line, but employing Fall River help, ran until 10 p. m., and will continue in the future to do so. The Davol mill announces its intention to run Saturday afternoons, and the Pocasset mill will, it is reported, run nights and Saturday afternoons.

The loom-fixers in the Davol mill held a meeting and voted unanimously not to work overtime. Union spinners will, it is stated, refuse to work nights or Saturday afternoons.

Secretary O'Donnell of the Textile council is greatly disturbed at the outlook. He says: "When the advance in wages was conceded I believed labor troubles were at an end. But now the overtime and all-night running question has arisen and will put the industry many paces backward unless it is abolished. Manufacturers who oppose overtime work should go to Boston and tell the legislators so. But I believe that the majority of the manufacturers would run overtime if they could get their help to work."

The Stafford mill weavers held a meeting last night and appointed a committee to try and effect an adjustment of their wages. They claim that they do not receive the full advance of 10 percent, while the mill management say they have received the increase.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 19.—No discussion of the gypsy moth investigation order, which passed the house Wednesday, was attempted in the senate yesterday, the matter being left for discussion today, when both branches begin the 1 o'clock sessions usual on Fridays. The school teachers' retirement fund matter, agitated now for several years, was brought up again on a petition from G. M. W. Hall.

Most of the time of the house was taken up by discussion of the order introduced by Mr. Reed of Taunton, calling for an immediate report on the much-talked-of Fairhaven bridge from railroad commissioners and land commissioners, who were given until Jan. 15 last to submit their report. The order was tabled.

The executive council confirmed the appointment of Frederick Lawton as justice of the superior court, to succeed Judge Lilley, and adjourned until Wednesday of next week, thus making Wednesday their meeting day in the future.

Of the hearings the princial one was on the petition of the company authorized last year to build a Cape Cod canal that it might issue the residue of its $12,000,000 stock and bonds as soon as the canal is constructed.

The bill for a Washington street (Boston) subway and an East Boston tunnel was the chief matter of interest at the state house.

One Year For Forgery.

Pittsfield, Mass., Jan. 19.—George A. Learned, former acting auditor of Pittsfield, was sentenced in the superior court yesterday to one year in the house of correction for forgery. At the term of the court last June Learned pleaded guilty to 15 indictments for forgery. The discovery of Learned's crime was made last spring by Mayor Whitney.

Smallpox In Fifteen Counties.

Indianapolis, Jan. 19.—The state board of health has received word that 15 new cases of smallpox have appeared in Clay county. Nine new cases are reported from Vanderburg county. According to reports to the health board the disease prevails in 14 counties of the state.

The Retail Grocers' National association laid on the table an appeal from Susan B. Anthony that it advocate woman suffrage in the new dependencies of this country.

Davis & Drake, one of the largest and best known wholesale liquor firms in Boston, have filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy. The liabilities are placed at $93,165; assets, $18,325.

DR. CODERRE'S RED PILLS

GIRLHOOD

Mothers, we call your attention to your daughters who are going to school. If they are weak, if they feel tired, if they have no ambition to study look out for them. It is only a matter of time until you have to take them out of school. Your own experience should teach you what we refer to. You should not leave your daughters to their own ignorance, for they will surely die on your hands or be invalids for years and a burden to you. But if you take proper care of them, they will come forth from girlhood to womanhood, healthy, strong and cheerful. Is it not your greatest ambition to have them so? At the first symptons make them take Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, and then you need fear nothing, as they will come out of that period as fresh and healthy as you wish to have them. This is true; before going any further, get the proof of what we tell you. We do not fear, for, just as sure as there is a sun, Dr. Coderre's Red Pills will do for your daughters what they have done for so many others. To prove the truth of our statements we give you the names and addresses of the following ladies to whom you can write:

Mrs. Isabel, West Main Street, Chickopee Falls, Mass., writes: "I had to take my daughter Lilly from school, she used to faint with the least fatigue. She was not developed for her age. She is now 15. My physician encouraged me to give her Dr. Coderre's Red Pills. She has not been sick since she took the first box. She is now strong and has a good appetite. She is regular and the symptoms have disappeared."

Miss May Jewel, Box 355, Sherbrooke, Que., writes: "I have not been well since I was 14 years of age. Sometimes I thought I would die. My periods sometimes would come twice a month. I only used Dr. Coderre's Red Pills once when I found that they were helping me. My heart ached terribly and I was very nervous. I could not dress without fainting. Everything I ate, gathered like a ball in my stomach. I had to have my hair cut on account of my headaches. I was pale and thin, and so weak that my limbs would tremble under me. It is Dr. Coderre's Red Pills alone that have cured me."

Miss Maude Slater, 107 Cedar Grove St., New Bedford, Mass.: "I have been sick in bed and I was so weak that I could not even rest my hands. The doctor though that I was in consumption. I coughed and had pains everywhere. It is surprising what good Dr. Coderre's Red Pills have done me. My appetite is good, I sleep well and feel rested in the morning. I can do all my work without getting tired."

Miss Rose Greenwood, 165 Orange St., Fall River, Mass., writes: "For three years I was a great sufferer from female weakness, was constipated and had back and side aches nearly all the time. I was awfully nervous. The doctors cost me lots of money, but they could not help me. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, together with the Purgative Tablets have cured me.

Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are not only good for young ladies; they are good for old ladies and married women as well. They are not intended for any bad purpose and married women can take them under any conditions. They cure all diseases peculiar to women. They are not a cure all. They are not to be compared with oldfashioned liquid remedies advertised to cure everything. This great specialty for woman's diseases should be given the preference in all cases. If you have been suffering for years, we wish you would write our doctor specialists, or go and see them at their offices. They will give you advice by mail or at the office, absolutely free. Their success in treating women's diseases is wonderful. It is well worth your while to consult them if you are sick. Send us your name on a postal card and we will mail you free, our doctor's book for Pale and Weak Women. Constipated women should not depend upon Dr. Coderre's Red Pills to cure that trouble, for the pills are not purgative. Women who suffer thus, should take Dr. Coderre's Purgative Tablets together with the Red Pills. These two remedies have a wonderful effect upon the system. The Tablets sell at 25c. a box and the Red Pills at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50. You should read carefully the directions around each box of pills and follow them strictly. Our pills are for sale by all first class druggists. Beware of imitations.

Took Five Men to Handle Him.

Windsor, Vt., Jan. 19.—Jack Kelley, who was tried at Montpelier for assault with intent to kill and was sentenced to serve 20 years in the state prison, was brought here yesterday. On his way here he attempted to jump through the car window and on his arrival at the station he refused to leave the car and fought desperately. He was finally overpowered by five men and taken to the prison.

May Have a Letter For McKinley.

Naples, Jan. 19.—Charles E. Macrum, former United States consul at Pretoria, who left Lourenzo Marquez on Dec. 18, bound for New York, landed here yesterday. It is reported that he bears a letter from President Kruger to President McKinley asking the latter to mediate between the Transvaal and Great Britain.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The area of high pressure over New England has disappeared off Nova Scotia, and a second high pressure area has remained nearly stationary in the middle plateau region. Generally fair weather may be expected in the New England states. Light southeasterly winds will prevail on the north Atlantic coast.

Ninety Machinists Are Out.

Ansonia, Conn., Jan. 19.—Ninety machinists employed by the Farrel Foundry and Machine company quit work yesterday, pending the settlement of a grievance growing out of the employment of helpers to do machinists' work. The machinists number 90, with about 40 helpers. Many of the latter remained at work.

Thieves Showed Great Nerve.

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Three safe robbers bound and gagged the watchman at the picture frame factory of E. R. Clark & Co., blew open the safe and at the point of his own revolver held up a police officer who intercepted them as the robbers were leaving the factory, finally escaping after a long running battle. Nearly 50 shots were fired, but no one was hit. The amount of money secured was small.

Preference Given to Foreign Product.

Charleson, Jan. 19.—The first important shipment of Egyptian cotton for a South Carolina cotton mill has been received at Clover from Alexandria, via Boston. The new cotton mill at Clover will use Egyptian cotton exclusively, its managers claiming that the Sea Island staple has not the "strength and silkiness" necessary for the "superior yarn they are to make."

Struck Schoodic Island.

Winter Harbor, Me., Jan. 19.—Schooner Nellie J. Crocker, Henderson, of Calais, from St. John with a cargo of piling, is ashore on Schoodic Island and is a total loss. Crew saved.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

Tears up the bond of nature and brings death,

Yesterday's session of the Friday club, with Miss Small, at the Woodward, was of quite exceptional interest. The subject was "The Music of Scotland — Border Minstrelsy — Pilrochs and Coronacchs—Ballads and Legends." The exercises were in charge of Miss Edith Randall. The programme was given an added interest by the musical numbers of Mrs. Hunting and Miss Emery, and by the dancing of the Highland fling by Miss Beatrice Walker, who was apropriately costumed. The music room in which the club gathered, was beautifully decorated with potted plants, ferns and photographs, the characteristic thistle effect being prominent particularly in the effective blackboard designs executed by Miss Lane.

REV. AMBROSE F. ROCHE.

WILL QUINCY GAIN?

Or Western Granite Profit at our Expense?

New Light on the Eight Hour $3 Day Movement,

An Early Agreement for the Benefit of the City.

The latest rumor in regard to the demand of the stone cutters for an eight-hour $3 day, is that the plan, to make that demand did not originate in the east, but rather in the west by quarry owners in that section, who are using New England as a catspaw to benefit themselves. It is a well known fact throughout Wisconsin, Missouri and Texas there are many granite quarries. Although these quarries are extensive, and yield a good granite, they are but little worked for the reason that there are but comparatively few stone cutters in that section.

Should a prolonged strike occur through New England it would furnish just the opportunity desired by these quarry owners, to develop their plants and get their granite upon the market. Once this is done there would be no lack of workmen in the west, for the stone cutters of the east especially those who have no family ties to keep them there, would continue in the west.

Ddeveloping of these quarries would prove a great injury to the granite industry in the east. It is a well known fact that fully seventy-five per cent. of the monuments cut in Quincy are shipped to the west. Within a short time freight rates have gone up enormously, and it can be readily seen that the working of these western plants would immediately make a large saving, in freight alone, and the manufacturers there could well afford to pay $3 for eight hours.

These matters should not be regarded lightly, for like the old saying, there is more truth than poetry in them, and the cutters of the east would do well to consider carefully the outcome before they enter upon a strike, which if prolonged can mean little else than disaster to Quincy as far as the granite industry is concerned.

Rev. Fr. Roche in his remarks at the reception in West Quincy Wednesday hit the nail on the head when he said, now is the time to get together and settle this labor trouble and not wait until the first of March.

Get together and meet each other like men and work for the interest of Quincy.

It was good sensible advice. For several months past the manufacturers have been employing all the men they could get and have been rushing off the orders they had on hand, so that by March 1, every order will be cleaned up. Now is the time that manufacturers usually book their orders for spring and summer work, but not an order has been taken in Quincy this year that can not be completed before the first of March, except with a proviso.

If the trouble is not adjusted before March 1 it means that many weeks must elapse before the manufacturers can get orders, which means at least several weeks idleness to the cutters and the city must suffer.

Runaway Boy.

Frank Cox, a 13-year old Wollaston boy, is at the City Hospital in a critical condition, due to exposure.

The boy was found Thursday night by officer Daveron in one of the numerous huts belonging to Wollaston's Jesse James gang of boys on the Whittier estate. The hut was fitted with electric wires, bells and other contrivances, and an old oil stove with which the boy was trying to keep warm.

Officer Daveron brought the boy to the police station, where the physician summoned discovered that the toe of one foot was frozen and had turned black, and both feet were so badly chilled that they had begun to blister The boy was taken to the City Hospital and his parents notified. It seems that the boy ran away from home last Monday, and since that time has been living in the hut where he has been supplied with food by his companions.

It is not the first time the boy has ran away from home, for according to the father's story it is the seventh time. He further says he can do but little with the boy as he seeks the association of the worst element of boys in Wollaston.

The boy himself says that the reason he ran away, was that his parents did not treat him well, and made him do housework. It will probably be some time before he will be able to walk.

Seven Oaks Abandoned.

The beautiful summer residence known as the Seven Oaks, off Quincy Avenue in East Braintree, occupied for many years by Mr. William Amory, is causing the trustees under the will of Jeanne Philomene Amory some trouble. They do not seem to know what to do with it, so they have petitioned the Supreme Judicial court to decide the matter.

Mrs. Amory left it in her will to her husband for his life time, and upon his death, to be held in trust for a temporary home for poor women and their children, under the control of the Sisters of St. Margaret, so long as they should choose to occupy it then it should go to the Massachusetts General Hospital, to be used for the above named or similar purposes.

Mr. William Amory having abandoned said estate the trustees have tendered the use of Seven Oaks to the Sisters of St. Margaret, and to other religious and charitable associations, but all such offers have been declined. They now pray for instructions of said court.

YUSSOUF.

A stranger came one night to Yussouf's tent,
Saying: "Behold one outcast and in dread,
Against whose life the bow of power is bent,
Who flies and hath not where to lay his head!
I come to thee for shelter and for food,
To Yussouf, called through all our tribes 'The Good.'"

"This tent is mine," said Yussouf, "but no more Than it is God's. Come in and be at peace.
Freely shalt thou partake of all my store
As I of his who buildeth over these
Our tents his glorious roof of night and day
And at whose door none ever yet heard 'Nay.'"

So Yussouf entertained his guest that night
And, waking him ere day, said: "Here is gold.
My swiftest horse is saddled for thy flight.
Depart before the prying day grow bold."
As one lamp lights another nor grows less,
So nobleness enkindleth nobleness.

That inward light the stranger's face made grand,
Which shines from all self conquest. Kneeling low,
He bowed his forehead upon Yussouf's hand,
Sobbing: "O sheik, I cannot leave thee so!
I will repay thee. All this thou hast done
Unto that Ibrahim who slew thy son!"

"Take thrice the gold," said Yussouf, "for with thee
Into the desert, never to return,
My one black thought shall ride away from me.
Firstborn, for whom by day and night I yearn,
Balanced and just are all of God's decrees.
Thou art avenged, my firstborn. Sleep in peace!"
—James Russell Lowell.

The First Impulse

An Eastern Story of Two Men Noted For the Good They Did.

BY JULES LA MAITRE.

Turiri was a wealthy citizen of Bagdad who was far and wide renowned for his many virtues. In assisting the poor with his money he was so generous that he had to deprive himself of the luxuries of life, and the patience with which he listened to the laments of the suffering and cheered them with kind words earned him the love and admiration of his fellow citizens.

He bore with resignation all the petty annoyances which accompany man through life in an almost unbroken chain. He was truly tolerant and never waxed angry when others did not share his opinions, a rare and difficult virtue indeed, for there is no human being who does not wish in his innermost heart that all other human beings might be his inferiors and yet in his likeness.

He was a faithful husband, and this in spite of his wife being of a quarrelsome nature. He bore with her ill temper and seemed not to mind at all that she was no longer young and beautiful. Finally his unselfishness was so great that, though himself the author of numerous poems and dramas, he rejoiced over the success of his rivals and proved his joy by giving them sincere words of encouragement and rendering them all kinds of services. In brief, all his life was made up of mercy, gentleness, loyalty, unselfishness, and he was considered a saint—a chivalrous saint.

In spite of all this he showed a lack of that calm serenity which usually illuminates the face of saintly persons. His features had the suffering expression of one who has fallen a prey of wild passions or secret sorrows, and frequently, in the very moment of doing some kind act, he would cast down his eyes. Was it to collect himself or to avoid looking into people's faces? No one could tell.

Now, there lived not far from Bagdad an ascetic by the name of Maitrega. He was a miracle worker, and the pious from all parts of the world flocked to him to be helped by his prayers. Having renounced the world and all its usages, Maitrega had dug a cave into the bank of the river and become a holy man, whose prayers were always heard at the throne of Ormuzd. With his bony, hair covered arms uplifted to heaven he stood before his cave as unwearied as a tree stretching its branches upward, so that the swallows, deceived by his immobility, took Maitrega for an old willow and built their nests on his shoulders. His face was tanned brown by the sun and was black with dirt, and his long beard and tangled hair blew about him like the wind beaten grass blades on the ramparts of an old castle ruin. And so he had lived for many years, for such had been his will.

One day he overheard a pilgrim saying:

"Turiri appears like an embodiment of Ormuzd. If he only had the power to do what he likes, misery would surely disappear from the earth."

Maitrega's form became more rigid. It was apparent that the ascetic had entered into communion with Ormuzd. A few moments passed in silence, then he said to the pilgrim:

"I cannot compel Ormuzd to grant to Turiri the power to do everything he wishes, for in that event he would be equal to God. Ormuzd has, however, granted that beginning from tomorrow at all occasions the first wish entertained by Turiri shall be immediately realized."

"Oh," replied the pilgrim, "this almost amounts to the same. Turiri's first wish at whatever occasion will be like all his other wishes, always generous and good. You have announced to me, reverend sir, the happiness of countless human beings. Accept my best thanks."

Had Maitrega's beard been less impenetrable the pilgrim might have noticed an ironical smile gliding over his petrified lips. A moment later, however, the ascetic was again absorbed in deep meditation.

And the pilgrim returned to the city and rejoiced in anticipation of the beneficent miracles through which Turiri's power undoubtedly would become manifest.

The next morning Turiri on awakening happened to throw a glance upon his wife, who was still slumbering at his side. All of a sudden his wife, as though driven by some mysterious power, rose, rushed to the window and precipitated herself into the yard, shattering her skull on the pavement.

Turiri left his house and soon saw himself importuned by a crowd of beggars. He did not utter a harsh word to them and was about to distribute alms in his habitual kind way when, lo! all the beggars dropped dead.

Continuing his walk, he met fair Mandenika, one of the most noted courtesans of Bagdad. Eager to gain the wise man's love, she told him the story of her life and tried to persuade him that she was unlike any other woman of her profession. Turiri was moved to pity and was about to express to her his sympathy when the woman all of a sudden fell lifeless at his feet.

Arriving in the city, he found that the street which he had to cross was blocked with numerous carriages. After waiting a few moments he began to lose patience, when all at once drivers and horses, as though hit by some mysterious blow, dropped dead to the ground.

He went to the theater and there fell quarreling with the scholar Carvilaka about some verses which the latter ascribed to Nisami, while Turiri claimed that they were composed by Saadi. Suddenly the scholar uttered a shriek and expired. The play which was performed had a great success and was much applauded by the audience. Hardly had Turiri made up his mind to join in the applause when the author of the play breathed his last.

Turiri returned home, terrified at what he had seen, and, thinking himself the cause of all these murders, he killed himself in despair by plunging a dagger into his heart.

During the same night died also Maitrega, the ascetic.

Both appeared simultaneously before Ormuzd.

The ascetic thought in his mind:

"How I shall rejoice to see this man judged according to his desert! This man whose hypocrisy was almost as much admired as my virtue as soon as he had power to do what he liked showed his true nature by committing countless crimes."

Ormuzd, however, turned smilingly to Turiri and said:

"Welcome, virtuous Turiri. You were truly a good man and my faithful servant. Enter now into my eternal peace."

"That's a good joke," said the ascetic, with a sneer.

"Never have I been more in earnest than at this moment," replied Ormuzd and, addressing again Turiri, spoke: "You wished the destruction of your wife because of her ungentleness and homeliness; the destruction of the beggars because of their annoyance and the repulsive sight they offered; the destruction of the courtesan because of her foolishness and insincerity; of the drivers and their horses for causing you an unnecessary delay; of the scholar Carvilaka for disagreeing with you; of the playwright for his being more successful than you. All these wishes were perfectly natural. The murders with which you were charged by Maitrega were, without your knowing it, the effect of your first wish, that wish which no one is able to command. It is quite natural to hate all that is disturbing and obstructing, and it is just as natural to desire the destruction of what we hate. Nature is egotistical, and the name of egotism is destruction. Thus sin and crime take root in the hearts of even the most virtuous, and if mortals had the power of realizing their first involuntary wishes the earth would fast become depopulated. This, Turiri, I purposed to show by your example. But I judge men after their second impulse only, that impulse which alone is in their power. Without the mysterious gift for which you did not ask and which made your last day so murderous you would have continued to lead a beneficent existence. It is, therefore, not your nature that I have to consider, but your will, which was good and ever ready to curb nature and to improve any imperfect work. And for this reason, my dear coworker, I open to you the gates of paradise."

"So far, so good," said Maitrega, "but what reward do you grant to me?"

"The same," replied Ormuzd, "although you only partly deserved it. You were a saint, but you were not a human being unless so through your pride. You succeeded in stifling the first impulse in your heart, but if all men would live like you mankind would be even faster exterminated than it could be through the fatal power granted to my faithful servant Turiri. Now, I want mankind to exist, as I find pleasure in its sight, which at times is very beautiful. Even your efforts, miserable ascetic, were not entirely devoid of beauty, and therefore I pardon you your foolish error. And thus I receive Turiri into my bosom, because I am just, and you, Maitrega, because I am merciful."

"But"— objected Maitrega.

"I have spoken."—Translated From the French For Cleveland Plain Dealer.

LATE STYLES FOR MEN.

New Wrinkles That Are Coming Into English Fashions.

SMALLER CRAVATS WILL BE WORN.

Evening Socks Are No Longer Plain. New Negligee Shirt For Spring Wear—Useful Garment For Cyclists. Latest London Overcoat—No Change In Collars.

Cravats will be smaller, thanks to the great popularity of the high banded turn down collar and the colored shirt. In all forms of tieable cravats the idea will be to get proportions that will admit of their entering harmoniously into the scheme made up by cravat and collar. One must hang to the other perfectly. The 1½ and 1⅞ inch four-in-hands and the new broad end ties will go well with the high bander, so will the small knot, flowing end, imperial and the once over. In all forms borders will be the favorite effects. In four-in-hands the borders are of moderate width, in ties they are quite neat, and in imperials they are huge. In all solid colored cravats the new shades appear. These will form no inconsiderable part of the season's sellings. Where units are used they are small and closely spaced, and in finer goods they are shadowed. In looking over the best lines you will find that in the finer grades neat effects predominate and in the lower priced grades bold effects are most popular. Stripes will be very good. They are shown in groups, in hair lines and in great broad bars.

The sale of white negligee shirts made of fine madras with white effects or of mat Oxford or linen has been very large. This shirt promises to be the feature of next spring's business. They are made with a linen neckband, neat single plait in front and cuffs attached. The cuffs are 3½ inches deep and have rounded tips. In fancy negligee, the up and down stripe has the field almost exclusively. There is nothing that seriously contests its great predominancy.

Evening socks are no longer plain; but, on the contrary, the proprietors of one of the smartest sundries houses in London are precisely the people who are showing the most violent patterns and colors. A pair of silk socks in a strong but most agreeable red, with a thin and infrequent white line, particularly adorns their show window, and a very blue pair in the same design also won my esteem, writes a correspondent of The Haberdasher. Elsewhere myrtle green, with tiny old gold flower-de-luce and gold clocks, and plain myrtle green with only white clocks were well liked by fashionable men. Even our day socks, which nobody sees, are breaking out into big patterns.

A very useful garment lately worn by some men in England who still adhere to cycling as a pastime and also by country doctors who find a wheel a genuine help in obeying emergency calls is a sort of compromise between riding breeches and gaiters. It is, in fact, a pair of trousers cut very snug to the legs below the knee and extended over the shoe, so as to form gaiters and to buckle under the sole by means of straps exactly like those on ordinary "spats." These things are much smarter looking than knickers and stockings—they are warmer, and they make it quite easy to wear underpants, which is hardly to be accomplished with knickers and stockings. Of course ordinary shoes can also be worn with them, while in stockings anything but a low shoe looks awkward. But, indeed, the few smart men who now ride a wheel are practically never seen in knickers. They use riding breeches and box cloth leggings, just as for horseback.

The particular coat which is coming into London styles is made of a fairly dark check material, with some green of a subdued kind in the mixture. There is a large overrunning pattern formed by lines of a darker brown than any of the mixture yarns or else of red. These lines run vertically and horizontally and form outline squares of three inches or so a side. They are not unduly conspicuous. The cloth, though soft, is rough in texture. The coat is very long, so as to protect the legs well. It reaches to within a foot of the ground and buttons well up at the front. It is single breasted and sleeveless, furnished with large patch pockets and covered by huge flaps. The cape is full and reaches to the wrist when allowed to hang over the straight arm—in other words, it falls to a line some inches below the hip. The pockets do not slant. The cape is fixed. It does not come off, and it is buttoned down by a tab on the middle of the back. There may or may not be cloth loops inside to put the arms through in rough, windy weather. This point will depend on the fancy of the wearer. The lining is of dark, plain cloth. The name of the whole garment, a "Macfarlane."

There has been but little change since last season in collars. The poke is the favorite for semidress, the lap front stander for evening dress and the high bander for informal dress. And the dress cravat is the broad end tie, just as it was a year ago, and the once over Ascot, or the Ascot tied in the regular form, is still the best for afternoon wear. For wear with the high bander the imperial or the narrow four-in-hand and the bat wing are good.

In all the minor points, or, rather, articles of dress, we stick very closely to the forms that prevailed last winter.

EVEN BALANCE MAINTAINED.

No Unfavorable Features In Industrial Lines. Undiminished Confidence In Trade World.

New York, Jan. 20.—Bradstreet's says: General trade and prices as a whole maintain the even balance which has been the leading feature for some time past. General demand is large for this season of the year, but speculation is quiet to the extreme of dullness in some lines, and especially in those branches of speculation which go to radically affect financial affairs, and therefore the volume of bank clearings. Hence that, comparing as we do with a period last year when stock speculation particularly was of immense volume, the aggregates for the country as a whole are considerably smaller. If, however, the clearings at the metropolis are excluded, it is found that a fair increase over last year's enormous totals is shown by the country at large.

Close examination of leading lines of industry fails to show marked unfavorable features. Retail trade in seasonable goods has been and is being affected by phenomenally mild winter weather, but wherever spring trade has developed it has been in such volume and accompanied with such a readiness of acceptance and of advanced prices as to point to undiminished confidence on the part of the trade world as to the outlook for spring business.

The iron and steel industry, justly regarded as a trustworthy index of general trade, is still actively employed on old orders, and new business is limited for reasons unnecessary to recapitulate.

Cereals are dull in nearly all directions and the pressure of enlarged stocks, particularly abroad, has been influential this week in bringing about a price reaction in wheat. Corn and oats, however, are rather firmer on foreign buying.

Apparently improved British prospects in South Africa are assigned as the reason for the better buying of cotton, resulting in a fractional advance this week. Good foreign buying at several southern points is also noted. Cotton goods are meeting with good demand on spring account, the strength of the raw product and low water in New England constituting supporting features.

Rather more inquiry is noted for wool, particularly at Boston, and men's wear sales for next fall are meeting with good patronage, notwithstanding the advances demanded. Fine wools are at about the highest point reached in 20 years.

The demand for winter footwear has unquestionably been affected by mild weather, but factories are reported well supplied with spring orders and leather and hides are very firm.

Bank clearings for the week show a decrease of 8.6 percent from last week and of 14 percent from this week a year ago, but a gain of 63 percent over 1897.

Business failures number 255 for the week, as compared with 295 last week, 262 in this week a year ago and 309 in 1898.

Mr. Sullivan of Boston put in two bills, one providing that nomination papers once filed with the election commissioners cannot be withdrawn; the other for placing regular nominations on the ballot first, alphabetically, the others to follow under the heading "independent nominations."

Other bills introduced were: Providing that Oct. 14, the day of the Dewey parade at Boston, shall be a legal holiday; that the present law for licensing junk dealers shall be mandatory instead of permissive; for retiring any employe of the commonwealth over 60 years old, who has served 25 consecutive years, at 75 percent of his salary at retirement, if he so desires; for an additional district police officer, to be assigned to the southeast district.

RENOVATE YOUR MATTRESS.

Long continued use of a hair mattress, is practically as perilous to one's health as if you were compelled to use the same water for several baths. With years of use a hair mattress grows flat, lifeless and becomes filled with oily and organic matter absorbed from the body. To make it absolutely sweet, clean, flexible and healthful it should be made over, hair picked, then scoured and ticking washed. Upholsterers with years of experience, ready to do this work for you just as it should be done. A postal or telephone calls the delivery wagon. Old mattresses made as good as new. Service prompt. PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

WHOLE FAMILY KILLED.

He Then Nearly Severed His Own Head With a Razor.

Savage Blows Had Been Rained Upon Victims With an Axe.

But Little Doubt That Unfortunate Man Had Long Been Insane.

Worcester, Mass., Jan. 20.—Martin Bergen, well known as the catcher of the Boston baseball team, killed his wife and two children and then himself at his home in North Brookfield yesterday. It is believed the crime was due to insanity. It has been suspected for some time that Bergen was a victim of mental derangement. His conduct in connection with his professional contracts and manager last season led to the supposition at that time.

The horrible discovery was first made by Michael Bergen, the father of Martin, who was staying at the house of a neighbor about half a mile from the scene of the murder. Mr. Bergen went to his son's house about 8 o'clock Friday morning, but finding the curtains drawn and no signs of life about the place went away without making an attempt to arouse the inmates, supposing the family to be asleep. About noon he returned to the house and finding everything in the same condition as when he left earlier in the day he tried the door, and, finding it unfastened, entered the house.

As he passed in a terrible sight greeted his eyes. Martin Bergen's body, and that of the little girl, Florence, 6½ years old, were lying on the kitchen floor, while in the adjoining bedroom were the bodies of Mrs. Bergen and her 3-year-old son, Joseph. Mrs. Bergen was lying on the bed with her feet hanging over the side, while her hands were raised as though in supplication, or trying to ward off a blow. The little boy was lying on the floor with his brains oozing from a large wound in the head. Mrs. Bergen's skull was terribly crushed, having evidently been struck more than one blow by the infuriated husband. The appearance of the little girl also showed that a number of savage blows had been rained upon the top and side of her head. Bergen's throat had been cut with a razor and the head was nearly severed from the body.

Mr. Bergen spread the alarm as quickly as possible, and Medical Examiner Norwood and the local authorities were soon on the ground. In the bedroom was found an ax, besmeared with blood, which was evidently the weapon with which the murders were committed. The ashes had been cleared out of the stove and paper placed in position for lighting, but the kindling had not been put in. The beds in the house bore evidence of having been slept in Thursday night as usual.

There were signs of warmth in the bodies of Mrs. Bergen and her husband when found, and all the circumstances seem to indicate that the murders had been committed but a short time before the elder Bergen paid his first visit to his son's house.

Medical Examiner Norwood, after a careful examination of the bodies, expressed his opinion that the murders were committed by Martin Bergen, and that the latter was, without doubt, insane. He thought Mrs. Bergen was the first victim, that the boy and then the girl next received their fatal blows, and that after he had slain all the rest of his family Bergen stood before the looking glass and with a razor nearly severed his head from his body, reeled around and fell lifeless to the floor.

A chair that stood near the spot where the little girl lay had a large piece broken from it and had the appearance of having been struck a heavy blow with an ax, probably a blow that had been intended for the unfortunate victim.

In view of all the facts ascertained by his examination, Medical Examiner Norwood stated that there would be no necessity for holding an autopsy.

Mrs. Bergen, the murdered woman, was 31 years of age, and as Miss Harriet Gaines of Pittsfield married Martin Bergen about seven years ago. She came to North Brookfield about eight years ago to work in the mill and boarded with Mrs. Rufus Ingraham. Mrs. Ingraham says Mrs. Bergen was a very nice woman. She said that while Martin was waiting upon her, she invited him to come to the house whenever he pleased, but he came there only once. They were married by Rev. Father Tulge in Worcester while the latter was there at his retreat at Holy Cross college.

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bergen boarded with her for some time. Bergen was fussy and continually finding fault, and this he continued to do after they began keeping house on the little farm called "Snowball farm," Mrs. Bergen had frequently called upon Mrs. Ingraham, and was at her house only about four weeks ago. At that time, when asked how matters were going at home, Mrs. Bergen replied "lovely," but Mrs. Ingraham says that she surmised at the time that everything was not as pleasant as Mrs. Bergen would have her believe.

Martin Bergen at times had been subject to fits of melancholy, and his actions had been the subject of comment among his friends and associates. This was noticeably the case last October, when he showed signs of insanity, and Father Tottier was called to see him.

Martin Bergen was born in North Brookfield Oct. 25, 1871. His professional career began with Wilkesbarre in the Eastern league in 1893, but later he joined Pittsburg in the National league.

GATHERING UP FAG ENDS.

Doctor Admits That Barnet Received Package of Powder Through the Mails.

New York, Jan. 20.—The prosecution did not rest its side yesterday in the Molineux trial, one reason for the delay being the desire of the state to have Handwriting Expert Hagan of Troy make a chemical analysis of the ink used in exhibit F, consisting of a letter signed "H. C. Barnet," in response to which a western medical firm sent a book to "Barnet" at Heckman's letter box.

Heckman had testified that Molineux hired a letter box from him in Barnet's name, and that after doing so he made some corrections with a pen to a letter which he had in his hand. The prosecution is of the opinion that if it can show that two different kinds of ink were used in writing this letter, it will have strong evidence that Heckman was telling the truth in this matter.

This line of procedure was suggested as a result of a clever examination of the witness by Foreman Martin of the jury concerning the different appearance of writing when a blotter is used and when the ink is allowed to dry naturally. Mr. Osborne also requested the witness to make tests of the ink on the poison package and the other disputed and admitted handwritings.

Dr. Douglass, being recalled to the stand, some rather stormy passages at arms occurred between Mr. Osborne and the medical man, though Dr. Douglass appeared as a witness for the people. Dr. Douglass persistently insisted that his patient, H. C. Barnet, had died from cardiac failure, due to poisoning caused by germs on the left tonsil, these germs being the streptococci and not from cyanide of mercury poisoning. However, Mr. Osborne scored a point during the examination, though it was only by stating to the court that he desired to attack the credibility of his own witness that he was allowed to ask the desired question. In response to inquiries from Mr. Osborne, Dr. Douglass finally said: "Mr. Barnet told me that he had received a package of powder through the mails."

"And that he didn't know where it came from?" continued the assistant district attorney.

This latter question was not allowed, but Mr. Osborne, after trying for a month, had succeeded in showing that the powder had been sent through the mail to Barnet.

The last witness of the day was Dr. Andrew H. Smith, who, in answer to long hypothetical questions, said that in the Barnet case, if the symptoms were all continuous, death would have resulted from mercurial poisoning, while if the symptoms were not continuous and if the throat exudations were not of a certain character, then he would not be justified in saying that death ensued as a result of cyanide of mercury poisoning. At this point the court adjourned until Monday.

A Clergyman's Misdoings.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Rev. Charles E. Preston, who disappeared from his home in Taunton, Mass., on Nov. 6 last, was placed under arrest here last night by a detective who had been shadowing him for several weeks. Preston had been living with a young woman, Ella Niessaf, who was one of his congregation in Taunton. She met him in Albany after telling her parents that she had obtained employment in Johnstown, N. Y. Mrs. Preston was at police headquarters when her husband was brought before Superintendent Willard. Preston agreed to return home with a Taunton detective and the young woman was allowed to shift for herself.

An Early Protest.

London, Jan. 20.—The Daily Chronicle says editorially today: According to advices we have received from Washington congress will not only pass the Nicaraguan canal bill, but will pass it in a form directly at variance with the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. This is a statement of decidedly serious importance, and we hesitate to believe that the United States government will commit itself to a course which this country would have to regard as unfriendly.

Maria's Cargo Landed.

Washington, Jan. 20. — The small doubt that remained as to the state of the cargo of the ship Maria, which was seized by British warships of Delagoa Bay, was dissipated yesterday by the receipt of word that the goods had been landed at Lourenzo Marquez and were in the hands of the owners' agents. Nothing further has been heard as to the status of the cargo of the other two ships, Beatrice and Mashona.

Workmen's Awful Fall.

New York, Jan. 20.—The falling away of the bracings, pulleys and works of a freight elevator from the roof of an eight-story building in the course of construction on Fourth avenue, dashed four workmen from the top floor to the cellar, injuring all of them severely, perhaps fatally. All sustained internal injuries and severe contusions, three had fractured bones and all were unconscious when picked up.

HALE'S DISCLAIMER.

Maine Senator Denies That Americans Sympathize With Great Britain.

War Declared to Be a Fell Blow at Human Liberty.

House Passes the Pension Appropriation Bill, With an Important Rider.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Senator Allen's resolution, asking for information as to a Transvaal representative, came up in the senate yesterday, and a speech international in its importance, was delivered by Mr. Hale of Maine. The occasion of the utterance was the simple question whether Mr. Allen's resolution, calling for information as to the recognition by this country of diplomatic representation of the Transvaal republic should be directed to the president or to the secretary of state.

SENATOR HALE.

Mr. Hale made the question the text of an impassioned speech, in which he declared that nine-tenths of the American people sympathized with the Boers in their gallant struggle for liberty against one of the greatest powers in the world. He declared that "the war which England is waging is the most fell blow at human liberty that has been struck in the century." He denied that the American people were "in sympathy with Great Britain in the South African war to stamp out the liberty of a people," and when Mr. Balfour in the house of commons made such a statement "he should be met with some disclaimer from this side of the Atlantic." He declared that the English people themselves were not in favor of the war which "had been brought on by a sharp cabinet minister engaged with gold speculators."

Mr. Hale spoke with unusual force, decisiveness and earnestness, even for him, and his passionate eloquence claimed the closest attention of every auditor.

Mr. Spooner declared that the senate had no right to demand information, and that the president was absolutely judge whether it was proper to impart such knowledge. "Diplomacy," said he, "to be successful must be secret."

Several other senators spoke on the resolution, among them Mr. Chandler, who made an impassioned speech, in which he expressed regret that England was trying to crush a republic which was endeavoring to establish itself in South Africa.

The measure was finally amended so as to read, "if not incompatible with public interests," and passed.

Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.) addressed the senate briefly on the financial bill.

Senator Wellington introduced a bill in the senate exempting veterans of the war with Spain from the age disqualification for appointment to offices in the army.

The pension appropriation bill, carrying $145,245,250, was passed by the house. It was made the vehicle of an attack upon the commissioner of pensions by Mr. Curtis (Rep., Kan.), who was seconded by Mr. Lentz and Mr. Norton of Ohio and Mr. Robinson of Indiana, and other northern Democrats. All inveighed against the lack of liberality in the administration of the pension laws.

The commissioner was ably defended by a score of members from both sides of the house. Mr. Mahon (Rep., Pa.) charged that the assault upon him had been instigated by the "pension sharks" of this city, who were robbing the old soldiers.

As a result of the latter's disclosures a rider was put upon the bill by unanimous consent, empowering the commissioner, in his discretion, to withold the fees of attorneys of record in pension cases where he was satisfied that the attorneys had not prepared the cases under their personal supervision.

Representative Payne of New York, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, introduced in the house a bill to extend the customs and internal revenue laws of the United States over the island of Puerto Rico.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

JAMES F. HARLOW, City Clerk.

Good Afternoon.

There are 28 towns in Norfolk county and the latest report of the State Board of Education says the following 12 expend more per pupil for education than Quincy, where the cost is $20 26; Westwood, $46.41; Milton, $39 00; Brookline, $33.75; Wellesley, $32.10; Cohasset, $30 03; Canton, $27 31; Dedham, $24.22; Hyde Park, $22.96; Dover, $22 58; Franklin, $21.72; Walpole, $21.70; Foxboro, $20.34.

The city of Haverhill seems to find it impossible to raise money enough under the $12.00 limit for the current expenses this year, even with receipts of $50,000 for liquor licenses. The heads of departments wanted a total of $433,700 this year, but this was $128,000 more than could be raised by taxation. After utilizing receipts to the amount of $50,000 and reducing the appropriations $28,000 it was found necessary to resort to a loan of $50,000 for current expenses. Is it the law, or the city government, or the people who are responsible for such an unhealthy condition.

Drift of Opinion.

☞The timerous advertiser who hesitates about executing a 40 or 50-dollar contract for publicity, for fear it will not pay, should refer to the fact that during 1898 one department store alone in Chicago paid $79,000 to one paper, $65,000 to another and divided $110,000 among the others. Advertising pays.—Brockton Times.

☞The Dining Club is a vain effort to secure Culture py going cross-lots. The old time Lyceum, open to all who would pay the modest sum required, was a boon and a blessing. But the modern Dining Club, with its absence of the best women and its sparsity of intellectual men, built on the false hypothesis that it is in Syzygies to the Mitre Tavern and Will's Coffee House, is a barren jactaney and pride-inflated antic of America's bourgeoisie.—The Philistine.

☞In reference to the offensive cartoons of Queen Victoria printed in German newspapers, Emperor William is said to have suggested that she make a collection of them, and he would in turn make a collection of the cartoons in English newspapers in which he has figured. An exchange of collections would propably show William on about even terms with his grandmother.—Utica Press.

☞The new mayor of Boston calculates that about one-half of the employes in the water department, a thousand in all, must go, and a beginning has been made in lopping off the heads of men who have drawn salaries for doing little or no work. What is more to the mayor's credit is that he is not filling the vacancies with henchmen from his own party. Mayor Hart appears to be more of a business man than a politician.—Providence Journal.

1899 A GOOD YEAR.

Manufacturs Now Rushing Work Through.

Eight Hours Will Greatly Benefit the Cutters.

Mr. A. Souter of this city writes an interesting column letter to the Granite Cutters' Journal for January, which is reproduced in full:

"I am glad to be able to report that I have not seen so few unemployed in Quincy at this period for a number of years. The prospects were never better for steady employment between now and March 1, provided the quarries get out the stock fast enough. "The want of stock" has been a Quincy excuse for a number of years. the phrase being often used instead of saying "no," when some of our members were in search of employment.

Those tactics are not general, but I know of instnces where it has been repeatedly done, as if one's position was not humble enough when he begs a brother of the earth for leave to toil, it is necessary to insult him. There is often a real scarcity of stock. The quarries in Quincy are hard to work, those which contain the best dark stock being the worst, so that Quincy is at a great disadvantage in getting out heavy work unles there is no time limit on delivery. There are few of the modern improvements put in practice in either the quarries or stone sheds.

"There is no doubt our employers are to try and get as much of their spring work done as possible between now and March 1. We can have no fault to find with that; it is a move which will greatly benefit us. I hope there will not be an hour lost. Steady employment will be very beneficial to us, as we will be in a better condition to take a vacation. The secretaries of several branches have written to me asking what Quincy was going to do. I have anwered those inquiries by mail; but as we were misrepresented in the Boston press as having made a demand of 45 per cent. increase, I would state for the benefit of all our members that the increase demanded on the bill of prices is 25 per cent.

Quincy will also put her best foot first and do the best possible by section 198 of our constitution.

"The year just closed here has been the best the granite cutter has seen for some time. I hope at the end of the year 1900 our condition will be much improved. The eight-hour day will be a great benefit, as it will give more time for self culture. But as a mean of giving more men employment, one may be excused for having a doubt. So far experience has been to the contrary, except in the case of railroad employes, etc.; and where the cost of production has been increased the use of machinery has been brought into play to reduce the cost. High wages and shorter hours have been the cause of machinery, instead of machinery being the cause of high wages and shorter hours.

"I do not lose sight of the fact that the results are a benefit to the mass of the people. The question is not how much we earn, but how much will our earnings buy of the necessities of life. That is not the argument used by our shameless politicians on the stump, nevertheless it is good economics. Trusts are formed to enable the capitailst class to raise the price to the consumer and make him pay dividends on fictitious stock.

"Any man can be a tyrant who can monopolize or control the supply of any necessity of life. Having destroyed competition he can regulate prices to suit himself. Some of the railroad monopolies have got the fleecing of the public down to a science; they take all the product will bear, leaving the producer just enough of a margin to encourage him to keep on producing. Thus they can levy taxes as successfully by economic science as any military despot ever did by force of arms.

"If it be true that the present form of Government is individualism, or based on the freedom of individual, our members of Congress have little to do beyond seeing that each and every individual receives justice. Then every private enterprise would depend on the need for it, and not upon Government aid in the shape of protective tariffs and subsidies. Millions of acres of land have been given to the railroads. That is not indiviualism, but pernicious parentalism. The greed of corporations and the subserviency to them of legislators, has much to do with the rapid increase of Socialism."

Wire Thieves.

Friday afternoon Mr. Hill of Houghs Neck, while on his way to Quincy, saw two Italians acting in a suspicious manner, and upon his arrival at Quincy notified the police. Officer Barry went down and brought the two men and their team to Quincy. On the team was about thirty pounds of copper wire, such as used by the street railway in connecting the rail, and known as the return wire. The men claimed they found the wire near the tracks, but Supt. Weeks and Supt. of Construction McLane testified that the breaks in the wire were new and all the loose wire along the tracks had been taken up several weeks ago. The court said such kind of work must be stopped and imposed a fine of $15 each upon the two Italians.

Boys Suspected.

Edward Bourke, Robert Kerrigan and Frank Wales, the three boys suspected of being the cause of some of the recent fires and the ringing of the false alarms of fire in Quincy of late, were taken before Fire Marshal Whitman this morning for examination.

A horse attached to one of Wilson's delivery wagons, started from the Quincy depot this noon leaving his driver behind. The animal came through City Square with the reins dangling about his feet and was evidently headed for his stable. He was stopped in front of the Ledger office by D. E. Wadsworth. No damage was done.

The widow of Harry Ginsburg, the Hebrew, who was drowned several weeks ago in Hull gut, received a postal card this week purporting to be signed by her husband, which stated that he was alive and at the City Hospital, Boston, wrapped up in feathers. Friday afternoon she visited the hospital but could find no trace of the sender of the card.

State Board of Education Secretary Make Several

What Masshchusetts E cational Policy Ought to Prosperity of State Vitally lated to the Schools.

The State Board of Education their secretary make these rec mendations in their annual report:

Recommendations by the Boar Most of the recommedations made recent reports of the Board have ceived favorable consideration from Legislature. Among those that still pending are the following:—

1. The extension to the en State of the policy of employing skil superintendents of schools.

2. The appointment of one or m State attendance officers to promote execution of the compulsory atte ance law.

3. A more liberal and effect provision for the execution of the providing for the State examinati and certification of teachers.

4. A certain equalization of scho privileges.

The Board as'ks for $3,000 for Sta institutes, and reommends the repeal the the restriction that limits the e penditure for a single State institute $530. It does not need half tha amount for the usual one-day institute it needs double that amount for a lon summer institute.

The Board recommends also a assistant for the secretary.

The Board recommends also an assistant for the secretary.

Recommendations by the Secretary. All of the special recommendations made by the secretary a year ago, relating to the extension of summer institute work, the holding of a State exhibit of drawing in the public schools, the furnishing of census books and directions to all the towns and cities for the new school census required by law the equipment of the schools with improved registers, and the final disposition of the Massachusetts educational exhibit at the Columbian Exposition, were adopted by the Legislature, and the work in connection therewith has been completed.

The secretary renews his statement of a year ago, that for sixty-three years the secretaries of the Board have shown consistency and unity in their conceptions of what the Massachusetts educational policy ought to be. This concord exists, not because of any set purpose on the part of each secretary not to break with his predecessors, but because it is a necessary result of grasping the aims, the needs and the spirit of the Massachusetts school idea. If six secretaries in succession formulate these aims, diagnose these needs, interpret this spirit correctly, they cannot fail to agree in the larger features of an edutional policy. The ideals of this policy are substantially the following:

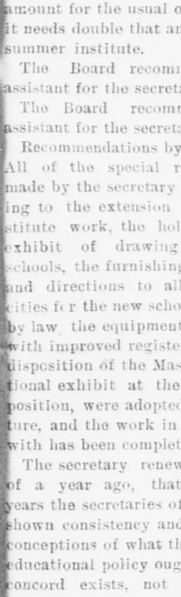

1. Education is more than an individual, family or school district interest, it concerns the town and the State.

2. The schools do not exist to furnish places for the relatives and friends of the appointing power or for the residents of a locality, they exist for the welfare of the children and the community.

3. The supreme need of any school is that of the thoroughly competent and wise teacher.

4. No pains should be spared by the State to train teachers for their responsible work.

5. School buildings should be the

RECOMMENDATIONS.

State Board of Education and Secretary Make Several.

What Masshchusetts Educational Policy Ought to Be.

Prosperity of State Vitally Related to the Schools.

The State Board of Education and their secretary make these recommendations in their annual report:

Recommendations by the Board—Most of the recommedations made in recent reports of the Board have received favorable consideration from the Legislature. Among those that are still pending are the following:—

1. The extension to the entire state of the policy of employing skilled superintendents of schools.

2. The appointment of one or more state attendance officers to promote the execution of the compulsory attendance law.

3. A more liberal and effective provision for the execution of the law providing for the State examination and certification of teachers.

4. A certain equalization of school privileges.

The Board asks for $3,000 for State institutes, and reommends the repeal of the the restriction that limits the expenditure for a single State institute to $500. It does not need half that amount for the usual one-day institute; it needs double that amount for a long summer institute.

The Board recommends also an assistant for the secretary.

The Board recommends also an assistant for the secretary.

Recommendations by the Secretary. All of the special recommendations made by the secretary a year ago, relating to the extension of summer institute work, the holding of a State exhibit of drawing in the public schools, the furnishing of census books and directions to all the towns and cities for the new school census required by law the equipment of the schools with improved registers, and the final disposition of the Massachusetts educational exhibit at the Columbian Exposition, were adopted by the Legislature, and the work in connection therewith has been completed.

The secretary renews his statement of a year ago, that for sixty-three years the secretaries of the Board have shown consistency and unity in their conceptions of what the Massachusetts educational policy ought to be. This accord exists, not because of any set purpose on the part of each secretary not to break with his predecessors, but because it is a necessary result of grasping the aims, the needs and the spirit of the Massachusetts school idea. If six secretaries in succession formulate these aims, diagnose these needs, interpret this spirit correctly, they cannot fail to agree in the larger features of an educational policy. The ideals of this policy are substantially the following:

1. Education is more than an individual, family or school district interest, it concerns the town and the state.

2. The schools do not exist to furnish places for the relatives and friends of the appointing power or for the residents of a locality, they exist for the welfare of the children and the community.

3. The supreme need of any school is that of the thoroughly competent and wise teacher.

4. No pains should be spared by the state to train teachers for their responsible work.

5. School buildings should be the highest expression of sanitary and educational wisdom, as well as of civic pride.

6. The avenues of ascent through the schools even to the college doors should be open and free to the poorest child. Secondary as well as elementary education should therefore be fostered.

7. The prosperity of the State, materially, politically, morally is vitally related to the prosperity of the schools.

8. It is the right of children to have their childhood reserved for its natural employments, play, recreation, schooling and such lighter forms of work as children can do without loss of childhood's privileges. Trusting them permaturely into factory life or any life akin to that is an abuse of children, and an injury to the State not to be toraed.

9. Habitual absenteetism or truancy works harm both to he child and to the State, and should be stopped.

10. The smallest and poorest towns should have good schooling, as well as the largest and wealthiest.

11. The State should insist in its laws on such schooling.

12. The main depende of the schools for support should be local taxation.

13. Where local taxation goes as far as it ought, and yet fails to provide money enough to insure good schools, the State should aid in securing the needed efficiency.

14. By as much as human minds and souls transcend in value the products of human hands, by so much does the need of the schools for competent supervision transcend the need of the factory. No sane corporation would let its workshop drift, and no sane community should let its schools drift, without a directing and unifing head.

The list might be extended. Mann, Sears, Boutwell, White and Dickinson have never wavered in presenting these ideals to the people. There is not one of them which has not been realized in a measured in the school history of the State; not one of them which has not, in a measure, been sinned against; and not one of them, therefore, which the people can afford to drop from earnest thought.

BRAINTREE'S NEW SCHOOLHOUSE.

Of Pretty Design and with all the Latest Conveniences and Necessities.

THE PENNIMAN SCHOOL.

In the spring of 1897 the School Committee received a petition from Eben Prescott and others of the Middle street section of the town for better school facilities for the children of that section. The School Committee in its annual report of Jan. 1, 1898, recommended that a committee be appointed to consider the schoolhouse needs of this section. The committee consisted of George H. Arnold, James T. Stevens, Dr. T. H. Dearing, Aubrey Hillard, John Kelley, E. F. Dyer, and T. A. Watson. These were appointed a committee for this purpose.

This committee after careful consideration reported to the town at its last annual meeting that a four room brick schoolhouse be erected in the vicinity of the junction of Middle and River streets at a cost not to exceed $15,000. They further recommended that the design of the building be such as to favor an economical extension to an eight room building and that the committee be appointed to select a building lot, procure plans and a reliable estimate of its cost.

The town accepted the recommendations of the committee and appointed a committee consisting of George H. Arnold, George H. Holbrook, Willie H. Shaw, Thomas A. Watson, Caleb Thompson, H. W. Borden, I. W. Horne.

At a special town meeting called for the purpose, the town voted to accept the lot at the corner of Cleveland and Harrison avenues. This lot having been offered as a gift to the building committee by N. E. Hollis. The town further voted to appropriate $15,000 for the erection of the schoolhouse.

The above cut gives a good appearance of the building. It is essentially a three story building consisting of a high and light basement, and first and second stories for class and recitation rooms, facilities for a commodious and attractive assembly hall on the third floor.

The basement will contain two large play rooms, a large furnace room, closet rooms and janitor's private work-room, and three furnaces sufficiently large to warm all the rooms on the three upper floors of the building. The pupils' closets in the basement will be equipped with individual waterclosets, the location of the schoolhouse making this arrangement possible.

Each of the first and second floors will contain two large class rooms, a spacious corridor and a recitation room, and in addition there are teachers' toilet rooms on the second floor.

The building will be finished in hard pine.

The windows of the regular class rooms will be double. This with the brick walls will make the building much warmer than the ordinary schoolhouse.

The assembly hall will not be finished at present.

Newspapers and Magazines.

Enterprise and Brockton are synonymous, and it is a pleasure to read in the special "Progress Number" of the Brockton Enterprise of Jan. 16 (sixteen pages, of the achievements of the Shoe city. The home pride is its characteristic feature. Its citizens are proud of their city, they work for Brockton, talk for Brockton, and Brockton gets there. It has the improvements and pays for them manfully. Outsiders wonder how Brockton people stand such high tax rates, but they seldom hear complaint. The tax payers probably feel that they receive something for their money. The special edition shows remarkable progress in population and valuation, the latest estimate being 40,000 people and a valuation of $27,327,746. For public buildings, the city has a grand city hall, a court house, a government building, public library, etc., and will erect this year a Y. M. C. A. building. It has 6,647 pupils in its public schools, taught by 166 teachers. There are 29 church edifices and other religious societies. Electric car lines run in every direction about the city and to surrounding towns. But the city is famous for the Brockton shoe, and it is the manufacture of this necessity of life, which is a good article, that is the life of Brockton. There were shipped last year 529,303 cases. The city is well written up and illustrated in the Enterprise.

The midwinter number of the Los Angeles Times of 84 pages makes one anxious to visit the wonderful country of Southern California. That many are attracted to Los Angeles as shown by the fact that the population has increased from 11,000 in 1880 to 120,000 at present. The assessed valuation of the city is $65,812,674, and the Times says it is a throughly modern American city, with churches, schools, libraries, clubs and beautiful houses. It is also a commercial metropolis. Newspapers are published in English, French, German, Basque and Chinese languages. The resources include gold, oil fields, tropical fruits, etc. The extent of fruit growing is something wonderful and is well illustrated and described in the Times.

Our Little Ones and The Nursery are now combined and young readers find in this illustrated monthly stories which are helpful and of interest. "Sir Bobbie" is the leader in the January number, another tells of "Two dogs that went to school," a third of "A little hero," and there are many more.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

WOMAN WHO HAS TRAINED THE BEST MUSICAL ARTISTS OF THE DAY.

Women In Legislature—Training the Eyebrows—Simple Amusements For Children—How to Utilize Cold Meat. New Field For Women.

There is often a great deal in a name. It carries with it countless associations, and many belonging to the world of musical art, on hearing of the fiftieth musical anniversary of Mme. Mathilde Marchesi, will recall to memory days of hard study followed by success, of which a large part is due to Mme. la Marquise de la Rajata de Castrone, nee Mathilde Graumann, known in the United States and Europe as Mme. Mathilde Marchesi, who has just celebrated her fiftieth anniversary. To be credited with the proud honor of having prepared for the stage the best artists of the day is no slight matter, yet this we may confidently assert is due to Mme. Mathilde Marchesi. Born at Frankfort, she studied at an early age with Otto Nicolai of "Merry Wives of Windsor" fame. Later, acting on the advice of Mendelssohn and contrary to the wishes of her family circle, the Denzels, Baron Haussmann and D'Ertmans, the promising young lady decided to take up the stage as a profession, a hardy step in those days when the "boards" were not recognized in society. We next find her in Paris, studying under Manuel Garcia and Samson. Mme. Mathilde soon rose to be the idol of the concert room, both in Paris and in London.

MME. MATHILDE MARCHESI.

Not a few retain fresh in their memory her brilliant successes both in London and the provinces. Matrimony followed in 1852, her husband, the Marquis Salvator de la Rajata de Castrone, a political refugee who had taken up the name of Marchesi, being no mean artist, occupying for some years the professorship for singing at the Vienna Conservatoire. Mme. Mathilde was herself offered a similar post at the Paris Conservatoire, but its then director, Auber, could not agree with the talented cantatrice, who then opened the world famed Marchesi class, from which issued Salla, Gerster, Proska-Schuch, Papier, Tremelli, Nevada, Koppmeyer, Staudig, Boulichoff, D'Angeri, Stahl, Melba, Eames, Calve, Sanderson, Saville, Horwitz, Adams and, last, but not least, her daughter, Blanche Marchesi. Mme. Mathilde Marchesi is too well known as a composer for it to be necessary to dwell upon that chapter. Suffice it to add that, a member of most of the musical academies of Europe, her greatest joy is always to find herself surrounded by her numerous friends.

Women In Legislature.

There are three women in the house of representatives of Colorado. Mrs. Frances S. Lee, who is the youngest of the three woman representatives, was born in Chicago less than 30 years ago. When 11 years old, she went to Colorado with her parents, who settled in Denver. She was graduated from the West Denver High school and taught for a short time before her marriage to Frank W. Lee, a leader in the Colorado State Federation of Labor. Mrs. Lee is the mother of five children. The youngest was 3 years old when the campaign of 1898 began. Although her home duties had kept her busy for a number of years, she had been a conscientious student. Through her husband's affiliations she had acquired a wide knowledge of labor conditions. She joined the Colorado Woman's Democratic club because she felt it to be her duty to do her part as a citizen. She soon gained the friendship of the members, who put her forward as their candidate for the legislature. Mrs. Lee was slow to accept the honor, for she had been too much occupied to cultivate the art of public speaking, and she hesitated to assume duties so at variance with her quiet habits. The club had chosen its candidate, and the members would not hear of her refusal to run for office. When Mrs. Lee pleaded that she could not neglect the children, there were members who offered to stay with the baby if necessary. Mrs. Lee was reminded that where there is a will there is always a way. Her name was presented to the Democratic convention, and she was nominated without opposition.

The campaign showed that the woman who could manage a house successfully and who could care for a family of children had the qualities of a leader. When the time came for her to take up her public duties, it was evident that the retiring home woman could be trusted to do her part in the legislature.

Mrs. Lee introduced five bills touching educational questions. None was passed, although each was the subject of earnest debate. With the other woman legislators Mrs. Lee did much toward the pushing of the reform measures that became laws.

She was the first woman ever called to the chair of the house during a session of a committee of the whole. The other woman members had often presided during the regular discussions, but when Mrs. Lee was asked to take the gavel during the consideration of an important question there was a momentary sensation. The honorable member from Arapahoe blushed and showed some hesitation. Then she ascended the steps leading to the speaker's stand and took the big chair as if it were her habit.—Ainslee's Magazine.

Training the Eyebrows.

One of the new French fads which has become a rage this fall with American women is the training of the eyebrows into perfect arches, under which curves the eyes are supposed to gain additional beauty and luster. The training is done by means of a tiny razor and is the occupation of only a moment. A certain expression, which it is difficult to define in words, is added to the face by this process.

There are any number of French words which will describe the charm, if it be a charm, but our barren English refuses to answer. Once trained, the eyebrows must not be allowed to again resume their own shape. For very bushy, ugly brows or those that meet over the nose the shaving operation is of course desirable, but conservative women will hesitate to cultivate the new fad.

Another fashion which is more charming by far is that of perfuming the hair. This is also direct from Paris, where folks have not cultivated the absolutely stupid prejudice that exists among many Americans against a touch of dainty odor in the toilet. While every one possessing good taste must abhor overperfuming as a gross vulgarity it is ridiculous to assert that a drifting suspicion of violet, of orris or of sandalwood is not an addition to the personality of a dainty woman.

When one reflects upon our democratic modes of travel in street cars and stages and the close proximity in which we are brought with unscented and often unbathed humanity, with scents of garlic, of drugs and of the various odors of trade, it must be admitted that, looked upon only as a method of self defense, a touch of sachet is desirable.

The perfuming of the hair is done with the greatest care and delicacy to avoid any heaviness of scent in the tresses. It is accomplished by means of a perfumed powder, which comes from Paris in all the hair colorings, including the newest reddish shades. It is a rarely delicate odor, the hair sachet, and is brushed into the hair when it is dressed. All the New York society women are perfuming their hair at present.

A few years ago when Mrs. Cora Potter's fad for washing her hair in violet water became known it was regarded as an extreme freak, theatrical and in bad taste. Now it is the thing, because it comes to us from Paris.—New York Herald.

Simple Amusements For Children.

Having a 6-year-old girl, an only child, on a New Hampshire farm, during the long "blizzardy" winter, we have used our wits to provide home-made games which would teach as well as amuse, and I have thought that my experience might prove of use to some other mother. Toothpicks costing 5 cents for a box containing 1,000 were used to make letters, stars, houses with yards, and fields and many other forms. An apple with four legs, horns and tail of toothpicks was a cow. Another stuck full of them was a porcubine. Tiny splinters of wood or pieces cut from little twigs of bushes would do as well.

Dominos are good to teach addition and can be made of pasteboard. Inch squares are cut from pasteboard boxes and on them are pasted, with starch or flour paste, letters from advertisements in newspapers and figures from old calendars. Sets of letters and figures have been made for smaller children, and some have been reserved for next Christmas, teaching our girl to be thoughtful for others.

A cup of beans has helped in studying arithmetic. A slate and pencil or tablets of paper with pencil and rubber are cheap and can be made instructive. The paper used for wrapping around butter bought at a grocer's for a few cents makes nice tracing paper. A package of soft tissue toilet paper was used to cut doll patterns which looked almost like "really ones" when pinned on Miss Dolly. A paper of cheap pins and some pieces of print aid in doll dressmaking. Round pieces of cardboard of different sizes, marked with the value of each coin, serve as money, teaching the little one to make change. Blowing soap bubbles with a clay pipe and a dish of warm water is always enjoyed for a change.

Of course the little girl must learn to sew, but don't give too big a task. A doll's quilt or a holder will be more readily undertaken, because it can be quickly done. Sewing over edge is most easily learned. A new thimble makes the work more attractive. Braiding bright colored old print in three strands was easily learned, and even the sewing into a small rug was accomplished with a little help from mamma.—Lizzie Linwood in Housekeeper.

How to Utilize Cold Meat.

Cold meat is usually objected to as unappetizing, and as it is frequently reheated matters are not improved. To cook cold meat daintily is an art only known, as a rule, to an experienced housekeeper.

When beef, mutton, veal, chicken, etc., are no longer to be served in their original form, all gristle, skin and fat that will not be eaten should be removed. The method of reheating or cooking now depends upon the condition of the meat. Stewing, which requires long, slow cooking, is entirely unsuited for meat already well done, while frying, a quick method, is equally unsuitable for too rare meat.

For stews the largest and best parts of the meat should be used, while from the smaller pieces pates and hashes may be prepared, the remaining portions serving, with the addition of the bones, some vegetables, herbs and seasoning, to increase the stock pot.

To insure a well made stew out of cooked meat plenty of time must be given to the process. It is a mistake to suppose a good stew can be made by simply reheating cold meat in left over gravy. Long, gentle simmering is more necessary for cooked meat than for fresh, for having lost a great deal of its juice in the first cooking it must absorb flavor from the well flavored stock which all stews should have for a foundation. In all cases special care should be exercised to use seasoning and flavorings suitable to the meat used. Having lost much of its coloring substance during its first cooking, this also must be supplied in "made dishes." For this purpose caramel is generally used. Where onion is admitted as a flavoring browning it first will greatly help to give color to the dish.

All dishes made from cold meats are much improved if vegetables, such as macaroni, vermicelli, rice or tomatoes, are served with them.—Mrs. Ernest Turpin in American Queen.

New Field For Women.

One of the latest fields into which the enterprising woman of today who must earn a livelihood for herself and others perhaps has entered and runs an excellent chance of entirely usurping is the proprietor of or saleswoman in a gentleman's furnishing goods store, and there is an excellent warrant for it too.

Who so well as a bright, keen business woman knows how to select silks, cottons, flannels, etc., for their wearing and other advantages? Who so well knows when articles for men's wear are properly made?

Women make most of the ties and scarfs worn by men. In this branch of the business alone there is money to be made, and there is no reason why she should not sell her wares direct to the consumers.

The wearing qualities of the materials employed, the latest styles of make up, the selection of colors and a variety of other necessary points appeal more strongly to her than to a man.

Women who are at the head of these establishments run a separate counter for women's trade, display tempting collars, scarfs, etc., for their particular use, and thus frequently make extra sales.

There are but few women who enter a store to buy ties, shirts, collars, cuffs or other essentials for a husband's or son's wear (90 per cent of this purchasing is done by women) who if there is a tempting display of articles which appeal to her artistic taste for her own personal adornment displayed will not buy this or that for their immediate use. And again there are many men who if then enter these stores and see advantageously displayed pretty, dainty articles for women's wear would willingly invest in some of them.

There certainly is good money to be made in this branch of enterprise for the wide awake woman.—Carrie Carrington in American Queen.

Corsets Must Go.

Miss Elizabeth Carnes, teacher of physical culture in the public schools of Detroit, has issued a "semiultimatum" to the teachers that they must discard their corsets. Miss Carnes says she has the co-operation and approval of Superintendent Martindale, who will help her in the anticorset crusade. She declares that the teachers cannot go through the gymnastics designed by her without bodily harm when wearing corsets. The members of the school board, it is said, are reluctant to interfere with the personal rights of the teachers, although in interviews several have said that if it interferes with their required gymnastic work a formal rule against corsets may be adopted.

Mrs. Swift Atwater's Gift.

Ground has been broken at Vassar for a separate infirmary building on the campus, the gift of Mrs. Caroline Swift Atwater of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a member of the class of 1877. It is given in memory of her father, Charles W. Swift, to whom the college owes so much, not alone for his distinguished service on the first board of trustees, but because he is said more than any other to have influenced Matthew Vassar's decision to found a college for women.

Miss Relda, an American girl, made her second debut in "Lakme" in Paris recently. The Opera Comique was crowded, and there were a good many Americans among the audience. Miss Relda acted and sang wonderfully well considering the enormous difficulties she had to get over in singing and acting in a strange language and before such a critical audience.

In behalf of the onion one of its virtues is said to be that it drives away flies. There are two or three ways of peeling an onion so that it will not affect the eyes. For instance, onions peeled under water fail to disturb the eyes. An old time idea was to hold a steel knitting needle between the teeth when peeling onions.

Oysters must be fresh and fat to be good. They are in season from September to May. The small ones, such as are sold by the quart, are good for pies, fritters or stews. The largest of this sort are nice for frying or pickling for family use.

The bicycle has been put to good use in a dairy not a thousand miles from town. The dairymaid mounts her wheel, pedals and by means of a chain turns the churn. Nothing could be simpler.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC.—Send me.—Isa. vi, 1-10. (Quarterly missionary meeting.)

Isaiah, the son of Amoz, prophesied in Judah and Jerusalem during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, covering the period from 758 to 698 B. C. He was married and had two sons, whose names were symbolical. His own name signified "salvation of Jehovah." Tradition says that Isaiah when 90 years of age was placed, by order of Manasseh, in a tree and sawn asunder. Isaiah's prophecy is called "the fifth gospel." His predictions concerning Christ were marvelous and should be prized and valued by every Christian and Christian Endeavorer.

In a highly impressive vision Isaiah was called of God to do a great work for Him. He felt his unworthiness, but God made him worthy. He felt his insufficiency, but God supplied his lack. So also will God prepare and support us for any mission which He has for us to do.

1. Isaiah was called of God. "The Lord said, Whom shall I send?" The missionary call must come from God. The missionary must have many qualifications, but this one above all others. God has in all ages called men to do His work, and today He calls each one of us as individuals to do something in the great work of evangelizing the world. Every opportunity to give to missions, every occasion for prayer for missions, every opening for missionary work, is a call from God to us. May we be as ready and willing to respond as Isaiah was.

2. Isaiah responded to the call of God. "Whom shall I send?" said the Lord. "Here am I. Send me," replied Isaiah. (a) It was a prompt reply. God wants promptness in missionary work. Millions are dying unsaved without the gospel. If we do anything to save them, we must act promptly. (b) It was a willing response. It has the right ring about it in this respect. God wants willing missionary workers. Perhaps no Christian work is so unwillingly done and so uncheerfully done as missionary work, and yet it should not be so. It is our most important work. It is our best paying work. And, furthermore, God loves willing, cheerful workers and givers.

Isaiah was honored and blessed of God for his prompt and willing obedience to His call. He became the brightest light, the greatest evangelist, in the Old Testament dispensation. God will also honor and bless us if we will willingly and promptly respond to His call.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

This topic emphasizes the individual in mission work. It is not "Send somebody else," but "Send me." Let the leader see that this phase of missionary effort is emphasized. Make the keynote of the meeting not what Isaiah, Paul, Judson or Carey did for missions, but "What am I doing, and what more can I do?"

Bible Readings.—Gen. xii, 1-5; I Sam. iii, 10; Isa. iii, 7; Jonah iii, 1-10; Nah. i, 15; Math. xiii, 31-33; xxviii, 19, 20; John ix, 4; Acts i, 1-8; viii, 26-40; xiii, 1-3; xvi, 8-11; Rom. x, 14, 15; I Cor. xv, 58; Rev. xxi, 17.

Moral Courage.

Cowardice before an armed foe is a trait almost unknown among our people. The bravery with which our soldiers face death in battle is as magnificent as that seen in any age of the world. Physical courage is illustrated also by heroic deeds almost daily in the common walks of life, where people are rescued from peril by engineers, policemen or anybody who happens to hold guardianship over human life. It is moral courage which is so sadly lacking. There are hosts of people who have firm convictions in opposition to the popular views on the most urgent questions of national policy, but they are afraid to speak their mind freely and frankly because of the tyranny of the unthinking mob or toadying press or self interested politician, whose only argument is abuse and whose whole creed is, "Be on the winning side." There are hosts of people, too, who lack moral courage in asserting the broad principles of morality and religion and in securing for religion those acknowledged rights which our civilization has always assumed and never questioned.—Ram's Horn.

When We Face the Past.

A rich landlord cruelly oppressed a poor widow. Her son, then a little boy of 8 years, witnessed it. He afterward became a painter and painted a life likeness of the dark scene.

Years afterward he placed it where the man saw it. He turned pale, trembled in every joint and offered a large sum to purchase it, that he might put it out of sight.

Thus there is an invisible painter drawing on the canvas of the soul a lifelikeness reflecting correctly all the passions and actions of our spiritual history on earth. Eternity will reveal them to every man. We must meet our earth life again, whether it has been good or evil.—Episcopal Recorder.

Spirit of Christ.

And this, in truth, is what we want: We want the vision of a calmer and simpler beauty to tranquilize us in the midst of artificial tastes. We want the draft of a purer spring to cool the flame of our excited life. We want, in other words, the spirit of the life of Christ, simple, natural, with power to calm and soothe the feelings which it rouses, the fullness of the spirit which can never intoxicate.—F. W. Robertson.

Relationship.

There is a relationship between the childlike character and the Christlike character which will last as long as the kingdom of God lasts.—R. J. Campbell.

THE NATAL CAMPAIGN

Will Reach Definite Result Within a Few Days.

Buller Has Total Forces of About Forty Thousand.

Boers Out-Maneuvered, and Said to Have Retired From Colenso.

Their Line of Retreat In Case of Defeat Reduced to Very Small Proportions.

London, Jan. 20.—Every hour that General Buller delays his combined attack makes his position stronger. Transports continue to arrive at Durban, and fresh troops are being sent up the line to reinforce those in front of Colenso. It appears that General Buller's troops north of the Tugela number at least 22,000 and possibly 25,000, with 50 guns. His total forces, forming a great outer curve south and west of Ladysmith, probably number 40,000.

While General Buller's forward operations, which began on Jan. 10, develop rather leisurely, the Boers appear to be fully aware that they must meet a strenuous assault. Balloon observers have roughly estimated that 10,000 Boers are using spade and pick in artificially strengthening positions which nature has rendered easy of defense.

Military critics in touch with the war office think that news that general fighting has begun may be expected at any hour. It is not thought that one day's fighting will settle the fate of Ladysmith, but rather that there will be two or three days of continuous fighting.

The Standard publishes the following, dated Thursday, from Spearman's farm: It is reported that the Boers opposite Colenso, on finding that General Buller had out-maneuvered them, crossed to the south of the Tugela on Monday and set fire to all the houses in the village.

As the force from Chieveley advanced the Boers retired before them to trenches on a hill in line with Colenso. Our infantry advanced to the attack in skirmishing order, followed by supports and reserves, our cavalry scouting on the right close up to the river. The Boer forces at Colenso must have been considerably weakened by the dispatch of large reinforcements westward to meet General Buller's advance; and they now hurriedly evacuated the river trenches and the kopjes opposite the village and scattered before our shrapnel. By evening none of the enemy was left within rifle shot of Colenso. The British force then retired to Chieveley.

A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph, dated Thursday, from Spearman's camp, describes the difficulties of the march owing to the unwieldly baggage column, including all the tents and sheep, over bad roads in wet weather. The correspondent says:

"Some 10,000 Boers arrived in the vicinity of Potgeiter's drift on Thursday and Friday of last week and began the erection of extensive and formidable lines of trenches, for their position apparently could only be turned from the west by assailing the high ridges of the Sproen kop. A balloonist today reported that no guns were visible in the enemy's works, but that there was a large Boer camp in the direction of Brakfontein, a brown ridge four miles from Potgieter's drift.

"Boers arrived in large numbers today from Colenso and Ladysmith. They have certainly run branches of the railway from Modder Spruit around Mount Bulwaya. Nearly all the Boers have gone to attempt to check General Warren's advance, but he made no sign today."

A dispatch to The Daily Telegraph from Spearman's farm, or camp, as the correspondents now describe it, dealing with Lord Dundonald's movement to the west of General Warren's force, already cabled, says:

His success gives us control of an easy entrance to Ladysmith. Our guns continue to bombard the Boer lines, the Boers replying but feebly.

Dundonald's horse, which was apparently withdrawn from Potgieter's Drift when the infantry and artillery came up and sent scurrying out to the northwest on Warren's left flank, came into action west of Acton Homes. The presence of British cavalry west of Acton Homes is of the utmost moment since Joubert's communications with the Free State by way of Tintwa and Van Reenen's passes are threatened and the Boer line of retreat in case of defeat limited to the road northward toward Pretoria through the neck of Natal.

The Boer accounts of the passage of the Tugela river are given in the following two dispatches from Commandant Viljoen's camp, on the upper Tugela, via Lourenzo Marquez:

"Jan. 16—Buller's second move was a reconnaissance in force with an armored train and a large body, supported by cannon, toward Colenso last night. A heavy bombardment ensued; and thereupon the British returned, having wounded one of our men. No reply was made. This move was a feint to cover extensive movements up the river. Kaffirs on this side of the Tugela have been warned by the British to leave their kraals, as the fight will commence shortly."

The second dispatch runs thus: "Jan. 17—The night was unbroken, save for slight rifle encounters between outposts, which led to nothing. At daybreak the enemy was located as before. He had not brought a single gun across the river. But from the ridges of Swartz kop a battery and a half of siege guns opened on our position at 6 p. m. The bombardment was probably the most frightful ever witnessed on land. Frequently five heavy naval guns fired simultaneously at one entrenchment."

The Times has the following dispatch, dated Thursday, from Pietermaritzburg: General Buller's wagon train is 19 miles in length and embraces 400 wagons and 5000 animals. As some of the drifts are narrow and muddy, only one wagon is able to cross at a time. The officers are betting two to one that Ladysmith will be relieved Friday.

Policeman Got a "Call Down."

New York, Jan. 20.—"It seems to me that crooks from everywhere are flocking to New York just now. There are more highway robberies and holdups in this city at present than ever before in its history." This is what Magistrate Crane said yesterday in rebuking a policeman who tried to have two crooks discharged after he had captured them in the act of knocking down, gagging and robbing a man. The policeman stated that he had been unable to find a complainant. The magistrate ordered the policeman himself to swear out a complaint, and the prisoners were held for trial.

Pittsfield's Industrial Boom.

Pittsfield, N. H., Jan. 20.—The machinery of the shoe firm of Edward Randall & Co., which is to occupy the factory recently purchased and repaired by the town, arrived yesterday. The firm has been doing business in Lynn, giving employment to 250 operatives and manufacturing 30 to 35 cases of shoes per day. When fully under way in their new location they expect to nearly double the Lynn output and give employment to from 300 to 400 operatives, with a payroll of $2000 or more per week.

A Massachusetts Sulphur Mine.

Adams, Mass., Jan. 20.—Considerable work has been quietly done on a sulphur mine at the east base of Grey Lock mountain, and yesterday the tract of land on which the mine is located was leased for 99 years. A temporary company has been formed, and if their expectations are met a stock company will be organized. The vein is five feet wide, and can be traced for 200 feet on the side of the mountain. Two old sulphur miners pronounce the mine very promising.

The Ill-Fated Helgoland.

St. John's, Jan. 20.—The tug Ingraham has returned here from the wreck of the Helgoland, in St. Mary's bay. A diver found the steamer a shapeless mass of iron, sails and cordage. The coast folks, who first sighted the ship, assert that she was on fire as she entered the bay, flames being plainly visible. The captain was making for the land to beach the steamer when the fatal rock was struck. As yet no bodies have been recovered.

Convicted of Uttering Forged Check.

Providence, Jan. 20.—Charles E. Stewart was yesterday found guilty of uttering a forged check on the First National bank of Woonsocket by a jury. Sentence was deferred. Stewart on Oct. 3, 1899, drew his personal check for $3000 upon a deposit in the First National bank of Woonsocket of $10,000 placed in the bank by Stewart on a bogus check for $10,000. After getting the $3000 Stewart went to Pittsburg, where he was arrested.

Mixed Up In Counterfeiting Case.

Halifax, Jan. 20.—T. S. Moore, a prominent resident of Amherst, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of being identified with a plan recently unearthed to put in circulation a large number of forged dominion $2 notes. He was remanded for examination. The arrest was made on the strength of information reported to have been given by William Davis, who is in custody at Boston.

Bridget Cole's Bad Record.

Boston, Jan. 20.—An old woman pickpocket who was arrested while operating in a crowd attending a funeral at church has been identified as Bridget Cole, alias Liz Dillon, an old-time thief and expert pickpocket. Chief Watts says she has stolen more pocketbooks than any other woman thief in the country. She has traveled all over the world. She almost always operates at funerals and church services.

They Went the Limit.

New York, Jan. 20.—About 3500 persons at the Broadway Athletic club last night saw "Kid" Broad of Cleveland and Joe Bernstein of this city in one of the hardest 25-round bouts that ever took place in the clubhouse. They fought at 124 pounds. Broad was the favorite at 100 to 70. At the end of the 25th round both men were in their feet and fighting furiously. Referee White awarded the fight to Broad.

More Municipal Decapitations.

Boston, Jan. 20.—The curtailment of the city's working force, in the interest of ecomomy, was continued by Mayor Hart yesterday, when Superintendent Flood of the wire department discharged 10 men. These men held various positions in the department, as electricians, linemen, etc. The force of the department, previous to the discharges, numbered about 40 men.

A Deserter's Fate.

New York, Jan. 20.—William Sheridan of Chicago, a recruit in company D, one of the temporary companies awaiting transportation to the Philippines, was drowned at Fort Slocum yesterday while attempting to escape from the island. Four other recruits who were with him had narrow escapes.

Unseasonable Weather.

Richmond, Me., Jan. 20.—In the past 24 hours a wonderful change in temperature has occurred, detrimental to the ice harvest. From 12 degrees below zero Thursday the mercury rose so that the thermometer registered 50 degrees above zero yesterday between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Increase Unwarranted.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 20.—The strike of doffers and spinners at the carpet mills is at an end, 70 or 80 strikers returning to work yesterday on the belief that the management was sincere in its reply that an increase of wages was unwarranted.

TUGELA RIVER BATTLE.

Graphic Account of General Buller's Repulse.

TERRIFIC FIRE OF BOER MUSKETRY

Correspondent Tells How the British Guns Were Lost—Repeated Attempts Made to Rescue Them From the Enemy—Many Incidents of Self Sacrifice and Heroism.

The London Telegraph recently received in New York city contains a letter from its correspondent, writing from Chieveley on Dec. 24, which gives the following account of General Buller's disaster:

The action was begun shortly before 6 a. m. by the naval contingent firing lyddite and 12 pounders. Heavily did they pound the trenches upon their front, Grobler's hill and the lesser ridges from Fort Wylie northward, but not an answer came from the Boers. Forward proceeded our infantry, while the Natal carbineers, South Africa Light horse, Thorneycroft's Mounted infantry and the "King's" Mounted infantry advanced to occupy Hlangwane hill. Major General Hildyard's Queen's and Devons were nearing the plate layers and other outlying houses of Colenso. Colonels Long and Hunt had come into line with their three field batteries, and Lieutenant James, R. N., with his six long naval 12 pounders, was doing his best with ox wagons to range alongside of them. Major General

COLONEL LONG.

Barton's brigade, on the right of Hildyard's, was doing nothing in particular, with the exception of part of the Scottish and Irish fusileers, who got later on well into the heat of the fray. The field batteries on Hildyard's right might have been moving down the Long valley, Aldershot, so excellently were they aligned over the downward slopes. They rumbled toward the timber fringed bank of the Tugela, half a mile or more east of Colenso. Colonel Long was determined his guns should not be outclassed and was with too great hardihood bringing them within 1,500 yards of Fort Wylie. Indeed he outpaced the infantry escort.

At 6:25 a. m. suddenly there burst an awful crash of Boer musketry upon the batteries and advancing infantry, Devons and Queen's. The rattle of Mausers swelled and was maintained as one continuous roar from within 600 yards. From buildings and lines of trenches south of the river and from the river bank itself the Boers fired at our gunners and footmen, and from trenches on the northern side of the Tugela and from Fort Wylie and elsewhere they sent out a hurricane of leaden hail. The bullets venomously rained upon the ground in all directions, raising puffs of dust and tearing the air with shrill sounds. It seemed impossible that anything could face and live in that fire. Few have ever seen so heavy and deadly a fusillade, but neither the British gunners nor infantry hesitated or winced. The cannon were wheeled into position, although many horses and men were shot down ere the maneuver was completed. Our indomitable soldiers walked erect and straight onward. Not Rome in her palmiest days ever possessed more devoted sons. As the gladiators marched proud and beaming to meet death, so the British soldiers doomed to die saluted and then and with alacrity stepped forward to do their duty—glory or the grave. I, like hundreds more, am eager to proclaim that Tommy Atkins is a far grander hero than ninety-nine hundredths of the people in England have any conception of.

With magnificent courage Long and Hunt fought their guns, shelling the ridges across the Tugela for over an hour. Fort Wylie and the adjacent stony crest were swept with shrapnel, but the Boer fire from other colguns of vantage grew in volume during the temporary pacification by shell of Fort Wylie. The Mausers did their work all too well, and gradually two of Long's batteries were put out of action, but not before he and Hunt had been wounded, as well as most of the officers and men. The horses had been shot down, and the others brought up to retire the guns shared their fate. Happily the naval battery and the Third field battery were able to withdraw to a safer position.

Matters were at their worst about 10 a. m. Daring spirits of the Irish brigade had got across the Tugela only to find lines upon lines of trenches before them or a wide network of wire entanglement. Colenso was in our occupation. The Queen's and others of the Second brigade, with a few of Barton's, chiefly the Scottish fusileers, were quite near the iron bridge and the river. Regardless of the wildest fusillade ever heard from an enemy, our men tried to bore in farther. Generals Buller and Clery, with their staffs and escort, had ridden near the lost guns and subsequently went toward the plate layers' houses. The spouting hail of lead and iron snapped and spluttered; dust puffed more than ever. Lord Roberts' son, Lieutenant Roberts, K. R. R., with Captains Schofield and Congreve of the staff, volunteered to ride out and endeavor to save the two field batteries in the open. Readily other volunteers were found. Corporals from the linesmen and drivers of the ammunition wagons, taking spare teams, galloped out, and men and horses again began falling on every side. Young Roberts' horse was blown up with a shell, which inflicted severe wounds upon his body and limbs. Congreve was hit in the leg with a bullet and his clothes cut by other missiles. Schofield alone escaped untouched across that valley of death. Quickly the surviving animals were rounded up, the guns hooked and dragged away. Again and again that day were attempts made to haul off the remaining guns, which belonged to the Fourteenth and Sixty-sixth field batteries, but the Boer cannon and rifle fire was incessant and withering. Self sacrifice and heroism were common during those hours before Colenso. The difficulty was to restrain too many from rushing out to help the gunners, but that detracts not an iota from the merit of Roberts, Congreve and Schofield, who have earned the V. C. as worthily as it was ever won. Scores of times did I see horse and rider fall beneath the stroke of Boer bullet and shell into the vortex, and then some soldier comrade would ride and assist his mate to rise, or two or more would set the wounded man on horseback and bear him from the field. How shall I find space to tell half of the incidents?

WHO WROTE DAVID HARUM?

Kansas Man Insists That It Is Rudyard Kipling's Work.

Did Rudyard Kipling write "David Harum?" William Allen White of Kansas insists that the popular novel is really the work of Kipling. C. W. Daggett, librarian of the Wells-Fargo and Illinois and Northwestern Library association, insists that Kipling had nothing to do with it.

In support of his position Mr. White, whose editorial, "What Is the Matter With Kansas?" made him very popular in Wall street, appeals to Edward W. Bok, Frank N. Doubleday and Roswell M. Field to corroborate his statement. In a letter to Mr. Daggett Mr. White says:

"Four years ago Mr. Bok and Mr. Doubleday made a bet, Mr. Doubleday taking the affirmative, that Kipling's books would sell under any other name as well as under Kipling's. For a consideration Mr. Kipling wrote "David Harum," and Bok invented the name "Edward Noyes Westcott" from a very noisy waistcoat of English pattern that Kipling wore at that time. To avoid suspicion Mr. Doubleday, who is Kipling's regular publisher, had another publisher bring out the book, and R. M. Field was appointed referee."

Mr. White goes on to say that there was a recent meeting in Chicago between Messrs. Doubleday, Bok and Field, when the result of their wager was agreed upon.

It is to be regretted that Mr. Doubleday was compelled to leave Chicago immediately after this meeting and that Mr. Bok also felt it necessary to return to the east before the full import of their Chicago meeting became known to the literary world.

Mr. Daggett makes light of the story, and Mr. Field is inclined to be evasive, says the St. Louis Republic. He calls attention to the fact that two Chicago firms refused the story and alleges that they might have recognized Kipling's style. But the question, Did Kipling write "David Harum?" still remains.

Roswell Field is a brother of the late Eugene Field. He is regarded as a wag, and the suggestion that Kipling wrote "David Harum" emanated from him.

Refrigerating Magazines For Battleships.

Experiments are now being made at the Washington navy yard, under a plan proposed by Rear Admiral O'Neil, for refrigerating magazines of battleships to minimize the danger of explosion through overheating. No success has attended trials of that character conducted abroad, but it is believed that Admiral O'Neil's plan will practically insure a reduction of temperature in magazines, says the New York Sun. If this is accomplished, all ships hereafter built will have the refrigerating process applied to their magazines.

Burgher Smit of the Transvaal.

Burgher Smit of the Transvaal, alone on the kopje's crest—
Beneath, in the mud, a pool of blood, a ragged hole in the breast,
A groan and a chill—a fever chill—a prayer for a soldier's rest.

Burgher Smit of the Transvaal, in the heat of the tropic sun,
Had stood that day through the deadly fray to his rock and his belching gun
With only a hope to guard the slope till the grim assault was done.

And Burgher Smit of the Transvaal had worked his heart's desire;
He had held his own on his rock ribbed throne through the storm of steel and fire;
He had proved his heart a worthy part of the heart of his trekking sire!

But Burgher Smit of the Transvaal felt a hand of ice at his soul;
He saw, or he felt, his native veldt, with its ocean dip and roll;
He looked through the night and saw the light stream out from his "landbouw" knoll.

And there he saw his little ones; he heard their mother's call;
As best she can, like her own good man, she works in the cattle kraal,
But her heart is away, the long, long day, away o'er the mountain wall!

But Burgher Smit of the Transvaal shall come no more to his own;
He has gone the road that his fathers trode, he has trekked to the last unknown,
And the Father above in justice and love shall reap what these hands have sown!

A book will be placed in the Crane library sometime next week, which will be of interest to all who enjoy hearing of old time things and customs. It is entitled "Recollections of a New England Town," and is the work of Mrs. Breckenridge, a lady nearly eighty years of age, the mother of Mrs. W. T. Babcock of this city. Mrs. Babcock reviews the book in today's Transcript. The old town is the now large and thriving city of Meriden, Connecticut. The Dr. Hough, so often quoted, is one of the Hough family for whom Houghs Neck was named, the tract of land having been given one Atherton Hough in payment for service rendered in the early days of the commonwealth.

The Missing Link.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

One can walk from the estate of John R. Graham to the depot with slippers, with the exception of a very short space, crossing Canal street where one needs rubbers. Flagging stone, already bought and paid, have laid upon the side of the street for over a year and have not been laid. Will our new Mayor see that they are laid before another cold snap and thaw takes place?

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

Park Theatre.

It was on account of the extraordinary interest manifested on the part of the public in "Little Red Riding Hood" during its one week's engagement here that Manager Thompkins has been to no little expense and trouble to get this delightful Rice extravaganza to come to the Park next week, opening Monday night, Jan. 22, for a limited engagement. As during the previous Boston visit, there will be a matinee every day, when the same performance will be given as at night, though there will be a special scale of prices for the afternoon performance. There will not be a matinee during the opening day, however, as the time will be needed to get the immense production in readiness for the opening night's performance. The seats have been on sale the past week and have been in great demand. Among the principals will be the old favorites, Madge Lessing, Kittie Mitchell, Gertie Carlisle, Ethel Jackson, the great chorus of Rice's prettiest girls" and some important new members in the cast. In fact, a genuine surprise and sensation in the matter of an addition to the cast is one of the possibilities.

Boston Museum.

To say that the Boston Museum has been literally stormed since "The Rogers Brothers in Wall Street" began its engagement there would be stating the truth with exactitude. Boston has not experienced such a thorough stirring-up by a theatrical attraction for a long time. The Rogers's entertainment is three hours of real, hearty laughter without cessation and without vulgarity. No one can appreciate this remarkable fun-show till he witnesses the jolly performance. The Rogers brothers are funny enough to stir the dead, and they have for aids more vaudeville celebrities than have been brought together in a farce comedy in years These comedians are fortunate in having Klaw & Erlanger, the foremost theatrical firm in America, for their managers. When they lend their name to a theatrical venture, as the public has learned, it means something. They have given a beautiful production to "The Rogers Brothers in Wall Street." The last setting, representing a midsummer night's fete at Long Branch, is especially beautiful. The Boston Museum management has made an effort to extend the engagement beyond the original time of four weeks, but it has been found impossible, so this wonderfully successful engagement must come to a close next Saturday evening, the 27th.

Castle Square Theatre.

The management of the Castle Square Theatre announces a revival of the Alfriend and Wheeler melodrama "The Great Diamond Robbery" as the attraction at this house next week, the play having had its first production by the Castle Square stock company about fifteen months ago. The strong dramatic story of "The Great Diamond Robbery" gained this drama an instant popularity throughout England and America only a few seasons ago and the Castle Square Theatre production of the play will be pleasantly recalled as one of the most pronounced sucoeses at this play house. Some changes have been made in the cast for the revi-val, the assignment of characters being as follows: Dick Brummage, John Craig; Frank Kennett, Charles Mackay; Senator McSorker, Tony Cummings; Mr. Clinton Bulford, J. L. Seeley; Mickey Brannigan, Lindsay Morrison; Frau Rosenbaum, Nina Morris; Mrs. O'Georghan, Leonora Bradley; Mary Lavelot, Marian A. Chapman. College boys, guests, heelers, street gamins, etc. "The Great Diamond Robbery" is announced for only a single week, with boxes of chocolate bon bons for the Monday matinee souvenirs, and will be followed by Pettit and Grundy's drama "The Bells of Haslemere "which was so popular at the time of its original production here at the Boston Museum.

Uneasiness In Honolulu.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The following official dispatch, dated Jan. 12, has been received from Surgeon Carmichael of the marine hospital service in Honolulu: "Five cases of plague reported since Jan. 8 There have been 23 deaths from the plague since Dec. 12. Uneasy feeling prevails."

Smallpox at Washington

Washington, Jan. 20.—Congressman and Mrs. Anderson of Buffalo have been placed in quarantine in their apartments here, because of the discovery that Mrs. Alexander's maid was suffering from smallpox.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The temperature has risen from the Rocky mountains to the middle and upper Mississippi valleys, and in the north Atlantic states; elsewhere it has remained nearly stationary. Prospects are favorable for rain in New England, probably followed by fair Sunday. The temperature will remain nearly stationary. Variable winds will prevail on the north Atlantic coast, becoming westerly and increasing.

THERE IS A CLASS OF PEOPLE

Who are injured by the use or coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over 1-4 as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cts. and 25 cts. per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

County Expenditures.

In the Patriot of today appears the official report of the receipts and expenditures of Norfolk county for 1899. The taxpayers are pleased to note that no new permanent loans were issued, and that there was a reduction in the debt. The actual expenditures of the year amounted to $201,892.01, but the receipts amounted to $30,251.-04, so that the net expenditure was really $171,640.97. Reducing this amount by the extraordinary expenditures of the year, and the balance is $122,602.97, the actual amount necessary for all county departments.

We congratulate the County Commissioners on being able to support the courts, jails and other institutions the highways, etc., upon this sum. When the court house debt is paid, there seems a prospect of a material reduction in the county taxes. The assets of the county are appraised for $750.200.00.

TODAY'S COURT.

Donati Decesari and Contanco Devekio were fined $15 each for the larceny of copper wire from the Quincy & Boston street railway Co., at Quincy.

The continued case of Freeman S. Gray of Milton, for larceny of hens from his mother, was called and he was sentenced to two months in the house of correction.

So firm is the texture of a genuine bank of England note that burning can hardly destroy it. The authorities have in a little glazed frame the remains of a note which was in the great fire of Chicago. Though completely charred and black, the note is sufficienthy legibly to estabilish its genuineness and be cashed.

Walter Smith died at his home at Mayflower Park on Tuesday, after a week's illness of typhoid fever.

"The Worstest Crime Ever."

A young negress in mourning asked the magistrate for a warrant in the Jefferson Market court.

"There is a negro who has committed the worstest crime ever," she said. "It's so awful I can't hardly tell about it. My mother died a week ago, and he done took a pawn ticket from the corpse. Now he's done took out a diamond ring on that ticket that was my mother's, and now the ring should be mine, but he won't give it to me."

"Well, that's rather bad," admitted the magistrate, signing a warrant for the offender.

The young woman returned in the afternoon in company with a well dressed negro with whom she seemed to be on very friendly terms. He was the defendant.

"What have you got to say to the charge?" the magistrate demanded of him.

"Why," the man replied smilingly, "the dead woman was my wife."

"Is he your stepfather?" asked the magistrate, turning to the girl.

"Course he is," she answered.

"And why didn't you tell me that before?"

"'Cause I wanted that ring, your honor,"

"Step out," said the magistrate.

"Step out," echoed a half dozen policemen, while the man and the girl walked out together without a sign of animosity.—New York Exchange.

A Very Foxy Fox.

A gentleman whose word cannot be doubted and who is not easily deceived tells the following:

Very early one morning he saw a fox eying most wistfully a number of wild ducks feeding in the rushy end of a highland lake. After awhile the fox, going to windward of the ducks, put afloat in the lake several bunches of dead rushes or grass, which floated down among the ducks without causing the least alarm.

After watching the effect of his preliminary fleet for a short time the fox, taking a good sized mouthful of grass in his jaws, launched himself into the water as quietly as possible, having nothing but the tips of his ears and nose above water.

In this way he drifted down among the ducks and caught a fine mallard.

Though this story seems extraordinary, it must be remembered that the fox manages to capture wild ducks, wood pigeons, hares and numberless other animals, sufficient to keep himself and family, and it is plain to be seen that in doing so he must practice many a trick that would seem improbable if related and quite beyond the instinct of animals.—Omaha World-Herald.

Killed Classical Quotations.

In tracing the decline of the use of classical quotations in legislative bodies the Boston Herald cites the case of Edward Everett, who once concluded a stately speech in congress with a long, sonorous and superbly modulated citation of a passage from Tacitus and then took his seat. No sooner was he through than up sprang a burly member from what was then a frontier state of the west. He had once been an Indian agent, and no sooner was he on his legs than he began to pour out a vehement harangue in Choctaw. After awhile the speaker called him to order.

"I don't see why my freedom of speech should be abridged!" he cried. "You let the gentleman from Massachusetts run on, and I didn't understand the first word of his lingo any better than he does mine."

The scene was described as very comical, but it struck the deathknell of further classical quotations in a congress that had not the ray of an idea what the unintelligible lingo of Cicero and Tacitus was driving at.

His Story "Goes" Until He Does.

There is in Cowley county a big two fisted farmer who has the reputation of being the biggest liar in the township. But he will fight at the drop of the hat, and men are very chary of accusing him. The other day he went into Dexter and told that he had a 9-month-old calf that gave three quarts at a milking, and, after recounting this story, the local paper said, "Mr. Horrell is still in town, and we are convinced that that calf is a wonder."—Kansas City Journal.

The Harem a Prison.

The western boast that every man's house is his castle is as nothing to the sanctity of the eastern harem. No officer of the law may enter a harem, and therefore there is no safeguard for the life and liberty of its inhabitants. One day they may be slaves, the next princesses and the next strangled or poisoned. An ill disposed man could carry off an enemy to his harem and kill him, and none would be the wiser.

Getting Advice.

The girl's father was rich, and the suitor for her hand was poor, but remarkably persistent.

"Papa," she said to the old gentleman, "if Frank asks me this evening to marry him what shall I say?"

"Say whatever you think is best, my child."

"How best, papa? Best for me or best for Frank?"—Detroit Free Press.

One Quotation.

Professor—Mr. Drone, I am astonished that you cannot remember any of the quotations called for in today's lesson. Can you recollect any quotation of any kind?

Student—Yes, sir; "Any fool can ask questions."—Boston Transcript.

Hearts may be attracted by assumed qualities, but the affections can only be fixed and retained by those that are real.—De Moy.

Walking to Work

Is the only way in which the business woman, employed in store or office, can get open air exercise. Is it any wonder that she often grows pale and thin and develops a tendency to "weak lungs." Whenever there is pain in breathing, soreness of the chest, obstinate cough, bleeding from the lungs or any other symptoms of disease of the respiratory organs, begin the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and continue the use until cured. Ninety-eight in every hundred who have used "Golden Medical Discovery" for "lung trouble," have been perfectly and permanently cured.

"I was very sick indeed," writes Mrs. Mollie Jacobs, of Felton, Kent Co., Delaware, "and our family doctor said I had consumption. I thought I must die soon for I felt so awful bad. Had a bad cough, spit blood, and was very short of breath. I had pains in my chest and right lung, also had dyspepsia. Before I took your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Pellets' I was so weak I could not sweep a room, now I can do a small washing. I feel like a new person."

3 O'CLOCK.

AN ALL DAY BATTLE.

Buller Says That "Substantial Progress" Is Being Made.

Main Position of Boers Has Not Yet Been Attacked.

Nearly Three Hundred of Cleary's Men Wounded In Saturday's Battle.

Hard Work For British Forces Before Ladysmith Can Be Relieved.

London, Jan. 22.—Two days of almost continuous fighting by a portion of Buller's troops has apparently altered the situation but very little.

The Boers seem to be offering a desperate resistance, and the best General Buller can say in his latest dispatch is that "he thinks he is making substantial progress."

He reports nearly 300 wounded as the result of Saturday's fighting by General Clery's forces near Ventor's Spruit. He has as yet sent no list of killed.

General Buller cables to the war office:

"Spearman's camp, Jan. 21, 9 p. m.—General Warren has been engaged all day, chiefly on his left, which he has swung forward about a couple of miles. The ground is very difficult, and as the fighting is all the time up hill it is difficult to say exactly how much we have gained, but I think we are making substantial progress."

The justifiable severity of the censorship at the present moment prevents the special correspondents from furnishing a supplement to General Buller's latest dispatch. The success of the movement depends almost entirely upon how far he proves able to out maneuver the Boers, whose available forces are doubtless larger than his own. The chief difficulty lies in the ability of the Boers to transport men, stores and ammunition quickly, and to entrench new positions. Secrecy regarding General Buller's progress, therefore, is essential, and the public here is quite content to wait patiently.

From the information which the censor has allowed to pass, it is as yet impossible to form a correct notion of the British tactics. One thing, however, is quite clear. The British commanders have profited by experience and are now avoiding infantry charges, giving preference to the more judicious use of artillery. The general idea is that General Buller, with some 8000 men and 18 field guns, is holding the northern bank of the Tugela at Potgieter's Drift, while General Warren, with about 12,000 men, 30 guns and a large force of cavalry, is working around the right flank of the Boers, eight or 10 miles away.

One account of Saturday's fighting says that the British had few killed. Little reliance can be placed upon these reports, and, although the main position of the Boers has not yet been attacked, and nothing is known as to its strength, Saturday's and Sunday's fighting, which can hardly be described as more than outpost affairs, evidently entailed serious losses.

The Boers are following their old-time tactics—making a show of resistance and then retreating in good order to prepared positions—and as they are working from the interior of their lines, they may be able to bring strong forces to defend the main position.

Nothing is heard regarding the counter attack by General White from Ladysmith, and General Buller's "I think we are making substantial progress" remains the last word.

This shows that there is still some very hard work in front of the British forces. The news from the other points is of slight interest. General Kelly-Kenny's division has been sent by General Gatacre to form an advance base at Rosmead Junction.

A third supplementary list of the British casualties in the attack on Ladysmith on Jan. 6 was published by the war office yesterday. It shows 23 noncommissioned officers and men killed and five dangerously wounded. This brings the total of casualties in that engagement to 488.

The Daily Telegraph has the following dispatch, dated Saturday, from Spearman's camp: General Warren's forces have fought a deliberately planned and successful battle. This important engagement occurred to the west of Spion Kop and practically resulted in our securing the rough tableland which constituted the key of the Boer position. After a fierce cannonade had been directed against the enemy's lines for some time, the British troops assembled near an eminence known as Three Tree hill, which forms the center of a semi-circle of crests, crowned with the enemy's works and some six miles long. Steadily and with great dash the British infantry went forward in the face of a heavy fusillade from Mauser rifles. Our troops were disposed as follows: Major General Woodgate's brigade on the right, Major General Hart's brigade in the center and Major General Hildyard's brigade on the left.

Soon after midday the battle on the hill became furious and from 3 in the afternoon until 6 the fire from both cannon and rifles was extremely heavy. Point after point of the enemy's positions was seized by the British troops; and eventually the Boer right broke and was forced back toward Spion Kop.

Our force is bivouacking upon the ground it captured so gallantly. During the action today the enemy brought into play new guns, one of which was a quick-firer. Tomorrow ought to settle the matter. In today's fighting our losses were trifling, but the Boers suffered heavily.

While General Warren was fighting his engagement, an effectual demonstration was proceeding at Potgieter's Drift, the enemy's positions near there being vigorously shelled by the British batteries.

After 10 hours of continuous and terrible fire Saturday, Generals Hart and Clery advanced 1000 yards. The Boers maintained an irregular fire during the night, but the British outposts did not reply. Sunday morning at daybreak the Boers opened a stiff fire. The British stood to the guns where they had slept and the engagement was resumed vigorously. The field artillery poured shrapnel into the enemy's trenches.

A rumor that Ladysmith had been relieved enlivened the British, who sent up a ringing cheer. This was taken for an advance. The first kopje was carried at the point of the bayonet and the Boers retreated to the next kopje, which, like most others, was strewn with immense boulders, surmounted by mounds on the summit.

The British advanced steadily and the Boers relaxed slightly. The latter did not show such tenacity as previously. Their Nordenfeldts fired at long intercals, and their cannon fired but seldom.

All day the roar of musketry fire continued. The British took three Boer positions on the mountain and found shelter behind the boulders.

Lord Roberts, purposing not to alienate the Cape Dutch and to see that the military respect the rights of non-combatants, regardless of race or sympathies, has issued, through Lord Kitchener, his chief of staff, the following order:

The commander-in-chief wishes to impress upon all officers who may at any time be in charge of columns or detached commands the grave importance of doing all in their power by good and conciliatory treatment and of securing compensation for the people of the country in all matters affecting either their own interests or those of the troops.

In all cases where supplies of any kind are required these must be paid for on delivery and a receipt for the amount taken. Officers will be held responsible for the observances of the rule that soldiers are never allowed to enter private houses or to molest the inhabitants on any pretext whatever [illegible] tradition must be taken to suppress looting or petty robbery by persons connected with the army.

When supplies are absolutely necessary for the subsistence of the army and the inhabitants are unwilling to meet such demands, commanding officers may, after having satisfied themselves by careful personal investigation that such supplies are necessary and available, order these in such cases to be taken by force, full receipt therefor being given.

American Escort Ambushed.

Manila, Jan. 22.—An escort of 50 men of company G, Thirteenth infantry, Lieutenant Ralston commanding, was ambushed near Lipa. It consisted of 50 convalescents from the hospital, who were going to rejoin the regiment. Two men were killed, five were wounded, and nine are missing. The insurgents hid in the bushes along the road and opened fire upon the pack train from three sides. The Americans, in addition to their casualties, were compelled to abandon the train, which consisted of 22 horses. The latter, with their packs, all fell into the hands of the insurgents, who pursued the retreating escort along the road until the Americans were reinforced.

ENGLAND DENOUNCED

For the Course She Has Taken In Waging War With the Boers.

Latter Are Fighting Against "Piracy and Tyranny."

Mass Meeting at Washington Addressed by Senators and Members of House.

Washington, Jan. 22.—A demonstration planned by Boer sympathizers as a means of evidencing public sentiment toward the war in South Africa occurred in the Grand Opera House last night, and in numbers and enthusiasm was fully up to expectations.

The speakers included members of both branches of congress, and on the stage were other public men who came merely to add their moral support.

The keynote of the speeches was that the Boers were fighting for their independence as our forefathers had done in 1776. The gathering assembled under the auspices of the United Irish societies and a number of leading Germans of the city joined in the movement.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman of the executive committee, M. P. Moran, the national treasurer of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, who introduced Congressman Sulzer as the presiding officer of the evening.

Mr. Sulzer said in part: "As an American citizen I am not ashamed to have it known that my sympathies are with the heroic Boers in their determined effort to maintain their homes and their independence against the piracy and the tyranny of the British crown. In a fight between liberty and monarchy I want to see liberty win. Their cause is a just cause. The courage of the Boers in the face of tremendous odds has challenged the admiration of mankind, and their heroism against almost insurmountable obstacles has won the respect of the civilized world. They are entitled to our sympathy, and we would be false to ourselves and all our history if we did not give it to them."

Senator Mason of Illinois said: "I hold that there is no hour too sacred or place too dear to speak for the cause of liberty. The conflict in the Transvaal is a struggle between liberty and slavery. The Boers are right, but unless we can aid them in some way the cause may not [illegible] triumph. The spirit of liberty has hitherto always found a resting place in this country.

"Lately the American eagle, it appears, has taken to eating carrion. We do not want for the Boers the kind of liberty that England would give them. We want the Boers to have the kind of liberty they want. If you have any influence lend your voice to the cause of the Boers. If you have no influence, but have convictions, speak your sentiments."

Representative Bailey of Texas said: "I am sick of hearing about our brothers across the sea. England is brutal. She has hunted the Irish down and shot them in a brutal manner among the bogs and fens of Ireland. It is not merely English greed for gold or desire for wealth that urges England on during this war. She finds an opportunity to blot out a republic from the map of the world, and she does not hesitate to do it. I blush to say that there are men under this flag who hope to see this crime prepetrated. But they hope in vain."

Senator Allen of Nebraska, in a vigorous address, said: "If there is any country on the face of the earth that owes the British empire nothing that country is the United States of America. England seeks to rule all people for mercenary ends. There is not a lofty motive about her policy. Wherever she can advantageously extend her commerce into that locality she carries her arms. Whether it is fertile fields or diamonds or gold the same greed for gain has actuated her conquests. I am not a believer in non-intervention when liberty is at stake. I would not only intervene with sympathy, but with practical assistance."

Representative Champ Clark of Missouri said in part: "Wherever people are struggling for liberty they should have the friendship of all Americans. It is astounding that there should be any argument as to that proposition within the broad confines of this puissant republic. Two years ago there would not have been. In the elder day we would have made the welkin ring; now, governmentally speaking, we are dumb as oysters. Wherefore? Because England is a robber nation, we are ambitious to become a robber nation, and all robber nations must stand together for self-protection—and because it is so English, don't you know. Now, that we are so strong that we cannot estimate our strength, we have fallen to the low estate of being John Bull's silent partner in butchering and despoiling white men, fighting valiantly and gloriously for their altars and their fires. It's the Boer gold and diamonds that the English are fighting for and not the rights of the uitlanders."

Representatives De Armond of Missouri, Cockran of Missouri and Rhea of Kentucky spoke on the same general lines, and resolutions were adopted in accordance therewith.

Good Afternoon.

The Republicans evidently believe in continuing past officials in the working ranks of the party. Most of the officers of the City Committee are "Exes."

Considerable is heard in the rich town of Brookline now about the benefits of competition between corporations. Two street railways are after location, and both make liberal propositions, which show the value of franchises. The Boston & Worcester Street Railway Company will agree, if the double track location petitioned for on Boylston street be granted to it, to pay its regular taxes, sell tickets to school children at half rate and fix its fare to regular patrons at all hours at the rate of six tickets for 25 cents, or single fare for five cents between the Brookline terminus and Newton Highlands. Also in this event, provide suitable electric lighting for the streets as directed by the selectmen.

The Elevated road has a number of its cars marked "Cross-Town," but the significance of that designation is that they cross the town at its upper end, and while a great convenience even in that service, they do not meet the need of a cross route from the Back Bay and beyond through the business section to the South Terminal. When the Boston & Albany and the Old Colony roads occupied their old positions the public were perhaps better served by the street railways or station accommodation than they are now, but never as well as they should have been. The shifting and consolidation of so many roads at one great station greatly complicates the situation and represents problems that call for some means of relief.—Transcript.

This lack of accommodations has often been the subject of comment by passengers of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., who find it very inconvenient to attend fairs and entertainments at the Mechanics building, and to reach many other points of the Back Bay. There should be direct cars both ways between the South Terminal and the Mechanics Building, which would be a convenience to people going to all Back Bay points;—or there should be a line from the South station which shall enter the subway at Shawmut avenue and give the passengers the benefit of free transfers at Park street.

Quincy will appreciate a Metropolitan parkway, and should have one, if it is expected to pay the cost of parks and parkways, but ex-Senator George in writing to the Boston Times on Massachusetts as the greatest debt creating State in the Union adds force to the recent utterances of Gov. Crane. He says in part:

"The people of the metropolitan district wanted an extensive sewerage system, which was no doubt necessary. They also wanted a more extensive water system. That, too, was necessary. People in good health can better afford to pay their money for good and safe sewerage and pure water than those in ill health can afford to pay their money to fight pestilence and disease. But they wanted more; they wanted parks and boulevards—a most excellent plan, beautiful to look upon, but how far the state ought to lend its credit in this direction is a debatable question, and when they found rising $30,000,000 charged up to their account, they began to realize the utter folly of the fallacious but fascinating theory of running a government on borrowed revenue, coupled with the belief that they were to escape their share of the burden. It is safe to say if the cities and towns in the metropolitan district had begun to pay their assessments when they were due three years ago, as they should have done, the appropriations in this particular direction would have been curtailed to an appreciable extent, but they cried aloud for a postponement until 1900. During the meantime they bent their energies for additional appropriations. Now comes the supreme test. In addition to their regular tax levy, they must add their share of the millions expended until this enormous debt is paid. The lessons to be drawn from time to time as the people in this section of the state begin to more fully realize their extra burden of taxation, will no doubt have a moral effect upon the people throughout the state."

Drift of Opinion.

☞An equatorial temperature continues to be maintained at Haverhill whenever the Mayor and Board of Aldermen get together.—Lynn Item.

☞The Lawton fund was far easier to raise and much more enthusiastically given than the Dewey fund. This does not imply that Gen. Lawton was more beloved than Admiral Dewey, but simply is a proof that people like to give their money where it will do real good—where it is needed. Everyone knew that Admiral Dewey was amply provided for without any fund being raised, while they gladly give what they can to save the honored old soldier's family a home to shelter them.—Beverly Times.

☞The same kind of wiseacres that used to sit around in the back part of the grocery stores during the civil war and mark out on a piece of brown paper how easy it ought to be for the Federal troops to cross right over here, or right over there, into Richmond, and wonder what they were delaying so for, are now busy in London making diagrams to show how easy, if the British owned Delagoa bay, it would be to cut across and take Pretoria, regardless of the fact that the whole neighborhood is a series of natural fortresses in themselves obstacles almost insurmountable.—Malden News.

☞The pleasant little city of Haverhill, in state of Massachusetts, has re-elected Mayor Chase, a Socialist, and he begins his second term with the remark that the "the eyes of the toilers of the world are fixed on Haverhill." ••• There has been much talk of the progress of Socialism in New England, but it has been exemplified more in Boston—the exemplified banquet of ... Haverhill. The administration of Mayor Josiah Quincy in Boston—the latest of the Josiahs, whose term has just closed—did more toward pushing paternalism along than Mayor Chase could do in his little town in fifty years. But no very alarming step has yet been taken in the practical application of the Socialistic creed in any New England city. It is another case of "great cry and little wool." The furore created by Bellamy's book subsided long ago, and the individual Yankee still stands as a distinct entity without an ardent desire to be merged in the state. He prefers to be a unit rather than to lose his identity in a commune.—Washington Post.

Eight Hour Day.

At the Sunday meeting of the Central Labor Union of Boston it was argued that, as the granite cutters and pavers working for private contractors over eight hours per day were to demand eight hours the coming spring, every effort of trade unions that have secured a reduction in hours should assist in crystalizing public sentiment so that no workman should be compelled to work longer than eight hours daily.

A NEW PRESIDENT.

Republican City Committee of 1900 Organize.

National Administration of McKinley Endorsed.

Committee Anxious for Election of Republican Congressmen.

The meeting of the Republican City Committee Saturday evening did not develop the contest over the presidency that was expected. Rumor had coupled the names of Albert G. Dolliver and John P. Bigelow for president but when Mr. Dolliver announced that although urged by his friends to permit the use of his name for president he must decline to become a candidate for reelection. It left the field clear to Mr. Bigelow.

The meeting was held in the rooms of the Granite Manufacturers' Association. Secretary McKnight called the meeting to order and the roll call showed thirty present as follows: Ward One 6; Ward Two 7; Ward Three 7; Ward Four 7; Ward Five 2; Ward Six. 1.

Upon motion of ex-Councilman [illegible] of this town and a credit to [illegible] Edward E. Jameson an informal ballot was taken for president. Messrs. Newcomb, Burke and Wilde were appointed tellers.

The result of the informal ballot was as follows:

Whole number of votes	29
Majority	15
John P. Bigelow had	23
John S. Gay had	2
Tobias H. Burke had	1
Roger H. Wilde had	1
Albert G. Dolliver had	1
John R. Graham had	1

The informal ballot was made formal and ex-Councilman Bigelow declared elected.

Mr. Bigelow in accepting the office said it was an honor to preside over a Republican committee especially in a city like Quincy and at the closing of one of the best administrations the country has ever had. It was our duty to make the vote for President McKinley the largest ever given in Quincy.

John McKnight was re-elected secretary and in accepting said it afforded him pleasure that his services during the past year had been such to warrant a re-election.

Ex-Representatives Thaddeus H. Newcomb was elected vice president and accepting said it was an important year for the Republican party. Here in the good old city of Quincy we should do our part to support the McKinley administration and to get a congressman of the same stamp. It was an honor to be an officer of the Republican committee of Quincy, and he hoped all would do what they could to make things harmonious.

Councilman Eugene N. Hultman and ex-Representative John R. Graham declined the office of treasurer and ex-Councilman Edward E. Jameson was elected. He thanked the members for infliction cast upon him, and hoped all would come up with the cash and make his duties as easy as possible.

Messrs. John R. Graham, Edward E. Jameson, William T. Spargo and Eugene N. Hultman were elected as the Finance committee.

Mr. Graham said if we do our duty we have a good prospect before us and can show good results. There was no question about McKinley's re-election. That would be an easy job.

TREASURER JAMESON.

But we want a congressman also. All we want is to get some rules and methods of collecting money.

Mr. Spargo and Mr. Hultman said Mr. Graham had covered their ideas.

The President announced that the president, vice president, secretary, treasurer and chairmen of the several ward committees composed the Executive committee. It would be well to bear in mind remarks of Mr. Graham. He intended to call frequent meetings of the general committee for discussion. We want to be represented in Congress by a protectionist not a free trader. If a strong Republican was nominated he believed the district could be carried.

The rules of 1899 were adopted, but the members of the executive committee were appointed to revise them.

The Treasurer's report showed that there were bills outstanding to the amount of $67.75, to pay these he had cash to the amount of $34.07, including a contribution of $18 made by Mr. Graham, leaving a balance of $33.68, which amount had been more than pledged, and the committee would start in the new year free from debt and with a balance on hand. Adjourned.

Wollaston Sales.

Boston papers report these sales at Wollaston. The residence of Mrs. Brothers in [illegible] a midsummer [illegible] fete at Long [illegible] Nellie Chandler at the corner of Lincoln and Prospect avenues, consisting of a 2 1-2 story Queen Anne house and 7,500 feet land to Mrs. M. A. Frame for a home at $7,000; she will take possession the coming month.

The same purchaser, has bought from E. W. Chandler, for investment, a two-family house and about 12,000 feet of land on Lincoln avenue, paying therefor $6,500.

An estate on Prospect avenue, consisting of an eight-room house and about 5,600 feet of land has been sold to Frank P. Waterhouse, the owner of the adjoining estate, who buys for investment. Mr. Chandler is the vendor in this instance.

First Church Vespers.

Three to four hundred attended the vesper service Sunday afternoon at the First Unitarian church and it was a very beautiful service. Rev. Mr. Weeks of Brighton a classmate of Rev. Charles H. Porter Jr., gave an interesting talk on "Tennyson and his belief as expressed in poetry." He quoted a great many beautiful lines from the poet's familiar poems ending with "Crossing the Bar," which was also sung by the quartette during the offertory.

The singing during the service was beautifully rendered especially the soprano solo by Miss Florence Emery.

Rev. E. C. Butler returned from Brighton in time to close the service with a benediction.

Atlantic Depot Robbed.

Burglars entered the Atlantic depot sometime Saturday night, and $25 in money was taken from the money drawer. Entrance to the building was obtained by forcing a window. The door of the ticket office was then forced open, and the money broken into. Just what time the break occurred is not known, but it is supposed to have been between 3 and 4 o'clock Sunday morning, as Officer Holleran was about the depot at 2.30 o'clock. This is not the first time this depot has been entered, and it seems as though the railroad should furnish a safe, a piece of office furniture which it now lacks.

The report of the Metropolitan Park will be made to the Legislature in a few days. As yet we have heard of no takings for the Quincy parkway.

The fortifications at Nantasket are to be further improved by two five-inch rapid fire guns. The carriages are now ready and will be shipped within a few days. They are designed to supplement the large battery and to protect the torpedo fields and prevent boats of any enemy from landing on our shores.

Edward Bourke, Robert Kerrigan and Frank Wales, the three boys suspected of being the cause of some of the recent fires in Quincy Center were given a rigid examination by Fire Marshal Whitman Saturday. The evidence was quite strong against them, but not enough to warrant conviction if brought into court. The fire marshal read them a lesson and let them go.

A joint whist party was given at the old Walker estate on Saturday evening, by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bellows. The doors were thrown open all over the house and the rooms brilliantly lighted. There were five tables, and the guests were from Wollaston, Malden and Atlantic. The whist game ceased promptly at 10, and after the distribution of prizes, ices, cake, olives and numerous dainties were served by small maids gowned prettily for the occasion. Music and a general good time followed.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

OVERTURNED LAMP.

Drives Quincy Point Families Quickly from Home.

The alarm from Box 76, at 5.40 Sunday night, was for a stubborn fire in a house at Quincy Point owned by C. Patch & Son and occupied by Alexander Pitts and Joseph Burke. The house is situated in the rear of Mr. Patch's stable which it adjoins, and was in a very dangerous locality. The only way to reach the house was by a round about route through the coal yard, and through this three lines of hose were carried. There is no artificial light in this locality and it was with difficulty it was got at, and even then the firemen had hard work to see what they were doing. Added to this was the high pressure of the water which caused frequent bursts in the hose, and the flooding of the lane or way leading to the house.

The fires started in the part occupied by Mr. Pitts, and was caused by one of the children pulling a lamp onto the floor in a chamber, which took fire. The child's clothing took fire and things looked rather serious for a few minutes. Mr. Pitts gave his first attention to extinguishing the flames which were enveloping the child, and in doing so both he and the child were badly burned. Meantime the fire had communicated to all parts of the room and the family only had time enough to get out themselves leaving all the furniture behind. The fire therefore had made good headway when the department arrived, and had worked up through the roof. The stable of Messrs. Patch at one time seemed to be in danger and the horses were removed to a place of safety.

The furniture of Mr. Pitts was nearly ruined by fire and water his side of the house being badly gutted. No fire reached the Burke side of the house, but water did considerable damage, and the total loss estimated at $800.

The fire broke out on the roof several times later in the evening, and a detail of firemen were kept on duty watching for several hours.

The Quincy Point Cribbage kindly offered the families burned out the use of their rooms, and neighbors furnished the necessary bedding, so that they were comfortably housed for the night.

TODAY'S FIRE.

The alarm from Box 46 at 9.40 this morning was for a slight fire among some bed clothing in one of the chambers of the house on Copeland street, occupied by Michael McGovern. The fire was extinguished without loss.

No Passengers Waiting.

The two old passenger cars at Quincy Adams which are being used as the ticket office and station, were badly smashed Friday night, and the station agent who was in one of the cars at the time, had a narrow escape from being injured. The accident happened just after the last passenger train had passed. The agent was just leaving for the night, when a freight that was shifting cars shunted a car onto the spur where the two cars were. The freight car struck the passenger cars with force enough to double them up in the centre and throw the agent headlong. He, however, escaped without serious injury. The cars were quite badly smashed.

HOW WAUCHOPE DIED.

Scottish General's Brave Fight at Battle of Magersfontein.

GREAT LOSS OF HIGHLANDERS.

Terrible Slaughter Followed the Firing of a Single Shot After Precautions For Secrecy—Caught In a Trap of Wires—Guards Avenged Scots With the Bayonet.

A thrilling description of the battle of Magersfontein has reached London from the correspondent of the London Daily News. This is his story of the awful experience of the Highland brigade:

"During the night it was considered expedient that the Highland brigade, about 4,000 strong, under General Wauchope, should get close enough to the lines of the foe to make it possible to charge the heights. At midnight the gallant but ill fated brigade, under General Wauchope, moved cautiously through the darkness toward the kopje where the Boers were most strongly intrenched. They were led by a guide, who was supposed to know every inch of the country, out into the darkness of an African night.

"The brigade marched in line of quarter column, each man stepping cautiously and slowly, for they knew that any sound meant death. Every order was given in a hoarse whisper, and in whispers it was passed along the ranks from man to man. Nothing was heard as they moved toward the gloomy, steel fronted heights but the brushing of their feet in the veldt grass and the deep drawn breaths of the marching men.

"[illegible] onward until 3 of the clock on the morning of Monday. Then out of the darkness a rifle rang, sharp and clear, a herald of disaster; a soldier had tripped in the dark over the hidden wires laid down by the enemy. In a second, in the twinkling of an eye, the searchlights of the Boers fell, broad and clear as the noonday sun, on the ranks of the doomed highlanders, though it left the enemy concealed in the shadows of the frowning mass of hills behind them.

"For one brief moment the Scots seemed paralyzed by the suddenness of their discovery, for they knew that they were huddled together like sheep within 50 yards of the trenches of the foe. Then, clear above the confusion, rolled the voice of the general, 'Steady, men; steady!' and, like an echo to the veteran's voice, out came the crash of nearly a thousand rifles.

"The highlanders reeled before the shock like trees before the tempest. Their best, their bravest, fell in that wild hail of lead. General Wauchope was down, riddled with bullets, yet gasping, dying, bleeding from every vein, the highland chieftain raised himself on his hands and knees and cheered his men forward. Men and officers fell in heaps together.

"The Black Watch charged, and the Gordons and the Seaforths, with a yell that stirred the British camp below, rushed onward—onward to death or disaster. The accursed wires caught them round the legs until they floundered like trapped wolves, and all the time the rifles of the foe sang the song of death in their ears. Then they fell back, broken and beaten, leaving nearly 1,300 dead and wounded just where the broad breast of the grassy veldt melts into the embrace of the rugged African hills.

"An hour later the dawning came of the dreariest day that Scotland has known for a generation. Of her officers, the flower of her chivalry, the pride of her breeding, but few remained to tell the tale, a sad tale truly, but one untainted with dishonor or smirched with disgrace, for up those heights, under similar circumstances, even a brigade of devils could scarce have hoped to pass. All that mortal men could do the Scots did. They tried, they failed, they fell, and there is nothing left us now but to mourn for them and avenge them.

"All that fateful day our wounded men lay close to the Boer lines under a blazing sun. Over their heads the shots of friends and foes passed without ceasing. All day long the battle raged. Scarcely could we see the foe. All that met our eyes were the rocky heights that spoke with tongue of flames whenever our troops drew near.

"Once our guards made a brilliant dash at the trenches, and, like a torrent, their resistless valor bore all before them, and for a few brief moments they got within hitting distance of the foe. Well did they avenge the slaughter of the Scots. The bayonets, like tongues of fame, passed above or below the rifles' guard and swept through brisket and breastbone. Out of their trenches the guardsmen tossed the Boers, as men in English harvest fields toss the hay when the reapers' scythes have whitened the cornfields, and the human streams were plentiful where the British guardsmen stood.

"Then they fell back, for the fire from the heights above them fell thick as the spume of the surf on an Australian rockribbed coast. But the guards had proved to the Boer that, man to man, the Briton was his master.

"In vain all that day Methuen tried by every rule he knew to draw the enemy. Vainly the lancers rode recklessly to induce those human rock limpets to come out and cut them off. Cronje knew the mettle of our men, and an ironic laugh played around his iron mouth, and still he staid within his native fastness.

"But death sat ever at his elbow, for our gunners dropped the lyddite shells and the howling shrapnel all along his lines until the trenches ran blood, and many of his guns were silenced. In the valley behind his outer line of hills his dead lay piled in hundreds, and the slope of the hill was a charnel house, where the wounded all writhed amid the masses of the dead, a ghastly tribute to British gunnery.

"When, at half past 1 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, we drew off to Modder river to recuperate, we left nearly 3,000 dead and wounded of grim old Cronje's men as a token that the lion of England had bared his teeth in earnest."

FIGHT OF OSTRICHES.

Vicious Encounter Between Two Birds In a City Park.

Two ostriches at the City park, in Trenton, one named McKinley and the other named Cleveland, had a battle the other day, and Cleveland was killed. Both birds were given to the city by Colonel A. R. Kuser. It is said that the fight started over a contest for food, and that it lasted a half hour. The dead bird was valued at $5,000. Parkkeeper Mitchell has officially reported to the park commission that the McKinley bird is so dangerous now that no one dares approach him.

Mr. Mitchell says that before the fight neither bird was aggressive toward him, but now the survivor makes a rush at him whenever he enters the inclosure.

The birds were strong and active, and either one of them, the park attendants say, could kick a cow over. There was bad blood between them from the day that they came to the park, and they were kept in separate apartments nearly all the time. Recently the birds were turned loose in a field and one of the park guards was told to keep an eye on them. The animals seemed to have made up. Soon, however, the birds started toward each other like locomotives in a head on collision, says the New York Sun. Cleve- [illegible] struck McKinley a powerful blow with his leg that knocked him on his back, but he was up in an instant. After circling around two or three times Cleveland made a second attack that knocked McKinley up against a fence.

The animals hammered each other regardless of all the rules of the prize ring. Finally Cleveland received a kick in the chest that laid him low. He fell in a heap, and McKinley was on top of him in the twinkling of an eye and stamped him to death. The victorious ostrich then had a dance about his dead victim.

In the fight McKinley swelled at the neck like a pouter pigeon and growled like a lion. The neck was enlarged to four or five times its natural size. At least a score of vicious blows were struck by each bird. The park attendants were afraid to interfere.

CRUSOE'S ISLAND.

German Canning Firm Has Recently Leased It From Chile.

The government of Chile has recently leased the island of Juan Fernandez, sacred to the memory of Robinson Crusoe, to a firm of Germans, who have erected a canning factory and are putting up fish, lobsters and crabs for the South American market, says the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Record. They also have herds of cattle and goats on the ranges and ship a great deal of fresh beef to Valparaiso. The goats are raised for their skins and are descended from the animals that furnished food for Robinson Crusoe.

The island is situated about 400 miles west of Valparaiso, and the lessees send a sailing ship back and forth with regularity. There is quite a town at Cumberland bay, composed of their employees. Occasionally parties of sportsmen from Chile go over to Juan Fernandez for shooting, and it is a favorite resort for naval vessels, as it offers a good opportunity to give the men liberty without exposing them to the temptations of city life. The island is about 26 miles long and ten miles wide at the broadest part and is covered with beautiful hills and lovely valleys, the highest peaks reaching an elevation of 3,000 feet. The landscape and many of its topographical features are correctly described in the story, but Defoe located it in the Caribbean sea near Trinidad. The story of Robinson Crusoe follows closely the experience of Alexander Selkirk, as related by him to Daniel Defoe after his return to England.

SUCCESSFUL WORK.

Rev. R. W. Peach Reviews Progress of Water St. Church.

At the Water street Presbyterian church, Sunday evening, Rev. Robert W. Peach, who has resigned, to accept a call to Camden, N. J., briefly reviewed his work as pastor of the church.

He said that during his pastorate there had been 188 additions to the membership, although it had suffered largely by removal on account of depression in the granite industry, and by death, a total of 47.

There were 155 active members when he commenced his labors at the church and there now 222.

The infant baptisms had been 138, marriages [illegible] baptisms attended 58 funerals 42, and he had [illegible] baptisms [illegible]. The number of [illegible] was the largest of any church [illegible] presbytery.

The church had the second largest Sunday-school in the East Norfolk Sunday-school Union, which embraces more than 50 churches.

The number in the Sunday school was 265. Since his pastorate, improvements have been made to the interior of the church and new pews and an organ purchased. He closed by giving his hearers some wholesome advice and wishes for future prosperity.

On Thursday afternoon Rev. and Mrs. Peach will be at home to all parishioners.

Tremont Theatre.

Miss Mary Sanders, the young, bright, pretty clever and fascinating little actress, who is one of the most popular impersonators of ingenues on the contemporary stage, and is universally regarded as a worthy successor to the genius and the roles of the famous Lotta, will begin on Monday, Jan. 22d, at the Tremont theatre, a starring tour in "Little Nell and the Marchioness," a new dramatization by Mr. Harry P. Mawson, of Dickens' famous novel, "The Old Curiosity Shop," which competent critics have declared the best ever made. Miss Sanders, of course, will play the dual role of Little Nell and the Marchioness, which is well calculated to display her unquestioned abilities, her remarkable versatility and charming personality. Her supporting company has been selected with great care. The piece is staged by Mr. William Seymour, and set with beautiful new scenery, and the production is as complete as unremitting attention, untiring effort and lavish expenditure can make it.

Worth Reading.

To the Editor:

I think it my duty to inform your readers of a remedy that should be in every household.

I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and Constipation and tried everything in vain. In despair I bought a ten cent package of the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets, 17 East 14th St., New York, and in three days I felt better and afterwards I bought a twenty-five cent package and now I am completely cured. Your druggist can and must get it for you.

Yours truly,

Located In Chicago.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 22.—Charles L. Foote, who is reported to be under arrest in Chicago, left this city on Dec. 10, 1896, and at the same time an actress known both as Wood and Harper left the city. After Foote disappeared it was alleged that he had taken $4900 from the Fall River Co-operative bank and $2300 from Lincoln & Hood, with whom he had been a trusted clerk. He also held a clerkship for the bank. Foote left his wife and child in almost destitute circumstances. Some time after Foote left he was located in Chicago, where he had lived for six months with the woman who was thought to have been his companion at the time of his disappearance.

Carders' Pay Cut Down.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 22.—When the 45 carders employed at City mill No. 1 received their pay envelopes Saturday they found that their pay had been cut down anywhere from 25 cents to $1.50 each. Inquiring into the cause they were told that the operatives had been overpaid in this mill, receiving more than the carders in mill No. 2. The carders claim that the pay of the carders in No. 2 mill is not up to standard, and the talk is that they will strike. The operatives say that the carders in No. 2 mill are not getting any more wages at the present time than they were receiving previous to April, 1899.

Skipped With Others' Money.

Stamford, Conn., Jan. 22.—It is the belief here that James M. Fitzgerald, who until Saturday afternoon was employed as shipping clerk at the Waterside mills, and his room-mate, Frank Carroll, a barber, have taken their departure from this city to fight the Boers, and the expenses of their journey will be paid out of $350 that Fitzgerald received Saturday morning to pay the employes of the mill. Fitzgerald came here from England about three years ago. He enlisted in the English army when but 16 years old, and has served in the Egyptian campaign and later at Cape Colony.

Killed Destroyer of His Home.

Salt Lake, Jan. 22.—Captain Frederick J. Mills, former lieutenant governor of Idaho, was acquitted of the charge of murder. The jury took but one ballot. Captain Mills killed John C. O'Melveney in this city on Oct. 30 last. The evidence showed that while the defendant was absent serving as an officer of the volunteer army his wife and O'Melveney became intimate. The captain killed O'Melveney on sight.

Savere Defeat For Yaquis.

San Francisco, Jan. 22.—A special to The Examiner from Nogales, Mex., says a battle has been fought by the Mexicans and Yaquis, in which the Yaquis were defeated with heavy loss. Their killed numbered 200. Five hundred were taken prisoners.

Pingree May Run Again.

Detroit, Jan. 22.—Governor Pingree announces that if D. M. Perry of Detroit is nominated for governor by the next Republican state convention he will be a candidate for re-election on an independent ticket. Governor Pingree declares that Mr. Perry is not in accord with the taxation reforms he has been working for for the past four years, and bases his objection to him as a candidate on this fact.

Osman Digna Caged.

Suakim, Jan. 22.—Osman Digna, principal general of the late Khalifa Abdullah, who was captured last Thursday in the hills near Tokar, was brought here yesterday and imprisoned.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. THE FINANCIAL BILL

Will Give Way to Speeches on Other Subjects In the Senate This Week.

House Will Probably Dispose of the Roberts Case.

Struggle Over Question of Procedure, Upon Which Committee Have Split.

Washington, Jan. 22.—The senate again this week will devote itself almost exclusively to speech making. A variety of subjects will be covered. The financial bill will remain the unfinished business, but the senate will not be held strictly to its consideration. Several set speeches, probably, will be made upon it, among those who are expected to speak being Senators Cockerell, Daniel and Allen.

No announcement has yet been made of speeches on the affirmative side of the measure, but now that a day has been agreed upon for a vote, it may be expected that some of the friends of the bill will speak in its defense.

The first speech of the week will be made by Senator Pritchard on his resolution declaring the proposed amendments to the constitution of North Carolina to be in contravention of the federal constitution. He will be followed by Senator Turner, in a prepared speech, on the Philippine question. Mr. Ross will address the senate on the application of the constitution of the United States to Puerto Rico and the Philippine archipelago. He will be followed by Mr. McEnery with a speech on the North Carolina constitutional question.

The two reports on the Quay contest will be presented, and as this contest is a privileged question it is not unlikely to receive early attention.

Senator Penrose, who is in charge of Mr. Quay's case, says he will ask that the contest be pressed to an early decision in the senate. The Samoan treaty also will be taken up again in executive session on the motion of Senator Jones of Arkansas to reconsider the vote by which it was ratified. The treaty has been already returned to the senate, to await the disposition of the Arkansas senator's motion.

The feature of the proceedings in the house this week will be the consideration of the case of Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon representative-elect from Utah. The case has attracted intense interest all over the country.

Though both the majority and the minority of the committee which investigated the case agree that Mr. Roberts should not sit as a member of the house, on account of alleged polygamous practices, there will be a royal struggle over the question of procedure, upon which the committee has split. The case will be called up tomorrow, and two, possibly three days, will be devoted to it. The majority of the committee hold that Mr. Roberts should be excluded, while the minority contend that he should be seated and then expelled, basing their argument for this course upon the ground that Mr. Roberts possesses all the constitutional qualifications for membership, and that any attempt to exclude him upon the theory that congress has the power to add to those qualifications would establish a dangerous precedent that might return to plague congress in the future.

Mr. Littlefield of Maine and Mr. De Armond of Missouri, who presented the minority report, will make a strong fight, and they believe they can convince a majority of the house that the course they advocate is the only proper one to pursue. The majority of the committee, on the other hand, are confident that they will be backed by a majority of the house. Mr. Roberts is expected to make a plea in his own defense.

Should he be seated in accordance with the contention of the minority, a resolution to expel him will be immediately offered, and this doubtless will carry by an almost unanimous vote, although the majority in their report have insisted that once seated a member cannot be expelled for acts committed before he was a member of the house.

Today will be devoted to District of Columbia matters, and Friday to eulogies upon the life and public services of the late Vice President Hobart.

Was Apparently Uninjured.

Boston, Jan. 22.—The steamer Halifax, outward bound from Boston to Halifax, went ashore on the flats off Spectacle island, in the lower harbor. Her position was learned by accident. Since the United States tug Resolute was sunk there has been no communication with Fort Warren after dark. Saturday a number of the officers at the fort, wishing to come to the city, chartered a tug, and as they came up the harbor the Halifax was passed in her predicament. The Halifax rested easily, and floated on the next tide and proceeded.

Bodies Not Yet Recovered.

St. John's, Jan. 22.—Another rainstorm with a fierce gale yesterday prevented the intended effort to recover the bodies of the victims of the Helgoland disaster. The effect of the storm upon the sea will probably postpone the attempt for two or three days; and it is now feared that owing to the continuance of rough weather such as is usual at this season few if any of the bodies will ultimately be recovered.

Caught by Ice Jams.

Springfield, Mass., Jan. 22.—During the past 24 hours ice jams have carried away the wooden bridge connecting the towns of West Springfield and Agawam. The structure was a temporary affair and was erected over Agawam river last July by the Pittsburg Bridge company. The new bridge will not be completed for some months. Save for a roundabout route the two towns are isolated.

"DEN OF FILTH AND INIQUITY."

What an Examination of a Cuban Women's Prison Revealed--Officials Are "Astonished."

Havana, Jan. 22.—MajorRuncie, who has been at work for some time investigating the circumstances surrounding the detention in prison of persons charged with various offenses, to many of whom no trial has been granted, is engaged in preparing a report of a visit he recently paid to the women's prison. This institution he describes as "a den of filth and iniquity." He did not find a cot, a blanket or a female attendant in the prison where several hundred women are confined. The sanitary conditions are almost indescribable. He says he cannot understand how such a place could have been tolerated in a so-called civilized community. His examination reveals a state of affairs worse than anything yet written regarding Spanish mismanagement.

What Major Runcie has already made known seems to astonish the Cuban officials. They assert that Senor Lanuza is principally to blame, as, in his position as secretary of justice in General Brooke's cabinet, he ought to have discovered the existence of these enormities.

General Wood describes the leper hospitals which he recently visited as a "filthy hogpen."

The commission which has been investigating the records of prisoners confined in the Carcel has nearly completed its labors. It will soon begin the investigation of cases in the Presidio. The prisoners are awaiting the result with great eagerness, as all expect some improvement in the conditions of confinement. The governor general's decree of pardon has thus far been applied to 318.

The bread strikes continue. Nevertheless sufficient bread is made to supply the market by the masters and by some of the strikers who have their own bakeries.

W. W. Howard, general manager of the Cuban industrial relief fund, reports that the first winter crops on the relief farms at Ceiba and Mocha are now being marketed at Matanzas, bringing good prices. Sweet potatoes, beans, peas and fodder corn are being sold. Irish potatoes, which have greatly benefited by the recent rains, will be ready, Mr. Howard expects, next month.

Straight From the Shoulder.

Oakland, Cal., Jan. 22.—Rev. James C. McInnes, pastor of the Oakland Congregational church, yesterday announced his retirement from the ministry. Said he: "I believe in dancing and a lot of other things that are tabooed by church-goers, when indulged in by ministers. If a man needs a drink he has the right to take one. I believe in God and Christianity, but the church is burdened with false ideas and is full of sniful hypocrites, and some of my friends who might be called "lushers" are infinitely better than these frauds of piety. The ministry is no place for a young man who wants his personal liberty. He must be too much of a hypocrite himself and overlook too much hypocrisy in others."

Charged With Theft of $20,000.

New Haven, Jan. 22.—Several days ago the house of H. A. Lincoln was entered and money, bank books, notes, etc., to the value of $20,000 taken. The matter was reported to the police, who have been investigating the matter quietly ever since. The arrest of Aaron H. Swan is the result of their efforts. Swan is about 52 years old and is a house painter by trade. He has been employed about Mr. Lincoln's premises, doing various odd jobs, and was thoroughly familiar with the location and arrangement of the various rooms.

Held on Larceny Charge.

Boston, Jan. 22.—Chief Inspector Watts received a telegram yesterday announcing the arrival at White Plains, N. Y., of William W. Coe, former treasurer of the Altham International Motor company, who is wanted here on a warrant charging him with larceny of $5000 from George Francis of this city. Chief Watts wired instructions that Coe be held until the arrival of extradition papers. Coe is a resident of Somerville, and has a wife and two children.

A Wonderful Record.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Jan. 22.—Ex-Judge Schoch, the oldest editor in point of active and continuous service on one newspaper in the United States, died here yesterday, aged 86. Ex-Judge Schoch took charge of the Jeffersonian in 1840 and since then has been editor and publisher. He enjoyed the best of health up to within two weeks ago and did work on his paper until quite recently. In politics the veteran editor was a Republican.

Carried Off on Ice Guard.

Bristol, Vt., Jan. 22.—Edward Tart lost his life late Saturday evening by being carried down the river on the ice guard at the tool house of the Electric company. The guard was carried off by the water, and Tart's body was recovered yesterday a mile below the village. It had been carried four miles down the stream, over five dams, the clothing being entirely gone, while the body was badly bruised.

White at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Montagu White, formerly consul of the Transvaal republic at London, and who, it is understood, is in this country to endeavor to obtain recognition as the diplomatic representative of the republic here, arrived in the city yesterday from New York.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The storm of Saturday night has moved off Newfoundland, causing gales on the New England coast. These gales have also caused a fall in temperature in the middle and north Atlantic states, Eastport reporting a fall of 38 degrees in 24 hours, and Boston 32 degrees. Rain has fallen in the middle and north Atlantic states, turning into snow in northern New England. Generally fair weather will prevail over the whole country, with a rise in temperature in New England. Variable winds, becoming southwesterly, may be expected on the north Atlantic coast.

WAS HIT ONLY ONCE.

Boston, Jan. 22.—There was a deadly assault on Billerica street, in the West End, early Saturday night. Jeremiah Long, 62 years old, is dead from a stab wound in his neck. Thomas Biscati, 30, an Italian, is under arrest, charged with the crime. A woman, an Italian hairdresser, and three men are held as witnesses to the affair. The stabbing occurred on the sidewalk in front of 58 Billerica street.

Mrs. Kate McHugh rents the whole building at 59, on the opposite side of the street, living on the Second floor with her husband and three grown children, sub-letting the rest of the house to other tenants. About three weeks ago she rented three rooms on the lower floor to Agnes Costello, an Italian hairdresser, who fitted up one room as a barber shop, used the other as a living room and sublet the other to Jerry Long, the victim.

Mrs. McHugh says that some time between 6 and 7 o'clock Saturday evening Long came into the house and was proceeding to his room when the Costello woman came out into the entry and demanded his rent. Long claimed that he had paid it and refused to discuss the matter further. Biscati then followed the woman into the hall and joined in the conversation, the discussion ending in a row.

Patrolman Lane was called in, and, as he supposed, settled the disturbance, after which he went out and resumed his beat. Long went into his room, but in a short time came out into the hallway again and the trouble broke out afresh. Blows were then struck and both men gradually worked their way into the street, Long crossing over and the Italian following him.

The former had scarcely reached the sidewalk when suddenly the Italian jumped upon him. Mrs. McHugh says she saw something flash in the gaslight and then the Italian made two lunges at the other. The first blow went wide of its mark, but the second struck Long in the throat, severing the jugular vein. He fell to the ground. Biscati took to his heels, but was finally overtaken by George Sweeney, aged 17, who grasped him around the body, threw him down and, despite the Italian's struggles, held him until the police arrived and took him into custody.

Long's body was taken to the morgue. He was a hod carrier by occupation, and is said to have been addicted to the use of liquor at times. Biscati was employed by the Costello woman in her barber shop, and as far as can be ascertained has heretofore borne a good reputation.

Knocked Out a Chinaman.

Shelton, Conn., Jan. 22.—As the result of an altercation between Robert Main, 20 years old, with Wah Lee, a Chinese laundryman, Saturday night, Main is held in custody pending the possible death of the Chinaman. A disputed laundry check brought about the dispute and Main struck Wah Lee with such force that he fell to the floor and concussion of the brain was the result.

Railway Tied Up.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 22.—Not an electric car was run on the entire Troy division of the United Traction company yesterday. All the motormen and conductors had gone on strike for an increase of wages. The Troy division of the road includes Lansingburg, Waterford and Cohoes, and no car has been run in those places.

The Delaware, Lackawana and Western company has begun to close its mines. Officials of the company declare this is done because of an overproduction for market demands, but the miners think it is done for the purpose of anticipating labor troubles.

3 O'CLOCK.

LACK OF FRESH NEWS.

Nothing Known of Operations In Natal Since Sunday.

Official and Popular Anxiety Is at High Tension.

Good Judges Look Upon Buller's Enterprise as a Forlorn Hope.

Executing a Movement Similar to One Which Failed In Our Civil War.

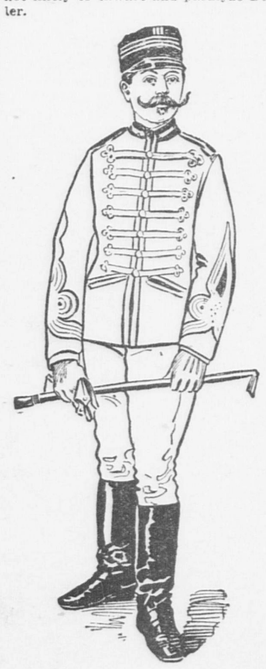

London, Jan. 23.—Just before midnight the war office issued the following dispatch from General Buller:

"Spearman's Camp, Jan. 22, 6 p. m.—The following casualties are reported in General Hart's brigade as a result of yesterday's fighting: Killed, Captain Ryall, Yorkshire regiment, and five men; wounded, Second Lieutenant Andrews, Border regiment; Captain Ardagh, Gloucestershire regiment, Inniskilling Fusiliers, Lieutenant Barlow, Yorkshire regiment, and 75 men; missing, eight men. Other casualties will be forwarded when received."

The foregoing was all the war office had issued up to midnight. Nothing, therefore, is known here as regarding Monday's operations.

Military men assume that fighting must have taken place, and that it was probably more severe than on the two preceding days. General Buller would not be likely to give the Boers leisure to add to the elaborate entrenchments, to arrange their artillery and to concentrate their forces.

British military experts familiar with the history of the American Civil war assert that Buller, after failing to force the Tugela by a frontal attack at Colenso, very much as Burnside was defeated at Fredericksburg, has attacked the enemy in the flank, and is executing an encircling movement similar to the one planned by Hooker at Chancellorsville. They hasten to add that Hooker's strategy would have succeeded if Lee had not shown brilliant skill in the counter attack, and that Joubert, even with Count Villebois de Mareuil and other European advisers behind him, is not likely to thwart and paralyze Buller.

COLONEL COUNT GEORGE DE VILLEBOIS MAREUIL.

They describe the present strategetic combination as a western turning movement of the Dutch defenses, by which the possession of Acton Homes and Dewdrop road, leading to Ladysmith, will be gained. It will then be converted into an encircling movement, the Ladysmith garrison co-operating with Warren's and Clery's forces in closing in upon the Dutch positions around Colenso.

The risk of a counter-stroke, however, seems more serious than the British experts seem prepared to admit, and the Englishmen have apparently neglected the precaution of entrenching the important positions like Springfield and Chieveley Camp, which are exposed to the Boer counter-attack.

The special correspondents Sunday night were allowed to send the announcement that the battle would be almost certainly resumed the following day, and hence official and popular anxiety is at high tension. The British military experts all share the hopes of their leaders and, as Spencer Wilkinson points out, they hesitate to say a word that might be unfavorable. Mr. Wilkinson refers to the "cooler judgment of German and Austrian critics," which means that some of the best judges look upon General Buller's enterprise as a forlorn hope, as merely a continual train of fighting, which may prove too much for the physical energy of the troops engaged.

The Daily Chronicle's military expert says: Even when a battle is won in a single day, as a rule pursuit is only possible when fresh troops are available. But in this instance it is not a question of mere pursuit, but of renewing an attack upon entrenched positions after a day's hard fighting and a night of lying on the battlefield.

Reinforcements aggregating 5000 or more have reached Cape Town during the last three days. It is uncertain how these have been disposed, but probably most of them have been sent to Natal, where it is believed General Buller needs them.

The British in other districts in South Africa continue inactive. Lord Methuen's 13,000 men remain behind their works. General French's 4000 at Rensburg were roused by a general alarm that the Boers were attacking on Sunday, but there was no basis for this. General Gatacre is quiescent at Colesburg.

The Brussels correspondent of The Chronicle asserts that he has learned from authentic sources that the Boers have between 85,000 and 90,000 men in the field.

Affairs at Sterkstrom continue quiet. Tremendous swarms of locusts are passing over the British camp in a northerly direction and are destroying the grass on the veldt. Commandant Olivier threatens to detain as prisoners of war any newspaper correspondents captured by his force.

The discontent of the colonial officers and their disagreements with the regulars are being inquired into by Lord Roberts, who asserts that he will give the Cape colonials equal opportunities.

At Ladysmith the deaths from enteric fever and dysentery average 10 a day. Some fears are expressed by the garrison that by privation and disease as to be unable to fight. Buller's way of helping General White not to send the war office has decided, Eighth Hussars, Seventeenth Lancers, Life guards to Natal, Second and Seventh Dragoon Guards to South Africa, although mobilized, the Pioneers understood that Lord Roberts does not see a way to get fodder for the English chargers. More than that the English cavalry are too heavy for work on the veldt, and Lord Roberts expects to use colonial cavalry instead.

Professor Hazen's Misfortune.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Henry A. Hazen, professor of meteorology and one of the chief forecasters of weather conditions at the weather bureau in this city, was probably fatally injured last night by being thrown from his bicycle. He ran into a colored man, the force of the contact throwing him from the wheel and pitching him forward on his head, the skull being cracked from over the nose to the back of the head and causing a hemorrhage of the brain. Professor Hazen has since 1881 been identified with the government weather service at Washington.

Couldn't Resist Temptation.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Clyde Wallace was yesterday held to the federal grand jury in $7500 bonds on the charge of stealing a sack of gold from the United States sub-treasury in Chicago, in which he was a clerk. Government officers declared that Wallace received an excess of $5000 in gold when he made requisition on the vault clerk for $100,000 to be counted, and that, while this was evidently an error on the part of the vault clerk, it had placed him in the way of temptation and he had stolen the extra sack.

A Publisher's Downfall.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—A. P. T. Elder, formerly a publisher in Chicago, pleaded guilty in the United States district court yesterday to having used the mails to defraud. Elder was publisher of a work known as "Our Saviour In Art," and offered people flattering inducements to act as general managers in the sale of the books. He is said to have pocketed all the money sent him for salesmen's outfits. Sentence was deferred.

Druggists Receive Warning.

Laconia, N. H., Jan. 23.—County Solicitor Beckford has served notice on all druggists in this city that hereafter, during his administration at least, they must sell no more spirituous or malt liquors at retail, to be drunk on the premises. This action, it is alleged, is the result of a complaint to the solicitor made by parties locally interested in the enforcement of the prohibitory liquor law.

Winding Up Bank Affairs.

Boston, Jan. 23.—The doors of the Broadway National bank were opened yesterday to allow those who have claims against the bank to enter and have them proved. The work of proving claims commenced yesterday at the Globe National bank under the direction of Receiver Wing. This work will probably consume some time, owing to the complication of many claims.

Deserters Sentenced.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Privates Frank Murphy and Lyman Plum of company F, Second United States infantry, convicted of desertion by a court martial at Fort Thomas, Ky., have been dishonorably discharged from the army, and sentenced to two years each at hard labor in military prisons by an order issued by General Wade.

IS NOT A GAMBLER

Castellane Says He Never Played Cards or Speculated on Bourse.

Will Thrash De Rodays When He Returns to Paris.

Countess Anna Declares That "We Are the Happiest Couple on Earth."

New York, Jan. 23.—His face suffused with the flush of indignation, and his eyes snapping, Count Boni de Castellane stood upon the deck of the French line steamship La Bretagne as she swung into her pier at the foot of Morton street yesterday. He indignantly denied the sensational Paris reports that he had lost heavily in speculation on the Bourse, and had come to this country for more funds.

"Such stories are absolute calumnies," said he. "I never speculate, never, never! I am not a gambler. Believe me, my emotion is so great that I am not myself. I cannot too strongly deny these malicious reports."

None of the Goulds was at the pier to meet the count and countess. The countess was telling of their plans to stay at the Waldorf-Astoria when the count again broke in.

"On my return I shall use my cane on De Rodays. That is the only treatment fit for such a man. I never at any time have been a gambler. I never play cards or speculate on the Bourse. The statements about my finances, which seem to have obtained general credence, are due to political enmity."

The count called attention to the fact that he had sailed Jan. 13 and the stories of his alleged "posting" on the Bourse were printed Jan. 14.

Referring to The Figaro, the count declared he could not have dared to added: "It would [illegible] my financial print these stories about condition had I been in Paris."

"Yes," said the countess, who had been listening attentively to the count's statement, "the statements are all false. Why, they even printed that I had run away from the count, and that he had to follow me to the steamship in order to overtake me. We are the happiest couple on the earth, and never at any time has there been the slightest dissension between us. Both the count and myself are glad to visit America. I have been trying to come over here for a long time to see my brothers and sister, but this is my first opportunity to be in America since I was married five years ago. We expect to remain only about three weeks. We will go at first to the hotel, and after we have had a little chance to rest from the voyage we will see the family. The only thing I regretted about leaving Paris was that we could not well bring our two boys. One is 2 years old and the other 3."

Nipped by a Rattler.

Baltimore, Jan. 23.—Dr. Howard A. Kelly, professor of gynecology in the medical school of Johns Hopkins hospital, was bitten on the hand last night by a large rattlesnake, which he was exhibiting to illustrate a lecture. The doctor sucked the blood from the wound and continued his lecture for nearly half an hour after the occurrence. When he left for home he expressed the conviction that he had drawn all the venom from his wounded hand.

Objections to "Mere Attorney."

Santiago, Jan. 23.—The Chilian supreme court has begun the hearing in the case of Frederick T. Moore, accused of embezzling $53,000 from the National Bank of Commerce of Boston, who was arrested at Valparaiso in October last upon the application of the United States legation. The prisoner's lawyers protested against the United States government, represented by a "mere attorney." The case is unfinished.

Charged With Wilful Murder.

Boston, Jan. 23.—Tomasa Peschetta was in the municipal court yesterday to answer the charge of wilful murder of Jeremiah Long during a quarrel at the West End Saturday night. A short hearing resulted in the Italian being held for the grand jury. Evidence presented was to the effect that Peschetta stabbed Long in the neck and the latter fell to the ground and died.

Oscar Wants a Big Army.

Stockholm, Jan. 23.—In the Swedish budget, which balances nearly 150,000,000 kroner, and which is the largest on record, King Oscar asks for 46 new batteries of artillery by the end of 1903. One hundred thousand new Mausers are to be manufactured and 50,000,000 cartridges to be in store within four years. A credit is asked for a trial mobilization of the army reserves.

Chamberlain's Scheme Rejected.

Kingston, Jam., Jan. 23.—Jamaica has emphatically rejected Joseph Chamberlain's English direct fruit trade scheme to divert the bulk of the colony's trade from America to England, which calls for a subsidy of £40,000 annually, Jamaica paying one half. The concensus of public opinion indicates a preference to depend on American trade.

Hearing—State House.
Citation Notice.

Good Afternoon.

The Committee on Cities of the Legislature has already reported bills granting Taunton and Newburyport permission to incur debt, regardless of Gov. Crane's warning. Let the halt be enforced.

A correspondent suggests today that the Daily Ledger attempt to bring about an early settlement of the pending labor trouble in the granite industry. The importance of a friendly settlement is apparent to all, and the sooner it is reached the better it will be for manufacturers, cutters, the merchants and the city. We understand that up to the present time no [illegible] tures have been made by [illegible] manufacturers, alth[illegible] Dec 6. Quincy month ago [illegible] as a asked [illegible] ision of the [illegible] of prices, and made a request for an eight hour day and $3 per day. We have considerable sympathy with the movement for eight hours, and understood that the manufacturers are willing to adopt it. Whether the trade in Quincy granite can be adjusted readily to the payment of $3 per day we do not know, but hope the manufacturers of Quincy granite memorials will not be ruined or even curtailed by any demand to do the impossible.

There should be an early conference of committees of the manufacturers and cutters and overtures made for a prompt and amicable settlement. The Ledger would be pleased to bring this about; giving Quincy granite cutters the highest possible wages and the shortest hours, giving the Quincy manufacturers a liberal profit, and causing such a demand for Quincy stock that the city would be busy and flourishing. Our efforts will be along these lines. We would suggest that Mayor Hall confer immediately with the Manufacturers' Association and the Cutters' Union and suggest a conference. It seems very evident that the local union is waiting for some overture from the manufacturers, and it is a mistake to delay. There are rumors that the request cannot be arbitrated, that the cutters will not accept anything but an eight-hour day and $3, but these are only rumors and rumors should not count at a critical time like this.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is purposed to take "ue" off certain words to facilitate spelling. Take that much off a person's "queue" and what would be leff?—Lynn Item.

☞ Unless all signs fail the railroad fight in the Legislature will be one of the hottest known since the old Boston, Hartford & Erie was raiding the state treasury. Meanwhile the lobby is figuring on the biggest hay crop for 25 years.—Milford Journal.

☞ Mark Twain's famous diagnosis of New England weather is even more applicable today than when it was written. It will be remembered that Mark practically put all the meteorological changes into the space of 24 hours.—Brockton Times.

☞ There is a question as to what line of investments speculators will choose this year for the available millions which will be turned into some popular channel for increase. It is quite a general opinion that real estate will have its turn upon the wheel of fortune this season.—Beverly Times.

☞ A man came down from Monamet last Tuesday, and in trying to lift a barrel into his wagon "busted" the two buckles on his suspenders. Then he went around town, holding onto his trousers and telling folks he's got two-buckle-osis.—Plymouth Free Press.

But, evidently, it was a barrel, rather than a case of consumption.—Taunton Herald.

☞ The gypsy moth commission has asked for $200,000 from the State with which to carry on the work of exterminating the pests. The question is whether the commission is making any real progress in its efforts, or whether the fight is a losing one. If someone would only make gypsy moths fashionable in millinery circles their fate would be sealed and the insects be worth $10 apiece inside of a few years. —Old Colony Memorial.

☞ It cost the city of Fall River $126 to send a member of its board of health to the session of the American Public Health association in Minneapolis, and one of the newspapers says that all his associates on the board have been able to learn thus far is that the next meeting will be held in Annapolis. If they haven't learned better than to send another man on a similar errand, they are not as bright as Fall River men are reputed to be—New Bedford Standard.

☞ An interesting illustration of the working of the referendum was given in Switzerland recently, when the state councilers undertook to secure an increase of their official salaries. Their reasons for asking larger remuneration were accepted as sound by the public press, all the newspapers, conservative, radical and socialist, warmly indorsing the proposed increase. The approval of the electors was regarded as almost certain, but,to the great surprise of the councilors, the result of the vote showed only 2800 out of a total of 23,300 voters were in favor of increasing the salaries planned.—Naugatuck News.

☞ We may call England's attention to the fact that there is a small waterway, made not by British capital, but by nature, called the Straits of Gibraltar. England stands guard there, behind the greatest fortifications in the world, and tells the nations who [illegible] may and who may not pass between the Atlantic and the Mediterranean. In time of peace she lets the world use the waterway freely, as we should at Nicaragua, but in time of war she bars it to her enemies, as we should. Before she talks to us about neutralizing the Nicaragua canal, built with our money, on our continent, it would be well for her to dismantle her guns at Gibraltar.—New York Journal.

☞ Colonel Alexander McClure says there is not today in this country a single competent journalist out of employment. We are inclined to believe that he is right. No doubt there are incompetent ones who have employment, but that is chiefly because the supply of equally competent ones is not equal to the demand. Scores of men who think they want to work for the newspaper can be found, but a surprising number lack either industry or ability for the work. A good share of those who fail, fail for the former of these two reasons. Men of very ordinary ability, and without a sign of what is called "brilliancy," have made fine successes simply because they were willing to devote themselves to the occupation with unremitting industry and to make their avocation their chief concern.—New Bedford Standard.

Generous With 1900 Money.

The recent delivery of big supplies to the city, especially in Department of Public Works, where the days of the Commissioner are numbered, is causing considerable comment. It is said that the city stable never had such a large supply of hay and grain as has been placed there since Jan. 1. Other supplies have also been ordered in large quantities, so that it looks as if Mayor Hall's administration was to be handicapped at the outset.

—The lobstermen of Cohasset protest against any change in the law in relation to the construction of lobster pots, as they have their pots all ready for the year's work.

RIVAL BOAT LINES.

Houghs Neck Cannot Have Too Much of a Good Thing.

And the Projects Are Numerous for 1900.

May Have Two Lines of Electries and Lighted Streets.

Houghs Neck has evidently struck it rich, and if all the projects talked and proposed are carried out, this little peninsular will not be looked upon hereafter with scorn, but more with envy. Instead of being a little insignificant summer resort, known to but comparatively few people, it will occupy a prominent place on the map and will become as widely known and talked about and visited as Crescent beach, Nantasket, or any of the other well known seashore resorts upon the coast of Massachusetts.

Readers of the Ledger will recall that last summer it was briefly noted that there was a plan on foot to run a line of steamers between Houghs Neck and Boston. It would now appear, however, that if the plans under way are carried out, it will not only have one line of boats but two lines.

W. F. Macy representing the Manet Land Co. is the head of one of the schemes, and it is reported that his plans are so far along that work on his wharf has already been commenced, and that the steamboat for this line has been contracted for. Mr. Macy's wharf is to be built off Manet avenue near the localtion of St. Francis Catholic church. At this point there is a natural channel, and it is probable dredging will be necessary [illegible] his steamer making [illegible] to enable Just [illegible] which wharf in Boston the steamer will leave from is not known, but passengers upon their arrival at Houghs Neck will be taken to the midway by cars of the Quincy & Boston.

The Quincy & Boston is mentioned for the reason that the rival line of steamers is to be put on by a gentlemen who also proposes to build a street railway line to Quincy, if he gets a location, and therefore would not be expected to carry passengers of a rival line.

The other line of steamers is that proposed by Andrew A. Meyer. Mr. Meyer proposes, and is said to have already commenced, the building of a wharf near his property known as the Fensmere. The wharf in Boston from which this line is to start, is also in doubt. In addition to all this, Mr. Meyer, if a location is granted, to build a street railway line, from Houghs Neck to Quincy and promises service not equalled by any street railway in the country.

Mr. Meyer says that he intends running his street cars all winter. The Quincy & Boston claim they run their cars until the receipts average less than $2 per day although the expenses of operating the line amount to $12 or $15 per day.

The City of Quincy is also doing its share in furnishing a new broad driveway from the centre nearly the whole length.

What to do with the immense crowds after they are landed at Houghs Neck has not yet been divulged to the public but the enterprising store keepers and restaurants can be depended upon to do their part toward catering to the wants of the inner man. Of course it will be necessary to have daily band concerts, and this with the usual number of fakers who always go with a crowd will furnish plenty of amusement.

If as stated above, all these projects are carried out Houghs Neck will be in the swim.

"The Old Oaken Bucket" was inspired by the following conversation: Woodworth' the author, said to a friend "There is no drink better than brandy." The friend replied, "Yes there is. A drink from the old oaken bucket that hangs in the well at home."

—The proposed extension of Dorchester avenue, Boston, from Summer to Congress is a good move and will remove some travel from Dewey square.

A POTATO PATCH.

Single Taxers May Try the Experiment in Quincy.

William Lloyd Garrison and C. B. Fillebrown were in Quincy Monday night and gave a talk on the single tax question at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A. There was a very large attendance of well known citizens, several of whom took a hand in asking questions of the speakers. Among these were Henry H. Faxon who was loaded for game and of course kept the audience in good humor and called forth frequent applause.

The first interruption came when Mr. Garrison was talking of the fruits of land being owned by a tiller of the soil, and cited Gov. Pingree of Michigan. Mr. Faxon then said he had a farm on which he would like to see the potato plan tried.

Will you give the laborers your land free of charge? asked Mr. Garrison.

This question was a home thrust, but Mr. Faxon recovered himself while the audience applauded, and said he would give a lease of his land for five years. He was thanked for the offer by Mr. Garrison, who said he would send some one to Quincy at the first opportunity to take his land. At the close of Mr. Garrison's remarks, Mr. Faxon asked if taxes were abolished what was going to support the government.

The ground rents, replied Mr. Garrison.

But who is going to pay the owner for the ground rents?

The owner of the ground rents will have to work them, laughingly replied Mr. Garrison.

Mr. Fillebrowne gave an explanation of the single tax theory and cleverly answered a number of hot questions from Mr. Faxon [illegible] who tried to make Quincy an objec[illegible] who was taxed to get lesson of a place that was taxed to death. Mr. Fillebrowne was asked wh[illegible] he would do in a case like this.

Mr. Fillebrowne in replying made another home thrust, when he said, The first thing I should do would be to place a heavy tax on the most important land, that nearest the depot for instance.

Others who took part in the discussion and asked questions were Col. C. H. Porter, Henry M. Faxon, William Richard, Philip J. Halvosa and John Cornish.

Church Statistics.

We give today some corrected statistics of the First Presbyterian church. The active communicant membership at the beginning of the pastorate of the Rev. Robert Wesley Peach was 155. The additions during his pastorate, 188; total, 343. The losses by death were 15; by removal, 82, and by falling away, 24; total, 121, leaving a present membership of 222. Of those who have removed, 48 have taken letters of dismission; the rest are on the reserved roll. Of the present active membership, 15 are absent, and some will probably not return. During the past two years, the losses from death and removal have been 47. The number of infant baptisms has been 138, the largest within any church in Boston Presbytery, except the Lawrence German church.

—The big work near the roll lift bridge over Fort Point channel at South Boston is for a connecting loop between the Plymouth division track and the Providence division, to be used as an emergency route in case of accident to the roll lift bridges, and also as a Y for turning engines and trains.

Capt. E. Moss, a miner in the Transvaal, has a couple of dozen monkeys, which work regularly in the mines. Their work is to gather the small bits of ore which would otherwise be lost, and he says that they work very regularly, and seem to enjoy it.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

NOTICE TO PARENTS

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office, Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town [illegible] always more or less unsatisfactory, on account of the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of record is accepted as conclusive evidence in court of law. While great pains are taken at this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are often to doubt. I therefore request all parents whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 46 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

ADVANCE TOO GREAT.

Writer Believes Quincy Granite Cannot Stand It.

Supports His Conclusions With Several Reasons.

Suggests a Conference and Early Effort to Settle.

Editors Quincy Ledger:

Having the interest of Quincy at heart, and feeling that a decay in the granite industry of the town would effect not only the granite manufacturers themselves and their employes, but indirectly all the merchants of Quincy, I write this letter trusting that you will give it a space in your paper.

As is known quite generally the cutters have demanded an eight hour day and a minimum scale of 37 1-2 cents per hour, which if granted will mean an advance in the bill of prices of fully 25 per cent., and together with the recent increase in coal, steel, lumber oil and in fact everything connected with the production of granite works the manufacturer will have to obtain at least 35 per cent. more for his work than he has been getting for some years past. As far as decreasing the profits of the manufacturer is concerned, it is enitrely out of the question, for as a matter of fact scarcely a firm in Quincy has made more than a cutter's wages for its members for some years, and it can be safely said that a great many have not made even that. Certainly, it will have to be conceded that the average manufacturer works as hard as any of his men, besides having capital at stake, and is entitled to at least as much renumeration for his labors. Now the writer has been a close observer of the drift of the granite business for a long time, having traveled considerable, and is in close touch with not only the local wholesale trade, but the business at other centers and the retail trade throughout the United States. The question to be considered is, whether the price of Quincy granite monuments can be advanced 35 per cent. without affecting materially the business in Quincy. I say no, and am very positive in my belief.

My reasons are as follows: In the first place, a marked decrease in the retailers sales for the reason that nine customers out of every ten who buy the average grade of work constructed at Quincy, post themselves as far as possible on prices paid by relatives and friends for monumental work, and many will be very reluctant to give so large an increase, and once a sale is delayed it means as a rule that it never will be made, or if it is, it generally suffers a decrease in proportion to the amount of grief time has erased from the purchaser's memory.

It may be argued, time will gradually make people realize and appreciate the increased cost of production. This may be true, but in the meantime a greater amount of hammered work in lighter granites and more foreign granites will be sold, and once busines is diverted in other channels it will be pretty hard to turn it back. Quincy has had this experience before.

Secondly, nine dealers at least out of every ten will talk the granite in which there is the most money for themselves, and by far the great majority of customers will place a certain amount of confidence in the opinion of the dealer. If he can command as much for a certain design out of Scotch granite as he can for the same thing in Quincy, and as a rule he can, if he states one granite is as good as another, and there is 10 per cent. more in it for him, he certainly will endeavor to sell the Scotch. It is my frank opinion that this is one of the reasons Barre is today doing so much business.

Since the tariff on foreign granites has been raised their sale has decreased to a marked degree, and Quincy has been benefited by it more than any other centre, as about all imported granites contain more or less polished work which, as every one knows, is Quincy's strongest point. Now if Quincy should be advanced in price 35 per cent. instead of it being 10 per cent. cheaper than imported stones it would be 25 per cent. higher, and as I argued, the result is sufficient to alarm anybody.

Moreover more marble would be sold as it has been more the decrease in the price of granite that has killed the monumental marble trade than on account of granite being more adapted for this purpose. Besides a considerable more work would be cut outside of Quincy where the manufacturers can make their own terms with their men irrespective of labor organizations.

I know an instance in a city where there is a granite cutters' union, and although a certain manufacturer has all union men, still he does not pay anywhere near the minimum scale existing there. This could not be done so easily in Quincy, although the temptation would be even greater than at present.

To sum it all up, if the demands are granted in full, it would mean a decrease of fully 40 per cent. in the amount of business done in Quincy for at least two years, and the town would never again regain the prosperity enjoyed even during the past year. It would mean that the manufacturers would be so greedy for the business in the market that their margin of profit would even be cut lower than it is at present, and numerous men would be thrown out of employment, only the better class obtaining work. If there is a strike it is needless to outline the misery it creates.

Then why not compromise the matter. Let the Ledger take it up before it is too late. I can not speak authoritatively, but I think that the best men on either side would be willing to make concessions, and make an amicable settlement before March 1.

Respectfully yours,
Observer.

QUINCY ORANGEMEN.

Interested in South African War and Success of Boers.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

The Ledger of the 18th and 22d inst. gave vivid descriptions of the battle of Magersfontein, between the armies of Methuen, and Cronje.

While reading of battles, bombardments and sorties, from day to day, the question is apt to arise in the reader's mind, who is responsible for all this bloodshed.

If (as some assert,) the war in South Africa is the outcome of an unholy greed for gold on the part of certain London speculators, then the declaration of Holy Writ, that "The love of money is the root of all evil," receives fresh confirmation. To my mind war waged for gold is simply wholesale murder—the slaughter of the High land Brigade at Magersfontein is but another item in the long and bloody account.

In attacking the Boer position at Magersfontein, Lord Methuen forgot that he was face to face with the descendants of the sturdy Burghers of Holland, who, under William the Silent, and William Prince of Orange, won for themselves the inestimable boon of civil and religious liberty, in spite of the efforts of Spain, and France though backed by the power of the Pope, with the terrible Inquisition.

Grim old Cronje, mentioned in your dispatches, is the present day representative of the Dutch General Ginkell, the conqueror of Athlone, Aghrim, and Limerick. At Aghrim, Ginkell's army was driven back again an again from the breatworks so stontly defended by Saint Ruth's French and Irish veterans. But again and again the dogged Dutchman's infantry returned to the struggle. Saint Ruth laughed when he saw "the Blues" in single file cross the morass under a fire which laid many of them to the earth. "Let them cross, however," he said "the more they are the more we shall kill," but before night fell, Saint Ruth with 7,000 of his Irish army lay dead upon the field—the remnant in full retreat for Limerick.

The bravery of the Boer is a reflection of the cool courage of William III, Prince of Orange, whom we are told on the awful day of Landen, dismounted four times sword in hand to put heart into his infantry. Now he rallied one corps which seemed to be shrinking. Said he, "That is not the way to fight, gentlemen, you must stand close up to them. Thus, gentlemen, thus!"

That the war in South Africa may come speedily to an end, and that peace and good will may prevail among all nations is the earnest wish of a SIMPLE COLONIAL.

Design For a Handsome Cottage to Cost but $2,100.

[Copyright, 1900, by George Hitchings, architect, 1090 Flatbush avenue, Brooklyn.]

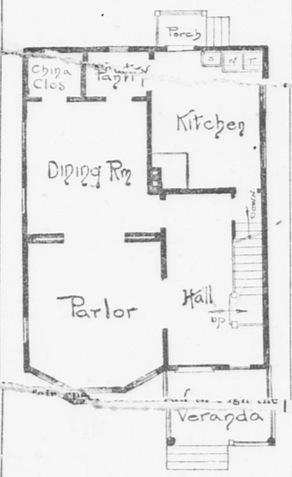

The plan here presented is admirably suited to the needs of a small family with a small income and combines utility of space and neatness of design to a marked degree. In appearance it will compare favorably with many houses of twice the cost, and no man who owns it need feel other than pride when contrasting it with the homes of more wealthy neighbors. The arrangement of rooms is particularly happy and insures the greatest economy of labor to the housewife. The appointments are modern and in keeping with the spirit of progress and improvement which has entered the American home.

The house is exceedingly well planned in the first and second stories as to convenient size and number of rooms. The laundry can be placed in the cellar, so as to give more space in the kitchen. The staircase is so arranged that a back stairs is not necessary, therefore making a great saving in the cost of the building. The exterior walls of the house are covered with bevel siding, with five inch white pine corner boards. All details, both interior and exterior, are of a simple colonial character, as shown on elevation.

The staircase is of ash, finished natural. The hall is separated from the parlor by portieres, and with very little extra expense could have sliding doors. There are sliding doors between the parlor and the dining room. The pantry is fitted up with dressers. The kitchen has all the modern improvements—soapstone tubs, galvanized iron sink and boiler and a No. 7 range, with gas attachment.

The cellar floor is concreted. The attic has two large rooms. The woodwork throughout the house is of cypress. Cost to build, $2,100.

To Clean Wine Decanters.

The old fashioned method for cleaning wine decanters is, after all, the best. Cut some brown paper into very small bits, so as to go with ease into the decanters; then cut a few pieces of soap very small, and put some milk warm water into the decanters upon the soap and paper. Put in also a little pearl ash. By well working this about the decanters it will take off the crust of the wine and give the glass a fine polish. Where the decanters have been scratched and the wine left to stand in them a long time have a small cane with a bit of sponge tied tight at one end; by putting this into the decanter any crust of the wine will be removed. When the decanters have been properly washed, let them be thoroughly dried and turned down in a rack where the rays of the sun will shine directly against them. When perfectly dry, polish with chamois and newspaper.

Legal Decision.

A contractor who agrees to furnish all material and complete a building for a stipulated price, to be paid as the work progresses, less a part reserved until the building is completed, cannot recover such remainder where the house is destroyed by fire, without fault of either party, before its completion, and the owner is not in fault as to previous payments.—Burke Versus Purifoy, 50 S. Worth Reading.

To the Editor:

I think it my duty to inform your readers of a remedy that should be in every household.

I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and Constipation and tried everything in vain. In despair I bought a ten cent package of the U. S. Army & Navy Tablets, 17 East 14th St., New York, and in three days I felt better and afterwards I bought a twenty-five cent package and now I am completely cured. Your druggist can and must get it for you.

IT LEGALIZES FRAUD.

Turner Talks of "Breach of National Faith."

Says Annexation of Philippines Would Debauch Citizenship of This Country.

Washington, Jan. 23.—At the conclusion of routine business in the senate yesterday Senator Pritchard spoke on his resolution declaring that the proposed amendment to the constitution of North Carolina is in contravention of the federal constitution.

Mr. Pritchard's address was a long and carefully prepared one on the race question in the south. He said that the proposed amendment, if enacted, would disfranchise a large class of voters, both white and black.

He stated that he regarded the plan as an attempt to legalize the fraudulent methods and practices of the Democratic party, and declared that he believed that the question involves the peace and welfare of the nation and the stability of our institutions. He accused Mr. Morgan of advocating nullification.

Senator Turner of Washington addressed the senate on the Philippine question. He declared that the proposed course of action, already partly accomplished, involves a breach of national faith, and that there are no grounds for its defense. He believes that the administration has neither the legal nor moral right to absorb and govern the Philippine islands without the consent of the people. He referred to [illegible] Beveridge's speech [illegible] as a "rhapsody" and said it lacked the harmony which can be evoked only when the nobler chords are struck. He said our action in the Philippines prevents us from preserving a "decent neutrality" between the "heroic people" in South Africa and "their assailants." He declared that the annexation of the Philippines would debauch the citizenship of this country and pauperize its labor. He concluded by saying that everybody knows that if congress declares its purpose to confer self-government on the Philippine people the war would stop instantly, and earnestly urged the adoption of such a resolution.

The first measure presented in the senate was that of Senator Platt of New York, authorizing the president to invite the government of Great Britain to join in an international commission to examine and report on the diversion of [illegible] waters that bound the two countries.

Mr. Hoar reported back the resolution of Mr. Rawlins for an inquiry on polygamy, with some changes. The measure was adopted as amended.

Mr. Allen asked that the secretary of the treasury furnish the senate with all information and correspondence in connection with the National City bank of New York. It went over under an objection.

The house was in session only 40 minutes and nothing of public importance was done except to refer to the speaker for settlement a dispute between the appropriations and military affairs committees relative to the estimates for the appropriations for the manufacture of small arms at the Rock Island and Springfield arsenals. Both committees claim jurisdiction. A few District of Columbia bills of minor importance were passed.

Found Husband In Jail.

Providence, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Emma K. Meekum of Washington, who was deserted by her husband in New York Nov. 28, two days after their marriage, is in this city looking for him. The husband is now in the county jail working out a fine of $20 and costs for beating the Narragansett hotel. She says that she does not intend to prosecute him, but wants to get from him some of her property. When she completes her errand she will return to New York, where she has friends. "It's a good thing," she said, "I got rid of him as easily as I did."

Vote Considered Worth $10,000.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The senate committee on privileges and elections held but a brief session yesterday on account of the non-appearance of witnesses. President Smith of the Montana National bank and Representative Murray of the Montana house of representatives were the only witnesses on the stand. Mr. Smith's testimony was immaterial. Mr. Murray testified that he was offered $10,000 to vote for Senator Clark by persons whom he considered representatives of that gentleman.

"If" the British Fleet Were There.

Omaha, Jan. 23.—Admiral Fitzgerald of the British navy, accompanied by his staff, passed through Omaha yesterday, en route from China to England. The admiral has just completed two years' service as second in command of the Asiatic squadron, and is going home on recall. Speaking of the Boer war, he said he felt certain that England would win in the long run, and that it would be done in a hurry if the British fleet could get at the Boers.

No Cars Running.

Troy, N. Y., Jan. 23.—The strike of the United Traction company's men has progressed to a point where the railroad managers have told the men to return to work or their places will be filled. Not a wheel moved yesterday and the company made no effort in the direction of a renewal of traffic. The men are on every street and corner where there is a track. If the company puts on strangers trouble is expected.

A Year's Job.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Half a million is the estimated cost of repairing the Olympia, according to the reports to the board on naval construction. The work will be done at the Boston navy yard, and will occupy about one year.

BARNET WAS POISONED.

Doctors Testify That No Evidence of Diphtheria Was Found at the Autopsy.

New York, Jan. 23.—First on the stand in the Molineux trial yesterday was Dr. Henry T. Loomis, who was present at the exhumation and the autopsy of H. C. Barnet's body. He testified that evidences of diphtheria were missing at the time of the examination of Barnet's body, and that he was of the opinion that Barnet died as a result of poison of mercury. Though closely cross-examined by Mr. Weeks, Dr. Loomis was positive that had Barnet died of diphtheria, despite the lapse of time between the interment and the autopsy, traces of diphtheria ought to have been as apparent as the evidences of mercurial poisoning.

Dr. A. C. White, who is connected with the board of health, said that in his mind there was not a shadow of doubt that Barnet died as a result of cyanide of mercury poisoning and not diphtheria. He said that when he was connected with the Willard Parker hospital he had frequently known cases of mercurial poisoning to get into a diphtheria ward by mistake.

Dr. Frank Ferguson, the pathologist who examined the stomach of Mrs. Adams, said that there was every indication that Mrs. Adams died of cyanogen of prussic acid, or cyanide of mercury.

Mathias M. Dodd, a representative of Tiffany's jewelry house, testified that Molineux had an account with that firm, and that he had made his last purchases there about a year ago. Later he was recalled to prove that the principal purchases made by the defendant were in the stationery department.

Dr. E. S. Potter, who was called in consultation at the time of the death of Mrs. Adams, testified that in his opinion the woman's death was caused by cyanide of potassium, or at least one of the cyanides. Dr. Potter was compelled to go into the details of the story of the events which occurred at the Adams flat on the [illegible] day of the poisoning. William Williams, a colored man employed at the address at which Rachael Green testified that Molineux had lived with Miss Chesebrough before he married her, identified the defendant as a man that he had seen at that place during a period of six months.

George H. Gordon, the stenographer at the coroner's inquest, was asked to read the testimony of Molineux at the inquest. The recorder would not permit this unless Mr. Osborne could prove that the defendant was not under formal accusation of the crime for which he is being tried at that time.

Detective McCafferty, John G. Kelly, Coroner Hart's secretary, and finally Coroner Hart himself appeared as witnesses for this purpose. Mr. Weeks was still engaged in cross-examination of Coroner Hart when court adjourned for the day.

Heelers Will Try New Device.

North Brookfield, Mass., Jan. 23.—The strike at E. & A. H. Batcheller's shoe factory changed yesterday afternoon, the heelers agreeing to return to work on the new machines as an experiment, and the edge setters, refusing a compromise offer, deciding to fight out the issue. A new heeling device has been introduced in this factory which may prove successful, and so be adopted elsewhere. This new heeling machine, the manufacturer claims, will enable the men to turn out, with the aid of a boy, twice as much work as the old process.

Usual "Freshness" Prevailed.

New Haven, Jan. 23.—The annual Junior Promenade Glee club concert at Yale last evening was the occasion for another of the freshman class demonstrations which are part of the traditions of the promenade season. The feature of the "horse play" this year was the fall of goose feathers from the topmost gallery. During the intermissions the freshman contingent from the top gallery kept up a continuous din of class calls, stopping only long enough to send down showers of cards, tissue paper torn fine and long streamers.

Violation of Civil Service.

New York, Jan. 23.—John J. Quinlan, for many years supervising inspector of the immigration service at this port and in charge of the contract labor bureau, has tendered his resignation. It is said at the barge office that the resignation was demanded by the secretary of the treasury because Quinlan, whose pay as an immigration officer is $10 per day, has also been drawing pay or commissions as a commissioner in condemnation proceedings.

Entertained by Belmont.

New York, Jan. 23.—Mr. Bryan was the guest of honor at a dinner given by O. H. P. Belmont last night at his residence on Fifth avenue. The dinner was private, no reporters being admitted, and to a pencilled note Mr. Belmont made response: "There will be nothing at, during or after the dinner for publication. The dinner is purely a social affair and of no public interest."

New Brunswick's Smallpox Epidemic.

Fredericton, N. B., Jan. 23.—Investigation of the smallpox epidemic shows that the disease was carried into the country by an old man from the infected district of Quebec. The old man is still travelling around the country. The smallpox is of a very mild type, which is shown by the fact that out of 250 cases in Quebec and 150 in Ontario only one has proved fatal.

New Electric Line Opened.

Northampton, Mass., Jan 23.—The new electric street railroad between this city and Amherst was formally opened yesterday afternoon, two carloads of citizens of Northampton, Amherst and Hadley being taken over the line by the directors, and later given a luncheon at a local hotel. Congratulatory speeches were made.

Seventy Thousand on Strike.

Vienna, Jan. 23.—Thirty thousand more Austrian miners have gone on strike, their employers having refused the demands for higher wages and an eight-hour day. The total number now out is 70,000, and before the end of the week it is expected that 20,000 others will have joined.

EMPLOYED AS CLOAK MODEL.

Mrs. George, Who Disappeared After Her Trial For Murder, Is In New York.

New York, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Anna E. George, the beautiful woman who was acquitted of the charge of murdering George D. Saxton, brother-in-law of President McKinley, disappeared from Canton soon after the sensational trial in which she figured. She has been found. She is in this city, and is employed as a model in one of the big cloak houses.

In Canton she was known as the finest formed woman in the city. She had a wealthy husband, but Saxton, drawn on by her beauty, playing the part of the villain, secured Mrs. George's love. She left her husband and secured a South Dakota divorce.

Then Saxton refused to marry her. She sued him, became reconciled and withdrew the suit. Then they quarrelled and separated. Saxton was shot and killed on Oct. 7, 1898. The trial of Mrs. George was sensational, but though some strong evidence was given against her, it was not sufficient to convict.

The end of the trial left Mrs. George penniless, although vindicated. She was 40, and had reached a time of life when most women have lost their beauty, but Mrs. George had not lost hers, and it stood her in good stead, for she was at once accepted when she applied for her job here.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 23.—In the house yesterday a debate on the Harrington bill, providing for giving local option in the different wards in the city of Boston, allowing the sale of liquor only in those wards where the mapority vote is for license, made the minutes interesting. Mr. Fitzgerald moved its reference to the committee on liquor law and the committee on metropolitan affairs sitting jointly, on the ground that Boston stood in a peculiar position with respect to certain of her own affairs, which were always considered by the metropolitan committee, and this was one Mr. Mills objected, saying if a bill relating to licenses in Boston should go to the metropolitan affairs, like bills from elsewhere should as properly go there. On division of the house the motion was defeated, 57 to 102, and the bill goes to the committee on liquor law.

Mayor Huse of Newburyport and Mayor Alger of Taunton were before the committee on cities, each asking that his city might go outside its debt limit for sewerage improvements.

The Massachusetts Single Tax league petitions for legislation authorizing cities and towns to assess upon land only taxes other than state and county tax.

Messrs. Blood, Carey, MacCartney and Mellen had a lively debate on the report of the committee on rules relative to the exclusion of lobbyists from the rooms of members. The house reconsidered the vote whereby the rule was adopted, and Mr. Carey proposed an amendment allowing outsiders to [illegible] on invitation of a member.

In the senate the committee on cities presented a unanimous report—leave to withdraw—on the petition that cities and towns may pension policemen and firemen.

Senator Soule moved that there be three Senate members of the special committee on the investigation of the gypsy moth. The motion prevailed, and Senators Chamberlain, Kenefick and Hazelton were appointed on the committee.

And Still No Chairman.

Boston, Jan. 23.—The board of aldermen met yesterday, but adjourned without electing a chairman. The session began at 3 o'clock. Mr. Adams moved to proceed to the election of a city clerk, in concurrence with the commonn council, and Mr. Doyle moved to proceed to the election of a chairman, but Mr. Norton interposed an order to adjourn till next Friday, which was carried by a vote of seven to six.

Knockout In Twenty-Fifth.

New York, Jan. 23.—Henry Lyons of Chicago knocked out Joe Cain of Brooklyn in the concluding round of their 25-round bout at catch weights in Brooklyn last night. For an unknown Lyons proved a revelation, his cleverness being beyond the ordinary. Up to and including the 10th round it proved to be one of the best 126-pound battles seen in the east.

It Has Happened

More than once that a child has been carried off by an eagle. When such a thing does happen the press rings with the story. There's not a line given by the press to the babies carried off daily by disease. It isn't the fact of the child being taken away that is startling or interesting, it's only when the method of taking off is novel that it excites interest. How many children die who might have been saved if the mother who bore them had been able to give them strength and vitality. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes healthy mothers and healthy mothers have healthy children, strong enough to resist disease if they are attacked.

Mrs. Axel Kjer, of Gordonville, Cape Girardeau Co., Mo., writes: "When I look at my little boy I feel it my duty to write to you. This is my fifth child and the only one who came to maturity; the others having died from lack of nourishment—so the doctor said. This time I just thought I would try your 'Prescription.' I took nine bottles and to my surprise it carried me through and gave us as fine a little boy as ever was. Weighed ten and one-half pounds. He is now five months old, has never been sick a day, and is so strong that everybody who sees him wonders at him."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets keep the bowels healthy and regular.

BAD NEWS TO FOLLOW.

London Opinion of the Latest Message From Buller.

Will Not Risk a Day Attack Upon the Enemy.

Roberts' Judgment Not Brought to Bear Upon the Movement.

Forward Movement Everywhere Appears to Be Waiting For Reinforcements.

London, Jan. 24.—The following dispatch from General Buller, dated at Spearman's camp, Jan. 23, 6:20 p. m., has been posted:

"Warren holds the position he gained two days ago. In front of him at about 1400 yards is the enemy's position, west of Spions kop. It is on higher ground than Warren's position, so it is impossible to see it properly.

"It can only be approached over bare, open slopes; and the ridges held by Warren are so steep that guns cannot be placed on them. But we are shelling the enemy's position with Howitzers and field artillery, placed on lower ground, behind infantry.

"The enemy is replying with Creusot and other artillery. In this duel the advantage rests with us, as we appear to be searching his trenches, and his artillery fire is not causing us much loss.

"An attempt will be made tonight to seize Spion kop, the salient of which forms the left of the enemy's position facing Trichard's drift, and which divides it from the position facing Potgieter's drift. It has considerable command over all the enemy's entrenchments."

General Buller's great turning movement, of which so much has been expected, has come to a standstill. His carefully worded message to the war office telling this, after a silence to two days, reads like an apology and an explanation.

General Warren holds the ridges, but the enemy's positions are higher. The British artillery is playing on the Boer positions, and the Boers are replying. The British infantry is separated by only 1400 yards from the enemy, but an approach to the steep slopes, across the bare open, would expose the British to a fatal rifle fire.

General Buller's plans have reached their development. He declines to send his infantry across this zone against formidable positions by daylight, and discloses his purpose to assault the spion kop heights during the night. This appears to be the key to the Boer defenses. If he takes it, and thus commands the adjacent country, and important and possibly decisive step will be accomplished.

It seems that General Buller's dispatch reached the war office rather early in the night, and was the subject of a prolonged conference between Lord Landsdowne, Mr. Balfour and several staff officials. A determination appears to have been reached not to give out the message during the night, but toward 2 a. m. copies of the dispatch were made for distribution among the newspaper offices. These arrived too late for extended comment. The Morning Post and The Standard touch lightly upon the unpleasant features of the dispatch, and takes hope from the projected night attack, but all things considered the dispatch looks like preparation for worse news.

Parliament will meet in five days. The cabinet had been hoping for one rattling British success to cheer the country, and to command generous support for fresh revenue measures. Among these will be probably an increase of the income tax to a shilling on the pound, but this would only provide the cost of five weeks' hostilities. The duties on tobacco, alcohol, tea and coffee are likely to be raised.

The cabinet will meet at the end of the week and discuss the situation. Political considerations, business, foreign and domestic, press upon the military authorities the necessity of speedily accomplish something. These authorities may be persuaded to urge General Buller to attempt his great operation without adequate preparation. This impression, whether true or not, is abroad.

Apparently Lord Roberts has nothing whatever to do with General Buller's operation. General Buller and the war office communicate with each other direct. Buller's scheme was conceived before Roberts arrived at Cape Town, and its execution was begun on the day he landed. The fact that the judgment of Lord Roberts has not been brought to bear upon the movement does not add to public confidence.

From Vienna comes the statement that the idea of the intervention of European powers is gaining adherents in influential quarters. The Daily Mail's correspondent regards the signs as unmistakable, and mentions especially suggestions printed in the Austro-Hungarian foreign office journals. Dispatches from Boer sources describe the renewal of the bombardment of Ladysmith as more heavy than any previous firing, and as intended to discourage a sortie, symptoms of preparations for egress from the town having been observed from the Boer positions.

Special dispatches heliographed from Ladysmith on Monday say that the investment has not been relaxed and that the garrison has ceased to speculate regarding the precise date of deliverance.

The position of the British forces outside of Natal is unchanged. The forward movement everywhere appears to be waiting for reinforcements.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Pietermaritzburg, dated Jan. 23, says: Lord Dundonald holds the road to Olivier's Hook pass. The latest arrivals from Johannesburg say that the Boer methods are working ruin to the mines. The Boers pick out the rich ore, leaving the cost of further developments to the shareholders. Stores are being robbed wholesale. The safe deposit vaults under the stock exchange have been broken up and jewelry and plate left by refugees have been extracted. Grass is growing in the streets, and cattle are grazing in fashionable thoroughfares. There are still about 2000 outlanders in the Transvaal. A letter received here from Harrismith relates that three Britishers were shot in the market square for refusing to go to the front when commandeered.

According to a special dispatch from Pretoria, it is reported there that 14 field cornets will be exchanged for 14 British officers.

The Times publishes a letter from Ladysmith, dated Dec. 19, the writer of which says that the beseiged town had full rations for at least two months.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 24.—In the house yesterday a message was received from Governor Crane, it being his first one, transmitting a communication received from Secretary Root of the war department in relation to the taking of lands by the national government on Lovell's island. It was referred to the committee on federal relations.

These petitions were presented: To extend the civil service law to the police and fire departments of the town of Natick; legislation providing that to obtain a residence in any precinct of the city of Boston for the purpose of voting, any person must have been a resident in one habitation for at least 30 days before May 1 of that year; to authorize the overseers of the New Bedford Monthly Meeting to convey property to the People's Baptist church of Nantucket; to incorporate the Phillipstown Street Railway company; that the county of $125 be paid to James T. Willet of Marlboro; legislation dividing the city of Marlboro.

The report of the gas commission, recommending the reduction of the price of gas in Haverhill from $1 to 80 cents, was made public.

The most interesting hearing of the day was that by the committee on education upon the bill to establish the office of state superintendent of music in the public schools.

For the first time in two years the house judiciary had a morning filled with hearings. The two Socialist representatives urged a measure to give persons sentenced for contempt of court a right of trial by jury, and another repealing the "Dubuque" law; and Representative Daly was heard on his bill to permit small stores to sell candy, "soft" drinks, etc., on Sundays.

The committee on rules met, but found itself tied in the "lobby" matter by a motion which included instructions to embody in the new rule the amendment "No legislative counsel or agent shall be admitted to said corridor or adjoining rooms." The committee talked matters over, but was not prepared to go quite to such lengths, and it decided, therefore, to take no action at present.

The speaker appointed to investigate the gypsy moth work, on the part of the house, Messrs. Smith, Bliss, Mills, MacCartney, Carruth, Edson, Winsloe and J. L. Donovan.

Seats Were at a Premium.

New York, Jan. 24.—W. J. Bryan ate his dinner last night at the Democratic club for the first time since he ran as a candidate for the presidency. The dinner was not given by the Democratic club as a club, but Mr. Bryan was the guest of Commissioner John W. Keller, who is the president of the club. After Mr. Bryan had left the clubhouse President Keller emphasized the fact that he, as a private citizen, invited Mr. Bryan, another private citizen, as his guest, together with 12 other gentlemen. The clubhouse was crowded from 5 o'clock. The fact that Bryan was to be a guest at the club caused the seats in the general dining room on the third floor to be at a premium.

Montague White's Mission.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Montague White, London agent of the Transvaal, spent nearly an hour in close conversation with Secretary Hay yesterday. At the beginning he informed the secretary that he had no credentials and no official character. He frankly admitted, however, that he was in the United States for the purpose of aiding his countrymen to enlist the sympathy of the American people. The secretary was much interested in Mr. White's statements. The subject of the conversation was the state of affairs in the Transvaal, and no statement of what passed beyond that was obtained.

Hazen's Accident Results Fatally.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Henry A. Hazen, one of the chief forecasters of the weather bureau, died here last night as the result of injuries received Monday night by a bicycle collision with a negro pedestrian. His skull was badly fractured and he continued unconscious up to the time of his death. Professor Hazen was born in India 50 years ago, his father being a missionary. He was graduated at Dartmouth college and then was connected with the scientific department of Yale university for nine years. He joined the United States signal service in 1881.

UNFORTUNATE CAREER

Sunk In Collision With the Herman Winter.

Officers and Crew of Both Steamers Reticent as to Cause of Disaster.

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Jan. 24.—The tramp steamer Ardandhu, Captain Dundas, outward bound from New London, Conn., collided with the Metropolitan line steamer Herman Winter off Robinson's Hole, Vineyard Sound, at 3:40 o'clock yesterday morning. The Arhandhu shortly afterwards sank.

Of the crew of 31 men on board all were saved except Chief Engineer James Henderson of Glasgow and Second Mate Dowe of Boston.

At the time of the accident the weather was clear and the wind fresh from the southwest. The Ardandhu was making good speed eastward on the sound on her way to Halifax and the Herman Winter was running on her schedule time toward New York.

The Glasgow vessel was struck about amidships by the Herman Winter's bow, and was cut halfway through. She would have sunk immediately, but her watertight compartments kept her afloat for a time. The Ardandhu drifted toward the shore before she went down, and apparently she struck on the southwest end of Naushon island and foundered stern first.

The Winter has a large hole in her bow, but her collision bulkheads prevented the water from working aft, and she had no difficulty in making this port.

Captain Dundas considers it doubtful if the steamer can be floated. The Ardandhu was a comparatively new boat. She was built at Belfast, Ire., in 1893. She was a steel boat of 1334 tons, and she is owned by Clark & Co. of Glasgow. She was making her first trip on a new line which has been started from New London to Halifax, and thence to Havana.

The vessels came together shortly after 3:30 o'clock. The weather was clear and the wind fresh from the southwest. The Ardandhu was steaming along at a good rate and the Herman Winter was making fair speed on her run through the sound.

The Winter made good time in steaming to this port. On the way her bulkheads remained tight and practically no water worked aft. Her cargo of general merchandise was not damaged. The Ardandhu's cargo consisted of 6000 bales of hay.

The officers of the two steamers are exceedingly reticent as to the cause of the accident, but from facts gleaned from among them it is apparent that there was a misunderstanding of signal whistles. It is claimed that when the steamers met, one whistle was blown by the Herman Winter, indicating that she would go to the right, leaving the Aradandhu on the port hand, but those in charge of the Ardandhu mistook the Winter's bow, and headed for the shore, in which position she was when the collision occurred. Neither captain has made any statement, however, regarding the cause of the accident.

The Ardandhu had had a somewhat unfortunate career. The superstituous may be disposed to note the fact that on two previous occasions she narrowly escaped destruction, but the third time she was lost.

July 18, 1898, the Ardandhu left Kingston, Jam., with 70 passengers and a cargo of rum, cocoanuts and bananas. Two days later she was picked up by her sister ship, the Ardanrose, with her steering gear and boilers out of order. At 9 a. m. on the following Monday one of her officers saw a puff of smoke and a long thin shoot of flame coming from the third ventilator aft. The passengers were not told there was a fire on the ship until the hatches were battened down and preparations made to hold the fire in the third compartment, where it started. When the vessel arrived in New York assistance was speedily forthcoming and the fire was put out.

A little more than a year later the Ardandhu was again in trouble here in Boston harbor. Although she escaped herself, she sank a fishing schooner, the Two-Forty, four lives being lost.

Two Victims of a Burglar.

New York, Jan. 24.—Mrs. Mary Haskell of Needham, Mass., is dying, and her sister, Mrs. Ellen Bennett of Franklinville, N. J., is seriously wounded, at the home of the latter as the result of an attack made upon them by a burglar. Mrs. Haskell came from Massachusetts to visit her sister, who is a widow and lives alone in Franklinville. The burglar entered the house about midnight, and struck both women on the head with a heavy stick. A posse is in search of the burglar.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Good Afternoon.

Perhaps the strongest argument advanced by "Observer" against the increase of pay as requested by the Granite Cutters' Union, is that Quincy granite could not then compete with foreign granite. It needs no argument to show why this is so, only the brief statement that labor is poorly paid in foreign granite centres and freight rates by vessel are very low. It is very evident that the protective tariff on granite must be materially increased if the advance is to be granted to the Quincy granite cutters. It is possible to increase the tariff, and the attempt should be made at this session of Congress.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ A newspaper correspondent in South Africa says that ennui must be telling strongly on the garrison at Ladysmith. Dodging bombshells and skirmishing for mule steaks may cause "that tired feeling" in South Africa, but it didn't have that effect on the garrison at Vicksburg in our civil war. —Brockton Enterprise.

☞ John Ruskin made his mark in life because he honestly tried to see and honestly tried to tell what he saw. If he saw one way one day and another way the next, he was honest enough to say so. He was honest to himself and honest to his work. Integrity to a purpose is the lesson his life teaches to the youth of today.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ Russia has discouraged the introduction and use of typewriters on the ground that they would facilitate Nihillistic communications, but the needs of commerce and business have become so urgent that the government is now disposed to admit the machines. No use talking—the thing we call business has a mighty persuasive power about it.—Milford Journal.

☞ The new woman is proving her ability in very many directions, and perhaps in no one more than that of inventive skill. There were 52 models of women's inventions at the Atlantic exposition, and since these were exhibited there has been greatly increased activity in this direction. The Washington Patent Record states that fully 75 per cent. of the patents taken out by women during the past five years are yielding profitable returns.—Beverly Times.

☞ In a sermon on "Creeds and Trusts a Chicago clergyman, Rev. Alexander Kent of the Peoples church, put forth the novel theory that religion and theology are the sources of trusts. If the tariff was the mother of trusts as has been asserted, he declared, then he was "justified in saying that popular theology is the grandmother of trusts. As the tariff is not the mother of trusts, Mr. Kent's very interesting theory fails.—New York Sun.

☞ The bulls of the Chicago wheat market are bothered by good reports of the harvest in progress in La Plata valley and the large exports from the Argentine Republic. They used to have rest from the task of watching the harvests news from September to May, but now there are few and short intervals between such reports. The southern hemisphere will play a growing part in the grain trade of the world. It is futile to hope otherwise. —Cleveland Leader.

A GREAT NUISANCE.

Altogether Too Many Junk Dealers' Licenses.

They Keep Very Unsightly Places.

And The Housekeepers Dread to see Them in Neighborhood.

There is one matter which it is hoped the Committee on Licenses of the present City Council will look after more sharply than have previous committees, and that is the granting of junk dealers' licenses. There are at present twenty-four men who are licensed to collect junk in Quincy. Of this number twenty-two claim their residence as Quincy. Many of these have become a public nuisance for they are willing to buy junk from boys, who in many cases have come into possession of it in an illegal way. Aside from this the places kept by these people, especially the Hebrews are a disgrace. It is only necessary to walk through Water street, where many of these men put up to convince anyone that someone should take steps to have them cleaned up. It is not even necessary to go as far as Water street, for on Hancock street in the old T. A. Whicher place opposite C. M. Jenness store, one can see enough to convince them that such places are nuisances. It is a question as to just what can be done to clean out these places, but the only sure way is to refuse a renewal of their license when it comes up for renewal.

It is impossible to tell just how many of the present licensed junk dealers are citizens of the United States, but of the following list five only are registered voters. They are those marked with a star.

George Wilson, 66 Water street.
Charles H. Kendrick, Randolph.
*Hyman Friedburg, 75 Copeland.
S. Cohen, 126 Copeland.
S. Shane, 17 Hancock.
Joseph Cohen, 1 Hancock.
H. Ginsburg, 18 Clark avenue.
John Shilverman, 135 Water.
David Shilverman, 137 Water.
[illegible], 59 Water.
*Edward A. Haynes, 7 Water.
Barnet Shane, 23 Hancock.
Harvey J. Flanders, Neponset.
George Berman, 27 Arthur.
Jacob Berman, 29 Arthur.
Reuben Berman, 29 Arthur.
*Moses Sorgman, 8 Clark avenue.
Jandel Sorgman Clark avenue.
*Morris Litchman, 119 Water.
David Kaufman, 130 Water.
Nathan Wollr[illegible]No ..ft
*Charles C. Foster, Storey.
Dave Hookalis, 22 Buckley.
Ben Mason, 22 Buckley.
John Paradise, 4 Dunn's Hill.

It is not alone the unsightly places which the junk dealers have, but the protection of women at home that should be guarded. Housekeepers say emphatically that they dread to see them in the neighborhood, and that there are altogether too many of them.

Arthur W. Newcomb is chairman of the Committee on Licences of the City Council this year, and associated with him are two Ward Three men who are well acquainted with Water street, Councilmen McLennan and Johnson.

Faxon Potato Patch.

William Lloyd Garrison is reported to have laughed heartily when seen yesterday by a Globe reporter, relative to Mr. Faxon's generous offer to allow some poor man with a hoe to till his farm free.

"It's a joke," said Mr. Garrison.

"It's just like this, Faxon comes to our meetings to badger us and he made the offer in a joking way and I accepted it in the same spirit. The reporter took it seriously."

But it is quite evident, says the Globe, that Mr. Faxon doesn't consider it a joke at all, and his offer is open to any one possessing the necessary qualifications and provided he isn't engaged in the liquor business as a side issue.

A Cleveland woman, who was about to cross a crowded throughfare of that city, politely asked the assistance of a gentleman who stood beside her, and who carried a heavy cane. He politely assented, and she took his arm. After they had crossed the street she earnestly thanked him. "Madam," he said, "I fear you overvalue my protection, because I am blind."

LARGE FIRE LOSS.

The Alarms During the Year 1899 Were Numerous.

Chief Engineer Williams reports the loss in Quincy by fire during the year 1899 as $64,345.33, of which $9,084.30 was from Jan. 1 to Feb. 5 under Chief Packard.

The value of the property at risk was $415,379 53, on which there was an insurance of $259,590.00.

During the year the number of fires and alarms was much larger than usual, there being 95 bell alarms and 57 still alarms.

In 1898 the loss under Chief Packard was $39,108.65. There were however but 91 alarms and fires, 43 bell alarms and 48 still alarms. The value of the property at risk was $252,529.50, which was insured for $142,725.00

The number of fires and alarms has increased amazingly in two years. In 1897 there were but 44 bell alarms and 21 still alarms, and the loss was but $8,994.30 on a risk of $147,431.50.

In 1896, there were 42 bell alarms and 10 still alarms, and the loss was $21,503.15 on a risk of $177,600.

In 1895 there were 53 bell alarms and 9 still alarms and the loss was $15,413.89 on a risk of 188,730.

Gloucester Appropriations.

The Finance Committee of Gloucester, a city larger than Quincy, recommend these appropriations for 1900:

Armory, $800; Board of Health, $1800; burial grounds, $137; City Hall, $1500; and receipts not exceeding $3,368; contingencies, not exceeding $13,424; five department salaries, $18,500; fire department miscellaneous, $7,000 and receipts, fire alarm, $1,000; highway, ordinary repairs, $21,000; improvements in anticipation of liquor license receipts, $6,000; sidewalks, $2000; engineers department, $2,500; bridges, $1,000; watering streets, $1,500; poor department, $21,000; police salaries in anticipation of liquor licenses, $24,000; care of building, receipts not exceeding, $2,858; printing, $1200; schools, text books, $4,000; dog tax estimated, $1,000; school salaries, $54,500 and $600 Sawyer fund; schoolhouse care, $16,000; salaries of officials, $15,000; streets [illegible] lights, $15,000; water $7 on style, $188,937 [illegible] eight inches, $7,000. Total, pounds, $ and liquor licenses, $31,500. Sinking funds, interest, etc., $81,879; state and county tax, $25,000; overlayings, $13,000. Total estimated expenditures, $340,316.

More Hydrants.

The need of better hydrant service was made apparent at the fire on Patch's coal wharf last Sunday night. On Washington street which is the most thickly settled street of Ward Two, the hydrants between Elm street and the Quincy Point bridge are at least nine hundred feet apart. Not one of these is larger than two way. This means that in case of a fire of any magnitude that a lot of hose would be required. With the water pressure such as it is at Quincy Point, it bursts the hose and uses it up very fast. Chief Engineer Williams says that there should be at least fifteen more hydrants between Elm street and the Quincy Point bridge, and in the most thickly settled places the hydrants should be four-way.

Happy as Clams.

Andrew Stewart, an umbrella mender, and John Kelly, a sailor, fell in with each other at Harrison Square Tuesday, and filled up with cheap whiskey. When they reached Quincy they were as happy as clams at high water. A report, however, was sent to the Police station that they were killing each other. Officer Goodhue was sent down and he brought them to Quincy and locked them up. He says he did not find them fighting, however, for they were as loving as two kittens.

☞ The board of gas and electric light commissioners made a unanimous report yesterday upon the petition of Mayor Chase of Haverhill asking for a reduction in the price of gas furnished that city by the Haverhill Gaslight Company. The price has been $1 per 1000 feet, and the commissioners have decreed that this be reduced to 80 cents.

MEN OF MARK.

Representative Grow of Pennsylvania is almost an octogenarian orator. He is in his seventy-seventh year.

Champ Clark of Missouri is a lover of Biblical stories and has for years made a study of the effects which the Bible had upon modern law and custom.

General Pole-Carew of the Ninth brigade of the British army in South Africa is very popular with his men and is known to Tommy Atkins as "Polly Carey."

When Alderman Smith Robertson, colored, died in Jackson, Miss., the other day, the white mayor and aldermen of the city acted as pallbearers at the funeral, a tribute never before paid a negro in that town.

Lionel Walter Rothschild, who is the richest of the Englishmen to volunteer for service in South Africa, is well fitted for rough service. He has always been an excellent horseman and a crack shot with both revolver and rifle.

General B. E. Cook of Northampton, Mass., who is 96 years old, was born at Hyde Park, Vt. His ancestors took a prominent part in the Indian and Revolutionary wars. His father was Captain Ellis Cook, a Revolutionary patriot.

Senator Morgan of Alabama was once threatened with arrest for implication in the assassination of Lincoln. He was at that time a farmer in Dallas county, Ala., and of course was quite innocent, never even hearing of the murder until several days afterward.

M. Waldeck-Rousseau is an ardent angler and was recently elected president of the Rounne Fishing club. In accepting this office he wrote, "The presidency of an anglers' club is perhaps that for which I feel myself most prepared by conscientious study and practice for which I never find sufficient leisure."

Senator Beveridge of Indiana has had his interesting collection of Filipino arms sent to his Washington home. Every kind of weapon is included, from a Malay creese to a Sulu spear, and all were obtained by the senator during his recent visit to the islands. Many were used in the present war and were given to Mr. Beveridge by officers who captured them.

Representative Richardson of Tennessee enjoys the unique distinction of having received more votes for speaker of the house than were ever before received by any unsuccessful candidate for that office. He received 156 votes, while the next highest number ever received by a defeated candidate was that given for Mr. Carlisle in the Fifty-first congress, when he received 154 votes.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, whose head is just now the target for public scorn in England because of his alleged niggardliness in [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] Hicks-Beach [illegible] financial part of the Boer war, is the chancellor of the exchequer, and his fingers hold the purse strings of the United Kingdom. He is not overpopular with his countrymen, many of whom call him in contempt "Mike the Marplot."

THE BEEKEEPER.

Dry and warm is the rule in keeping honey if you want to retain its flavor, richness and color.

Beeswax is usually dark because of the impurities mixed with it, such as particles of pollen, cocoons or propolis.

If honey is kept in a damp place, it will absorb moisture and soon become thin and watery and lose its rich flavor.

When the hives are troubled with ants, a little pine tar smeared on a board placed near the hives will keep them away.

The use of comb foundation not only saves a great deal of labor and time to the bees, but it also secures straight combs in the frames.

During the winter is a good time to study up on bees. Read good books on bee management. Much may be learned from the experience of others.

We can safely examine bees during the winter if we select a day that is warm and the bees flying, but not otherwise, as it is always damaging to molest them in cold weather.—St. Louis Republic.

RECENT INVENTIONS.

Strings of musical instruments are tightly held in place by a new key, which is formed of two cup shaped pieces, adapted to telescope with one another, with projections in one cup to engage notches in the other cup to hold the key in any position.

An automatic fire escape, which is always ready for use, has a drum mounted on brackets under a window, with spindles set in the drum to engage an endless rope ladder, on one side of which the person stands while the ladder falls under his weight, a brake lever lessening the speed.

An improved hitching device for horses is made of two semicircular sections joined together to form a drum shaped casing, in the center of which is supported a spring controlled spool, on which the hitching rope is wound, the spring taking up the slack and drawing the rope in when not in use.

THE CYNIC.

You needn't go to war to test your courage. Have your teeth fixed.

When a man has a son he thinks is bright, he forgets that other men are ever busy.

A good many men boast of their methodical habits who never have anything but unpaid bills to file away.

By "appearing at perfect ease in society" is meant that one laughs and talks as loud as if on the back porch at home.

If a woman can't cook, the world does not know it, but if a man makes a failure of business how soon his worthlessness becomes public property!

It is funny to be introduced to a meek, subdued looking man and then be told he is the past most worthy grand master of the United States in some lodge.—Atchison Globe.

WOMEN'S WAYS.

A girl can be clever even if she isn't pretty—and at least nine men out of ten will never know the difference.

Before a marriage engagement is a week old, the girl is well posted on an argument to prove that boarding is cheaper than keeping house.—Atchison Globe.

A woman may keep from telling a man a secret, but she can never keep from telling him that she has got one that she won't tell him.—New York Press.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

HERE AND THERE.

Local Brevities of the City of Presidents.

Mary C. Dunn has been reappointed a temporary teacher in the Boston schools.

Joseph T. French Burrell formerly of Quincy has resigned as first assistant master at the Christopher Gibson school in Boston.

The alarm from Box 62 at 1.33 this noon was for a slight fire in Mrs. McCarthy's wood pile on Atlantic street. The alarm was needless.

The Legislative Committee on Metropolitans affair will give a hearing Jan. 26, on the bill for legislation to authorize the Meropolitan Park Commission to grant street railway companies locations for their tracks in the public reservations in the towns of Milton and Canton.

Henry C. Harding of Hingham is dead. He was treasurer of the Hingham Savings bank and clerk of the "Old Ship" church. He had also been town auditor and president of Derby academy and had held many other positions. He was 68 years of age. He leave a widow.

The officers of St. Francis Court of Foresters were installed Tuesday evening by D. D. H. C. R., Roche and suite of Brockton. After the installation interesting remarks were made by Bro. Roche and Cain of Brockton, Dorgan of Taunton and Mischler of Quincy Court. Refreshments were served.

In Opposition.

Henry H. Faxon was very much in evidence at the State House, Tuesday, taking part in three hearings before the Legislative committee on judiciary.

The first was on a bill of Representative Carey to give persons sentenced for contempt in cases arising out of trouble between labor and employes, the right of trial by jury. Mr. Faxon opposed on the ground that if granted in such cases the possibilitty of securing anything by injunction would become a farce, particularly in labor trouble.

The next matter which was also introduced by Representative Carey of Haverhill was for the repeal of the Dubuque law and was asked for because all needed amendments last year had failed.

Mr. Faxon said the present law was the only lever that could be used in persistently obstinate tenants. He had used it in cases where a man could pay but would not.

The third matter was a bill in regard to the observance of the Lord's day, permitting the sale of soft drinks, etc., as well as necessaries of life.

Mr. Faxon opposed, urging that no more bars against the proper observance of the Lord's day be let down.

CHICAGO WOMAN PREACHER.

The Wife of Dr. Thomas Will Be His Associate In Church Work.

Mrs. Vandelia Varnum Thomas, whose ordination to the ministry last Sunday was a local event of importance, has lived in town scarcely four months. As the wife of Dr. H. W. Thomas, the pastor of the People's church, Mrs. Thomas was interesting to a large number of Chicagoans. As the future associate of her husband in his gospel work she is destined to gain the attention of a still more extended circle. Mrs. Thomas speaks freely of her coming responsibilities as a helper in Dr. Thomas' calling.

"The scope of the work which Dr. Thomas has been carrying on for years promises to broaden greatly, so there will probably be plenty for us both to do. The movement which he has inaugurated, called the 'people's pulpit,' is calculated to open the way in all the cities and larger towns for the gospel of the larger life. Already a band of young, energetic and enthusiastic men are gathering about Dr. Thomas, and their efforts will do much toward spreading the work. This work has the sanction of the liberal congress, but the idea belongs to Dr. Thomas," Mrs. Thomas said she had dreaded very much her first sermon before her husband's congregation; that the dread was all the stronger in view of the fact that Dr. Thomas had not passed upon it. "'You must give your own message in your own way,' he said. As he seemed satisfied at its close I was also. Always before I get up to speak I am very nervous, but once on my feet I am all right. Even at home when I am preparing my work I think better if I get up and walk."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Courting Oom Paul's Nieces.

The Boer girl of the country districts of the South African Republic "is able to go to town only once or twice a year, and then it is to attend the nachtmaal or communion, which is the chief festival of these deeply religious people," writes Howard C. Hillegas of "The Boer Girl of South Africa," in Ladies' Home Journal. "The journey to the town is made in ox teams and may require a week's or a month's time, but it is always an epoch in a Boer girl's life, especially if she is about 16, when she is supposed to have attained the matrimonial age. Then some tall, robust Boer youth, whom she has met at former nachtmaals, may summon enough courage to ask her whether he may call at her home and have an 'up sitting,' which is a sort of ultimatum [illegible]. If she consent, before an ultimate [illegible] afterward ride on the Boer will shortly [illegible] horseback many miles across the plain to the girl's home and will prove that he is worthy of her love by 'sitting up' and talking with her from sundown until break of day. For two young Boers to arrive at this period of courtship is equivalent to announcing the engagement, and then the prospective bride begins preparations for the wedding."

"After Long Years."

It is often said that if you put a thing away for seven years and bring it out again at the end of that time you will find it in fashion. At any rate, if it is not in fashion then put it away again and bring it out in another seven years. This is certainly the case with fringe, which is undoubtedly one of our most popular trimmings at the present time, and those who put it away seven years or more ago will be glad to bring it out again for use now. Fashionable overskirts edged with fringe are exceedingly graceful. If it has become discolored by being put away, have it dyed, when it will look like new.

A Devoted Couple.

Mrs. Grant Allen, who is completely prostrated by grief and the protracted anxiety of her husband's last illness, will remain for the present at the Croft, Hindhead, the charming residence built by her late husband. Mrs. Allen (nee Richards) was the second wife of the author and is the aunt of the enterprising young publisher, Grant Richards. Mr. and Mrs. Grant Allen were a very devoted couple, and the attachment of this most domestic husband and wife was in startling contrast to the opinions expressed by the gifted writer in his novel "The Woman Who Did."

A Texas Police Matron.

The first police matron in Texas was lately appointed at San Antonio. Texas women have been working for years to secure police matrons and feel happy over their first victory. This is a reform that would come faster if women had votes. Dr. Parkhurst says, "The wicked flee when no man pursueth, but they make better time when there is somebody after them." Reforms get there in the long run, even by the slow method of indirect influence, but they make better time when there is somebody after them armed with a ballot.—Woman's Journal.

GREAT RELIGIOUS CITY.

NO WICKEDNESS TO BE WITHIN IT

There Will Be a Temple and Two Factories, and the Ill Will Be Healed There, Says the Promoter of the Future City—Site Already Purchased.

John Alexander Dowie is the leader of a peculiar sect which holds a belief that Chicago has been so wicked that destruction will overtake the city and not far away on the lake shore there will arise a great religious city. So firm are they in the conviction that they are to be founders of a new Zion that they have chosen its site.

They have bought or have an option upon 6,000 acres of land near Waukegan, Benton township, Ills., and there the future city is to arise where all men are to be pure and good, says the New York Herald. It is asserted they have paid an extravagant price, but with the exception of the farmers who have sold their lands or received money to bind a sale there is great disappointment in the neighborhood. The people had hoped that some great manufacturing city was to be started, probably the Frick-Rockefeller Steel works. Though they are, as a rule, a religious and churchgoing community, there is the feeling that there might be more substantiality in the treasures laid up on earth by the multimillionaires than in the promised wealth of Dowie's city of Zion.

Dowie is a man of great personal magnetism, a dreamer, who believes that, though the purchase of land be at even a great price, the site having been divinely revealed there is to grow a city so good and great that it will shame all the world into righteousness. Ground is to be broken for a temple early in May with most impressive ceremonies. The ill are to be healed, Dowie declares, and the world is to receive its first revelation of what the modern Zion is to be. Later, building of two factories, the industrial beginnings of the city, is to begin. One is to be for the making of shoes and the other is to be a lace factory, which Dowie says he will bring to the "golden city" from England.

Next on the programme will be the laying of the cornerstone for the temple of Zion, and then there are to be portents in the heavens, which may be read by all men except those inclosed in the Chicago streets with their tall buildings, and even they are to hear of these things and go into the fields to see.

Dowie is then to follow the example of the German emperor and go on a triumphal tour of the Holy Land. He hopes to enter the gates of Jerusalem on an ass and, in so far as he can, act as the Master did. In the meantime Dowie goes about with a bodyguard of well armed believers in the coming community, where there is to be no sin and no illness, and there are perhaps 2,000 enthusiasts who entertain plans that put in the shade the hopes of the Mormons.

Dowie, who calls himself general overseer of the Christian Catholic church, was born in Scotland about 66 years ago. He was educated for the ministry in the Edinburgh seminary. He appeared in Australia about 18 years ago and started a grocery store. He was elected to the common council of Melbourne and then opened a tabernacle preaching the gospel and taking [illegible] on the council. His occasion to condemn [illegible] church. His grocery store soon became [illegible] He says a mob of 3,000 men dragged him out of his church and threatened to lynch him.

He was given 30 days to leave and says that upon his arrival in San Francisco he had seven purses of gold presented to him by his followers in Australia. He organized a church in San Francisco and adopted the theory of healing by prayer. He convinced many that spectacles were useless and effected some alleged cures.

Coming to Chicago the year before the World's fair, he started a tent service on what later became the Midway plaisance. At Sixty-second street and Madison avenue he constructed a frame Zion tabernacle and ran a hospital in connection with it. He became engaged in a costly legal war with the state of Illinois on the charge of conducting a hospital without a license, but won in the courts.

He is now the lessee of the old St. Paul's Episcopal church in Chicago, with a seating capacity of 3,300. His home is in the seven story hotel at Twelfth street and Michigan avenue known as Zion home, having accommodations for 300 persons. He is also lessee of a hall at Thirteenth street and Michigan avenue, where he has a printing establishment, with a perfecting press, three duplex presses and many job presses, 118 stands and a chapel of 60 union printers. The building is also the home of the Zion bank, a wealthy institution, and the Zion City Land and Investment association.

Siam Offers a Present to America.

The United States minister to Siam writes to the state department at Washington that the Siamese government has given another evidence of its friendliness to the United States by offering to present to that country a part or the whole of the temple grounds on which the United States legation is situated, at Bangkok, says the New York Times. The property is worth $57,000, and is valuable for its water frontage. The gift, if accepted, involves an outlay of about $2,000 for improving the premises. Secretary Hay has sent the correspondence to congress for favorable action.

A Pair to Draw To.

My soul is terrible and strong
As a giant's strength may be;
My soul's a storm that raves along
And sweeps the inland sea!

But he does not approach in storm and fury the Arkansas bard who sings:

My soul is like a cyclone
From highest heavens hurled;
My soul is like an earthquake
That swallows up the world!

That not only fills the bill, but covers the ground.—Atlanta Constitution.

Sweet Solicitude.

Husband—My dear, the air is very damp tonight. You'd better wear your furs.

Wife—I have them ready.

Husband—And tie your boa on closely. A little exposure often leads to sore throat, and sore throat leads to diphtheria, the most dangerous disease. Wear your thick [illegible]ers, too, and good, thick shoes and warm gloves, and, my love, I think you'd better wear [illegible]. One can't be too careful when one's life insurance is in arrears, and yours is.—New York Weekly.

Noblesse Oblige.

Now that they had become suddenly wealthy she positively declined to quarrel with her husband any more.

"A family jar," she wittily protested, "is so liable to crack the escutcheon."

Of her many friends some appreciated the exquisite play upon the words jar and crack, while others merely thought her too sensitive.—Detroit Journal.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

I was a martyr to Dyspepsia and Constipation and tried everything in vain. In despair I bought a ten cent package of the U. S. APPLAUSE AND HISSES

Greeted Roberts During His Dramatic Argument In His Own Behalf.

Deep Impression Made by Littlefield's Speech.

Senate Spends a Busy Day—Ross of Vermont Talks on the Philippines.

Washington, Jan. 24.—There was a great crowd in the house to hear the opening of the debate on the Roberts case, many of the spectators being women. Mr. Roberts was the center of attraction and appeared to realize his position. The galleries were packed, chiefly with women, and the spectators, after listening attentively to the arguments of Mr. Taylor of Ohio and Mr. Littlefield of Maine for the adoption of the majority and minority reports, respectively, of the special committee that investigated the case, remained long after nightfall to hear the impassioned words of the accused as he faced the house like an animal at bay, knowing that every hand was raised against him.

Mr. Roberts was very adroit in the handling of his case, and at times exceedingly dramatic. Taking advantage of the issue raised by the division in the committee as to the method of ousting him, he appropriated to himself the arguments of the minority, that he was entitled to be sworn in, and the arguments of the majority that, once sworn in, he could not be expelled. He defended the action of the Mormons in fighting the authority of the United States for years because, he said, they believed that sentiment would change, and dramatically stated that in those days he would rather have had his flesh hewn from his bones than to have renounced his religious tenets. He concluded with an eloquent peroration, in which he said he had never been conscious of a shameful act, and if he was sent forth he would go with head erect and undaunted brow. Strange to say most of the applause he won was from women. But while they appeared to be his only partisians, other women manifested their bitter hostility by hissing him at every opportunity.

Chairman Taylor of the elections committee spoke briefly on the case. He said he did not care to discuss the moral side of the case, but believed that the report of the majority was right and should be sustained. "If we do not exclude this man," he said, "we strike down one of the most vital and necessary powers that belong to a great legislative body."

The speech made by Mr. Littlefield, who succeeds the late Mr. Dingley, in defense of the minority proposition to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts, was a masterful effort, and stamped him as one of the coming men in the house. The manner in which he tore some of the arguments of the majority into shreds jumped him into the front rank of debaters in the house. The speech made a deep impression. In fact it is predicted by many members that the majority resolution for exclusion cannot now carry.

Mr. Lacey of Iowa has a proposition which he will submit to expel Mr. Roberts by a two-thirds vote, without seating him, which will have supporters, and this may lead to a compromise proposition. Miss Roberts, daughter of Mr. Roberts, was in the reserved gallery throughout the debate. The debate will close tomorrow at 4:30.

The Quay case was the first thing before the senate, and the reports of the majority and minority were presented. Mr. Kyle offered a resolution relative to the effect upon labor of the international copyright act. Mr. Pettigrew asked that the report of General Bates be sent to the senate, and also information as to salaries of the Sultan of Sulu and his officials.

Mr. Caffery presented three resolutions asking for correspondence with Great Britain relative to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

Mr. Turner concluded his speech on the Philippines begun Monday, and in accordance with previous notice Senator Ross of Vermont delivered his first speech of importance, his subject being the Philippines. He spoke in support of his resolution declaring that the provisions of the constitution do not, without an act of congress, extend over Puerto Rico and the Philippines. His argument was essentially a legal presentation of the case. He said that the flag which has been planted over the islands is the emblem of a policy of individual manhood, and the right to enjoy religious and civil liberty. He expressed the belief that the people of the islands were not fit to govern themselves, and urged that congress take action to create a department of the government to look after the interests of the islands. Appointments, he thought, should be removed from politics, otherwise the nation will fail in the discharge of its duty.

HIS TESTIMONY ADMITTED.

Court Holds That Molineux Was Not Accused Till After He Testified at the Inquest.

New York, Jan. 24.—Proceedings in the Molineux trial up to recess yesterday were devoted to taking testimony and hearing counsel as to whether Molineux was an accused man at the time of the inquest. If he was, the recorder ruled on Monday, the reading of his testimony before the coroner would be improper.

Coroner Hart testified yesterday that Molineux was not accused until after his own testimony had been given, and the recorder permitted Prosecuting Attorney Osborne to read the minutes of Molineux's testimony before the coroner.

During the whole afternoon session Mr. Osborne continued to read from the testimony of Molineux as given before the coroner's inquest, and when the proceedings were adjourned until today Mr. Osborne had reached that part of the testimony which concerned the famous robin's-egg blue writing paper. Two damaging flat contradictions between Molineux's testimony at the inquest and the evidence produced in his trial, exist. This was the reason why Mr. Osborne fought so hard to get the testimony admitted. At the coroner's inquest Molineux denied ever having used or seen any of the tri-crescent egg-blue paper. In the trial the Burns letter, signed by Molineux and written on such paper, was produced and acknowledged by him.

Molineux also denied at the inquest that he had ever sent for patent medicine by mail. This same Burns letter, signed by Molineux, is an order for a patent medicine.

Not all of the testimony of Molineux at the inquest was read yesterday, but such portions were selected as Mr. Osborne desired to bring before the jury. Among these were the relations between Molineux and Cornish at the K. A. C., and Molineux's testimony as to the causes and extent of their differences.

The name of Barnet was brought out next. It was coupled with that of Blanche Cheseborough. The time that Miss Cheseborough lived at Mrs. Bell's was spoken of in the testimony and of her leaving there and going to Mrs. Bellinger's.

"Did you ever visit her at Mrs. Bellinger's up to the time you were married?"

"I visited her frequently, but she went away in the summer."

At the trial testimony was brought out by Mrs. Bellinger's maid that Molineux was not known at the West End avenue house, and that she had never heard his name until about a week before the marriage took place.

The next point in the testimony brought out was the relationship between Barnet and Miss Cheseborough. Molineux testified that Barnet often called on her at Mrs. Bellinger's, and that he did so with his (Molineux's) acquiescence. There was no jealousy on his part toward Barnet, he said.

After adjournment Mr. Osborne said he had three or four more witnesses to call.

Under Surveillance In Canada.

New York, Jan. 24.—William F. Miller, who conducted the 520 percent Franklin syndicate in Brooklyn, has been located in Canada, and is under surveillance. This information is given out by the Brooklyn authorities. The police decline to state in what city or town Miller is stopping. Miller was indicted on Nov. 24, in conjunction with his assistant, Cecil Leslie, whose whereabouts is unknown, for conspiracy in obtaining money through fraud and misrepresentation. This offense is not extraditable, and yesterday a new indictment was found against Miller for embezzlement. The extent of locating Miller is credited to Captain Pel[illegible] who brought up on boat [illegible] recently brought from the tenderloin to take charge of the Brooklyn detective bureau.

Chapelle Pleads For Patience.

Manila, Jan. 24.—Archbishop Chapelle, papal delegate to the Philippines, gave a reception to the Catholic clergy and laymen for the purpose of conciliating the opposing factions. Many prominent Filipinos attended. They hooted Archbishop Nozaleda and every friar who appeared. On the other hand, General Otis, who attended with his staff, was cheered. Mgr. Chapelle made a speech, asking for toleration and patience and promising a satisfactory settlement of the questions in dispute. He rebuked the newspapers for meddling with matters which he said they did not understand.

Must Retain Original Shape.

Washington, Jan. 24.—No more may the private soldier knock dents into his campaign hat, or pin up a flap of the brim on one side to give him a rakish air. A regulation just issued from the war department reads: "The wearing of these hats in any other than their original shape is prohibited." The original shape of the campaign hat is on the alpine order. The privates have been used to shaping their hats through the denting process so as to indicate the command to which they belonged, and it is expected that they will not like this order.

"Facts Notorious In Paris."

Paris, Jan. 24.—The Figaro publishes this morning a dispatch which Pierre De Rodays, its editor, has sent to Count Boni De Castellane, in the course of which he says: "Your denials and threats will change nothing of the facts, which are now notorious in Paris."

Adelaide, Jan. 24.—The bacillus of the bubonic plague has been found on dead rats in a place where a plague patient was isolated. The Australian colonies have declared Adelaide an infected port.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The cold wave which occupied Manitoba Monday night has extended over the northern lake region and the St. Lawrence valley. The cold wave will overspread northern New England, causing a fall in temperature of about 30 degrees in that region. Rain or snow and warmer weather may be expected by tomorrow. Cold wave signals are displayed in northern New England. Along the north Atlantic coast the winds will be brisk from west to northwest.

"NEW ORGANIZATION NO DREAM."

Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore Will Be In American Baseball League.

New York, Jan. 24.—Harry D. Quinn of Milwaukee, one of the chief promoters of the proposed new American league, who passed through this city yesterday en route from Boston to Philadelphia, said:

"I have been to Boston and Providence to get a line on the prospects of the American association in those cities. In Boston I met with great encouragement. Matters in the Hub have progressed most favorably. We are solid as a rock there. Charles River park has been leased and there are several big moneyed men behind the scheme. Tommy McCarthy, the old ball player, will manage the club there. In Providence I did not find matters just as I desired. In fact, I hardly think I can induce the people there to join us. They feel like clinging to the Eastern league, owing to the shorter circuit. I understand the Providence club did not make much if any money last year, and they feel a bit timid about going into any bigger league under the circumstances.

"We have been handicapped in this city by the difficulty of securing grounds suitably located. We have not entirely given up the idea of getting New York, however, and stranger things have happened than that we should locate here. It is the city above all I should like to round up our circuit.

"With Providence out we shall probably try to secure Washington. This would make our circuit: Washington, Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore in the east; Chicago, St. Louis, Milwaukee and Detroit in the west. If necessary we will go on with six clubs. The new organization is no dream, as has been insinuated. It is an actual and live fact. I shall hold several conferences in Philadelphia this week with men of that city, Washington and Baltimore, and shall have everything arranged so we can complete our organization at the meeting we shall hold in New York next week."

Old Policeman Forced Out.

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 24.—The Republican majority in the board of aldermen sprung a surprise last night by confirming the nomination of Marcus A. Sullivan as a policeman. This action removes from the police force Assistant Marshal Dean, who has been a member of the force since 1861. Mayor Chase attempted to remove Dean last July, but his appointment of Sullivan was laid on the table until last night. After the meeting of the aldermen the police committee detailed Officer McLaughlin to act as assistant marshal.

Peculiar Accident Results Fatally.

New Haven, Jan. 24.—Stephen Hughes, a mason, aged about 45, was at work on the first floor of a building that is being erected at Church and Crown streets, when John McMahon, a laborer, fell through the open space on the third floor and struck Hughes, causing the latter to tumble into the cellar. Hughes died at a hospital, while McMahon escaped without serious injury.

Placed Many Lives In Jeopardy.

Boston, Jan. 24.—Joseph Yaffa was sentenced in the superior court yesterday to state prison for a term of from 2½ to three years for arson. Yaffa was caught in the act of setting fire to his store on Poplar street early one morning. The upper part of the building was occupied as a tenement house and was crowded at the time with sleeping people. The fire was extinguished before much damage had been done.

Coal Operators and Miners Meet.

Grafton, Vt., Jan. 24.—William Moultopp was killed and B. L. Fairbanks was severely scalded as a result of the explosion of a boiler in a steam saw mill here. The explosion demolished the mill, a portion of the boiler being thrown a distance of about 40 rods, and landed in a pasture 50 feet higher than the mill site. Moultopp was the night engineer. An investigation as to the cause of the explosion will be held.

3 O'CLOCK.

PROBABLY A FAILURE.

Belief That Buller Has Been Unable to Outflank Boers.

Latter's Advance Driven on Their Main Position.

British In Position Where Defeat Might Readily Become Disaster.

Nobody Seems to Know What Roberts Has Done With Large Reinforcements.

London, Jan. 25.—From the right assault on Spion Kop, which Buller's dispatch to the British war office stated was planned for Tuesday night, there is no word. The tone of such dispatches as are at hand from British sources, coupled with the tenor of those received from the Boer field headquarters, tend to strengthen the suspicion, not yet become certainty, that Buller's flank movement, as such, has failed, and that on the upper Tugela, as at Colenso, he has found himself so confronted by Boer works as to be reduced to the necessity of assaulting in front or retiring.

Boer reports say specifically that the turning movement was frustrated and the London Times' correspondent confirms the statement, with the qualification that cavalry under Dundonald had gained a position on the Boer right flank, where, however, Warren's infantry had been unable to join it. The fighting of Saturday and Sunday appears only to have driven in the Boer advance on their main position, to which Spon Kop or Lookout Hill is the key. That the exigencies of the situation require an attack upon such a position, even under the cover of night, is not reassuring to the British public, and the absence of news, which in the event of a successful assault it is assumed Buller would be quick to cable, adds to the unmistakable feeling of gloom in London.

Anxiety is augmented by the knowledge that Buller's army is in a position where defeat might readily become disaster, since with two rivers in its rear, spanned only by a pontoon bridge, hurried retreat in good order would be almost impossible. With an enemy able to take the aggressive after a battle, a British reverse in the present situation might be attended by consequences graver far than any earlier defeat suffered by the British arms, involving not only a swift fall of Ladysmith, but the integrity of the chief British army in South Africa. Of this Buller cannot be unaware, and consequently his movements may be expected to temper vigor with caution.

The assemblage in Pall Mall, outside of the war office, and those privileged to wait in the lobbies, reluctantly dispersed at midnight, after the final word that nothing more would be announced. The morning papers went to press with conjectures and forecasts of all sorts, striving to guess out something from Spion Kop.

Topography maps show that Spion Kop is the highest part of a rocky plateau. Eastward for eight miles are the Boer positions along the Tugela. Northwestward from Spion Kop the plateau runs gradually up to a great spur of the Drakensburg. General Buller's infantry, to reach the summit of Spion Kop, must cross a natural glacis three-quarters of a mile wide and climb 500 feet up a steep slope.

Nobody here seems to know, not even the war office, what Lord Roberts has done with his large reinforcements. Six thousand troops awaited his arrival at Cape Town; since then 6000 others have reached there. Military critics are all hoping that a good share of these 12,000 have gone to help General Buller; and they argue that a few days' wait may make him strong enough to overcome the deadlock.

There are 19,000 troops at sea; and this heavy weight on the British side is expected to destroy the equilibrium now existing on every field of operations.

The British losses up to date in killed, wounded and captured, according to General Buller's last list, total 8216 men.

F. W. Reitz, the Transvaal state secretary, has written a parody upon Mr. Kipling's "Recessional." It is entitled "Progressional," and is dedicated to "Mudyard Ripling." The first stanza follows:

Gods of the jingo, brass and gold,
Lords of the world, by right divine,
Under whose baneful sway they hold
Dominion over mine and thine.
Such lords as these have made them rotten.
They have forgotten. They have forgotten.

John Morley, addressing his constituents last evening at Forfar, made but little reference to the present aspect of the war in South Africa, confining himself chiefly to a renewal of his indictment of the policy which led to hostilities.

He ridiculed "the notion that a few Boer successes entitled the Transvaal to be described as a first class military power," and declared that "the fact of the Boers sending the ultimatum no more disposed of all other questions than the defiance of the American colonists, in throwing the tea into Boston harbor, disposed of all the questions of the war for American independence.

"It is quite certain," continued Mr. Morley, "that had the government appreciated the temper of the Transvaal people, and foreseen what was coming—what we all know in these black, gloomy days—there would have been no war. It is dreadful, but true, that a want of decent foresight and decent information led the government to stumble into war into the dark. Lord Salisbury's menacing speech of July 28, if applied to a great power, could only have meant war. It was absurd, if the government really believed in a Dutch conspiracy, to spend time in negotiations regarding the franchise, conjured up to mask a hideous and ghastly blunder."

In conclusion Mr. Morley declined to commit himself as to what would happen in the future, but he warned his hearers not to be duped by the idea that the Boers, after defeat, would settle down quietly.

With reference to the point with which the conflict would come to an end, Mr. Morley observed: "Something depends on a chance which, I hope, is remote, but is certainly not invisible, of our being called on to meet dangers in other quarters."

A dispatch to The Times from Spearman's Camp, dated Tuesday, 3:30 p. m., says: The Boers today had more guns and are prepared to fight almost interminably, having entrenched their ridge, which stretches in an almost unbroken line from the Drakensberg many miles eastward. Firing continued throughout the day. We have not advanced any further, but we threw up entrenchments during the night, from which the musketry duel continued from exactly the same position as yesterday.

A dispatch to The Daily Mail from Lourenzo Marquez, dated Wednesday, says: This morning all passengers booked for the Transvaal were stopped by government order, with the exception of the members of the Russian ambulance corps, who proceeded by special train.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Times, telegraphing Tuesday, says: The Bondites are preparing to seize the first decisive British victory or the invasion of republican territory as the signal for a violent peace agitation. They will accompany their appeal to magnanimity by covertly hinting that they are unable to restrain the Dutch colonists from rising.

Savery's Punishment.

Boston, Jan. 25.—As the penalty for assaulting and robbing George Moore eight years ago, James A. Lavery was yesterday sentenced to not less than six nor more than 15 years in state prison by Judge Sheldon in the superior court. Moore was shot through the neck, but afterward recovered. Soon after the crime was committed Lavery disappeared from East Boston, but recently returned, when he was taken into custody. General testimony was to the effect that although Lavery had been wild and indiscreet when young, his recent conduct had been exemplary and he had grown to be an honorable man.

Whalen Indictment Quashed.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 25.—The indictment against John Whalen, charging him with attempting to bribe Senator Harrell, was quashed in the circuit court yesterday on motion of State Attorney Franklin. The motion was made in response to affidavits, setting out that the grand jury that returned the indictment was irregularly drawn in that when one of them was taken sick two others served in his stead at various times pending the taking of evidence. Another objection made was that five of the jurors were selected from bystanders and not from the box of names as required by law.

Court of Appeals Wanted.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The commander-in-chief and national pension committee of the Grand Army of the Republic called on the president yesterday and presented a plan for the establishment of a court of appeals in pension cases to sit in Washington and hear cases of appeal from the decisions of the pension bureau. These appeals heretofore have been heard by a board composed of clerks in the interior department, detailed by the secretary of the interior for this duty. The president received the suggestion of the committee with favor.

To Force Issue by Striking.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 25.—The trouble that has existed at the local branch of the American Hide and Leather company since last April was brought to a climax at a largely attended meeting of the Leather Workers' Protective union last night, when it was voted to go on strike in order to force, if possible, a settlement of the grievances alleged to exist. About 600 employes will be thrown out if the strikers succeed in closing the plant. The strikers allege that the company has failed to keep its pledges.

Big Enough to Become a City.

River Point, R. I., Jan. 25.—The Rhode Island general assembly is to be asked to divide the town of Warwick, and a petition for that purpose is now being circulated and generally signed. Warwick is the most populous township in New England. It covers an area of 60 square miles, and has a population of 21,141. About 18,000 of these are in the manufacturing district of the Pawtuxet valley, and an effort is being made to have the compact part made a separate town or city.

TENDER OF $5,000,000

Meets With Approval of Governor and Council.

Property Will Go to Boston and Maine If Approved by Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 25.—As a result of conferences held between President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine railroad, Mr. Ledyard, representing the American Express company's holdings of stock in its directorate, and Governor Crane, a formal offer was made by the Maine interests for the shares of Fitchburg railroad common stock owned by the state. The governor and council, after a long meeting, voted to recommend to the legislature that this offer be accepted.

The action of the governor and his council was somewhat unexpected, in view of their refusal only a week ago to express any view whatever on a proposed lease between the two great properties, and of the action of the state directors against such a lease. A substantial offer was made yesterday, however, to the governor for the 50,000 shares of the common stock of the road, which the state has held as security for the cash advanced in the building of the familiar Hoosac tunnel, and after consulting and obtaining the approval of the council, the governor consented to sell the stock and take in payment $5,000,000 in 3 percent 50-year gold bonds of the Boston and Maine railroad. As a proviso, however, the governor stipulated that the legislature must approve of this sale, and the subsequent lease.

In view of the proposed lease of the Boston and Albany to the New York Central, which is also before the legislature for approval, the action of the governor and his council is generally regarded as a shrewd business move.

In brief, the state trustees, backed by the governor and council, have succeeded in obtaining par for stock, which, only a week ago, was quoted at 30, and have substituted for a non-dividend paying security bonds paying a yearly interest of 3 percent. Whether the governor and council had the right to make such a transaction, in view of an act of 1892, intended to prevent such a disposition of the securities as the governor sanctioned yesterday, remains for the legislature to say, and it is generally conceded that the move was a good one and that the action will be ratified by the general court.

A gentleman very close to the governor said after the meeting that the governor does not believe that the state should be in the railroad business. That it is no part of its functions to own or deal in their securities, but that, having them, a good offer ought not to be refused. In the present instance no better one could be expected, and no one would have dared predict a week ago that the holdings of the state could be sold at par, or anywhere near it.

That it has come to pass is due to the conviction that the Albany lease would be antagonized by the legislature unless an agreement was entered into safeguarding its interests, and it was feared that the demands would be of such a nature as to detract materially from the desirability of the proposed consolidation.

The state, he said, will make a good thing out of the transaction, as it gets $5,000,000 for a lot of property which has not been considered as of sufficient value to be cited as an asset of the commonwealth.

Asked as to the moral aspect of the thing, and the claims that have been made that the state's interests lie in keeping the Fitchburg road independent, he said that it was not likely that the state would be any worse off by reason of the deal. Massachusetts is fortunate in the possession of a railroad commission that is above reproach, and has shown excellent judgment, and it is reasonable to suppose that the interests of the state and those of Boston will be looked after by them as carefully as they have been in the past. The governor, as a business man, has viewed this question from a business standpoint, and his conclusion may be accepted as the result of a consideration of the question at every point.

Comment at the state house, after the governor's action was known, indicated that the ratification of the sale and the lease would not be made without opposition. It is known that the New York Central, not a long time ago, attempted to obtain control of the Fitchburg road, and it was intimated that the Boston and Albany interests might oppose the Fitchburg-Boston and Maine lease.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

Appropos the suggestion of Mayor Hall, that the Mayor of the city should be chairman of the School Committee, we note that an order has been introduced in the Cambridge City Council this week providing that the legislature be petitioned for such an act as shall relieve the mayor of the duty of presiding over the school committee. There seems to be no urgent need of a change in Quincy, and it might bring more ills than benefits.

The people of Salem have been having their water at a ridiculously low price, and it is not surprising that an amendment was offered to the ordinances this week to increase the water rates to families from $3 to $5 and that a charge of $2 will be made for the use of hand hose. These prices can hardly make the water department self supporting. That the city is hard pinched was shown the same night when an order was introduced for an inquiry on the advisability of reducing salaries of all city officials. Probably the salaries are as high as the water rates are low.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It makes all the difference in the world whether employers and employed live and labor together as friends or hate and hunt each other as enemies. Unquestionably the man who has labor to sell has as many rights as the man who wants to buy; but neither will get on well till he can look at the situation through the others eyes.—Youths Companion.

☞ "A man should go to bed when he is sleepy, and not before, and should get up when he feels ready to and not before. The early rising habit is an old superstition which should be abandoned, so says Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, and it must be gospel truth. Lets turn over a new leaf and try the reverend gentleman's theory. But then, the trouble would be that some might never be ready to get up and others never ready to go to bed, and the result would be a trifle demoralizing, as society is now constituted. So we must go on crawling wearily out of bed when the Angelus rings.—Marlboro Enterprize.

☞ The idea of maintaining a powerful navy seems to be a very popular one in the United States. Many who do not approve of a large standing army, believing that our volunteer system is safe and much cheaper, would like to see this country equipped with a navy which could hold its own with any European power. If we are to ... our place as a world power, our ... must be maintained. Our pro... is fairly satis... ewed in...

NEW WARD SIX CLUB

Committees Appointed at the Meeting This Week.

The second preliminary meeting in the interests of the formation of the club to be located in Poland's block was held Tuesday evening. About sixty gentlemen were present and after enjoying a few selections on the phonograph through the generosity of Mr. Emerson, the meeting was called to order at 8.15 by Mr. L. F. R. Langelier permanent chairman. Councilmen Hill, Gassett and Poland and ex-Councilman Barker were among those present.

After considerable discussion it was decided upon a motion put by Dr. F. J. Pierce to place the further development of plans for the club into the hands of several committees. The following were them appointed by the chair:

Committee on By Laws,—L. F. R. Langelier, ex-officio, Dr. F. J. Pierce Herbert Barker, A. C. Beale, Mr. Hobbs and Mr. Gassett.

Committee on Membership,—L. F. R. Langelier, ex-officio, J. Poland, S. Edwards R. Clifford, Mr. Emerson, Mr. Thorpe.

Executive Committee, — Dr. F. J. Pierce, chairman, L. F. R. Langelier, H. Barker, W. P. Hill, A. C. Beale, Mr. Gasset, Mr. Perkins, Mr. Granger.

Mr. Emerson who holds an enviable reputation as a pool-player and billiardist, was appointed a committee of one to report on pool and billiard tables. It is expected that the executive committee will receive reports from other committees in time to unable it to hold a meeting and issue a call for another public meeting sometime during the week of Jan. 29.

The outlook is very promising, and it is hoped a large response will follow the call for the next meeting, the last before organization.

A LA MOTHER GOOSE.

Drill by Boys and Girls and Pleasing Entertainment.

The Junior Christian Endeavor society of Bethany church gave a Mother Goose entertainment Wednesday night under the supervision of Miss Blanche Peters, assisted by Miss Bessie Lee Hearn, a reader from East Milton, who gave two selections that were very much enjoyed by all, and Mr. Reginald De Long a soloist from Everett whose clear voice called forth many remarks of praise. Mr. Wendal Luce and M. Everett Hayden rendered several piano solos in a skilful and artistic manner.

Miss Martha Brady opened the evening entertainment by a piano solo, then followed the Mother Goose drill by 17 boys and girls, who followed their leader and formed the many figures in a manner that would do credit to much older persons. The costumes showed much care and were very pretty and taking. As a whole it was one of the best things of its kind ever given.

The several parts were impersonated as follows:

Mother Goose,	Lottie Kingman
Boy Blue,	Percy Peters
Bo-Peep,	Mabel Wentworth
Tom, the Piper's son,	Eddie Carson
Dame Trot,	Louise Lane
King Cole,	Eddie Hayden

CITY BREVITIES.

A Local Budget with the News in a Nut Shell.

The officers of Wollaston Commandery U. O. G. C., will be installed this evening.

Up to Wednesday night, twelve bell alarms of fire have been sounded since January first.

The snow storm which was threatened Wednesday afternoon did not materialize during the night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Barstow of Wollaston Park are receiving congratulations over the birth of a ten-pound girl.

Captain Atkins is home with his family at Wollaston Park once more, after a pleasant trip from Newport News to Boston.

President Bryant of the City Council leaves today for a trip South. Mr. Bryant first goes to Ohio on a business trip. He will be absent about three weeks.

The fine light rain which fell this morning made the walking, especially on the brick and concrete sidewalks, very slippery. There were many narrow escapes from falls.

Several from Bethany church attended the quarterly meeting of the Norfolk and Pilgrim branch of the Woman's Board of Missions at Brockton on Wednesday. Mrs. H. S. Huntington of Milton presided. About 200 were present.

Galen V. Bowditch entertained the young men at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening, by the singing of several selections. The Star Spangl d Banner and America showed his fine range of voice. He was received with much applause.

Another one of those joyful whist parties took place at the Wollaston Yacht club house Tuesday evening, attended by about forty. The first ladies' prize was awarded to Miss Lillian Smith of Wollaston Park, a handsome pocketbook; second prize to Mrs. Thorp, a very pretty picture. The first gentlemen's prize went to Henry Smith, a large book; the second prize to Beacon Hicks, a pack of playing cards. The evening's amusement closed with some selections on the graphophone operated by Dr. Merrill of Wollaston.

The small boys of Atlantic congregate every night about eight o'clock by the electric light on the corner of Clive and Botolph street, and plan divers devices for tormenting the peaceful inhabitants. Monday night, after the game of tick-tack had become tiresome, the boys borrowed a few blinds from neighboring houses and left them in the fields near by. Tuesday night the policeman was seen taking a general survey of the situation as several complaints have been entered. The curfew's summons seems to do very little good until the wayward youths feel inclined to observe it.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

CITY OF QUINCY.

CITY CLERK'S Office. Jan. 1, 1900.

THE Record of birth in any city or town is always more or less unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the canvasser finds difficulty in getting the necessary information. Names and dates are frequently given incorrectly. The importance of accuracy is shown in many cases where there is a question of descent, or inheritance of property, or collection of life insurance or pensions. The City Clerk's copy of the record is accepted as conclusive evidence in a court of law. While great pains are taken by this office to have the record correct, experience shows that it is necessary that parents themselves should lend their assistance. In fact, the law requires that parents shall give notice to the City Clerk of the birth of their children, and provides a penalty for neglect to give such notice for the space of 40 days.

It often happens that only children or servants are at home when the canvasser makes his call, and the answers to his questions are open to doubt. I therefore request all parents in whose household a birth has occurred in the year 1899, to place upon a paper or card the required information, and keep it in a convenient place until the canvasser appears.

The canvasser will begin on Jan. 1, 1900.

THE FIELD FAMILY.

A Genealogist Wants Information of James Field and Others.

The Field families of Quincy and Braintree are well known and numerous, including Deputy-Sheriff Field, ex-County Commissioner Field and many others. A genealogist wants to know more about their ancestors however and has written to the Boston Transcript as follows. [Perhaps some of our readers can help him out.]

I should like information relating to the following queries. Nearly all the Fields mentioned are descendants of Robert Field of Boston 1651, a tailor:

1. Did Robert Field of Boston marry Mary Stanley daughter of Christopher? I think he did and not Zachariah Field as has been stated. Can anyone elucidate?

2. John Field, son of Robert and Mary was born in Boston, June 9, 1656. Whom did he marry and where did he reside?

3. Daniel Field, son of Robert and Mary, born in Boston Sept. 6, 1662. Have lost all track of him and his descendants. Where did he live?

4. William Field, son of Robert and Mary, born 1650 in Boston, died 1718 in Braintree; married Rebecca—. What children did they have besides William and Ebenezer?

5. Ebenezer Field, born Dorchester, 1716, was son of Robert, Jr., and Ann Foster. Whom did he marry? What children did he have? Ebenezer had a brother James, born 1723. What of him? I have it that he was on the Continental cruiser Alliance in 1776-79, and was killed the latter year. The widow had a posthumous child. She married second, Samuel Pratt of Chelsea. What was the child, a boy or girl?

6. Jonathan Field, son of Ebenezer and Abigail (Neall) of Braintree, born 1725. Whom did he marry. Where did he live and what descendants had he?

7. Joseph Field, born Braintree, 1714, married Abigail Newcomb in 1744. What children did they have besides Isaac Newcomb Field, born 1765?

8. Ebenezer Field, born in Braintree, Mass., 1722, married three times and had a son Ebenezer, who married and had children. Would like information about the latter Ebenezer.

9. What children did William Field, Jr., of Braintree have? He married, 1745, Mehitable Blake, and 1762, Abigail Brighton or Beighton.

10. Can anyone tell me whom James and Samuel Field, sons of John and Susanna (Newcomb), married? Where did they live and die?

11. Job Field, born Braintree, Mass., 1760, son of Joseph and Abigail —, was in the Revolutionary war. Whom did he marry and where did he reside?

12. Should like information in relation to Gridley Field, son of Elijah and Mary Gridley Field of Roxbury, Mass.

13. Will someone please give me information in relation to the family of Guilford Field and Bethiah Newcomb of Braintree? What children were there besides Mary and Guilford, Jr.?

14. Zachariah Field, born in Braintree in 1728, married in 1762, Sarah Savel, and died in 1769. Was he married before, and did he have any children?

15. Jonathan Field, born at Braintree, Mass., in 1746, died in 1730, when he had a minor son, Josiah, about fourteen years of age. What other children did he have? Who was his wife? He was in the Revolutionary war.

16. Should like to be put in communication with the descendants of Timothy Field of Braintree, who married Catharine Faxon and Sarah —.

17. Did Caroline Isabell Field, daughter of Rev. Joseph Field, D. D., of Weston, Mass., who was born Oct. 23, 1829, ever marry? Is she living?

18. Joseph Field, son of George and Prudence Whipple, was born in Hardwick, Mass., in 1788. Whom did he marry? Where did he reside? What children did he have?

9. James Field was born in Western, now Warren, Mass., in 1779, son of Captain, Ebenezer Field. Whom did he marry? Where did he reside?

20. James Field was born in Quincy, Mass., in 1766. What were his parents' names? He died in Quincy in 1855. He had five children.

21. Please give parents' names of Joseph Field, who married in 1808 Lydia Glover of Dorchester.

22. Who was the father of Jackson Field, who, in 1777, married Lydia Copeland, and in 1787 married Molly Newcomb? He was in the Revolutionary war; residence Braintree.

23. John Field married, 1820, Abigail Thayer; residence Dorchester. Who were his parents. Was he the John Field who died in Boston in 1882, and his only son, John, Jr., appointed administrator?

24. Information is desired of the descendants of George Field, who was born in Maine about 1670. His father was Joseph, who was born in Durham and resided at Oyster River and died there in or before 1694. The tradition is that George removed to Sudbury or Boston, Mass.

25. Joseph Field was in the Revolutionary war from Falmouth, Me. Can anyone give me the address of a descendant of his brother Bejamin?

26. Should like the address of a child of Elias and Eunice Gilmore Field of Orrington, Me.; William and Margaret Campbell Field of Orono, Me.; Daniel and — Gilmore Field of Brewer, Me.

Andrew Johnson, a native of Finland, who boards on Break Neck hill, is passive enough when sober, but when under the influence of liquor is a bad man to meet. Wednesday he got filled with liquor and that night went on the war path. He made things howl for a while at his boarding house and meeting nothing here to satisfy his crazed brain he went to the house of Adam Hendrickson, a neighbor, where he made things lively for a time. He finally drew some sharp instrument from his pocket, probably a knife, and made a savage attack on Hendrickson. During the row that followed he made a slash at Hendrickson and cut a deep gash on his forehead just over the left eye. Johnson then left and was roaming about the streets until captured later by Officers Ferguson and Bradley.

As soon as Johnson had left Hendrickson's house a doctor was summoned, and Dr. Ash who responded took several stitches in the wound. The police were also notified, but it was not until nearly midnight that they captured Johnson near the West Quincy depot.

This is not the first time that Johnson has been in similar rackets, and he has earned for himself a bad reputation.

He was arraigned in court this morning for drunkenness and for assault with a dangerous weapon, but as his victim was not able to appear in court, both cases were continued until next Monday. In the meantime Johnson will sober off at Dedham jail.

Lodge Visitation.

Merry Mount lodge, 55, I. O. G. T., entertained delegations from twelve of the neighboring lodges on Thursday, Jan. 18.

After the business of the lodge had been disposed of, the initiatory degree was worked on two candidates. This was followed by speaking and other entertainment. A representative of each lodge spoke of their lodge and its work and Albert Sutcliffe, P. D. C., T. Chas. E. Abbott P. G. E. S., Geo. R. Mc. Lellan, P. R. and H. B. Marden, P. G. C. T., of Canada, spoke for the order in general. Joel T. Watson, L. D. of Merry Mount lodge, represented this lodge in his usual pleasing way. Rev. M. C. Ward, pastor of the Universalist church of this city, was present and spoke briefly, finishing with a very interesting and appropriate reading, to which the audience responded with repeated applause. The evening's entertainment was closed with serving of refreshments. Merry Mount lodge feels that the evening was not only a pleasant one, but a very profitable one.

Wollaston Unity Club.

Modern Education is the subject of the next regular meeting of the club which occurs Friday evening, Jan. 26.

Supt. H. W. Lull has charge of the literary part of the programme; and the members of the club have a rare treat in store for them.

The following prominent educators are to furnish papers: "Demands of the Times," Supt. H. W. Lull; The Curriculum of the Modern School, Supt. S. T. Dutton, Brookline; "Methods of Teaching," Miss Mabel E. Adams; The School Building and its Surroundings, Supt. C. H. Morss, Medford; The Trend of Educational Thought, Mr. A. C. Boyden, Bridgewater Normal school.

The music will be in charge of Mrs. Moulton who has secured the following talent: Solo, Mrs. Cyrus Washburn; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Washburn; solo, Miss Jessie Arnold; solo, Mrs. Washburn.

New Sanitary System.

Work on the new sanitary system at the Coddington school building is nearly completed, and should be ready for use next week. The new sanitary rooms are located in the basement or cellar of the main building, under the front halls. Entrance to the boys department is from the hall on the north side, while that for the girls is from the south side. Ventilation is by means of a stack which enters the chimney. The floor of the rooms has been concreted, and as connections has already been made with the public sewer on Coddington street, all that remains to complete the system is some little carpentering, finishing up the closets.

Up to the present time the pupils of this school have had to use the old fashioned outbuildings which are located some distance in the rear of the building.

This is the last week of the Oxford views at the Thomas Crane public library. They have been much enjoyed, especially by some who have visited the scenes.

C. H. Johnson and Wm. F. Hoehn of Quincy, were elected annual directors of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence society at Boston, Wednesday. Henry H. Faxon was elected a life director.

If Rev. A. F. Roche is successful in carrying out all the improvements he contemplates for West Quincy, that section or the city will be fortunate and the reverend gentleman's services will be in demand in other parts of the city.

Among the other improvements at the Quincy Adams depot is a new platform. A new idea seems to have been carried out in this platform, for instead of being level, as is usually the case, the platform has quite a pitch toward the tracks.

William Winlock, employed for many years at the Wollaston Foundry succumbed to pneumonia after an illness of very short duration. He expired at his home on Hodges avenue, Norfolk Downs at 9.30, Wednesday evening, at the age of 68 years, 4 months and seven days. He leaves a widow, one daughter and one son, the latter being employed in the Freeman National Bank, Boston.

Houdini will be retained as the headliner of the Keith Show this week and will continue to escape from handcuffs, leg shackles, insane belts, or any other invention of a detaining description that is in good working order, as the professor himself puts it. He will also do the wonderful trunk trick at every performance, Mlle. Lotty, whose beautiful and artistic pozon, with color and light effects, have been so much admired, will also be held over. It will be the last week for both, however. New entertainers will be: Levender Richardson, the child "memory wonder," as he is called, Master George Bly, a youthful soprano; Art and Dot Adair, grotesque comedians; Mlle. VERDICT FOR $2,750.

James Bisson Recovers from Car Sprinkler Co.

In case of Jas. Bisson vs. American Car Sprinrkling Co., which has been on trial at the Superior Court at Dedham, a verdict was rendered Wednesday for the plantiff, who was awarded $2,750. This was an action of tort for $10,000 damages for personal injuries received by being thrown from his carriage on School street, June 19, 1899, by a collision with one of the company's cars. J. W. and J. J. McAnarney represented the plantiff and W. I. Badger the defendant.

A Women's Exchange.

A Women's exchange such as has been opened this week by Miss M. Carrie Hatch, at 186 Hancock street, is not a new idea, although up to the present time it is new to Quincy.

A word of explanation, therefore, will not be out of place. In brief, it is a place where articles of home manufacture, such as bread, cake and pastry, jellies etc., and useful and fancy articles are sent by members for sale.

In order for a lady to have her articles placed on sale, she must first become a member. This costs one dollar per year and allows the member to send anything to the exchange for sale that she desires, and she fixes her own price for the articles. For transacting the business Miss Hatch receives ten per cent. on all sales made. Several ladies, whose ability for cooking stands high, have already become members, and although the exchange has been open but two days, the demand has exceeded the supply.

Many people are poor cooks, and even those who are excellent cooks, often get tired of their own cooking, and to them the Women's exchange offers an excellent opportunity to purchase articles of food and to know that neatness has been exercised in its preparation.

His Closing Labors.

The retiring pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Rev. Robert Westly Peach, is filling the measure of his labors to overflowing. This evening at 7.30 o'clock he will lead a public meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of his church. Tomorrow evening at 7.45 o'clock he will conduct a farewell concert in the church, for which he has been training the chorus choir for several weeks. Sunday he will preach and administer infant baptism in the morning; speak at the Y. M. C. A. in the afternoon, and preach his final sermon at 7 o'clock in the evening. There will be special music at both services.

Business vs. Classical.

The debates have been resumed at the High school. Seniors took up a timely topic: Resolved, that Roberts should not receive a seat in Congress. This week the Juniors discussed the resolve—That a business education gives a person more opportunities in the world than a classical. To the affirmative were assigned Miss Monahan, Mr. Gannett and Mr. C. Lewis; to the negative, Miss M. E. Burns, Miss K. Sibley and Miss Adams.

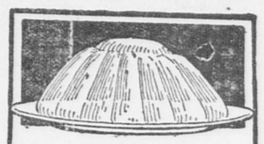

Laundering Flannels In Winter.

To launder flannels in the winter is a science. Choose a sunny day when there is little moisture in the air and shake the flannels well to get out all the dust possible. Then make a lather out of soft, warm water by shaving white castile or other good soap into water and letting it all melt. To this add two tablespoonfuls of ammonia or one of borax to a small tubful of suds. It should be quite warm, not hot. Draw the fabric up and down and squeeze it gently, never rubbing it either upon a board or with the hands. Neither should the garments be soaked in the water nor rubbed with soap. Soiled spots may be lightly rubbed with a small brush.

A second suds of the same temperature as the first must be at hand, in which the flannel is plunged after it is squeezed from the first. Proceed in the same manner as before and when cleansed throw into a rinsing water of the same temperature still. Should the article be of fine quality add a trifle of bluing to this water. Take pains to have the garment as dry as possible by squeezing gently. Now take hold of the hem of the garment and with energy snap it as dry as possible. It should be a snap, not a shake. It is surprising what an amount of water can thus be ejected. The garment is now half dried. Should it be freezing cold it will ruin the flannel to dry it out of doors. In this case or even if it is not a good drying day suspend it near heat in a room as dustless as possible. The more quickly it dries the better. Slow drying means fulling and stiffening the fabric.—Good Housekeeping.

The Queen of Sweden.

The queen of Sweden is described as a practical philanthropist. The work she does for her husband's people is done heartily, and, although she is far from strong, she taxes her energies willingly in the cause of charity. The greatest work of the queen's life has been the building and fitting out of a hospital suitable for people of all grades of society. There are public and private wards, appointed more or less as patients are able and willing to pay.

THE ROBERTS DEBATE.

Pettigrew's Sulu Resolution Passed by the Senate.

Republicans Decide Upon Reorganization of Elective Officers of the Senate.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The house continued the discussion of the Roberts case yesterday. Mr. Landis of Indiana, a member of the committee, who investigated the case and signed the majority report, claimed that Utah has violated the compact with the United States. He said the people of the country thought that polygamy in Utah was dead, but were startled to learn that a polygamist had been elected to represent that state in congress. His address was not a model of delicacy, but it was given considerable applause.

HON. C. B. LANDIS.

Mr. Landis' remarks gave the gallerles more genuine delight than anything that has been heard in months, and the doorkeepers had little success in restraining the gallery occupants from following the example of the members on the floor in bestowing generous applause. The speech was not a model of delicacy. It described in a jocular manner the way that the apostles and saints of the Mormon church had broken their agreement with the United States government, by taking up one by one the signers of the petition for amnesty and tracing their records since that time as to conjugal relations.

Mr. Landis is a western journalist, and he utilized his art by making an effective display of the data at his command. He said there had been universal rejoicing in the land in 1896, when Utah had been admitted as a state into the Union. The people of the United States [illegible] that the birth of the [illegible] thought death of the system [illegible] state worked the they words. It [illegible] tem of polygamy. Yet [illegible] startled to learn in 1898 that Utah had elected as her sole representative in the house a polygamist, and that he was moving upon Washington with a plurality of wives and a multiplicity of children.

Mr. Landis resented as unworthy of belief the charge made, he said, by Senator Rawlins that the president had appointed notorious polygamists to office. The senator might as well accuse the house of endorsing polygamy since it passed a bill appropriating $40,000 for the agricultural college at Logan, Utah. "The president of that college," said he, "is a polygamist, living in open and notorious polygamy with three wives. One of his leading professors is a polygamist, living with two wives. The trustee is a polygamist, living in open and notorious polygamy with seven wives, and they have blessed him with 39 children. The president is innocent and we are innocent because we put faith in the pledge and promise of the pious covenant breakers."

He further asserted that three of the members of the first presidency and 10 of the 12 apostles who signed the petition for amnesty were polygamists. "Of these 15 leaders who solemnly pledged their honor and faith for the future obedience to the law by the church of Jesus Christ of latter day saints, three have probably kept their pledges, namely, Wilfred Woodruff, Franklin D. Rogers and Anthony H. Lunn. The two first named at the time of the signing of the petition for amnesty were over 80 years of age and that, for all practical purposes, barred them by the statute of limitation. George Cannon, first councillor to the president of the church, is also morally guilty. On the death of Elizabeth Hoaglin Cannon, his lawful wife, and after taking unto himself three additional wives, Mr. Cannon now claims to be legally married to one Caroline Croxall, a fifth wife, by whom he has had two children, and he and all his wives live in a suburb near Salt Lake City, having no neighbors, and it is known as Cannonville.

"Mr. Rawlings might have said that Joseph F. Smith, second councillor to the presidency, has three women among whom he distributes the title of wife. Mr. Rawlins might have stated that Lorenzo Snow, prophet, president, seer and revelator, took his first two wives in Nauvoo, Ills., over 40 years ago, by one and the same ceremony—in a block of two, as it were. The older of the two women has since died and he has since married, in order named, Sarah, Harriet, Elinor, Mary, Phoebe, Minnie and Caroline. Would not you like to sit down to breakfast in that family? Snow is now living with the youngest and last wife by whom he had his youngest child during the winter of 1896-97, six years after the manifesto pledging the faith and honor of the church had been issued.

"Moses Thatcher, one of the apostles who signed the petition of amnesty, has three plural wives, two of whom bore him children, one on Jan. 3 1899, and the other on Jan. 11, 1899. They just lacked three days of being twins.

"The gentleman from Utah (Mr. Roberts) has been particularly severe on the missionaries. I do not wonder at it. The missionary has given attention to the polygamist, has stood in his path, has scattered thorns along his way, and for this he is branded as a spotter, an informer and a spy. 'But,' the gentleman says, 'we took these women in good faith and we should not abandon them.' There are 2000 polygamous families in Utah. Provide for your plural wives. Take care of your plural children, but refrain, for God's sake, refrain from multiplying the illegitimates in the state of Utah."

The other speakers were Messrs. Powers (Rep., Vt.) and Miers (Dem., Ind.) for the majority resolutions, Snodgrass (Dem., Tenn.) and Wilson (Sil.-Rep., Ida.) for the minority resolutions, Lacey (Rep., Ia.) for his proposition to expel without swearing in, and Crumpacker (Rep., Ind.) for exclusion by a two-thirds vote.

The speeches greatly strengthened the majority resolutions, which seemed in danger of falling after Mr. Littlefield's speech Tuesday, and Chairman Tayler was confident that they would be adopted when the house votes this afternoon.

Routine business occupied the attention of the senate yesterday in a brief session. The resolution offered by Mr. Pettigrew, calling upon the president for information regarding the treaty entered into with the Sultan of Sulu, was passed, after Mr. Pettigrew had made an attack upon the administration for entering into an agreement, which, he said, authorized slavery. An extended debate was precipitated by a conference report on the census administrative bill, but the census committee gained its point, and the measure was sent back to conference.

The Republican caucus of the senate yesterday decided definitely upon the reorganization of the elective officers of that body, and nominated Charles Bennett of New York for secretary, to succeed William R. Cox, and Daniel M. Ramsdell of Indiana for sergeant-at-arms, to succeed R. J. Bright. For sergeant-at arms Mr. Ramsdell was placed in nomination by Senator Fairbanks, Senator Allison named Alonzo H. Stewart of Iowa, present assistant door-keeper of the senate. Senator Foster nominated A. H. Shaw, and both Senators Gallinger and Chandler made an appeal for Captain G. A. Curtice of New Hampshire. On the first ballot Shaw received 1 vote, Curtice got 5, Stewart 18 and Ramsdell 20. The second ballot resulted 24 for Ramsdell and 20 for Stewart.

No selection was made for chaplain, which will have the effect of continuing the blind chaplain, William H. Milburn, in that office.

The allotment of the minor offices was placed in the hands of the caucus committee.

Doesn't Want to Prosecute.

Portland, Me., Jan. 25.—Theodore C. Woodbury of the firm of Woodbury & Moulton, bankers, bankrupt, was subjected to a rigid cross-examination yesterday by attorneys for creditors as to their affairs. He testified that a protested note for $1000 was the immediate cause [illegible] ...ommodation [illegible] ...ade of the failure. He said that he believed that their late cashier, E. P. Deering, who left town soon after the failure, was a defaulter. He said he did not desire to bring charges against him.

Venezuela Can Take Care of Herself.

New York, Jan. 25.—General Peraza, confidential agent here of the Venezuelan government, authorizes the statement that there will be no union between Venezuela, Colombia and Equador. This statement is made because of a story to the effect that President Castro of Venezuela was seeking to bring about the union. General Peraza says that Venezuela is now on the road to prosperity and peace, and can take care of its affairs without any assistance.

Sheldon Edition Will Be Popular.

Topeka, Jan. 25.—Since the announcement of the "Sheldon edition" of The Capital, Mr. Sheldon and The Daily Capital have been deluged with telegrams and letters from all parts of the country asking for information regarding the proposed plans for a Christian daily newspaper. An order has come from New York for 10,000 copies of each issue during the week. Another order asked for 5000 lines of advertising space.

Out of National Organization.

Haverhill, Mass., Jan. 25.—The reorganization of the Shoe Workers' unions in this city has just been completed, and as a result five of the local unions have severed their connection with the national organization, and are now acting together under a mutual agreement. All the shoe organizations in the city, with the exception of the lasters, are included.

The Hans Wagner Released.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—The German bark Hans Wagner, stopped on Dec. 19 in South African waters by the British gunboat Fearless and ordered to go to Port Elizabeth to unload, after leaving the contraband specified by the British authorities, has proceeded on her way to Delagoa Bay, being the last of the seized German vessels to be released.

Both Were Pinked.

Paris, Jan. 25.—A duel was fought yesterday between the well-known sportsman, Jacques de Bremond, and a young club man named Perier, partner in a champagne firm. It arose out of a trivial dispute. Both men were pinked in the same lung, De Bremond dangerously and Perier slightly.

Anticipating Trouble.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—The Afghan Ameer, according to a dispatch from St. Petersburg, has ordered all roads leading from Herat to Kritschk, in Transcaspia, to be guarded and at the same time the frontier garrisons have been reinforced.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The cold wave which covered the northern lake region and St. Lawrence valley has extended over northern New England. A storm has moved eastward from the upper Missouri valley over the northern lake region. This storm will cause easterly gales and rain or snow in New England, with slight changes in temperature.

BOIES FOR PRESIDENT.

Can "Poll Votes That Bryan Can Never Touch" and Democrats Will Call Him.

Waterloo, Ia., Jan. 25.—Horace Boies, as the Democratic nominee for president, is the suggestion of S. H. Bashor. Those who know the close relations existing between the two men regard the declaration as a practical announcement of his candidacy by Mr. Boies himself.

HORACE BOIES.

In discussing the question, Mr. Bashor said: "On national questions Horace Boies has shown a grasp and insight that time and events are proving accurate. Men who want a sound currency can find no objection to his ideas on bimetalism. Western men honor and trust him, and eastern men have no fear of him. He is the man upon whom all the great mass of Democrats can unite. He will poll a vote in the north and west that Mr. Bryan can never touch. He is the man of the day, and the Democrats of the nation, I believe, will call him."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 25.—Representative Carey of Haverhill started in to make interesting the Boston and Albany hearing before the committee on railroads yesterday with the declaration that he proposed to call to the attention of the house the fact that two members of the committee held Boston and Albany stock. Senator Tolman demanded the names, and was told that he and Representative Dewey of Westfield held one share each. The senator at once replied dramatically that he bought one share of Boston and Albany stock in 1891 at 190; that early last summer he sold it at 273; "not because I was going back to the legislature," added the senator, "but to make money for my own pocket. I wish it had been 100 shares."

Mr. Selfridge, house chairman of the committee on taxation, addressed the house upon the order directing his committee to investigate the operation of the law relating to the collection of poll taxes, particularly as to the arrest and imprisonment without trial of delinquents. His conclusion was that the order was unnecessary. Messrs. Donahue, Carey and Murphy supported the order, but it was rejected, 62 to 88.

No legislation necessary was reported [illegible] ...in the senate on that part of the governor's address concerning temperance.

The gypsy moth and harbor and land committees were given leave to travel.

Dismissed In Disgrace.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Post Chaplain David Shields has been dismissed from the army of the United States, to take effect Feb. 1, and Edmund T. Esterbrook of New York has been selected for appointment to the vacancy. The action in the case of Chaplain Shields was tried at San Francisco for conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman in consequence of the alleged use of intoxicating liquor.

Bryan's Eastern Tour.

New York, Jan. 25.—Mr. Bryan received a most hearty reception from 2500 Democrats at Jersey City last night, that number being all that could possibly get into the hall, and he spoke for nearly two hours and a half upon all the topics which he has usually included in his most recent speeches—Hannaism, the silver question, the trusts and imperialism. He advanced his well known arguments as put forth in previous speeches.

Worth Reading.

"You will find enclosed thirty-one one-cent stamps for one of Dr. Pierce's Medical Advisers, cloth bound," writes James E. Crampton, Esq., of Sharpsburg, Washington Co., Md. "This book is for a friend of mine who is using your 'Golden Medical Discovery;' and I cannot praise your medicine too highly. I was in business in Baltimore and had rheumatism for three months; couldn't walk at all. I tried the best doctors I could get, but they did me no good. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it cured me sound. I came home to Sharpsburg, and there were three cases of different diseases. I advised the patients to use Dr. Pierce's medicines, which they did, and all were cured."

"Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, cocaine, nor other narcotic.

Free. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book bound in paper, or 31 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE LAST ARGUMENTS.

Several Speakers Take Part In Discussion on the Roberts Case.

Majority Resolution to Exclude Him Is Carried.

Gives Out a Statement Justifying His Retention of His Plural Wives.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Large crowds filled the galleries of the house of representatives yesterday to hear the closing arguments in the Roberts case, the principal address being made by Representative Lanham of Texas, in support of the majority resolutions. Mr. Sims of Tennessee favored the minority plan; he was followed by Mr. Johnson of West Virginia, who spoke on similar lines. Mr. Brosius of Pennsylvania declared the will of the people should be executed, and favored the majority report. Mr. Grout of Vermont also spoke in its favor. Mr. Talbert of South Carolina, Mr. Adams of Georgia and several others took part in the debate. While the latter was speaking Mr. Roberts came into the hall and listened to the discussion.

Mr. Moody of Massachusetts, who had not intended to speak on the matter, changed his mind, because, he said, the question involves the constitutional rights of the people and the prerogatives of the house. He said he was aroused to his duty by the powerful speech of the gentleman from Maine. He thought the house had no right to either exclude or expel, and he said he believed in exclusion.

The case was disposed of late yesterday afternoon, when the house decided, by the adoption of the majority resolution, to exclude him by a vote of 268 to 50.

The exact language of the resolution was as follows: "That under the facts and circumstances of the case, Brigham H. Roberts, representative-elect from the state of Utah, ought not to have or hold a seat in the house of representatives, and that the seat to which he was elected is hereby declared vacant."

The amendment to expel Mr. Roberts without seating him, offered by Mr. Lacey, was ruled out on a point of order, and the house only voted upon the resolutions of the majority and minority of the committee. The minority resolution to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts was defeated, 81 to 244.

An analysis of this vote shows that 170 Republicans, 72 Democrats and 2 Populists voted against it and 71 Democrats, 7 Republicans, 2 Populists and 2 silver Republicans for it. The majority resolutions—to exclude Mr. Roberts and declare the seat vacant—was adopted by 268 to 50. The affirmative vote was divided as follows:

Republicans, 164; Democrats, 96; Populists, 4, and the negative vote, Democrats, 47; Republicans, 2; Populists, 1. There were over a score of speakers yesterday, and the closing speeches on each side were particularly able. Mr. Lanham of Texas closed for the majority and Mr. De Armond of Missouri for the minority.

Mr. Roberts was present throughout the day and only left the hall after the result of the last vote had been announced. As he did so he gave out a statement justifying his retention of his plural wives on the ground that his moral obligation was more binding upon his conscience than technical obedience to statutory law, and saying that there was no excuse for the extraordinary efforts to crush a system already abandoned and practically dead. He said he was a "martyr to a spasm of prejudice."

Just at the close of yesterday's session of the senate a speech delivered by Mr. Money of Mississippi on the race question in the south precipitated a heated colloquy between him and Mr. Chandler, in which the latter alleged that the southern senators, by intemperate statements, were reopening the whole southern question in the senate after it was supposed to be dead. The charge which Mr. Chandler particularly criticised was made by Mr. Morgan of Alabama, who is absent at present, but as it had been reiterated substantially, in Mr. Chandler's opinion, by other senators, he declared he did not purpose to permit it to go unrefuted. The charge was that the Civil war had been precipitated by designing politicians of the north for the purpose of putting the slaves on a political and social equality with the southern whites. Mr. Chandler's refutation of the statement was made with characteristic vehemence and aggressiveness, but as no reply was offered the incident ended there.

The urgent deficiency bill, carrying about $9,000,000, was passed without division and practically without debate.

Silver Coinage Statistics.

Washington, Jan. 26.—In response to a resolution of inquiry, the secretary of the treasury yesterday sent a statement to the senate concerning the fractional silver coins produced in 1899. The statement places the total at $10,578,573. According to the secretary's statement, the smallest coinage was $86,500, in February, and the largest $2,313,569, in October.

Capitol Notes.

Comptroller of the Treasury Tracewell has rendered a decision to the effect that common carriers which do an interstate business and give "party rates" to theatrical and other organizations must give the same rates to the general public under similar conditions, and also to the government in the transportation of troops.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Spaulding has sustained the decision of the board of general appraisers increasing by 2 cents a yard the duty on certain cotton cloths, known as Madras shirtings, fancy vestings, etc.

The president has signed the resolution of congress appointing former Secretary of State Richard Olney to the vacancy in the board of regents of the Smithsonian institution, vice William Preston Johnston, deceased.

DOWAGER EMPRESS STILL BOSS.

Emperor Kwang Su of China Will Be Succeeded by Nine-Year-Old Put Sing.

Shanghai, Jan. 26.—The North China Daily News publishes an edict signed by Emperor Kwang Su, appointing as emperor in his place Put Sing, the 9-year-old son of Prince Tuano. The new emperor will ascend the throne on Jan. 31.

EMPEROR OF CHINA.

The empress dowager, as now, will continue to rule China, except that her power will be more absolute than when Kwang Su was the nominal ruler. He is reaching an age when a young man in such a position would naturally seek to take the reins into his own hands. Under the guidance of the "reform" party, a year or so ago, he instituted many changes which were suggested by Englishmen and by his more advanced

DOWAGER EMPRESS OF CHINA.

Chinese advisers. This resulted in the queen dowager, who is at the head of the palace cabinet, practically deposing Kwang Su on the ground that he was physically incompetent to retain the rulership. Now even his nominal power is taken away from him under threat of death if he didn't sign the decree. The empress dowager is thought to be under Russian influence as opposed to that of England.

O'Bierne and the Transvaal.

Washington, Jan. 26.—The president yesterday sent a response to the senate resolution requesting information concerning a representative of the South African republic. He simply transmitted a report of Secretary Hay, who says that General James R. O'Beirne of New York visited the department of state, intimating that he was the accredited representative of the South African republic. He was informed that it was not the practice of the department of state to recognize a citizen of the United States as the representative of a foreign power.

THE GOULD MILLIONS.

Count and Countess Castellane Worried Over Shrinkage In Income.

Parisian Life Has Used Up $2,000,000 of Bequest.

In Addition to This $500,000 a Year Was Insufficient to Meet Expenses.

New York, Jan. 26.—The World says: From a source close to the Gould interests it is learned that Count and Countess Castellane were not prompted purely by social motives and family love to make their present visit to this country.

It is true that the countess' purse strings have been tugged at so vigorously since her residence in Paris that the generous income she enjoyed as a beneficiary of the Gould estate has been unequal to the outgo. Count Boni has watched with anxious eyes the quarterly checks, which have grown less in amounts as the years went by, until at last he induced his wife to ask for a more remunerative accounting of the millions left by her father's will.

Count Boni's knowledge of the properties in which the vast Gould fortune is invested is as limited as his own personal income. The countess is equally ignorant. The dizzy whirl of the gay Parisian capital has been their only world for five years past.

Despite these business shortcomings, it dawned upon the count and countess that it was their duty to come to New York to protest to the executors of the estate of the late Jay Gould against the shrinkage in their income from the great property.

Anna Gould, by the will of her father, received with her brothers and sisters an equal one-sixth of the fortune. What that fortune represented in dollars has never been accurately stated, but a careful estimate at the time of the death of Jay Gould placed the total at $100,000,000.

The share of the six children in this immense sum was figured at $15,000,000 each, with an extra $5,000,000 to the new head of the family, George Gould.

But while the count and countess were getting rid by lavish expenditure of every dollar the estate furnished them, the other members of the family have been constantly adding to the inherited principal.

The entire property has earned, perhaps, 3 percent, or $500,000 a year for each heir, since the death of Jay Gould. George has been a shrewd speculator in the market, which has enabled him to largely increase his fortune, but he has spent immense sums in satisfying his social ambitions.

Anna has run through her income like a whirlwind. Not only has the $500,000 a year been insufficient to meet the expenses of herself and the count, but $2,000,000 of her original bequest has been expended in the extravagance of Parisian life.

Since the death of Jay Gould his children have spent nearly $16,000,000. Gould, the father, was one of the most modest of millionaires in his way of living. His income was as unpretentious as that of any humble merchant.

Certainly the tastes of the family differ. Only a few days ago Frank paid $5000 for a St. Bernard dog. Jay Gould would have lived half a year on that sum. It cost Anna $1,000,000 down to become a countess and millions since to maintain the title. No wonder some one recently asked: "Are the bones of Jay Gould rattling in his grave?"

Count Castellane is in a rage. The continued thrusts and charges of the Paris Figaro and its editor, M. De Rodays, have excited his anger to a remarkable degree. He said yesterday he did not know what he would do to Rodays when he returned to Paris. He might "blow his head off," he said.

Concession to Avoid Heavy Loss.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 26.—The strike, involving over 500 hands, which has shut down the works of the local branch of the American Hide and Leather company, will probably end today, the management having acceded to most of the demands made by the strikers. The adjustment would not have been made in such brief order but for the fact that there are 50,000 hides now under chemical action, which if not removed would be valueless in a few hours. This property is valued at $75,000. The shavers, among whom the strike originated, have asked for an increase of 39 percent, which will be granted.

Strike Not Endorsed by Union.

Boston, Jan. 26.—An effort to settle the trouble now pending between the cigar makers of Boston and the cigar manufacturers was made yesterday by Clerk Supple of the state board of arbitration, but, as the demands of the workmen for an increase in wages had not received the sanction of the union, Secretary Abraham of the union was powerless to act in the premises. It is believed that the trouble will be settled within a few days.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. Good Afternoon.

During the past ten years the voters of Norfolk county have had occasion to rebuke their County Commissioners, and they made a reform by changing the personnel of the board. It is said that the Commissioners are an irresponsible board, but the board in question found that they could not be reckless and extravagant in the discharge of official duties and the expenditure of public money and retain their positions. The Republicans effected a change by refusing to renominate men elected as Republicans, and the recent annual report of the receipts and expenditures of Norfolk County was a gratifying financial exhibit to the taxpayers of economical administration.

In view of the reform effected by the voters of Norfolk County, the assault of Representative Clark of Dedham in the Legislature is a surprise, and one fails to see what improvement this new bill will accomplish. Instead of increasing the board of County Commissioners from three to five, we would abolish the special commissioners entirely. The secret of good government lies in the election of honest officials, and if the people take an interest in the primaries as well as the elections, all will be well.

The board of County Commissioners does not seem the proper place to make the experiment of minority representation, and Norfolk County, which is strongly Republican, does not feel the necessity of providing for the election of one Democrat on the board in order to be ensured good government. Again, the bill of Mr. Clark would remove the election of the special commissioners from the people: this is not Democratic, neither will it be popular. We are among those who believe nominations and elections should be by the direct vote of the people rather than by delegates in conventions, where trades carry the day.

BURNS CELEBRATION.

Scotia Sons and Daughters Have a Good Time.

A grand Burns memorial entertainment was held Thursday evening in Hancock hall, under the auspices of the Loyal Ladies of Clan McGregor, No. 1.

The programme opened with the singing of Burns own account of his birth, viz. his rousing song, "Rantin Rovin Robin," by a select choir. Then followed a sumptuous and characteristic supper, such Scotch dainties as roast turkey and mealy puddings with the usual dressing were well represented on the numerous and overflowing tables and were served by a grand staff of bonnie Scotch lasses. Good coffee and "thrang" company soon produced their effect, and apt jokes with loud gaw-fas kept time to the clatter of the busy knives and forks on loaded dishes.

By 10.30 the hall was cleared for dancing and about 150 couples stepped gayly through the varying forms of the grand march to the stirring strains of Robinson's orchestra of five pieces. At intervals in the dancing Mrs. Agnes Donald, William Pratt, William Elrick, William Dickie, Mrs. Christina Raleigh, Miss Lizzie Smith, Mrs. Maggie Stronack, James Marr and George McIntosh sang some of Burns most famous songs.

Altogether the evening was one of the most entertaining and enjoyable among their many good times that the Loyal Ladies have held, and the hundreds of Scotia's son and daughter who were present will long remember it as a very fitting celebration of their world famous and loved poet, Robert Burns.

It is hardly necessary to make any comment on a character as well known as Robert Burns, so much has been spoken and written of him that his fame and peculiarities are as well known from one end of the earth to the other, as between "Mary's Kirk" and John o' Graot's" the two ends o' his beloved Scotland. To the Scotch, however, his songs express, as none others have, the feelings of joy and sorrow, of love and ambition, and have stirred many Scottish hearts in far off lands, either in pursuing the arts of peace or following the fortune of an army. The Loyal Ladies of Quincy but follow the trend of their native feelings in celebrating in such a way the name of Rantin Robin.

The committee of arrangements were: Mrs. Mary Smith, Mrs. Lizzie Perry, Mrs. Maggie Stronach, Mrs. Maggie Hall, Mrs. Lizzie McIntosh, Mrs. Margaret Ross, Mrs. Agnes Donald.

The floor during the evening was in charge of Mrs. Lizzie McIntosh and Mrs. Maggie Hall.

They're Onto Him Now.

It has been said of Atlantic that it was a favorite rendezvous for peddlers of all sorts and kinds and this fact became something more than a joke this week. A man stopped at the door of a house on Billings street and inquired if there were any old pieces of furniture which he could buy. The woman who answered his knock bethought herself of an old bed lounge since noted useless and straight away asked the man to inspect it. He followed her upstairs in all respects a perfect gentleman and after viewing the bed which at best was worth a dollar or so offered five dollars for it. But his eye had been traveling about and as it lighted on a rare little chest cast aside because it was old-fashioned the man said he would give fifty cents for the chest. Of course the housewife declared herself lucky about the sale of the bed so agreed to the second bargain readily. The man complaining of instability of his wagon said he would take the chest and return for the bed the following day. He paid fifty cents for a rare piece of antiquity and drove away to return no more.

This same man has frequented most every house in Atlantic and must by this time be smiling broadly over his collection of odd plates, cups and saucers, brackets, chairs and the like. The news has spread by this time and without doubt the next place the man visits he will knock vainly for admittance.

COUNTY REFORMS.

Representative Clark of Dedham to Fight County Commissioners.

Considerable prominence is given by a certain Boston daily to a bill filed today at the State House by Representative Arthur Clark, Democrat, of the Dedham district. The bill has this title: "An act relative to the election of special county commissioners, and to define their powers and duties." Some of its provisions are as follows:

"Each town in every county, except Suffolk and Nantucket, shall at the next annual town meeting holden there-in elect one delegate at large and one additional delegate for every 100 or majority fraction thereof of voters present and voting at such town meeting;—the delegates so chosen together with the entire membership of all boards of aldermen in cities located within such county, shall constitute the delegates to a convention held for the purpose of electing the special county commissioners.

"Within 30 days after the annual town meetings the delegates provided for shall, at the call of the chairman of the board of county commissioners, assemble at the shire town of their respective counties, organize by the selection of a chairman and secretary and elect two special county commissioners of which not more than one may be a resident of any one city or town, and neither may be a resident of any city or town in which any member of the regular board of county commissioners lives."

"The candidate receiving the greatest number of votes and a member of one of the greater political parties and the candidate receiving the greatest number of votes and being a member of the next greatest political party shall be elected, and no two special county commissioners in the same county shall be of the same political party."

"The special commissioners herein provided for shall attend all meetings of their several boards of county commissioners, having voice and vote in all cases, and in case of the death or inability to serve of one of the regular commissioners either one of the specials may be designated by the regular board to fill the vacancy and the remaining members shall elect a temporary member to serve as special commissioner until the vacancy is filled. Any vacancy of special commissioners may be filled by vote of the remaining members of the board."

These special commissioners are to receive the same salary as the regular members of the board.

"All duties purely clerical may be performed by the regular board, but all hearings shall be held and appropriation of funds made at a meeting of the whole membership, both regular and special, and no expenditure of moneys exceeding $1,000 shall be authorized except upon an affirmative vote of at least four-fifths of the entire membership of the board."

Mr. Faxon's Fun.

The Brockton Enterprise says editorially:

"Mr. Henry H. Faxon has been amusing the State again. He fears that if some of the working men get too much pay they may buy rum—that's the impression we get from reading his remarks in reply to Mr. Carey of Haverhill at a hearing before the House judiciary committee—and he believes that jurors are an abortion and fraud, and a jury trial is a farce—all because jurors don't always convict in liquor cases.

"Mr. Faxon is a gentleman whose principal form of amusement nowadays is to sit around in public places and make trouble for somebody. Nothing suits him unless he originated it, and he loves to make broad and sweeping statements that are effective in a comedy sense, but amount to nothing from common sense point of view. A jury somewhere failed to convict a liquor seller—therefore, in the Faxon mind jurors are 'abortions' and a jury trial is "a farce."

"Will heaven be good enough for Mr. Faxon in the days to come?

Queer Time for Bonfire.

About 2.30 o'clock Thursday morning, Officer Murray while on Bigelow street, saw a bright light of a fire near Whicher's old factory on Union street. Thinking there surely must be a fire he sprinted for the blaze. Upon his arrival he found that one of the neighbors in that vicinity, a woman, had built a large bonfire in her back yard and was burning a lot of rubbish. The fire was near an old shed, which was in immediate danger of taking fire. Jim constituted himself a fire department and put out the fire.

THE SICK WILL BE CURED FREE.

In Faxon Hall, Quincy, Cor. Chestnut St. and Revere Road, Beginning Monday Afternoon, Jan. 29th at 2.30 o'clock and Continuing Every Afternoon During the Week. Doors Open 2 P. M.

THE KING OF HEALERS, PROF. J. P. COFFEY,

Will Positively Appear. He Will Both Startle and Delight You With His Marvelous Powers. 300,000 People In This State Have Seen Him Make the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Cripple Dance With Joy by the Laying on of the Hands.

"An Exhibition Surpassing Anything Ever Attempted on the American Stage."

ADMISSION FREE.

The Adult Public Cordially Invited to Attend. All Treatment Given in Hall FREE.

Professor Coffey the great natural healer, will heal the sick, lame, crippled, rheumatic and paralytic, reduce tumors and cure deafness in public in this city.

He will lecture and give his marvelous exhibition, explaining and demonstrating his wonderful power of healing "by the laying on of hands" which has heretofore been conceded only possible to workers of ancient miracles.

All cures in public are made entirely free and nearly everybody in the audience can feel his strange magnetic influence.

He is the only man who has cured any one in People's Temple, Boston, and the only man who has appeared in all the principal cities of this state during the last year. Over 300,000 people in this state alone have seen his wonderful power demonstrated in public. Others try to imitate but always meet with failure.

This gentleman is the most powerful natural healer now living, and has performed more remarkable cures in public than any man in the world, his power seeming little less than miraculous.

Everybody is at liberty to bring those of their own choice to the hall for treatment so that they may witness that every cure which he makes is genuine. They come to him sick, crippled and in pain, and they leave him free from all suffering. By making a few passes with his hand over the body and limbs of the patient all pain is stopped and the sick are healed and often simply by a touch from his hand many who are crippled are enabled to walk. These cures are made openly in public, where the entire audience may witness them.

Prof. Coffey's conception and rendering of his remarkable power of healing, placing it before the public in graphic lectures and occult experiment, is most happily wrought and romantically told, a sentiment of profit running through every word and act, often evoking the wildest merriment, and then again, producing the most profound solemnity.

These lectures and demonstrations are of the most wonderful character—they will excell anything ever attempted before in public, filled with serious and pathetic scenes as well as with wild and tragic events; the unlooked-for-strange and startling situations many times outrival the wildest conception.

He is the greatest as well as the strangest of all entertainers. He brings to this city the very Mecca of gladness and miracle.

An exhibition of the rarest purity and of the most wonderful phenomenal results, which startles the public, and thrills the Christian heart, conveying a lesson of historical truth outstripping all romance, carrying the audience back nearly 1900 years to the time of ancient miracles.

Over two million people have seen Prof. Coffey cure on the public platform those who have been sick, deaf, lame and decrepit for years, many times by only a single treatment; patient after patient who had lost all hope of being restored.

None should miss this opportunity of seeing and hearing this man, who comes with such remarkable healing in his hands and whose successful demonstrations have caused such world-wide investigation by the most learned physicians of every school and in every land.

Here men and women who had been helpless cripples for a score of years are made well and strong in a few moments, and weak and suffering people recreated into strong and robust men and women at the magic touch of this great man, this mighty healer, whose touch is health, and who is inspired to do this great work of curing afflicted humanity by the laying on of hands.

No part of the person will be denuded, not even the outer garments removed. These patients, although among the oldest and most confirmed cripples and invalids, and with but this seemingly so simple treatment the most of them will declare themselves cured; in nearly all cases all pain will be instantly stopped; the crippled will throw away their canes and crutches, the deaf will hear, while the sick and debilitated will receive renewed life and vitality.

At these demonstrations all treatments are given ENTIRELY FREE, without money and without price, proper cleanliness of both person and raiment being the only requisite to insure the kindest consideration.

Press Notices.

Marvelous as it may seem, bordering on the miraculous, as it certainly would appear, nevertheless there are men and women in this city who have to credit their complete restoration to health to Prof. Coffey's modern method of curing diseases by hand manipulations. It is hard to disbelieve the honest expressions of hundreds of truthful men and women. Especially so, when nothing is to be gained by telling a falsehood.—Boston Herald.

"Of all the divine or magnetic healers we have seen or heard Professor Coffey is the fairest, frankest and most interesting.

Whatever prejudice may exist among men of the present day as to the efficacy of curing diseases without medicine is being dispelled by Prof. Coffey like fog before the hurricane and his "Method" is being heralded throughout the world as one of the most wonderful scientific discoveries of this or any other age.—Lynn Item.

Nobody can form any idea of the miraculous cures performed by Prof. Coffey in the opera house unless they witnessed them. It was your privilege. You were invited free of charge. The Professor treated many cases in public in this city without a single failure. No one was in the least injured, and all received much benefit, many marvelous cures being made. A man on crutches for years was cured in a few moments of time simply by this man passing his hands over the limbs of the patient.—Salem News.

Some people thought that many of the wonderful cures performed by him in Odd Fellows' hall this week were miracles.—Lowell Citizen.

JUNK LICENSES.

Chairman Defends the City Council Committee.

Says Landlords Are Largely Responsible.

Police and Board of Health Should Also Be Alert.

Editors of the Daily Ledger:

I saw an article in the Ledger of the 24th relative to junk dealers, etc, and desire to say a few words on the subject.

The responsibility of the matter seems to be thrown on the Committee on Licenses, and a remedy is suggested namely: that the Committee on Licenses recommend to the Council leave to withdraw when a renewal of the license is asked for.

But I want to state right here, that if the City Council gave leave to withdraw on every application the junk business would still be carried on in Quincy.

A. W. NEWCOMB.

The committee last year established a policy in regard to the licenses of junk dealers and served all alike. We recommended that the license be granted if the neighbors did not object; if the yard had a neat appearance; and if we had reason to believe that the dealer would keep the city ordinances and the public statutes. He also favored an isolated locality. Out of those that applied we picked out the best.

Some of those that were refused a license still remained in Quincy, gathered junk in the neighboring towns, brought it to Quincy, kept it in Quincy as long as they wished scattered it around their yard perhaps, and sold it when they got ready at wholesale.

In doing all this no ordinance was violated or law-broken, unless the public health was endangered.

If the people of Quincy want to rid city of the objectionable junk men they must bring pressure on the landlords, to refuse to rent their estates to these people. I, personally, interviewed a landlord in regard to this matter, and urged him strongly not to rent a house in a first class locality to these tenants, but he cared nothing about the wish of the neighborhood, and instead of renting his house to a high grade family he let in two families of the other sort. The reason why, was, that the first family would have paid him fifteen dollars a month and the other two paid him ten dollars each, making a gain of five dollars a month.

As long as houses are open for these people they will make Quincy their home. As far as I know, there is no junk dealer in Ward Five or Ward Six.

Again, after the license is given out, the Executive department is responsible and no one else. This department should see to it that the right number and name is on the wagon; that the driver is the prover person to be there; and that the city ordinances and the public statutes are not violated.

The Committee on Licenses have at this stage, no more to do with the licenses than any citizen. The Committee on Licenses cannot always tell what will take place after the license leaves their hands. If the junk dealer gathers rags that contain germs of disease (which are sold in some instances by people who ought to know better) and the public health is endangered, it is the business of the Board of Health to clean out these places, and not the Committee on Licenses.

Complaints have been made against some of the junk dealers to this branch of the Executive department of the city, and if it has failed to fill its mission in this respect, it has not done its duty.

I may add that the junk business is a necessary and honorable business, and as long as rags accumulate in the house some one will call for them. The only thing to be done is to keep down the objectionable features as much as possible, and the committee this year will endeavor, with what experience it has had, to do its part in this matter, in such a way that no fault can be found with the Committee on Licenses.

Arthur W. Newcomb,
Chairman.

Farm Goes a Begging.

Henry H. Faxon was always well known through his persistent warfare against the sale of intoxicating liquors, but he has become more so since he offered to give a farm free for three years to anyone who wanted to work it. He has had a number of applications, but in every case the applicants had some fault to find with the land mainly that it was situated to far from the centre. Mr. Faxon says that he also receives many inquires by mail, but as yet has been unable to find anyone who wanted to farm very much. He further says that Mr. Garrison may have taken his offer as a joke but when he said he would give his land he meant it.

Ladies' Social Union.

About thirty ladies assembled at the Methodist parsonage, 12 Hall place, West Quincy, on Wednesday evening, January 24, for the purpose of organizing a society composed of the Protestant women of West Quincy without reference to creed whose object should be to unite the people in sustaining the only church representing Protestantism in Ward Four.

All denominations were represented and the greatest harmony and enthusiasm prevail.

At the request of those who were instrumental in calling the meeting Rev. C. W. Wilder called the assembly to order and continued to act as temporary chairman till the organization was completed.

It was voted to call the society the "West Quincy Ladies' Social Union." A committee of five ladies was appointed to nominate officers who after careful consultation presented a list of officers as given below and they were unanimously elected:

President,—Mrs. F. L. Badger.
Vice President,—Mrs. Dr. Dion.
Secretary,—Miss E. H. Wilder.
Treasurer,—Mrs. F. W. Fuller.
Directors,—Mrs. Crowell, Mrs. Loud, Mrs. Manhire, Mrs. J. H. Pierce, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Welch, Mrs. Trask, Mrs. Newcomb, Mrs. Wark, Mrs. Cameron, Mrs. J. T. Pearce, Mrs. Monroe, Miss Thayer and Miss Doble.

A large number of ladies who could not be present at this meeting are pledged to unite with the society, and assist in carrying forward its work.

The officers and directors will meet at an early day to formulate plans and inaugurate work in behalf of the church and community at once.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the delightful spirit, and the enthusiasm and harmony which charaterized all the proceedings of the meeting. The meeting was enlivened by a trio by Misses Thayer, Crowell and Wilder and by solos by Miss Trask. Cake and cocoa were served at the close of the business.

The Well Groomed Girl.

The American girl has taken with a vim to some of the newest and Frenchiest fads in "grooming" introduced this season, some of them startling in their nature.

"A plain girl well groomed is far more chic and attractive than a beauty carelessly dressed." This is the proverb which hangs in the parlor of a well known "beauty doctor" in Fifth avenue. "Grooming" in one of the new dictionaries is described as "excessive cleanliness," but it is more than that, for it includes all sorts of training of the muscles, too exuberant curves and the cultivation of a certain healthful glow that in no way resembles the old cosmetic effect.

Now, like all good things which are liable to be overdone, Parisian ideas of grooming are creeping into our complexionists' shops, and we are threatened with a sort of renaissance in our beauty making.

Various famous Parisians have been trained to the part to such an extent that, regarding them merely as beautiful women, they present the most exquisite types, daintily refined in manner, dress and form, high bred to the finger tips, not through blood, but through this mysterious training which thus far has been possible only to the Parisians.

The Queen Threw Her Shoe.

"The recent farewell of the queen," said William Granby of London at the Fifth Avenue hotel recently, "to the regiment of highlanders ordered to South Africa from Balmoral has called to mind another leave taking of her majesty some 45 years ago.

"Together with Prince Albert she was reviewing the guards from Buckingham palace as they marched past just prior to starting for the Crimean campaign. As the superb regiment filed past, in memory of the old English idea of giving good luck the queen stooped down and, taking one of her shoes off her foot, impulsively threw it among the guards. Even their wonderful discipline was thrown to the winds for the time being, and a wild scramble for the trophy ensued. Who got it was never known, but he who carried that tiny satin shoe in his knapsack to that bloody campaign, it is safe to say, never returned, or it would have been heard of again. Probably some marauder on one of the battlefields found it in the knapsack of the dead soldier who had secured it in the scramble and threw it aside as valueless without realizing or giving thought as to where it might have originally come from."—New York Tribune.

Souvenirs of College Life.

The college boy nowadays, or indeed the young man at home for that matter, is as eager to preserve the trophies and mementos of his social career as is his sister. A simple gift and one that is sure to please him may be made by the most inexperienced young sister or friend. This is a plaque or panel for his favors and trinkets.

Get a carpenter to prepare a smooth pine board not more than half an inch in thickness when ready for use. This may be cut in a plaque or in an oblong panel shape, with the upper end slightly pointed. It is then covered neatly with lightweight ladies' cloth of the college or favorite color of the recipient. Two screw rings are attached to the back through which the hang wire may be passed. In the face of the board are then inserted little brass screw hooks arranged either in even rows or irregularly.

The board is decorative in the young man's room, and its service is most convenient for all sorts of little trifles, favors and trinkets that he wants to keep and display.—New York Post.

Examine the new oil cloth on the kitchen floor; its color and gloss are being destroyed and you may see where a cake of common soap fresh from the hot water in the scrubbing bucket has been laid on it for a moment, the free alkali having eaten an impression of the cake into the bright colors.

A more careful examination will show small "pin holes" here and there where the alkali has cut through the surface to soak into and gradually weaken the whole floor covering.

Gold Dust Washing Powder

Dissolve a tablespoonful in the hot water and wash quickly; have plenty of nice, dry towels to wipe with; have a drainer that will allow the water to run off the dishes into receptacle below, when you will have highly polished glass and china.

A Jury of Four.

Boston, Jan. 26.—Two trials in the superior court yesterday, where the offences charged were apparently of minor importance, developed uncommon procedure. The defendants, cabmen, were charged with violation of a city ordinance relating to soliciting patronage. The panel of jurors ran short, and one accepted four jurors, who convicted him, and the other 10 jurors, who did likewise. Nominal fines were imposed. Four men in a jury breaks a record in Massachusetts courts.

Twenty Rounds to a Draw.

Hartford, Jan. 26.—Dal Hawkins of California and Martin Flaherty of Lowell, Mass., fought a 20-round draw last night. Both men fought fast and were tired out after a most terrific battle. A feature of the fight was Flaherty's magnificent ducking tactics and his good ring generalship. During the latter part of the fight Hawkins fouled continually, although on several occasions it was due to Flaherty's jumping up to avoid blows. The men fought at 133 pounds.

Misunderstanding of Orders.

Waycross, Ga., Jan. 26.—In a dense fog a special train of the Plant system and a freight collided head-on in the yards here. The special had on board about 200 retail lumber dealers from Indiana, who were en route home from an excursion through south Georgia and Florida. Two cars were telescoped. Fifteen persons were more or less sverely bruised. One may die. Th collision is said to have been due to a misunderstanding of orders.

Must Go Before Aldermen.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The common council last night refused to concur with the aldermen in electing Frank J. O'Toole city clerk, and adhered to its former vote whereby Edward J. Donovan was chosen on the part of the council. The vote last night stood: Donovan, 51; O'Toole, 15. The election now goes before the board of aldermen.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The cold wave which occupied the upper Missouri and Red river of the north valleys has extended over the middle and upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys and the upper lake region, where the temperature has fallen about 30 degrees. This cold wave will cover the Atlantic and gulf states, and will probably carry the line of freezing weather to extreme northern Florida. The storm has advanced to the southeast New England coast. The weather will be cold and fair in the New England districts.

Divorced Wife Has No Right to Contest.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The contest over the will of Robert B. Brigham, the well-known hotel keeper, came to an abrupt ending in the probate court yesterday. Judge McKim allowed the will, holding that the contestant, Frances G. Brigham, the former wife of the testator, had no right by reason of her divorce to oppose the petition asking for the admission to probate.

Weavers Threaten to Quit Work.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 26.—Unless their grievances are satisfactorily settled in the meantime, the weavers employed at the Stafford mill will leave their work on Monday night, in protest against the rate of wages now paid them on a certain style of goods. Other mills are complained of by operatives, and the union will investigate their greivances.

SURPRISED GARRISON.

British Drove Boers From the Fort on Spion Kop.

Attack Was Made by Warren In the Darkness.

Fruitless Attempts by the Boers to Recover Their Position.

Military Authorities Appear to Think That Ladysmith Will Soon Be Relieved.

London, Jan. 26.—If General Buller can hold Spion Kop, which he took by assault Tuesday night, according to schedule, and can get his heavy artillery in position there, there is a prospect that the Boer right flank can be turned back far enough to enable him to rescue the garrison of the beleaguered city of Ladysmith. Buller evidently believes that Spion Kop is the key to the position of the Boer right. It is the highest part of a rocky plateau, and according to report commands the main Boer position, which therefore will become untenable. General Buller's report to the war office is dated Jan. 25, 12:10 a. m. It says:

"General Warren's troops last night occupied Spion Kop, surprising the small garrison, who fled. It has been held by us all day, though we were heavily attacked, especially by a very annoying shell fire. I fear our casualties are considerable, and I have to inform you, with regret, that General Woodgate was dangerously wounded. General Warren's opinion is that he has rendered the enemy's position untenable. The men are splendid."

General Buller's phrase "the men are splendid" thrills England with pride and confidence. His taking and holding Spion Kop are considered permanent advantages.

General Warren's opinion that miles of the adjacent Boer entrenchments are untenable is accepted by most expert observers as obviously true because of the height of the position, although some point out that it may lack adequate gun platform to resist artillery fire from the two extended sides.

It is not likely that General Warren will let go anything he holds, and news of further success is calmly awaited. The military authorities recognize, of course, that in the 12 or 15 miles between Spion Kop and Ladysmith there are continuous defensive positions and rugged hills and ravines, which far outrange Spion Kop, but they are sure that the troops who have turned the Boers out of difficult places can do it again. The military expert of The Times says:

"It is exceedingly difficult to arrive at any exact estimate of the advantage gained. A definite tactical object has been attained, and definite steps have been taken in the fulfillment of the strategic plan. It is necessary to await fuller information before attatching due weight to the successes thus far attained. At least, there has been steady progress."

The Kildonan Castle reached Durban yesterday with 2000 additional troops for General Buller, and three troopships have arrived from India, bringing among others, a regiment of lancers. Beyond these it is not publicly known here how heavily General Buller has been reinforced, but those having certain connections with the war office are confident that General Buller will have as many more men as he may need to make his work easier.

General Buller's flank movement, which the taking of Spion Kop again puts on the road to success, began Jan. 10. Lord Dundonald's mounted brigade took the first step to carry out Buller's plan to turn the Boers' right flank, by suddenly seizing Springfield, 15 miles west of Chieveley, and across the Little Tugela river, and by occupying hills to the northward commanding the important Potgieter's Drift (ford) on the big Tugela.

Seemingly the Boers were taken unprepared, but on the appearance of the British column large forces hurried up and began digging intrenchments along a range of hills four or five miles back from the river. Lyttleton's brigade was promptly pushed up to the support of Dundonald's. Four days' delay ensued, while Warren's forces were marching toward Trichard's drift, six miles west from Potgieter's.

Tuesday, Jan. 16, found all in readiness, and Lyttleton threw over part of his brigade, which was not opposed, and seized some low ridges on the northern bank. Wednesday morning Warren arrived at Trichard's Drift. The enemy tried to bar his passage, but, aided by long-range naval guns on the heights south of Potgieter's Drift, his artillery drove the Boers' battery away. A large part of his command crossed the same day on a pontoon bridge.

Dundonald's cavalry made a reconnoissance around Warren's left Thursday, and defeated a small body of Boers to the northward of Spion Kop and near Acton Homes, a village on the direct road from the west into Ladysmith. To meet Warren's advance Joubert now brought up large reinforcements from the direction of Colenso and Ladysmith.

Warren's forward movement began in earnest last Friday. By a long, circuitous route he sought to get around the Boers' right, but found the ridges running down to the road to Ladysmith filled with the enemy. He was forced to turn back, and Saturday he began a front attack on the Boers. During 13 hours he pushed his division ahead, capturing several ridges against stubborn opposition. The British wounded that day numbered 300 and the number of dead is not known.

The battle was renewed Sunday, and apparently with sterner vigor. When night fell three positions had been secured, after a struggle which was continuous with the day, and all uphill. Since that time very little information has been allowed to come from Natal, and that little showed that Warren was still engaging the enemy, but was practically at a standstill. The critical situation was revealed by Buller Tuesday night, when he cabled that Warren was holding the same position as two days before, while in front of him, and three-quarters of a mile away, on higher ground, was the enemy's stronghold. As the slopes between were bare and open, a daylight assault seemed impossible, and he announced that an attack would be made that night on Spion Kop, the salient point of the Boers' line.

This it appears was carried out with signal success, the Boers being taken by surprise and turned out of their works. The importance of the position as the key to the situation is shown by the desperate attempts of the Boers to retake it, attempts which were beaten off after hard fighting all day Wednesday, in which heavy losses were sustained.

The losses sustained by the British, Buller says, were heavy. Those of the burghers were probably not less severe, since, according to our understanding of the course of the fighting, the allies were the assailants. One thing not cleared up in the dispatches is what became of the Boer guns which were mounted on Spion Kop. If the position was captured by a swift dash in the dark they should have been taken, but Buller makes no mention of their capture.

The situation in the neighborhood of the other armies is unchanged, but a forward movement by General French is daily expected. A dispatch to The Standard from Rensburg describes Gen. French's dispositions as now forming a great semi-circle around the Boer positions. The correspondent says he could take Colesberg, two miles away, at any time.

A letter from Pretoria gives the text of a complaint which President Kruger made to President Steyn, regarding the want of co-operation on the part of the Free Staters at Modder river, and also President Steyn's address to the Free Staters. Mr. Kruger said he had learned, with regret, that "only about 1000 men of the Free State fought in the last battle, and that many others remained in their camps, while their brothers resisted and even defeated their enemy." These statements appear to give official confirmation to the reports of disagreements between the allies.

Remarkable Move of Schwan's Command.

Manila, Jan. 26.—A part of General Schwan's column, consisting of six companies with some artillery, drove a force of 500 insurgents from their entrenchments at San Diego, near San Pablo, on Sunday. The enemy officially reported that they lost 67 killed and wounded. Our casualties were one killed and 14 wounded, the injuries in most instances being slight. Another battalion, while xceuting a flank movement, came upon 100 other rebels in an entrenched position and routed them, killing 15. The Americans had two wounded. General Schwan moved against Majayjay, Laguna province, on Tuesday. He found its position almost impregnable, but, by lowering men down the steep river banks by ropes, flanked the enemy and drove them out. A part of his command proceeded to Santa Cruz, killing six nsurgents.

Plague-Stricken Honolulu.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 26.—Steamer Miowera, just arrived, has news of 38 deaths at Honolulu from the plague, one a white woman of good class. The city is panic stricken. An armed mob prevents the landing of steamers at Hilo. Dr. Cooper of the board of health of Honolulu had 10 blocks burned. Dr. Carmichael has been ordered to Manila. Thirty-four hundred Japanese at Honolulu are in quarantine.

No More Witnesses Needed.

New York, Jan. 26.—Assistant District Attorney Osborne, when asked yesterday if he had succeeded in finding any new evidence for the prosecution in the Molineux case, replied that he had not been looking for any. "I would not call another witness other than those I have already summoned if you were to furnish me a dozen. What is the use of it? Haven't I called enough to prove my case?"

An Important Capture.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 26.—The local police yesterday captured an alleged horse thief, who has been sought far and near by the police of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The names under which he has operated in this vicinity are John Carr, William Carr, William Parker, Clarence Murphy and D. F. Sullivan. He was captured while trying to dispose of stolen property.

To Test Food Value of Alcohol.

Middletown, Conn., Jan. 26.—Professor Atwater of Wesleyan university has started a new series of experiments with the calorimeter. A man has entered the box-like structure for a residence of several days, and during the time, as an aid to scientific research, he will be given alcohol in small quantities at intervals to determine its food value.

Admits His Guilt.

Boston, Jan. 26.—Noel Landry of Lowell was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Fiske on a complaint which charged him with passing counterfeit 50-cent pieces. He pleaded guilty, and was held in $1500 for the March term of the United States district court. In default of sureties he was committed.

Governor Will Approve It.

Richmond, Jan. 26.—The bill providing for separate cars for whites and negroes on the railways in this state passed the senate yesterday, without a dissenting vote, and as it came from the house. The governor's approval, which will make it a law, is considered a foregone conclusion.

Dead From the Philippines.

San Francisco, Jan. 26.—The bodies of 156 soldiers, who died in the Philippines, were removed from the City of Pekin yesterday and taken to the Presidio, where they will be held pending a decision as to their final disposition.

BIG SURPLUS SHOWN.

John P. Squire & Co. Have Assets of $6,000,000 to Settle Debts of $5,000,000.

Boston, Jan. 26.—Herman W. Chaplin, assignee of John P. Squire & Co., has issued a statement in which it is asserted that this corporation, with all the concerns involved with it, is found to have assets, taken as a whole, of $6,000,000, or about $1,000,000 more than its liabilities. The amount of assets is figured after throwing out all untrustworthy bank accounts, and taken at the market valuation which the assignee could get for them. Though not reckoned as an asset, the good will is estimated at $2,000,000. All of the Squire real estate and machinery are unencumbered, and the greater part of the assets are unencumbered. The liabilities of $5,000,000 is the aggregate for all the concerns, after throwing out mere duplicates and cross indebtedness between them.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The house of representatives voted yesterday for the investigation by a joint special committee of the padrone system, which it is alleged has been established under the protecting shield of the metropolitan water board in the construction of the Wachusett reservoir, the alleged violation of the labor and liquor laws of the commonwealth and alleged extravagance and favoritism on the part of the board. The question came up on the order of Mr. Walsh of Clinton, and that gentleman was re-enforced by his demand for an investigation by other gentlemen from the district affected.

By a vote of 8 to 7 the Marine Park Tower company incorporation bill was referred to the committee on metropolitan affairs, in non-concurrence.

The bill to permit the Old Colony railroad to issue certain stock was engrossed.

In consequence of the action of the gas and electric light commissioners in reducing the price of gas in Haverhill to 80 cents per thousand feet, Mr. Fitzgerald introduced in the house an order for an investigation of the price of gas in Boston with a view to a reduction.

The report of the railroad commissioners, dealing with the transportation of bicycles and baggage and touching upon the question of suburban fares, was submitted. The commissioners do not advocate free wheel transportation, but are opposed to charging for all baggage. Suburban fares are discussed in a general way.

Committees reported in the following cases: Leave to withdraw upon the petition for the incorporation of the East Gloucester Ferry company; leave to withdraw upon the petition that the sentence of expulsion passed against Roger Williams by the general court of Massachusetts bay in 1635 be revoked; leave to withdraw upon the petition for the abatement of betterment taxes.

The following petitions were presented: To provide for better protection of life in case of fire or panic; to provide additional rooms for use of the district police; to authorize the Wannacomet Water company to issue bonds.

A Most Peculiar Suicide.

St. Cloud, Minn., Jan. 26.—Frederick A. Lempke, who has conducted Christian Science parlors in St. Cloud for some time, died at the home of J. K. Orton in East St. Cloud yesterday. It is supposed he deliberately placed his head in a heating stove, for when found he was in this position. His head and shoulders were burned to a crisp. A letter was found in which he said he had been unable to concentrate his thoughts for some time, and it is believed to be a clear case of suicide.

Stockholders Will Get the Benefit.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 26.—The stockholders of the King Philip mills, at a special meeting yesterday, voted to authorize the directors to mortgage the property for $1,000,000 and issue bonds to that amount. The bonds will run for 30 years and bear interest at 5 percent. They are redeemable at the discretion of the directors. It has been necessary in the past to borrow money in the market and the new plan will insure stockholders the entire profits of the business.

A Victim of Footpads.

Boston, Jan. 26.—The death of Eugene Doherty, aged 39 years, at the city hospital yesterday, has developed a manslaughter case, the outcome of his being held up by footpads and assaulted because he called for assistance on the night of Jan. 22. It is thought he was struck over the head, as his skull was fractured.

Suspected of Causing Wife's Death.

New Haven, Jan. 26.—Mrs. John Cummings, who was taken to a hospital Wednesday night, suffering from injuries alleged to have been received at the hands of her husband, died yesterday. The woman's husband is under arrest, and the police are investigating the circumstances in the case.

Educational Night.

Notwithstanding the severity of the weather the regular meeting of the Unity club attracted an audiennce which filled the vestry of the Wollaston Unitarian church. The evening was distinctly an educational one. It was in charge of Superintendent Lull. He had to assist him four of the best speakers on modern education in this part of the State.

Mr. Lull spoke on "Demands of the times"; Supt. S. T. Dutton of the Brookline schools, who soon leaves to become one of the faculty of Columbia college of New York, talked on "the Curriculum of the Modern School"; Miss Mabel F. Adams, of the Horace Mann School of Boston and also a member of our own school board, read a paper on "Methods of teaching"; and "The school building and its surroundings," was treated upon by Supt. C. H. Moriss formerly of the Portsmouth, N. H., schools and now of Medford. Mr. A. C. Boyden of the State Normal school at Bridgewater closed with "the Trend of educational thought," for his subject.

The music was in charge of Mrs. Albert R. Moulton:

Mrs. Cyrus Washburn sang a contralto solo, 'The journey is long"; Mr. and Mrs. Washburn sang the duet "When Thou Art Near," Miss Jessie Russell Arnold sang a soprano solo by Massenet,—"Ourre tes yeux bleus"; and Mr. Washburn closed with the baritone solo "Orpheus with his Lute."

FARWELL CONCERT.

Presented with a Purse by the Congregation.

The Speech by Mr. Donald Mackenzie Given in Full.

The bitter cold of last night somewhat reduced the probable attendance at the farewell concert given by the choir of the First Presbyterian church under the direction of the Rev. Robert Westly Peach, still there was a good-sized audience, and a handsome sum was realized for the treasury of the church.

The chorus sang five numbers, with a precision and a finish that called forth the heartiest applause. Mrs. Peach was organist, and gave an opening voluntary. The vocal soloists were Mrs. Alex Henderson and Miss Margaret Milne, soprani; Mr. Levendale, baritone, Mr. George Bowman, tenor. Miss Bessie Kingdon and Mrs. George Donald sang solo parts in the opening anthem, and Mr. Wm. C. Warmington sang an obligato tenor solo, accompanied by a quartette, the Rev. Mr. Peach snd Messrs. Geo. Bowman, Alex Kemp and George Gustavson. Mr. Warmington and the three last named also sang a quartette. Miss Annie Mackenzie was the reader, and her bright rendition of some rather difficult humorous pieces gave great pleasure. Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Peach and Miss Mary Milne gave a trio, and there were instrumental pieces by Master John Garmory, cornet, Miss Alice Joss, violin, and Mr. Alex. Raleigh, clarinet. Every one of the soloists, also the trio and quartette, had to answer calls for [illegible] prolonged the entertainment two hours, but the interest was kept unflagging to the close. The largest number [illegible] Mackenzie interrupted the programme with a request that he might be privileged to speak a few words. His remarks were so felicitous and witty that we print them verbatim:

Mr. President: It is refreshing to listen to such sweet music after our day's work is over. If we had no relaxation from work I do not know what would become of us. Even now, with the many aids to light we enjoy, some of the problems of life are hard to understand. We see some people who get on without much effort, while others work hard and fail of success. Edward Bellamy made twenty thousand dollars by "Looking Backward." Lot's wife tried the same job and she made only her salt out of it.

It is a hopeful sign that we can enjoy in the church many of our beautiful secular songs without yielding to the old superstition that the church is thereby desecrated. If there is any fossilized kicker belonging to our congregation, who thinks that our purest secular songs are not an inspiration from the Father of light, I dedicate this story to him:

Christmas Evans, a famous Welsh preacher, expressed in public his admiration of the singing of Jenny Lind. Some members of the congregation were scandalized, and one of them felt called upon to mount the pulpit steps and adminster a public rebuke to the pastor.

In the course of his admonition he asked: "Do you mean to teach that a man who should die at one of Jenny Lind's concerts would go to heaven?"

"Sir," was the instant response, "A Christian will go to heaven wherever he dies, but a fool remains a fool, even on the pulpit steps."

Perhaps the kicker is as necessary as the mosquito in the dispensation of Providence. Be this as it may, it seems that our most fervent preachers cannot entirely extirpate the breed. Even the thunderbolts of John Knox only wilted them in Bonnie Scotland, for we find that the Rev. Mr. Scott, called for short "Wee Scotty," of the Cowgate, Edinburgh, was sorely tried with these church weeds. Once when preaching from Job he said: "My brethren, Job, in the first place was a sairly tried man Job; in the second place, was an uncommonly patient man; Job, in the third place, never preached in the Coogate; fourthly and lastly, had Job preached there, Lord help his patience!"

At another time, when there was a great noise of people going into their pews he got up in the pulpit and cried out:—Oh that I could hear the pence birlin' in the plate at the door wi' half the noise ye make wi' yer cheepin' shoon! Oh that Paul had been here wi' a lang wudden ladel! for yer coppers are strangers in a far country, and as for yer silver and gold—let us pray.

Last, but not least, one word with our own pastor. It is my present duty—my most pleasing duty, to present to you, sir, and to Mrs. Peach, this purse of gold from the congregation. Those who collected the money agreed that a souvenir in this shape would be more convenient to take to your destination. I can assure you that every dollar in the purse was given by willing hands and loving hearts. We pray that you, like Daniel, may have God and gold together; that your future ministrations may be prosperous; that you and your family may be upheld in happiness and honor; and that we may all meet at last in the "Treasury of everlasting joy."

Upon receiving the well-filled purse, Mr. Peach evoked much applause by at once handing it to Mrs. Peach, all fearlessly in face of the fate of the illustrious Dewey. Then Mr. Peach spoke a few impromptu words of grateful appreciation, which were received with much enthusiasm.

We learn that at the close of the concert the trustees met and paid the pastor's salary in full to the last day of January, when his resignation takes effect.

The sacred selections from the programme will be repeated at tomorrow's services, when Mr. Peach will preach his final sermons in Quincy.

It was announced that Mrs. Peach, who will remain at the manse for a few weeks, would receive the young ladies of the congregation next Tuesday evening.

The Rev. Mr. Peach will depart for his new field of labors next Monday, in order that he may be present at a meeting of the West Jersey Presbytery on Tuesday.

Mr. Peach goes from Quincy with the best wishes of a large congregation, and many friends outside. Both he and his wife have labored earnestly for the welfare of the church, the Y. M. C. A., the No license cause and the city generally. Mr. Peach has been very successful as pastor of the Water Street church, and his good work will continue with us for several years.

THE SEVEN AGES OF WOMAN.

At first the infant's cap, soft, warm and white,
With strings well mouthed and mauled, in sorry plight.

The giddy schoolgirl's hat, a waif and stray,
Any old thing that hinders not her play.

The budding maiden's hat, pert, smart or trim,
According to "sweet sixteen's" mood or whim.

Bravest of all, the bridal wreath and veil,
Which marks life's great event and turns the scale.

The new fledged matron's "dream," by Worth designed,
Which hubby pays for, sighs and looks resigned.

The well planned bonnet of the chaperon,
Which hides time's ravages from her alone.

"A KISS, A WORD."

A Story of a Woman Who Could Not Keep a Secret and How She Paid the Penalty.

By MAURUS JOKAI.

When the Princess Alexandra Serbatoff was presented at the luxurious court of Catherine II, two men had the most influence in the empire. One was Gregory Alexandrovitch Potemkin, the mighty minister, the other Prince Monomoff, the handsome favorite of the czarina.

The gossiping world said that the pretty eyes of the favorite had just as much share in governing the land of all Russians as the great brain of the famous statesman.

The quick eye of Prince Monomoff noticed at once the extraordinary beauty of the new court lady, and of course it was only natural that so wide awake a statesman as Potemkin, whose less pretty but nevertheless watchful eyes were always open, couldn't help seeing and admiring.

Both men fell in love with the young princess, and in the ensuing ardent but secret struggle for her love the czarina's favorite, Monomoff, was finally the more successful. He became the devoted admirer of the princess, and the wise Potemkin, knowing that he was "not in it" any more, withdrew, burying his malice in his diplomatic heart.

Thanks to his intrigue, the new love of Prince Monomoff now became known to the czarina, who, to avoid a scandal, ordered her favorite to marry at once the girl.

The "punishment" was taken by the prince with resignation, which was only natural, knowing that the young princess was not only bewitchingly beautiful, but also enormously rich.

The wedding took place with great pomp and ceremony. The young pair was overwhelmed with the costliest presents, among which the most valuable was that of the czarina. It was a large solitaire diamond. Its wonderful fire had a beautiful color.

Nothing marred the happiness of the young couple, and their honeymoon passed in joy and pleasure.

Once in a happy hour the young wife approached her loving husband with this inquisitive question:

"Tell me, dear, what is the value of that large diamond which you have on your finger?"

Monomoff looked upon the czarina's present and did not answer for awhile.

"Tell me honestly, sweetheart," continued the princess, "how much was given for that stone?"

"A kiss," thoughtlessly replied Monomoff. They both laughed at the joke.

"Won't you sell it to me? I will pay you double that much for it." And the charming young woman demonstrated right away her generosity by allowing her husband to "help himself," and the price, two kisses, was willingly paid—in fact, overpaid—but of course that is none of our business.

"Alexandra, if you value our lives you must not tell of this bargain to any one. You know the czarina."

"I do promise to you, dear, that no soul shall learn from me the price of the diamond."

"I have also promised to Catharina and told you just the same."

"Yes, but I won't."

And she didn't—until the next court reception. Of course she didn't mean to tell it to a soul, and it was only by mere chance that the secret escaped her lips. During the evening her most intimate friend, the Princess Orloff, had admired the sparkling gem and (we must remember that all this happened in Russia) inquired about its value.

Princess Monomoff smilingly whispered into her rosy ears: "It was given to my husband for a kiss. I gave him double the amount for it. But I said this only for you and to no one else. Don't let it go farther, or it may bring us into danger."

Of course Princess Orloff did not want to tell the secret to any one and, in fact, did not tell it to a soul except to the wife of General Romanoff, but she was such an intimate friend of hers that she could be trusted without fear. And she knew also perfectly how to guard an intrusted secret. Nobody learned it from her but her bosom friend the Princess Kerchikoff. The Princess Kerchikoff told it to no one except to the Princess Daskoff. So the well kept secret reached Princess Potemkin shortly after midnight, whispered confidentially by an unrecorded lady's rosy lips under the promise of strict secrecy.

Princess Potemkin hated Princess Monomoff, and, being the wife of a great diplomat, she was herself a great intriguer. She had maneuvered so skillfully that she approached the empress unnoticed, and when the Princess Monomoff paraded by she remarked innocently:

"Oh, how beautiful is that diamond the Princess Monomoff wears! Splendid!"

The czarina recognized at once her gift to her former lover, but nevertheless nonchalantly said:

"Yes; it is a fine stone. It must be very valuable."

The princess tells everybody that it was given to her husband for a kiss, but she gave two for it.

After the court ball, in the early morning, Prince and Princess Monomoff retired, giving orders to their attendants not to disturb them until 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

It happened, however, that hardly one hour after they were rudely awakened by somebody who executed a lively tattoo on their bedroom door.

"Who is that? Who dares?" called out indignantly from their bedchamber the sleepy prince.

"His excellency the chief of police wishes to pay his respects."

In Russia every door must open before this "sesame," and in the next minute Prince Monomoff appeared in the half opened door.

The chief of police was polite.

"I must beg your pardon a thousand times, your excellency, but I must disturb you at this unseemly hour. I regret it very much, but duty compels me to do it. My most gracious czarina has bid me to deliver to you this order and also to carry it out personally and without delay. Knowing good manners, I do not wish to intrude into the sleeping apartment of a lady, and I have brought with me lady attendants to help me in executing it. I must beg your kind indulgence to allow these ladies to enter."

Prince Monomoff threw a troubled look in the direction of the "lady attendants," who were lined up nicely in the hall. They were all six feet high, very well built "ladies." They were all richly, although a little negligently, dressed. They wore very large French hats with large feathers, and their faces were thickly veiled. On their large hands the fine suede gloves nearly bursted. But the most extraordinary thing was that instead of a fan every "lady" had a rod of birch in her hand.

The chief of police delivered his order to the prince. It was a sweet little perfumed, rose colored billet doux containing these words:

"One kiss—one word, then women—hundred rods."

Monomoff paled. The chief of police politely withdrew, and the "ladies" advanced in orderly steps. Two of them took the arms of Monomoff, and all entered into the bedchamber and closed the door.

What kind of a ceremony they performed we don't know positively, but one thing is certain, that when they emerged again from the sanctum of the princely pair their rods were used up to a great degree.

The chief of police took polite leave of the prince, and the "ladies" arranged themselves in line again and filed away in a nice, soldierly manner.

Before leaving the chief of police assured the prince that all those "ladies" were selected especially for one merit, their knowledge how to keep a secret.

But, in spite of his assurance, the story soon became known all over the world.—Narrated From the Hungarian For New York Journal.

The Star of Bethlehem.

It was a cloister fancy of the dark ages that the star of Bethlehem was some especially created starlike body, probably within our atmosphere, designed wholly for the leading of the wise men. The law of parsimony rejects such explication, and science, with silent scorn, turns its back upon the bauble star, for in the glorious depths of heaven are matchless orbs which, swinging on their way into mortal ken for awhile, meet all the demands of poet and of prophet for the "Star of the King."

History affords us data for determining this wondrous star.

When the magi arrived in Jerusalem, Herod was within a few weeks of his death. The massacre of the babes of Bethlehem was one of the last of his tragic deeds. Herod died in the year of Rome 750. When "Herod inquired diligently what time the star appeared," the reply was evidently such that he thought it safe to exterminate all baby sons of Bethlehem from 2 years old and under, showing that "the star" had been known to the wise men for at least two years before their arrival in Jerusalem, and whether its appearing had marked the conception or the birth of "the king" Herod could not decide.—New Lippincott's.

Flattering.

Not long ago two commercial travelers started from Birmingham on a night train to Holyhead. Wishing to have the compartment to themselves, however, they sat thinking for a moment how they would manage it. At last one of them said that he would put it right, and, stepping out on the footboard, told his companion to sit still and stare in front of him. As the people came to the carriage door to get in the traveler on the footboard whispered something to them, and the passengers, after taking a look into the carriage, passed on. When all the passengers were seated, the train started, and the traveler stepped into the carriage to join his companion, saying as he did so:

"Done it, haven't I?"

His companion replied:

"Yes, I see you have, but how did you manage it?"

"Oh, I told them that you were a lunatic, and I had you in charge."

A Well Meant Act.

"How did you happen to give that footpad such an unmerciful drubbing?"

"I felt sorry for him. You know that they are talking of giving footpads public floggings, and I thought I'd save the poor fellow the open disgrace by licking the hide off of him in private."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

TOPIC.—Lessons for Simon and us.—Luke vii, 36-50.

This is a very touching and instructive incident in the life of Christ. The manifestation of the poor woman's love is touching in the extreme, and the happy way in which Christ used her act to teach the Pharisees an important lesson displays His wonderful ability as a teacher. Christ is being entertained in the home of a Pharisee. A poor woman whose sins He had pardoned comes with a box of ointment and touchingly anoints His feet, washes them with tears, wipes them with her hair and kisses them. The Pharisee complained, and in answer Jesus spoke to him a parable in which He showed that one loved in proportion as he had been forgiven. He then pointed to the great love of the woman as proof of the great debt for which she had been forgiven. We may learn, with Simon:

1. A lesson on forgiveness. This woman had sinned much, and yet she was forgiven. It is thus taught that the forgiveness of God can be manifested toward the very lowest of sinners. It was difficult for the Jews to comprehend this fact with all Christ's teaching, yet after Christ's ascension they did not comprehend the fact that the love of God and the forgiveness of God extended to the publicans and sinners. And do we fully realize it today? Do we not speak of men and women as hopeless, thus abridging the pardoning power of God? Do we not look askance at a poor wandering sinner who may by chance have dropped into the house of God, as much as to say, "This is no place for you?" And, if one does repent with tears and sorrow, are we not slow to recognize him as the child of God? The Simons are not all dead. Let us learn Christ's lesson to them.

2. A lesson on love. This poor woman loved much because she was much forgiven. She was not forgiven because she loved, but loved because she was forgiven. Do we love much? If not, may it not be that we do not realize how much we have been forgiven? Simon would probably think that Christ put His debt at a high figure, and often we do not realize the greatness of God's forgiveness in forgiving us. Is it not true that the best of us have been much forgiven? If we think not, let us try to see sin as God sees it, let us try to realize the enormity of that which separates a soul eternally from God, and we can't help but see that we have been much forgiven. And, being much forgiven, we should love much and should confess and manifest our love before men.

Sweet the moments rich in blessing
Which before the cross I spend,
Life and health and peace possessing
From the sinner's dying friend.

Here it is I find my heaven
While upon the Lamb I gaze.
Love I much? I'm much forgiven.
I'm a miracle of grace.

THE PRAYER MEETING.

Have a "Bible reference memory meeting." Let each one recite from memory a Bible reference on forgiveness or love. These can be interspersed with appropriate hymns, prayers or remarks.

Bible Readings.—Ps. xviii, 1, 2; cxvi, 1-5; cxlv, 20; Isa. i, 18; lv, 1-7; Song viii, 7; Math. x, 37; Luke xv, 1-10; xvii, 11-18; John iii, 16; xiv, 23; xxi, 15-17; Acts x, 9-20; I Tim. i, 14, 15; I John iv, 19.

More Fruit.

More fruit. This is a very searching word. As churches and individuals we are in danger of nothing so much as self contentment. The secret spirit of Laodice—we are rich and increased in goods and have need of nothing—may prevail where it is not suspected. The Divine warning—poor and wretched and miserable—finds little response just where it is most needed.

Let us not rest content with the thought that we are taking an equal share with others in the work that is being done or that men are satisfied with our efforts in Christ's service or even point to us as examples. Let our only desire be to know whether we are bearing all the fruit Christ is willing to give through us as living branches in close and living union with Himself, whether we are satisfying the loving heart of the great Husbandman, our Father in heaven, in His desire for more fruit.—Rev. Andrew Murray.

The Danger of Self.

Dangerous as the devil is, dangerous as worldly amusements are, the most dangerous enemy we often have to encounter walks in our own shoes. That cunning, artful, smooth tongued heart devil, self, is the foe that needs the most constant watching and subjects us to the worst defeats. The flesh lusteth against the spirit and the spirit against the flesh, and these are contrary the one to the other. Paul had a tremendous battle along these lines, beating down his carnal nature by hard blows, and the old hero was able at last to shout: "I have fought a good fight. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness."—Rev. Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D., in Christian Intelligencer.

God Was Preparing Them.

How often after those who are dear to us have been suddenly called to the better life we recognize that a strange tenderness and responsiveness to spiritual motives characterized them in the day or weeks immediately preceding the summons! They did not in the least realize that they were so near the end, but God was preparing them for it.—Watchman.

Sunshine Will Follow the Rain.

Under the storm and the cloud today,
And today the hard peril and pain—
Tomorrow the stone shall be rolled away,
For the sunshine shall follow the rain.
Merciful Father, I will not complain,
I know that the sunshine shall follow the rain.
—Joaquin Miller.

TO WOMEN WHO DOUBT.

Every Suffering Woman Should Read this Letter and be Convinced that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Does Cure Female Weakness.

"I have been troubled with female weakness in its worst form for about ten years. I had leucorrhœa and was so weak that I could not do my housework. I also had falling of the womb and inflammation of the womb and ovaries and at menstrual periods I suffered terribly. At times my back would ache very hard. I could not lift anything or do any heavy work; was not able to stand on my feet. My husband spent hundreds of dollars for doctors but they did me no good. After a time I concluded to try your medicine and I can truly say it does all that you claim for it to do.

Ten bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and seven packages of Sanative Wash have made a new woman of me. I have had no womb trouble since taking the fifth bottle. I weigh more than I have in years; can do all my own housework, sleep well, have a good appetite and now feel that life is worth living. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I feel that it has saved my life and would not be without it for anything. I am always glad to recommend your medicine to all my sex, for I know if they follow your directions, they will be cured."—MRS. ANNIE THOMPSON, South Hot Springs, Ark.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

SPION KOP ABANDONED.

England's Jubilation Has Been Turned Into Mourning.

Boers Have Retrieved Their Recent Defeat.

Warren Probably Forced to Withdraw by the Hot Shelling.

Boers Have Not Lost Confidence In Ability to Check Advance of British.

London, Jan. 27.—The opinion is freely expressed throughout London that General Buller's movement has failed and that Ladysmith is doomed.

The dispatch sent by General Buller yesterday announcing the abandonment of Spion Kop was perhaps the saddest message of the war. It read simply:

"General Warren's garrison, I am sorry to say, I find this morning had in the night abandoned Spion Kop."

Seven days of fighting have left the main Boer positions intact and General Buller's army 706 men weaker, according to the official casualty lists, which seemingly do not include the Spion Kop losses, as those last forwarded do not mention General Woodgate's wounding.

England is possessed by a depressing sense of failure, although not a word in criticism of her generals and soldiers is uttered. Not much effort is made to place a happy construction upon General Buller's words telling of the retirement from Spion Kop, and there is an uneasy impression abroad that worse news is yet to come.

At one of the military clubs last night the statement passed from one member to another that the war office had received an unpleasant supplementary dispatch from General Buller, which was being held up for 12 hours.

The works held by Warren Wednesday were swept by the Boer artillery, a correspondent stating that he saw 13 shells burst in one re-entrant during the half hour he spent there, and it seems probable that, being without means to reply to this shelling, Warren was forced to withdraw, rather than that he was turned out by direct assault.

Despatches from Ladysmith indicate that at no time have the Boers lost confidence in their ability to check the advance of the relieving column, since, instead of removing guns from their siege works, either for retreat or to oppose Buller, the Boers have actually mounted new guns against the town, while Buller was thundering at the Boer works to the southwest.

If the dislodgment of Warren means that Buller has been brought to a full stop, the situation in Natal from a British standpoint is fast becoming desperate. That Ladysmith should be reduced to the uttermost limit of human endurance and forced to surrender because of lack of food and ammunition, while a British army of 40,000 men lies for months within sound of her guns, unable to raise the siege, would be labelled a burning disgrace to the British arms. That White should be forced even to the verge of surrender is certainly a bitter pill for England to swallow.

And yet that is the situation with which Great Britain is face to face. How near to the limit of their resources in men and supplies the Boers may be, is not known. They have been severely taxed, but predictions that a sharp blow that would break through the Boer line would crush the whole Boer fabric like an eggshell have thus far signally failed, because no British general has succeeded in delivering such a blow, and there is no evidence beyond camp rumor that the allies are not as determined in their purpose to fight to a finish as at the outbreak of the war.

On the west Methuen makes no move, although Kimberley is under daily bombardment. The Boers in front of him appear confident enough to detach men to Colesberg, and to allow Cronje to slip across the Free State to give Joubert counsel in Natal. The inactivity of this column is not easily reconciled with the statement that it is free to move in any direction, except north, since a flank movement becomes more difficult with each day that allows the Boers to extend their works.

On the south, French's troops sweep in a semi-circle around Colesberg, which is held by 7000 Boers. Their communication into the Free State by way of Nowal's Pont are stated to be well guarded, though French's guns dominate the country in his front from high ground, and command the town, two miles off. This he has not bombarded, it is stated, because of the non-combatants there, though if it were necessary to make the place untenable these could be warned out.

Gatacre's inactivity strengthens the suspicion that the political situation in that disaffected region in which he and French are operating is yet such as to render it advisable to risk defeat, but to have these commands well in hand, awaiting developments in Natal. It is stated that French's and Gatacre's patrols have joined hands at Steynburg.

The morning papers editorially advise coolness and judgment and a careful avoidance of over-estimating the importance of the lost position. The Times says: The natural disquietude of the public is increased by the singular vagueness and inconsistency of General Buller's dispatches. The consequences of this latest check may be very serious to the gallant Ladysmith garrison. It is impossible to estimate the next movement. It may be that General Buller will be compelled to retire from the ground he lately won, but in any event we may be sure that the British people will not show themselves wanting in fortitude and steadiness. The government would be well advised to call out immediately all the militia and to expedite the dispatch of the eighth division and of the Fourth cavalry brigade. No doubt Lord Roberts will strain every nerve to enable General Buller to renew the attempt to relieve Ladysmith.

The Standard, which thinks still more troops will be required, and which comments upon the "astonishing manner in which South Africa swallows up troops wholesale without any appreciable result," foes on to refer to the continental jubiliation and to the predictions regarding General Buller's check. It says: It is humiliating to find that the Natal Terrain has been more accurately studied in Berlin than at our own headquarters on the Tugela.

Spencer Wilkinson, in The Morning Post, writes as follows of the Spion Kop loss: This is a serious matter and an attempt will not here be made to minimize it, for no greater wrong can be done to our people at home than to mislead them about the significance of the events of the war. The right way is to tell the truth as far as we know it.

But facts from the neighborhood of the Tugela are scantier than ever. The censorship now is simply prohibitive and something is wrong with the cables. The break on the east coast lines has been repaired; but the cable between San Thome and Loanda, on the west coast, is now interrupted.

More troops is the only suggestion here as to the way to break the Boer resistance. Mr. Wilkinson regrets that General Buller has not 20,000 more men, declaring that, if they would not make victory certain, his enterprise without them is hopeless.

The Spectator, dealing with the necessity of large additional military preparations, says: It may be that we have yet another cycle of disasters in front of us.

The transport Assaye arrived at Cape Town last Friday with 2127 officers and men. The first portion of the seventh division is afloat. Hence, with 10,000 men of this division and about 9000 others now at sea, it lies in the power of Lord Roberts to reinforce General Buller heavily. This course is advised by military writers.

A dispatch to The Standard from Ladysmith, dated Dec. 26, and describing the Christmas celebration, says: "Only a few were fortunate enough to get turkeys or geese. A majority had to be contented with hard beef of wasted, under-fed oxen, or the coarse goat flesh which does duty for mutton. On Saturday there was a provision auction. Potatoes brought at the rate of 1 shilling each, eggs averaged 10 pence each, carrots 7 pence each, ducks half a guinea each, cigarets 42 pence per 3-penny package, and whisky from £5 to £7 per bottle. Everybody was able to indulge in Christmas pudding, as the commissariat kindly issued the necessary ingredients for the occasion."

The latest news from South Africa is interpreted in Germany as a signal defeat for the British. The Deutsche Tages-Zeitung calls the British position there "another step into the mouse trap."

The last direct German mails to the Transvaal are now being returned from Cape Town without any explanation on the part of the British authorities. The German press comments upon the fact with considerable heat.

An incident illustrating the bitterness of popular feeling in Germany against England is the appearance of a pamphlet at Berlin entitled, "The final reckoning with England." This pretends to describe events in 1931, and sets forth descriptions of naval battles in which Germany defeats England and a general breakup of the British empire ensues, with Australia declaring her independence and the other British colonies being divided up among various powers.

Superstition Causes Plague to Spread.

Vancouver, B. C., Jan. 27.—From Noumea, New Caledonia, comes alarming reports of the ravages of the plague, which has been prevalent there since early in December. There were 16 deaths during the first 10 days following the development of the malady. The origin of the malady is attributed to the filthy quarters where a number of Japanese, Tonkinese and Kanakas were lodged. Twenty buildings in the infected quarter were demolished by the health authorities, but despite all the precautions the plague continued to spread. Much alarm is felt by the residents, and business is at a standstill. The natives believe the plague is a visitation of providence, and that it is wrong to take measures to check it.

Tribute to Hobart's Memory.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The greater portion of the session of the house yesterday was devoted to eulogies upon the life and public services of the late Vice President Hobart. The tributes paid to his memory were not the usual perfunctory eulogies, but breathed the love and admiration and respect in which he was universally held. Before the eulogies began the conference report on the census bill was adopted and an attempt was made to pass a bill to pay the cost of repairing the Manila cable which Dewey cut just prior to his victory. Opposition developed, however, and it went over. The senate was not in session.

Otis Reports That Many In Southern Luzon Are Seeking Homes.

Assistance Given the Troops by Naval Vessels.

The Enemy Being Hard Pressed In Every Direction by Americans.

Washington, Jan. 27.—General Otis reports Thursday's movements in the campaign in Luzon as follows:

Manila, Jan. 26.—Hayes' cavalry reported at Santa Cruz; drove enemy out of Luzona, Tayabas and adjacent towns, rescuing 20 Spanish prisoners and five women, other Spanish prisoners; moved back in small detachments into mountains; enemy dispersed, and greater part believed to be seeking homes at Tayabas; found record, dated 15th inst., saying 11 American prisoners leave tomorrow; know not to what place; Hayes' casualties one killed, three mortally wounded, two slightly wounded.

Admiral Watson has cabled the navy department an account of the part taken by the navy in the campaign now being made in southern Luzon by General Schwan. The admiral's dispatch refers to the series of engagements which took place along the eastern and southern shores of Lake Taal a week ago. There is no outlet from Lake Taal into the sea navigable for warships, but the Marietta took up a position close to the narrow neck of land which separated the lake from the sea and threw shells across into the insurgents' defenses. The admiral's account of the affair is as follows:

"The Marietta, with Gheen commanding, on the 19th co-operated with the army in the capture of Taal. Enfiladed the insurgent trenches at about 1600 yards. Lieutenant Price landed with Colt gun. Gheen reports that a battalion of the Forty-sixth, under Major Johnson, carried the bridge and town very gallantly, facing artillery and rifle fire."

A dispatch from Sorsogon, by way of Manila, dated Jan. 25, says: Brigadier General Kobbe's expedition has occupied Sorsogon, Donsol, Bular, Logaspi and Virao, on Catanduanes island. The only resistance was at Logaspi, where five Americans were wounded and 45 dead and 15 wounded Filipinos were found. It is estimated that there are 15,000 bales of hemp in these provinces, and 76,000 bales in the ports of Sorsogon and Logaspi. The United States gunboat Nashville's shrapnel burned 8000 bales at Logaspi.

The expedition arrived off Sorgoson Jan. 20, and the town displayed white flags. General Kobbe and Colonel Howe, with a battalion of the Forty-seventh infantry, landed and raised the United States flag. The insurgent force, numbering 300 men, evacuated the place. The natives were passive.

During the morning of Jan. 22, the Nashville and Venus, with four companies of the Forty-seventh regiment, under Major Shipton, approached Logaspi. Filipino flags were flying, and the trenches were crowded. A detachment of 150 picked men, led by Major Shipton, landed on the beach about a mile north of the town. The Nashville bombarded the trenches, and the enemy retreated to Albay, whence they were easily dispersed to the hills.

About 200 insurgents, armed with rifles, forced 600 unwilling villagers, armed with bows and arrows, to serve in the trenches in the close range street fighting before the enemy fled. The Filipino dead were mostly villagers who were attempting to flee.

The expedition will proceed to Samar and Leyte, where the Forty-third infantry and a battalion of the Third artillery will be distributed.

The natives complain of lack of food, resulting from the blockade. They are strongly opposed to the return of the friars. Native priests are officiating in the churches.

Lieutenant Colonel Hayes has defeated an entrenched force of the enemy at Sariaga. One American was killed and five wounded. A record of 11 American prisoners was found.

Captain Casteol, while scouting near Baras with his company, encountered 400 insurgents. He was reinforced by Captain Gracie, and the enemy was driven to Tanay. One American was killed and one wounded.

Baltimore and Washington Remain In.

New York, Jan. 27.—Abel, Hanlon and Ebbets of the Brooklyn-Baltimore syndicate returned to this city yesterday from Cleveland. Ebbets said: "We discussed the baseball situation thoroughly, but no satisfactory agreements could be made. We have, therefore, decided to go along on a basis of 10 clubs, Baltimore and Washington remaining in, with the prospect that Louisville and Cleveland or two other cities may be added. As regards the Baltimore players, we will sign them at the usual time on Baltimore and National league contracts."

BURDENED WOMEN.

We look in amazement at the burdens some women carry upon their heads. Yet how light they are compared with the burdens some women carry upon their hearts. There are childless women whose hearts ache ceaselessly because of the childless home. That burden of childlessness has been lifted from the heart of many a woman by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Many of the obstacles to maternity are removable. Such obstacles are entirely removed by "Favorite Prescription." It contains no alcohol nor narcotic.

Married Six Years and Childless.

"I have never written you how grateful I am to you for your help in securing good health and one of the sweetest, dearest, thirteen pound girls that ever came into a home," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 647 South Liberty Street, Galesburg, Ill. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and four vials of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Good Afternoon.

The city administration of 1899 was fortunate in having as a City Solicitor one who was able to accomplish as much as did Mr. Blackmur. From time to time during the year the Ledger took pleasure in reporting the progress and successes, but when these are summarized in the annual report one realizes more fully the achievements. Some of the improvements have not yet materialized, and may require close attention during 1900, but City Solicitor Blackmur is to be congratulated for what he has accomplished by way of public improvements. Some of the Quincy acts which he and Mayor Keith succeeded in putting through the Legislature may always be open to criticism, viz: The unnecessary authority to borrow $150,000 outside the debt limit on 30-year time, the act relative to Water Commissioners, and the act permitting the refunding of the city debt. The help of the City Solicitor, in transferring $5,000 from the Sewer to the Street department was not appreciated by many.

Mayor Hall is to be congratulated on having the backbone to lift the fire department out of politics. This move upon his part marks an era in city government in this city. It is the first time, we believe, that the administration has been changed in politics without exploiting that department for the benefit of politicians.

CITY LAW BUSINESS.

City Solicitor Blackmur Reviews Work of Year.

Many Large Projects Demanded His Services.

Metropolitan Sewers and Parkways and the Quincy Petitions.

One of the most interesting, as well as important of the city reports of 1899 is that of the Law Department. Paul R. Blackmur, the City Solicitor, has been prominent in several movements for the advancement of Quincy, and his report is an exhaustive one:

January 1, 1900."

To His Honor the Mayor of the City of Quincy:

I have the honor to report to you the situation of the legal business of the city and to review the work of the solicitor for the year ending December 31st, 1899.

The Committee on Metropolitan Affairs of the Legislature of 1899 gave a hearing on a bill reported by Board of Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners to provide for the construction of a high level gravity sewer for the relief of the Charles and Neponset river valleys, and creating a South Metropolitan District including Quincy within the same. The hearing was given on short notice, and after hurried conferences with the engineer and Sewerage Commissioners of the City of Quincy, the solicitor appeared and opposed the bill on the ground that the point of the proposed outlet off Nut Island was objectionable and had not been passed upon or assented to by the State Board of Health, and further that the act as drawn would operate adversely to the interests of the City of Quincy. As a result of this opposition, nobody else appearing in objection to the bill the solicitor was allowed to amend the bill by inserting the proviso in section one of the act as finally passed, which provides that no part of the proposed outlet or sewerage system between Hyde Park and the outlet shall be constructed before 1900 and until plans for said outlet shall be further considered, adopted and approved by the State Board of Health.

I am informed that said Board of Health, through its engineers and agents, have made an exhaustive investigation into the question of a proper and safe outlet for this system and will be in a position to report upon the same this winter, and believe, as a result of these investigations, a point to discharge farther away from Quincy, probably outside of Peddock's Island, and perfectly satisfactory to Quincy and to the Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners, will be the one ultimately adopted.

I would call attention to the fact that it was upon the initiative of the City of Quincy, although the Town of Hingham afterwards came in and endorsed our position, that the matter was placed in the hands of the State Board of Health, and that the gentlemen comprising said Board, of whom Col. Charles H. Porter of Quincy is one, are I believe, alive to the dangers to the City of Quincy in having the outlet located too near our shores. And in this conection, let me say that it is important to keep in touch with the progress of their investigation and to seasonably ask for a hearing before the State Board of Health, before any plans are finally approved, that our city officials may have an opportunity to show any objections to the outlet if deemed advisable rather than wait until after the Board reports to the Legislature when it will be too late in my opinion, to obtain any concessions. I am informed that such a hearing, if asked for, would be granted and in the meantime all information and help necessary to enable us to make independent investigations would be given to us by the officials of the State Board of Health.

THE KING OF HEALERS, PROF. J. P. COFFEY,

Will Positively Appear. He Will Both Startle and Delight You With His Marvelous Powers. 300,000 People In This State Have Seen Him Make the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Cripple Dance With Joy by the Laying on of the Hands.

"An Exhibition Surpassing Anything Ever Attempted on the American Stage."

The Adult Public Cordially Invited to Attend. All Treatment Given in Hall FREE.

Professor Coffey the great natural healer, will heal the sick, lame, crippled, rheumatic and paralytic, reduce tumors and cure deafness in public in this city.

He will lecture and give his marvelous exhibition, explaining and demonstrating his wonderful power of healing "by the laying on of hands" which has heretofore been conceded only possible to workers of ancient miracles.

All cures in public are made entirely free and nearly everybody in the audience can feel his strange magnetic influence.

He is the only man who has cured any one in People's Temple, Boston, and the only man who has appeared in all the principal cities of this state during the last year. Over 300,000 people in this state alone have seen his wonderful power demonstrated in public. Others try to imitate but always meet with failure.

This gentleman is the most powerful natural healer now living, and has performed more remarkable cures in public than any man in the world, his power seeming little less than miraculous.

Everybody is at liberty to bring those of their own choice to the hall for treatment so that they may witness that every cure which he makes is genuine. They come to him sick, crippled and in pain, and they leave him free from all suffering. By making a few passes with his hand over the body and limbs of the patient all pain is stopped and the sick are healed and often simply by a touch from his hand many who are crippled are enabled to walk. These cures are made openly in public, where the entire audience may witness them.

Prof. Coffey's conception and rendering of his remarkable power of healing, placing it before the public in graphic lectures and occult experiment, is most happily wrought and romantically told, a sentiment of profit running through every word and act, often evoking the wildest merriment, and then again, producing the most profound solemnity.

These lectures and demonstrations are of the most wonderful character—they will excell anything ever attempted before in public, filled with serious and pathetic scenes as well as with wild and tragic events; the unlooked-for-strange and startling situations many times outrival the wildest conception.

He is the greatest as well as the strangest of all entertainers. He brings to this city the very Mecca of gladness and miracle.

An exhibition of the rarest purity and of the most wonderful phenomenal results, which startles the public, and thrills the Christian heart, conveying a lesson of historical truth outstripping all romance, carrying the audience back nearly 1900 years to the time of ancient miracles.

Over two million people have seen Prof. Coffey cure on the public platform those who have been sick, deaf, lame and decrepit for years, many times by only a single treatment; patient after patient who had lost all hope of being restored.

None should miss this opportunity of seeing and hearing this man, who comes with such remarkable healing in his hands and whose successful demonstrations have caused such world-wide investigation by the most learned physicians of every school and in every land.

Here men and women who had been helpless cripples for a score of years are made well and strong in a few moments, and weak and suffering people recreated into strong and robust men and women at the magic touch of this great man, this mighty healer, whose touch is health, and who is inspired to do this great work of curing afflicted humanity by the laying on of hands.

No part of the person will be denuded, not even the outer garments removed. These patients, although among the oldest and most confirmed cripples and invalids, and with but this seemingly so simple treatment the most of them will declare themselves cured; in nearly all cases all pain will be instantly stopped; the crippled will throw away their canes and crutches, the deaf will hear, while the sick and debilitated will receive renewed life and vitality.

At these demonstrations all treatments are given ENTIRELY FREE, without money and without price, proper cleanliness of both person and raiment being the only requisite to insure the kindest consideration.

Press Notices.

Marvelous as it may seem, bordering on the miraculous, as it certainly would appear, nevertheless there are men and women in this city who have to credit their complete restoration to health to Prof. Coffey's modern method of curing diseases by hand manipulations. It is hard to disbelieve the honest expressions of hundreds of truthful men and women. Especially so, when nothing is to be gained by telling a falsehood.—Boston Herald.

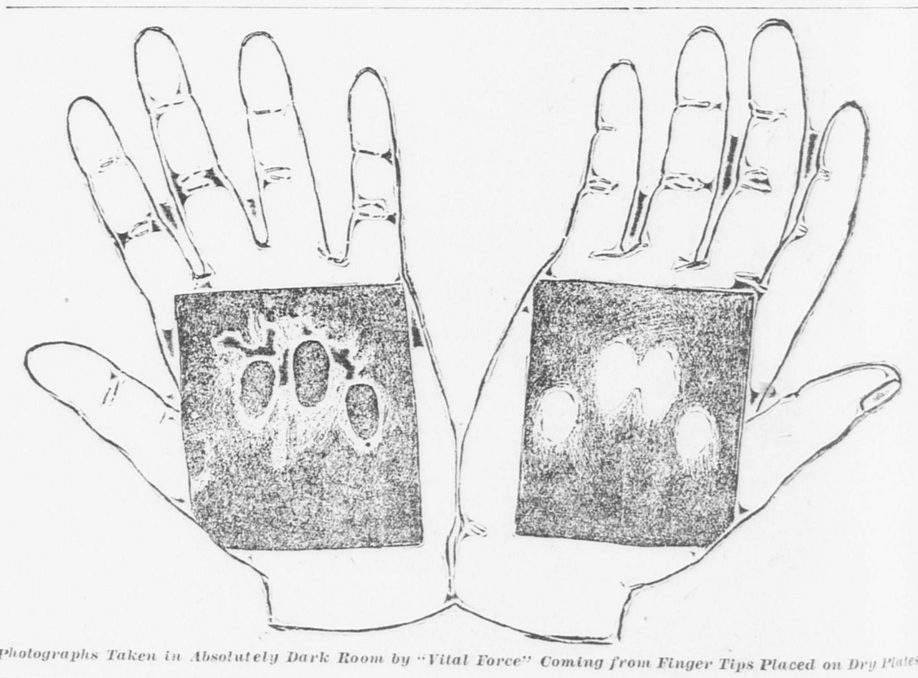

"Of all the divine or magnetic healers we have seen or heard Professor Coffey is the fairest, frankest and most interesting.

Whatever prejudice may exist among men of the present day as to the efficacy of curing diseases without medicine is being dispelled by Prof. Coffey like fog before the hurricane and his "Method" is being heralded throughout the world as one of the most wonderful scientific discoveries of this or any other age.—Lynn Item.

Nobody can form any idea of the miraculous cures performed by Prof. Coffey in the opera house unless they witnessed them. It was your privilege. You were invited free of charge. The Professor treated many cases in public in this city without a single failure. No one was in the least injured, and all received much benefit, many marvelous cures being made. A man on crutches for years was cured in a few moments of time simply by this man passing his hands over the limbs of the patient.—Salem News.

Some people thought that many of the wonderful cures performed by him in Odd Fellows' hall this week were miracles.—Lowell Citizen.

Photographs Taken in Absolutely Dark Room by "Vital Force" Coming from Finger Tips Placed on Dry Plates

Professor Coffey has discovered a new science, which gives promise in the near future of everybody being able to cure himself of many diseases, including consumption and cancer, without the expenditure of a cent. The new science dispenses entirely with drugs. Human ills are relieved by merely treating certain parts of the body in a simple way.

The professor says he can cure very nearly every pain that flesh is heir to. He can also, he says, effect a permanent cure of persons afflicted with rheumatism, neuralgia, nearly all forms of organic disease, heart trouble, affections of the eye, ear, throat, lungs, kidneys and liver—and this usually with but a few treatments of only a few minutes' duration. Mr. Coffey relieved a woman 75 years old of all pain from sciatica in her hip, from which she had suffered terribly for many years. Mr. Coffey took the pain away in four minutes, and it has not returned! Another instance is the case of the reporter who writes this statement. He suffered for several days from rheumatism and was confined to his bed. Prof. Coffey gave him one treatment, and in less than five minutes took all the pain away, and it has stayed away. at the same visit the "Vitalizer" set free from pain the wife of the reporter, who was suffering from facial neuralgia. A few passes of the hands over the afflicted part and the pain had disappeared. It has not since returned.

The prosessor bases his whole theory of treatment on that now universally accepted physical law that all forms of force are vibratory, differing only in wave length and wave frequency. Vital force, the motive force of the body, without which life cannot exist, properly belongs in the same category.

"For five years I have cultivated the power of transmitting this force within me to others, and I have in this way cured disease and taken away pain. The method I employ in this transmission of my vital force is to contract the muscles of one arm and hand, which may be said to be rendered positive, and to relax the muscles of the other hand and arm so that it becomes negative. The vital force then flows from the positive to the negative hand through the body of the patient upon whom both of my hands are placed. My knowledge of the nervous system permits me to so direct this life-giving current that organs deficient in vital force shall be charged therewith to a sufficient degree to render them healthy.

"The photographs I have had taken of the vital force going from the tips of my fingers illustrates how it leaves my person. In making these photographs I placed my fingers on a highly sensitized dry-plate in a room from which every ray of light had been carefully excluded. The dry-plate had been placed in a developing trap in which was a very weak developer. After my fingers had remained on the dry-plate for about 15 minutes it was at once put in a fixing bath of hyposulphite of soda. When fixed the negative showed the emanation of light coming from the ends of my fingers which are so perceptible in the photographs I have given you.

"These photographs show very clearly, I think, that mingled with the current of vital force, and probably a part of it, are light waves, heat waves and possibly sound waves as well, the latter of which could be demonstrated also if there could be some way of recording them. In fact, in this current is everything which goes to make up life. They are photographs of the principles of life; they are pictures of that intangible, subtle, almost incomprehensible power which animates the human clay and makes it alive."

I am very much obliged for the papers you send me for they help pass the time away, and also keeps me in touch with the doings of old Boston, Quincy and vicinity.

We are resting for awhile now. We made a big advance on Nov. 6, from Angeles, which is 50 miles from Manila. We advanced through mud and water for a good many days. It was a hard fight. We have captured the whole of the railroad, about 192 miles, which runs from Manila to Dugupan. We are scouting the country every day and the enemy is pretty well scattered. We cannot find a good body of them anywhere.

Braintree Literary Club.

The Literary club met Monday evening, Jan. 22, with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Belcher. Mrs. T. H. Dearing and Mr. I.W. Horne gave two interesting papers upon "clubs and their relation to the town," and Mr. Conrad Crooker contributed several thrilling chapters to the original work.

The name of Mr. Horace G. Hewes was mentioned for membership, and unanimously elected.

A committee composed of Mr. Belcher, Miss Norris and Mr. Field was appointed to arrange for the coming banquet, but as the hall could not be secured for the evening of February fifth, it was decided to postpone the banquet and substitute a regular meeting. The club will meet Monday evening, February fifth, with Mr. and Mrs. Avery.

The door-nail in earlier times was the plate of the door upon which the old-fashoned knocker struck to arouse the inmates of tee house. As the plate or nail was struck many more times than any other nail, it was assumed to be more dead than other nails. Hence the phrase, „Dead as a door-nail."

CO. K BOY IN CUBA.

No Fighting But Considerable Experience.

A Week's March of One Hundred Miles.

The Bills of Fare at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Councilman George H. Wilson continues to keep in touch with the soldier boys at the front, and receives many letters. The Co. K. boys of this city will be pleased to hear from Henry Collins now with Co. L. 2d U. S. Infantry.

Carbarien, Cuba,
Jan. 17, 1900.

Friend George:

I have just had time to drop you a few lines and hope they will find you well, as I am in the best of health and enjoying myself. I have been on a lot of extra duty since I last wrote you. I have been to Santa Clara three different times, and I tell you I enjoyed it very much, it is a much larger city than Carbarien. There are three troops of calvary there; they are B H and K of the 2d Calvary, and I met quite a lot of Boston boys. There they have quite a nice time, and they have very fine quarters, a great deal better than what we have.

After I arrived back to my company I found them getting ready for a practice march, which was to last six days, and we were to march 100 miles. Every man in the company was to go except men who were sick; they were to be left behind to watch, and take charge of the company stuff. We left on the morning of the 12th, at 6 A. M. with 106 men in line and three mule teams of four mules each. On one team we carried our six days' rations and kitchen utensils; on the other our blankets rolls and cot beds; and on the other, our tents and poles. Our first day's march, which was twelve miles, was made in four hours. That's walking at the rate of three miles an hour, with a rest now and then included.

For six days we marched through parts of the country that were almost impassable in places, and also through mud and water which was waist deep in places. But saw some of the finest parts of this island and have secured great many relics which will send to you later when I have completed my collection. I also mail you today a small piece of sugar cane, which I cut from a large crop while on the march, but will send you a larger amount later.

We were an awful looking lot of men when we arrived back at our quarters in Carbarien. There was not a man that gave out on the march. Each man carried his canteen, haversak, gun and belt. They do not try to make a pack horses out of soldiers in this company, because our captain was a private himself once upon a time and he knows how it is.

I will now tell you what we had for Thanksgiving day, and what I thought of it. I will give you the bill of fare:

Breakfast—Ham and bacon, oatmeal, pickles, bread and butter and coffee.

Dinner—Corn beef and cabbage, potatoes, tomatoes, corn bread and coffee.

Supper—Beef stew, peaches, bread and coffee.

I recalled and appreciated more fully what the citizens of good old Quincy did the year before to make our Thanksgiving dinner enjoyable and pleasant too. I tell you again we enjoyed it a year ago in Greenville, S.C., while with good old K Company of the 5th Massachusetts, U. S. V.

For Christmas this year the bill of fare was:

Breakfast—Ham and eggs, fried potatoes, pickles, oatmeal and milk, bread and butter, tea, coffee and milk.

Dinner—Turkey, roast pork, green peas, corn, white and sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce, pickles, celery, coffee, bread, butter and milk; plum pudding, corn starch pudding, nuts, grapes and oranges.

Supper—Chicken broth, pork chops, fried potatoes and tomatoes, tea, coffee, milk, bread and butter, apple pie.

I enjoyed that very much and so did all the boys and it made me think of my last Christmas dinner.

I will now close with my best regards to all the boys.

Henry Collins.

The New Officers of the Democratic City Committee Elected Last Night.

The annual meeting for organization of the Democratic City Committee was held Friday evening at Room 20, Hancock House. There was quite a contest over the chairmanship of the committee. Last November, when the several ward committees were elected, Thomas F. Cain of Ward Four announced that he would be a candidate for chairman and it was supposed that he would make a stubborn fight for the office. At that time it was thought he had a fighting chance, but for some reason his stock has depreciated since the municipal election and the strength he showed was reduced to one vote, although he doubtless would have received a few more votes had the full committee been present. The other two candidates in the field were City Treasurer James F. Burke, who was the "old liners" candidate, and Dennis J. Ford, who it is said was put forward by the friends of Michael T. Sullivan the retiring chairman. The contest was between the last two gentlemen and the result was quite close. Mr. Burke however won out.

Michael T. Sullivan called the meeting to order, and a temporary organization was made with Mr. Sullivan as chairman and Harold B. Faxon as secretary. Mr. Sullivan is not a member of the 1900 committee and therefore was not a candidate for reelection.

Whole number of votes	34
Necessary for choice	18
James F. Burke had	19
Dennis J. Ford had	14
Thomas F. Cain had	1

Mr. Burke was declared the choice, and the election was made unanimous.

For vice chairman two gentlemen were in the field viz: John A. Duggan of Ward Six and Dennis J. Ford. Mr. Ford did not wish his name used but his friends were determined that he should run. The result of the ballot for vice chairman was as follows:

Whole number of votes	33
Necessary for choice	17
John A. Duggan had	19
Dennis J. Ford had	14

Mr. Duggan was declared elected.

There was no contest over secretary. Harold B. Faxon declined a reelection and Timothy J. Carey of Ward Two was elected secretary by acclamation.

Treasurer was another position on which there was no contest and J. C. Dorgan was elected by acclamation.

This completed the business of the evening.

President Burke is the present City Treasurer and has been prominent in the city since the charter was adopted. He is an ex-Councilman, ex-Representative and ex-Postmaster.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Abigail, wife of ex-Selectman John Chamberlin, died at her residence on Hancock street this noon, after a brief illness. Mrs. Chamberlin was taken ill about a week ago. Everything possible to restore her to health was done, but she continued to fail until this noon when she passed away, her death being due to acute inflammation of the kidneys.

Mrs. Chamberlin was a daughter of the late Daniel Baxter, and has always made Quincy her home. Besides husband, son and dughter, she leaves four sisters and two brothers: Mrs. Elizabeth Follett, Mrs. Caroline Tobey, Mrs. Annie Wood, Mrs. F. P. Waterhouse, Mrs. Parker Hayward, William and Daniel W. Baxter.

Epworth League Social.

The Epworth League of the Swedish M. E. church held their monthly literary and social meeting last night at the home of their pastor, Rev. H. Larson of 70 Whitwell street. A good program was rendered, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, declamations and readings. Miss Hermanna Carlstrom had charge of the program. After the literary part of the program, came the social, which was under arrangements of Mrs. Alma Carlson and to the satisfaction of all. In spite o the stormy winds, over thirty were present.

CITY LAW BUSINESS.

designed to be built, I desire to call your attention to section six of said act. The scope of the authority to be given commissioners in conjunction with the mayor and aldermen of cities, or selectmen of towns, was somewhat enlarged through the suggestion of the solicitor.

You will observe that the Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners may widen or change the location or grade or any highway, townway and public street, or other way of travel, crossed by sewers or in which sewers are to be located.

It is the intention, I believe, of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commissioners to locate a part of their sewer in Sea street, and I have no doubt that arrangements may be made with the commissioners concerning the widening, relocation and construction of this street which may save a large sum of money to the City of Quincy in carrying out the proposed improvements in this highway.

In reference to the city's financial interests under said act, I would say that after several conferences between the chairman of the Metropolitan Sewerge Commissioners and the solicitor, portions of the act were redrawn by the solicitor, the proviso in relation to the City of Quincy being added. This section as it now stands will, in the opinion of your engineer, be of the greatest importance to Quincy when the system is constructed, and I refer you to him for particulars.

The Supreme Court will in March appoint a commission to apportion, among the cities and towns comprising the South Metropolitan District, the cost of construction and the expense of maintenance of the South Metropolitan Sewer for the next five years. If the commission appointed adopts the method accepted and in force for the North Metropolitan District, we will pay for construction on the basis of our valuation, and for maintenance on the basis of our population.

After many fruitless conferences with the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, R. R. Co. during the spring and summer, Mayor Keith instructed the solicitor to begin proceedings against the railroad company with a view to obtain from the company adequate service and proper conveniences for the Quincy patrons of the railroad.

In pursuance of these instructions, the solicitors drew a petition addressed to the Railroad Commissioners, asking that the company be required to furnish a new station at Quincy, also one at Atlantic, better train service at Quincy, and increased freight facilities. The commissioners were also asked to modify their last recommendation concerning the approaches to the Wollaston station, and to require the railroad company to erect farther in upon its location a suitable open wire fence with gates in place of turnstiles.

Upon this petition the Railroad Commissioners gave Mayor Keith a hearing and later came to Quincy and viewed the company's property.

The solicitor conducted the hearing on behalf of the city and attended the commissioners on their view. Before the final hearing, the management of the New York, New Haven, & Hartford R. R. Co. changed hands, and the new president, Judge Hall, requested a conference with Mayor Keith and the city solicitor. As a result of that conference, the president conceded in writing all the requests contained in our petition to the Railroad Commissioners. The fence at Wollatson was soon afterwards removed and one of suitable design, with gates in place of turnstiles, erected in a satisfactory location, temporary siding for bulk freight was constructed at Quincy. It was agreed that the erection of a new station should be deferred until spring. Concerning the better train service, the solicitor contended at the conference that Quincy's centre was deserving of at least half hourly service during all the day with even more frequent trains during the periods of heaviest transportation. Mr. Chamberlain, the general manager, who was at the conference, agreed that we ought to have more trains and that as soon as the new railroad bridge at the train entrance to the Terminal Station was completed and ready for use, he would take up the matter with a view to better acommodating the Quincy people in this respect. I would suggest that long before the spring schedule goes into effect Mr. Chamberlain be seen and a new time table agreed upon.

There has been no final disposition of the petition before the Railroad Commissioners, it being continued nisi to wait the completion of the improvements promised by the company.

In connection with the consideration of the abolition of grade crossings and the erection of a new station, the solicitor is of the opinion that expert engineering talent should be at once employed by the city with a view to devising plans for a wide thoroughfare to President's Hill, and at the same time provide for an artistic and adequate approach to the railroad station. If the new station is located upon the site of the present one, it can be readily seen that the present narrow approaches to Hancock street will soon be so congested with electric cars, carriages and foot passengers as to be extremely dangerous to say nothing of it being as it is now, most unattractive. It is the opinion of the solicitor that in no event can the abolition of the grade crossings, under the act, cost the city over ten per cent. of the entire cost of the same, and whether the proceedings are upon the initiative of the city or of the railroad company makes no difference in the final apportionment of the commissioners.

On January 25th the Metropolitan Park Commissioners gave a hearing to Mayor Keith and the committee of citizens originally appointed by ex-Mayor Sears and others, at which hearing the commissioners confirmed the rumor for some time prevalent that it was not the intention of the commissioners to acquire land in Quincy for a shore reservation and parkway, and it appeared that the prices asked for property in Quincy, necessary to be taken for these purposes, had largely influenced the Board in its action.

It further appeared that although it was then possible to obtain a reduction in the prices, the commissioners could not take favorable action inasmuch as such money as had been available for Quincy had been appropriated or would be needed for work undertaken in other places.

The commissioners admitted that a reduction in the cost of the takings of property might effect their action if called upon to again consider the project but declined to ask the Legislature for money for this specific purpose or to agree to endorse the action of the Mayor or any citizens of Quincy in their efforts to procure the same, not wishing to take any position tending to commit the Board of Metropolitan Park Commissioners to the acquiring of property or the construction of reservations, boulevards or parkways in Quincy in the future.

The present solicitor entered upon the duties of his office on the sixth day of February. The thirty-first day of January, however, was the last day for the introduction of new bills in the Legislature. As a result of a conference with Mayor Keith and the late Mr. Nelson V. Titus, a bill and petition was drawn by me, requiring the Metropolitan Park Commissioners to take land and construct a parkway within the city of Quincy and appropriate money therefor. At the request of Mayor Keith, this bill was introduced in the House by Representative Sheppard. Subsequently, the solicitor on several days appeared before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs and conducted the hearings on the petition of Mayor Keith. He also accompanied the committee to view the proposed locus, later appeared before the Committee on Ways and Means and was constantly in attendance at the State House, in conference with members of committees and others, and watched the passage of the bill through the House and Senate.

The Legislature of 1899 passed two bills reported by the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs to increase the amount of money to be placed at the disposal of the Metropolitan Park Commissioners for general purposes and for roadways and boulevards in the sum of $800,000. Of this sum, $100,000 was intended to be available for the takings of the Quincy shore front reservation, $25,000 for immediate construction, and $55,000 for the takings of the Blue Hills Parkway, all in the city of Quincy, but though these sums were voted by the committee for the purposes enumerated and went to make up the above total, the actual taking of the property was left to the discretion of the Metropolitan Park Commission in pursuance of the policy sometime ago adopted by the Legislature in such matters. These acts were approved May 25th and 27th.

In the meantime the personnel of the Metropolitan Park Commission had somewhat changed, and before the Board was ready to review the Quincy project in detail, many of the options already secured had expired and it was also thought necessary to secure others. During the entire summer and fall the solicitor was in communication with the office of the Park Commissioners and engaged in obtaining and renewing options and interviewing parties in interest.

On December 20th the Metropolitan Park Commission voted unanimously to order the Secretary to prepare plans for the takings of the shore reservation and the Blue Hills Parkway. The takings at Squantum were not made because satisfactory arrangements with the present owners had not been accomplished. This action was intended to give to Quincy the shore reservation and parkway so long desired.

By the schedule of estimates and options in the possession of the Metropolitan Park Commission, it appears that the land for the shore front reservation, from Hancock street to Hancock street, can be had for about $55,000, leaving $45,000 of the $100,000 for contingencies and immediate construction, in addition to the $25,000 for construction. It also appears that there may be a fair sum left from the Blue Hills Parkway appropriation after the land takings are made and paid for. There may, therefore, be anywhere from $6 5,000 to $75,000 available for immediate construction after the takings have been made and paid for. This will not, however, be sufficient to do a great deal in the way of construction and it will therefore become necessary for the representatives of Quincy to procure an additional appropriation from the Legislature at as early a date as the Metropolitan Park Commissioners deem advisable.

This year the Supreme Court will be called upon to determine and apportion the cost among the cities and towns in the Metropolitan Park District for both the reservation and boulevards. It seems to me that the City of Quincy at this time might properly contend that the apportionment, so far as this city is concerned, should not be radically different from that made in 1895, because the conditions under which the old award was made, particularly in reference to the cost of reservations and park, have not been materially changed.

I have gone into this matter somewhat at length because it seemed to me, in view of that which must be done later, to be of importance to the succeeding legal representatives of the city to have in their department a full and complete history of this matter.

The solicitor desires to publicly acknowledge the valuable assistance and encouragement given him in his labors as counsel in this matter by the late Mr. Titus, Representative Sheppard, Mr. Theodore Parker, Mr. John Swithin, Mr. T. H. Kingston, Mr. A. J. Bailey and the gentlemen who appeared and testified before the committees and who assisted him in procuring options without whose services he believes he could not have taken the many successive steps which ultimately led to the laying out of the reservation and parkway in Quincy.

At the request of Mayor Keith the solicitor drew the bills which were finally enacted and became a law and are now known as chapter 219 of the Acts of 1899 entitled "An act to authorize the City of Quincy to refund a part of its indebtedness," Chapter 225 of the Acts of 1899 entitled "An act to authorize the City of Quincy to incur indebtedness beyond the limit fixed by law for street improvements," and Chapter 237 of the Acts of 1899 entitled "An act relative to the tenure office of the Board of Water Commissioners in the City of Quincy."

Upon all these bills the solicitor has appeared before the committees of the Legislature having the same in charge and conducted the hearings thereon. The solicitor also attended the several committees of Legislature having bills before them which affected the City of Quincy in general with other places, and at the request of the Metropolitan Board of Water Commissioners, appeared in opposition to certain bills in which there appeared provisions detrimental to the interests of Quincy and the district.

The report concludes with a detailed statement concerning cases tried, settled and brought against the city during the year.

Smith Whips McConnell.

New York, Jan. 27.—At the Broadway Athletic club last night "Mysterious Billy" Smith of this city knocked out Frank McConnell of San Francisco with a right hook on the jaw in the 22nd round of what was to have been a 25-round bout. McConnell was the favorite in the betting, odds of 100 to 70 being laid on him before the bout began. From the first round the western man was never in it. The men met at 148 pounds.

Barge and Cargo Sunk.

Halifax, Jan. 27.—Steamer Lake Ontario, from Liverpool, entering the harbor at midnight, ran into a Dominion Coal company's barge at anchor and sunk it with 500 tons of coal. The one person on the barge was Captain McGillivray. He had just time to jump in the boat astern of the barge and row away before the crash. The Lake Ontario proceeded to her wharf uninjured.

A Welcome Relief.

Gardiner, Me., Jan. 27.—Measurements show 220 cubic feet of water coming over the dam in the Kennebec more than at any time during the fall and winter. All the manufacturers on the stream have sent for their full complement of help and are now running on full time. The water will be husbanded against any further chances of a drought.

For Championship and Purse.

Durham, N. H., Jan. 27.—The McPherson-Rhodes wrestling match for the championship of New England and a purse of $250 a side was held here last night and resulted in a victory for Rhodes, who won two out of three bouts.

Little Fellow Crushed to Death.

Providence, Jan. 27.—Earl Briggs, 10 years old, was crushed to death under an electric car on Broad street last evening. The boy ran directly in front of the car, and no blame is attached to any one.

WHAT HE SAID.

Was Rather Unlike What His Literary Friend Made Him Say.

"He trun it into me all right," said the defeated pugilist, wiping the blood from his nose after the fight was over. "But he licked me fair. I ain't doin no beefin. I had 'im goin in de sixt' round, but I didn't foller it up. It's all right, an I hain't puttin up no holler."

His literary friend, however, fixed it up for him in a little better shape, and this is the way it appeared in the papers:

"I have only to say, concerning the fight between Mr. Biffim and myself, that he is one of the most accomplished and scientific ring generals whom I have ever encountered in the pugilistic arena, and he won the contest strictly on its merits. In my own behalf I might plead that I was overconfident and did not exert myself to the full until it was too late, but such excuses are both trite and commonplace. It must have been apparent, however, to those who were watching us closely that I had decidedly the advantage of Mr. Biffim in the sixth round, and had I followed it up with my usual skill the result might have been different. The outcome of a great boxing match is so dependent upon those fortuitous and seemingly trivial things that flash before the mental vision of the contestant with the suddenness and unpremeditated effect of a kaleidoscope that it is difficult to embody in words a definite idea of what constitutes the turning point in a combat, the success of failure to take advantage of which crowns the brow of the aspiring gladiator with the laurels of victory or overwhelms him with the stigma of defeat. I have the honor to subscribe myself," etc., etc.—Chicago Tribune.

His Candid Criticism.

A little girl down south wrote to an author who is coming into fame at the north:

"I have just spent a dollar for your book. Won't you send me your autograph?"

To that request she received the following reply:

"I send the autograph, but I am sorry you invested a dollar in the book. It isn't worth it. I have read it myself."—Atlanta Constitution.

HAS BEEN MISQUOTED.

Professor Worcester Again Gives His Opinion of Filipinos In General.

Says Their Good Qualities Outweigh Their Bad Ones,

But They Are Unfit at Present to Establish and Maintain National Government.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Professor Dean Worcester of the Philippine commission last night gave out the following statement: "I have been great annoyed by misleading reports of remarks which I have recently made in public concerning the inhabitants of the Philippine islands.

"There are three very distinct races in the Philippine islands, and the races are again divided into numerous tribes, the total being no less than 84. These tribes vary in social development from the most abject savagery to a relatively high degree of civilization. Among certain of the wild tribes such customs as head hunting, the sacrificing of human beings to heathen divinities, child marriage, polygamy, infanticide and slavery are to be found, although some of the wild tribes are very pacific and indulge in none of the objectionable practices above enumerated.

"The remarks which I have made concerning one or two of the head-hunting tribes have been taken as applicable to the entire population, which is, of course, absurd. Furthermore, I note with regret that after my address before the Commercial club of Boston, in which I discussed the pros and cons of the Tagalog character, the undesirable characteristics which I mentioned were quite fully enumerated, but the good qualities which I was careful to discuss have been entirely omitted.

"In my book on the Philippines, as well as in a magazine article and in numerous public lectures and addresses, I have repeatedly expressed my opinion of the civilized native, and I wish now to repeat that while I consider him quite unfit to establish and maintain an independent national government at the present time, I nevertheless believe that his good qualities far outweigh his bad ones, and I have great hope for his future."

Figaro's Estimate of Mercier.

Paris, Jan. 27.—The Figaro today publishes a bitter article against General Mercier on his arrival at Nantes, in support of his candidacy for the senate. It says: "There is something terrifying and lugubrious in the idea that representatives of the French aristocracy can descend to the level of putting forward a general not for military merits or victories—since Mercier's negligence and incapacity cost France the lives of 5756 of her sons in Madagascar—but merely because he deceived a court-martial by sending in forged documents in order to secure the conviction of an innocent Jewish captain, who barely missed becoming his 5757th victim."

Marketmen at Odds.

Boston, Jan. 27.—The Post says that a contest has opened between the Boston Market Credit association and the retailers, who have organized as the Retail Marketmen's association, the chief grievance of the latter being the system used by the former in securing payment on outstanding accounts, and the penalties imposed for non-payment. It is claimed that the first named association, which practically controls the wholesale market, handicaps the retailers by their system of business.

Took Cyanide of Potassium.

Boston, Jan. 27.—A chambermaid at the Hotel Rexford last evening found the lifeless body of William E. Francis lying on a bed in his room. A package of cyanide of potassium was found near by and on the table was a glass containing some of the drug, indicating a case of suicide. Francis was 45 years old, was formerly a drummer for a Peoria, Ills., firm, but it is stated that he lost his position a few weeks since.

Freight Trains Collided.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 27.—Three men were injured, one fatally, in a railroad collision, three miles south of this city. Their train had become stalled on a curve, and, owing to a blinding snowstorm, it was not perceived by the crew of another freight train approaching, in time to avert the collision.

Fought With One Arm Helpless.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—With his right arm helpless after the first round, Harry Forbes, by constant left-hand jabbing, managed to stand Maurice Rauch off for six rounds last night at the Fort Dearborn Athletic club, and the referee called it a draw.

A Perilous Undertaking.

Berlin, Jan. 27.—Herr Vaze, the Polar explorer, announces that he will lead an expedition next summer into Arctic regions in the hope of finding Andrade, the missing aeronaut, or his remains.

TRADE GENERALLY QUIET.

Unsatisfactory Business, With Exception of Cotton and Woolen Manufactures.

New York, Jan. 27.—Bradstreet's says: Exceptions to the quiet and even dullness shown by many lines of trade and speculation are found in the active demand for woolen goods for next fall's delivery and in the active call for dry goods on spring account.

In the latter direction prices show special strength, and the bulk of the business placed in woolens has been at advances of 25 to 40 percent. In other lines notable steadiness is shown in prices.

Weather conditions throughout the country have been against retail trade in seasonable goods and there is a very general complaint of large stocks of winter goods in the hands of this branch of trade. Another effect of the unusually mild weather is that shown in the northwestern lumber business. Lack of snow will probably insure a reduction on the cut of last year and this, combined with smaller stocks points to at least a maintenance of present lumber quotations.

Woolen manufacturers have constituted an exception to the general quiet. They opened their order books this week, and an unusually heavy volume of business is reported to have been recorded. This is reflected in a better demand for raw wool, particularly at Boston, where sales have exceeded those of recent weeks.

Cotton goods are reported in good demand at nearly all markets and the confidence as to spring business in dry goods and clothing is a notable feature, in sharp contrast, in fact, with the reports received from retailers as to the present season's business in winter wear goods. Scarcity of water is complained of as limiting the output of New England cotton mills, which are reported backward in deliveries.

The unsatisfactory business at retail in boots and shoes is reflected in some easing of leather prices, and hides are actually lower on the week.

The iron trade is in a very interesting condition just at present. Buyers and sellers are still apart, uncertainty as to the continuance of present conditions constituting a bar to new business.

The hardware business is of satisfactory proportions for this season of the year.

The open season is exercising some effect upon coal prices, which are reported easier at Philadelphia.

The cereal markets have shown little decided movement this week.

The quieter tone of business and speculation is reflected in the smallest volume of bank clearings reported for six weeks past, aggregating $1,609,587,000, a decrease of 6 percent from last week, of 25 percent from this week a year ago, but a gain of 67 percent over 1897.

Business failures for the week number 252, as compared with 246 in this week a year ago and 288 in 1898.

An Unhappy Father's Fate.

South Royalston, Mass., Jan. 27.—Dominic Bordignon, 30 years old, was struck by an express on the Fitchburg railroad yesterday and instantly killed. Bordignon was walking the track, and it is thought was searching for his 13-year-old son, who ran away from home Wednesday. He grieved much over the loss of the boy and may have become slightly demented, for he paid no attention to the whistle of the engine. He leaves a widow and six children.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

At the annual meeting of the Yale Football association R. B. Hixon of La Crosse, Wis., was unanimously elected manager for the season of 1900. C. D. Francis, 1902, of Winchester, Tenn., was chosen assistant manager. The gross receipts for the season of 1899 were over $44,000, while the expenditures were about half that amount.

GOLD MEN SUGGEST A TRUCE.

Will Vote For Bryan If He Will Postpone the Silver Fight Until 1904.

New York, Jan. 27.—The Press says: Speaking apparently as political counsel for the gold Democrats of the east, W. Bourke Cockrane yesterday announced his advocacy, with one condition, of the renomination of W. J. Bryan for the presidency.

Mr. Cockran proposes a truce with the Nebraskan on the silver question until 1904, and if Bryan will agree to the armistice anti-imperialism will be the Democracy's slogan in the 1900 campaign. If Bryan will consent to postpone the silver fight until 1904 Cockran agrees to indorse the Chicago platform in its entirety. Mr. Cockran said: "To unite the Democratic party it is not necessary that it should repudiate any of its former expressions; that it should renounce, suppress or disguise any of its beliefs."

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 27.—The feature of the house session yesterday was the passionate debate upon the investigation of the metropolitan water board, precipitated by the motion of Mr. Schofield that the vote whereby Mr. Walsh's order of investigation was adopted be reconsidered. Mr. Schofield said that in the debate of Thursday, which was largely upon the question of reference, the main issue had been obscured; the question at issue was whether there was anything to invesitgate. He did not believe that there was. Mr. Walsh made a vehement reply, reiterating his charges of the day before.

Mr. Carey opposed reconsideration. Mr. Mellen said it would be disgraceful to act upon this matter upon the short day. Mr. Schofield replied that he would leave the matter to the good judgment of the house upon any day.

Messrs. Minton and Douglass opposed the motion, arguing that good faith with the people of Clinton made an investigation proper. The house refused to reconsider without a division.

There was some lively talk on the order relating to the salary of Chief Justice Feld, and on the gas order of Mr. Fitzgerald.

The following bills were introduced in the house: Providing for the redemption of rebate tickets by railroads; prohibiting the peddling of theater tickets without a license; providing for the setting of nets in the North river.

These petitions were presented: Authorizing the metropolitan park commission to grant locations to street railways in the parks; legislation to provide for purchase and construction of gas and electric plants by cities and towns; to require the managers of creameries to make returns to their patrons; to provide for filing notices of the foreclosure of mortgages.

The annual report of the commissioners for promoting uniformity of legislation was presented in the senate. The "negotiable instrument act," they say, has been made the law of 15 states and the District of Columbia. The commissioners recommend no legislation for Massachusetts at this time. They do not recommend any action on a proposed divorce bill, as it is to be further considered at a meeting of the commissioners of all the states this year.

The rules were suspended to admit the Worcester and Webster Street Railway company's petition for right to act as a common carrier of baggage, express and mail matter.

Still Hanging Fire.

Boston, Jan. 27.—With several informal conferences among railroad officials and directors yesterday, the Boston and Maine-Fitchburg railroad lease proposition, on the word of President Tuttle of the former road, has no developments. The objects of these conferences are thought to be the arrangement of details of the proposition to buy the state's holdings. President Tuttle says that no railroad outside of New England is figuring in the least in the present negotiations.

Fine Point In Roberts Case.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The question of salary and mileage allowance for Mr. Roberts is to be considered by the house committee on accounts. There is about $1000 on mileage and a like amount for salary conditionally due Mr. Roberts, but there is some doubt as to whether the sums should be allowed. The committee on accounts will seek to get at the law in the case and reach a decision.

Has Had Enough of Venezuela.

San Juan, P. R., Jan. 27.—The family of former President Andrade of Venezuela, consisting of 10 persons, arrived here from Venezuela yesterday. Andrade has been residing in the suburbs of this city for several months. It is rumored that he will engage in agriculture, now that he has been joined by his family, and that Puerto Rico will probably be his permanent home.

China Stirred Up.

London, Jan. 27.—The dowager empress has dismissed Jung Lu, generalissimo of the Chinese forces, on account of his supposed disapproval of the coup d'etat. Other high officials have been superseded. The interior of China is greatly excited and progressive Chinese are begging the American, British and Japanese ministers to intervene and restore the emperor to power.

Murderess Convicted.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 27.—Mrs. John D. Rich, the Chicago woman surrendered to Mexico to be tried for the murder of her husband in Juarez last May, was yesterday adjudged guilty and sentenced to serve 14 years in prison. When she heard the sentence it required the strength of two guards to prevent her from assaulting the officials.

Keith's Theatre.

Will C. Matthews and Nellie Harris, who have made a tremendous hit in New York and Providenee in their new comedy sketch, "Adam the Second," will be the headliners at Keith's Boston theatre the week beginning Jan. 29. Other entertainers will be; Minnie Palmer and company in a one-act play; Charles Diamond, the famous harp soloist, and Mlle. Beatrice, a graceful dancer; George Wilson, the popular minstrel comedian of "Waltz Me Again" fame; the Batchelors' club, in a rattling comedy and singing sketch; Edward I. Boyle, the accomplished blind musician and singer; Violina sisters, instrumentalists; Lovenberg sisters, dancers; H. V. Fitzgerald, in a novel one-act comedy, one of the most surprising acts in vaudeville; Nelson and Milledge, in a laughable farce, and Thomas Ballantine, vocalist and dancer. The Biograph will have an exceptionally interesting lot of new motion pictures. The "Girl with the Auburn Hair," whose coming has been postponed so often because of her vogue in other theatres on the Keith circuit, is positively scheduled for appearance the week of Feb. 5.

Castle Square Theatre.

An elaborate production of Pettits and Grundy's melodrama "The Bells of Haslemere" is announced as the attraction at the Castle Square Theatre the coming week. The original production of this play, at the Boston Museum about a dozen years ago, proved that it possessed many elements of popularity and it was then accepted as one of the strongest creations of its authors. The literary merit of the play is far above that of its class, and the scenes of its action, passing on both sides the Atlantic, are cleverly constructed and put together with great skill. The stage settings will show the best efforts of the scenic and mechanical departments of the Castle Square theatre, and the following cast is a particularly strong one: Frank Beresford, John Craig; John Silkstone, N. H. Fowler; Captain Vere, Lindsay Morison, Reuben Armstrong, Tony Cummings; Captain Salem, J. L. Seeley; Evelyn Brookfield, Lillian Lawrence; Mary Northcote, Leonora Gnito; Nora Desmond, Marian A. Chapman; tenants, villagers, millers, servants, planters, field-hands, children, etc. At the Monday matinee the usual distribution of boxes of choice chocolate bon bons, will be made to all patrons.

The Magazines.

There is much of sound practical sense in Hetty Green's discussion of "The Benefits of a Business Training for Women," which appears in the February Woman's Home Companion. Speaking from her wide experience as a women of affairs she contends that "it is sheer nonsense to believe for a woman to get a business training is to crush all poetry out of her life; rather it is but one more accomplishment added to the list which a young woman of to-day is expected to acquire." In the same spirit of advancement Waldon Fawcett sets forth the advantages woman may derive from the automobile. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, the latest successor of Henry Ward Beecher, makes a plea for the revival of beauty in social and family life.

In recognition of the marked revival in embroidery, the February number of The Delineator introduces some dainty specimens of colored embroideries in an artistic plate, supplemented by designs and working instructions for the details. This new department, added to the already generous matter in the Delineator, makes it almost invaluable as a magazine for the ladies of the household. Published by Butterick Publishing Co., New York City.

Prof. Angelo Heilprin, whose recent volume on Alaska and the Klondike was so highly complimented for its scientific value as well as for its readableness, contributes the first two articles, giving the results of a second visit to this interesting and wonderfully rich country, to the February namber of Appleton's Popular Science Monthly. A number of beautiful illustrations accompany the text.

A Successful Half Century.

After closing the most prosperous year in its long career, the Auburn, Maine, firm of J. F. True & Co., has just entered upon its fortieth year and is receiving congratulatory messages and tidings of good will from all parts of the country,

At its regular yearly meeting officers were chosen as follows: President, Dr. J. F. True; secretary and treasurer, Edward C. True; directors, Dr. J. F. True, E. C. True and J. R. True.

It was cause for congratulation that the sales True's Pin Worm Elixir, begun on so modest a scale half a century ago have shown a steady increase in volume ever since, and that even better years are in store, is indicated by the considerable increase in sales for 1899 over 1898, extending into a wider territory than ever before, covering the entire country.

The honored head of the firm, now in his 83d year has seen the triumph of his plans, and enjoys in hale old age the success that has been developed as the result of his early faith in his Elixir, and his struggles to found an enduring business.

—The Milford Journal says it would be wise to kill the bill introduced in the Legislature providing that all cities of 20,000 inhabitants shall maintain manual training in the public schools. The Journal thinks it would be better to unload some of the eccentricities which have been given place already before seeking new fields to conquer. Ex-Senator Cook is about right.

TELEGRAPHIC.

3 O'CLOCK.

IS STILL TO BEGIN.

British Have Practically Made No Campaign Yet.

Government Lacks Comprehension of Situation.

Abandonment of Ladysmith a Possibility of the Near Future.

Buller Reports the Abandonment of Spion Kop, but Gives No List of Casualties.

London, Jan. 29.—The week has opened with the utmost gloom for the British public, and the reaction is all the stronger because of the high hopes that were reposed in General Buller's turning movement, and of his announcement that there would be no "turning back."

At the very moment when Dr. Leyds is being received as an honored guest in the highest circles on the continent, Great Britain has to face the worst disaster in a campaign thus far disastrous. Open talk is heard of the absolute necessity of abandoning Ladysmith to its fate, while Lord Roberts reverts to the original plan of an advance over the Orange river upon Bloemfontein.

To Ladysmith the disappointment must be very bitter. A dispatch from the Boer laager, near the town, dated Jan. 24, describes the garrison as "very evidently preparing a desperate coup in order to effect a junction with General Buller's advancing army." It may be regarded as a certainty that, in the confident hope of early relief, Sir George White has lately been issuing extra rations, and this fact has given rise to an exaggerated idea as to the length of time the provisions would las

Even should it be decided to send General Buller reinforcements and to attempt to reach Ladysmith by a movement through the still more difficult country east of Colenso, it is extremely doubtful whether the garrison could hold out long enough, as such a movement would occupy at least a month.

The Times says: "The most carefully planned and executed movement of that whole campaign has entirely failed, and it can hardly be necessary to dwell upon the extreme probability that we shall learn, a little sooner or a little later, of a catastrophe almost without precedent in our military history, a catastrophe indeed without a parallel, except in the surrender at Yorktown.

"We are checked at every point of the campaign. In fact the campaign is still to begin. We wish we had clearer proofs that even now the government has any adequate comprehension of the situation. The utterances of responsible ministers have done nothing to reassure the country on this point.

"Heavy or light, the thing has to be done, and the government ought to prepare for the immediate dispatch of 50,000 men, and to take steps to send yet another 50,000 if these should be needed. The hopeless attempts to carry on the campaign with four widely separated columns, each unequal to its task, must be abandoned for a concentration of force and of purpose."

All the editorials this morning breathe the spirit of calm determination. Not one will allow that any reverse could deter the country from the object it has set itself to attain, whatever the sacrifices which may be involved. Very frank criticism of the government, however, is beginning to be heard even in quarters that have hitherto refrained. The Daily Mail boldly throws all the blame upon Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Lord Lansdowne and Lord Wolseley. It points to President Lincoln's dismissal of Simon Cameron from the post of secretary of war as a precedent for "getting rid of incompetent ministers."

The Morning Post dwells upon the danger of another rebellion at the Cape and of possible European complications. It urges that the navy be prepared for "any emergency."

The following is the text of General Buller's dispatch, dated Spearman's camp, Saturday, Jan. 27, 6:10 p. m.:

"On Jan. 20 Warren drove the enemy and obtained possession of the southern crests of the high tableland extending from the line of Action Homes and Honger's Poort to the western Ladysmith hills. From then to Jan. 25 he remained in close contact with the enemy.

"The enemy held a strong position on a range of small kopjes stretching from northwest to southwest across the plateau from Action Homes, through Spion Kop to the left bank of the Tugela. The actual position held was perfectly tenable, but did not lend itself to an advance, as the southern slopes were so steep that Warren could not get an effective artillery position and water supply was a difficulty.

"On Jan. 23 I assented to his attacking Spion Kop, a large hill, indeed a mountain, which was evidently the key of the position, but was far more accessible from the north than from the south.

"On the night of Jan. 23 he attacked Spion Kop, but found it very difficult to hold, as its perimeter was too large, and water, which he had been led to believe existed, in this extraordinarily dry season, was found very deficient.

"The crests were held all that day against severe attacks and a heavy shell fire. Our men fought with great gallantry; would especially mention the conduct of the Second Cameron Indians and the Third Kings Rifles, who supported the attack on the mountain from the steepest side, and in each case fought their way to the top, and the Second Lancashire fusiliers and Second Middlesex, who magnificently maintained the best traditions of the British army throughout the trying day of Jan. 24, and Thornycrott's mounted infantry, who fought throughout the day equally well alongside of them.

"General Woodgate, who was in command at the summit, having been wounded, the officer who succeeded him decided on the night of Jan. 24 to abandon the position and did so before dawn Jan. 25.

"I reached Warren's camp at 5 a. m. on Jan. 25 and decided that a second attack upon Spion Kop was useless, and that the enemy's right was too strong to allow me to force it.

"Accordingly, I decided to withdraw the force to the south of the Tugela. At 6 a. m. we commenced withdrawing the train and by 8 a. m., Jan. 27 (Saturday), Warren's force was concentrated south of the Tugela without the loss of a man or a pound of stores.

"The fact that the force could withdraw from actual touch—in some cases the lines were less than 1000 yards apart—with the enemy in the manner it did is, I think, sufficient evidence of the morale of the troops, and that we were permitted to withdraw our cumbrous ox and mule transport across the river, 85 yards broad, with 20-foot banks and a very swift current, unmolested, is, I think, proof that the enemy has been taught to respect our soldiers' fighting powers.

The war office does not give any idea of the casualties in taking and holding Spion kop, but a report from the Boer headquarters, near Ladysmith, via Lourenzo Marquez, says that 1500 British dead were left on the battlefield. This number is thought to include the wounded. The report also says that General Buller had been down with fever, but had recovered.

If Boer reports are to be accepted, "the abandonment of Spion Kop was due to the inability of the British to resist the Boer attack, the Boers carrying the first trenches and taking 150 prisoners."

The Standard and other papers reflect the anxiety of the public to learn how much truth there is in the Boer accounts of the fighting at Spion Kop. General Buller's obscurity in his dispatches is rather bitterly criticised, as well as the evident fact that the censor is not only heavily delaying, but is cutting all important matters from the newspaper dispatches.

To judge with any accuracy of the extent of the disaster is virtually impossible. It appears that General Buller had altogether five brigades, wholly or partly engaged, General Coke's, General Hildyard's, General Hart's, General Woodgate's and General Lyttleton's, and the 270 casualties already announced in Lyttleton's brigade are thus explained.

Much mystery still surrounds the retreat. It is possible that General Buller has withdrawn his whole forces, but it is generally assumed that Lyttleton's brigade and Lord Dundonald's cavalry and other troops are still on the north side of the Tugela.

General Buller's confidence that the Boers did not molest his retreat because they had been taught to respect the fighting powers of the British soldier is not shared in London. It is thought rather that the Boers had some other plan in store or did not wish to waste their men.

Large arrivals of troops are due at Cape Town during the week. There has been great activity in military quarters in all parts of England since Saturday morning.

The situation at other points is unchanged, but indications that Lord Roberts is preparing plans for an advance across the Orange river come in a dispatch to The Daily Chronicle from Stoerstroom, dated Jan. 25, which says that Thebits, an important position near Strinsburg, on the Stormberg-Rosmead line, is now occupied by the British, who are repairing the railway and bridges.

Sir Alfred Milner, British high commissioner, has issued a proclamation, announcing that the British government will not recognize as valid and forfeiture, fine or encumbrance upon property in the Transvaal or the Free State subsequent to Oct. 10, the date when war was declared.

Accidently Killed His Stepsister.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 29.—Fourteen-year-old Norah Shannahan was shot and almost instantly killed yesterday by John J. Gallagher, the 17-year-old son of Mrs. Shannahan by a former husband. Gallagher was cleaning a revolver in his room. In the room was another revolver that had lain unused since last Fourth of July, and which Gallagher did not know was loaded. This he took up, and while he was explaining how it worked the weapon was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering the girl's face. Gallagher was arrested, but was later admitted to bail.

Objections to Railroad Deal.

Boston, Jan. 29.—The Post says that legal opposition to the merging of the interests of the Boston and Maine and Fitchburg railroads is to come, apparently, from within the Boston and Maine system itself. Stockholders in the Central Massachusetts division are against the proposed lease, and holders of the common and preferred stock of that road are preparing for a determined resistance to ratification of the lease.

MOLINEUX'S DEFENSE.

His Lawyers Will Claim That Mrs. Adams Did Not Die by Cyanide.

State That Bromo Seltzer Might Have Caused Death.

Ida Halporn and Other Cases of That Character Will Be Used For Argument.

New York, Jan. 29.—The lawyers for Molineux have about completed their plans of defense. It will be chiefly composed under two heads.

First—The claim will be made that powder like that taken by Mrs. Adams, after growing stale in stock, may under certain conditions act as an acute poison.

Second—The claim will be made that the attempt of the prosecution to prove that Mrs. Adams and H. C. Barnet died from the effect of cyanide of mercury poisoning has signally failed.

More in detail Molineux's lawyers will claim: That Mrs. Adams' death was not caused by cyanide of mercury poisoning; that it might have been caused by the bromo seltzer alone; that the case of Ida Halporn is sufficient proof that the powder alone was enough to produce very serious and possibly fatal results; that Professor Witthaus' case has not been proved; that he came to a "speculative conclusion" in claiming that cyanide of mercury was the cause of death; that Professor Witthaus has never stated that he actually found poison present in the bodies of Mrs. Adams and Barnet, but only traces of it; that it has not been proved that Mrs. Adams did not die of heart failure; that it has not been shown that Barnet was not addicted to the use of calomel or mercury as a medicine; that if Mrs. Adams had taken the dose of cyanide of mercury which the prosecution alleges she would never have been able to move about as she did.

Counsel for Molineux will bring into the case Miss Ida Halporn, a 15-year-old girl living now in Second avenue, near Fifty-first street, New York, with her mother. In March last it is claimed that this girl took a dose of the same kind of bromo seltzer which Mrs. Adams drank with serious results.

Ida, it is said, was then a healthy, well-preserved and full-blooded girl. She took a heaping teaspoonful of the powder in half a glass of water. She stirred it and drank it while it was effervescing. She claims that as soon as she had drunk it she was seriously affected in body and mind, suffered a burning sensation of the throat for a long period and became seriously ill.

As a matter of fact, Miss Halporn is still ill and is yet under the care of a physician, who ascribes her ailment to the dose of medicine referred to. Her flesh has fallen away, and she is frail and weak in comparison with her former self.

About two months after Miss Halporn became ill she brought suit in the supreme court, her mother acting as guardian, claiming $50,000 damages. The suit was subsequently transferred to a United States district court, where it is now pending.

Taking the Halporn and other cases of that character as a basis, counsel for Molineux will endeavor to show that under certain conditions a teaspoonful of powder like that taken by Mrs. Adams may be nearly fatal in its effects.

Messrs. Weeks and Battle will make a savage assault upon the expert testimony of Professor Witthaus, claiming that there was a great many weak points in his deductions. Dr. Witthaus has testified that the cause of death in the case of Mrs. Adams was oyanide of mercury poisoning. He testified similarly in regard to Barnet.

It will be claimed that he "came to a speculative conclusion in claiming that cyanide of mercury caused the deaths of those two persons because the prosecution said so." A long list of experts will be called.

New Phase In Cigarmakers' Strike.

Boston, Jan. 29.—The cigar makers' lockout will end today, to all appearances, as the result of a conference between the manufacturers and the international union officers yesterday. The strike in one shop, which brought about the lockout, was declared illegal; hence the demand of the workmen for an increase of $1 per thousand will not be granted. Workmen who return to work under the old rate will be backed up by the union of their craft. It is understood that a number of the strikers will not return to work under their former conditions.

New Bedford Loses an Honored Citizen.

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 29.—Alanson Borden, ex-mayor of New Bedford, and for many years judge of the third district court of Bristol county, died yesterday, aged 77 years. He had been sick about three months. He was born in Tiverton, R. I., in 1823. He was admitted to the bar in 1850, was made judge in 1864, resigning after 23 years of consecutive service. He served as representative to the Massachusetts legislature in 1859-60. Judge Borden had been married three times, surviving his last wife two years. He leaves two children

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 26 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Good Afternoon.

Hon. W. H. Powers of Hyde Park is mentioned as a candidate for Congress in the 11th district, where Congressman Sprague will retire. Mr. Powers is an able lawyer, and for many years a prominent Republican, and would do honor to the district.

It becomes more apparent every day that Representative Sheppard is a member of the most important committee of the Legislature, that of Railroads. With the leases of Fitchburg by the Boston & Maine, and the Boston & Albany by the New York Central, and other bills there is business enough.

Quincy will be pleased to learn of the promotion of F. A. Farnam, Esq., to the responsible position of attorney of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. In the past he has been assistant to W. E. Barnett who becomes vice president. Mr. Farnum recently appeared before the City Council, and was disposed to do what was right by the city. Mr. Farnum is an old railroad man. He was the attorney for the New England railroad before the absorption of that property by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, and when that road was taken into the New Haven system he came over with it.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ It is stated that 15,312 hunters searched the Maine woods in 1899 for big game. As there were only 216 moose and 7,579 deer shot, it looks as if nearly half of the eager army searched in vain.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

☞ The suggestion that Mr. Cleveland be again nominated for the presidency prompts the observation that by a good share of the Democratic party as it is constituted today he is looked upon as half a Republican. Mr. Cleveland's variety of Democracy has apparently gone for good.—New Bedford Standard.

☞ The Lewiston (Me.) Sun brings down its fist on the table and with great vehemence asserts that the lobbyist should be abolished, but, blast its eyes don't tell how to go to work to do it. Everybody agrees, too that the gypsy moth ought to go, but how to make him go is precisely what no fellow can find out.—Milford Journal.

☞ Smith college and Amherst college are now connected by electric cars, run over the new line for the first time on Monday. Old Amherst men will recognize in this a distinct educational advance. There will be no more long walks or carriage bill when the young man from one college calls upon his cousin in the other.—Lowell Courier.

☞ With the known penchant from which almost all cities have suffered in the matter of mismanagement, of public affairs during the past few years it doesn't follow by any manner of means that what one municipality does another is warranted in aping. The time is clear up-to-date when the citizens should "do more thinking for themselves and rely less implicity in smooth sayings.—Lynn Item.

☞ My preference for free libraries as a means of helping the swimming, not the submerged, tenth is that libraries give nothing for nothing. In order to get benefit from them a man must help himself, must read and study. You cannot boost a man up a ladder if he does not do a little of the climbing himself. It is only pouring water into a sieve to give money to those who have no desire to improve their condition.—Carnegie.

☞ The well known saying that no citizen of Boston would dare to die without leaving something to Harvard college, is only a localized expression of what has come to be, for numberless communities, a recognized social obligation. The first thing we ask, when the death of some wealthy citizen is announced, is, What are his public bequests? and if, perchance, there be none, the knowledge that the public interest has been ignored never fails to come as a distinct disappointment.—New York Post.

☞ Representative Carey's interrogation as to the presence of two legislators on the railroad committee who owned Boston & Albany railroad stock was pointed, and its value was not lessened because one representative admitted he sold out a few months ago, and the other accused, who was absent, was said to be in the same position. Representative Carey might properly have pushed his inquiry a little further to ascertain whether the Boston & Albany stock was sold to some member of the legislator's family. Such transactions to evade unpleasant difficulties have been known.—Worcester Telegram.

THE QUARRY SCHEME

Reasons for the Delay—A Reorganization Possible.

The scheme to consolidate the granite quarrying business of Quincy, of which but little has been heard of late, has not fallen through it is said, but force of circumstances has prevented the development of the scheme. One of the principal reasons for delay was the illness of the New York banker, through whom the money to launch the company was to come. This gentleman's illness has been of such a nature that he has been compelled to retire from business. The banking firm has, however, been reorganized and it is now believed that a few days will see the new company, or syndicate organized. The gentleman who is now the manager of the New York banking firm arrived in Quincy on Saturday and was met by Mr. Swithin and others who have been conducting the local end of the syndicate. Carriages were taken and the larger part of the afternoon was spent in viewing the several quarries, which it is proposed to take. The gentleman expressed himself as very much pleased with what he saw, and as the matter now stands it is more than possible that the syndicate will be organized during February.

JOHN JOHNSON HELD.

Must Answer Before Superior Court for Assault.

The case of John Johnson, who is charged with assaulting Adam Hendrickson with a dangerous weapon, was heard at the Quincy court this morning. Hendrickson's story was that Johnson came to his house Wednesday, Jan. 24, about 5 o'clock and remained an hour or more when he went away. Later in the evening Johnson came and began to pound on the door of Hendrickson's house. The latter opened the door and told Johnson to go away. At this Johnson struck him over the left eye with something, he did not know what. Johnson was under the influence of liquor at the time, and when he is in that condition he is more like a crazy man than anything else. The court considered the case one for the higher court, and held him in $300.

New S. A. R. Society.

The Gen. Benjamin Lincoln chapter, Sons of the American Revolution was organized at Hingham, Jan. 22, with these officers: President, the Hon. Walter L. Bouve; vice president, the Hon. William Fearing, 2d; secretary, William W. Lunt; treasurer, Joseph B. Thaxter Jr.; directors, the president, secretary, treasurer and Judge E. B. Pratt and Charles O. Bouve. One of the objects this chapter has in view is to perpetuate the memory of Gen. Lincoln in a bronze statue, which it is proposed, with the States' assistance, to erect in Hingham near the former home of the general. Benjamin Lincoln was a major-general of the revolutionary army and the first president of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati. He was born in Hingham, Jan. 24, 1733, died May 9, 1810.

—About a dozen members of the Norfolk County Republican club dined at Young's on Saturday. The officers are: President Charles E. Henry, Wellesley; secretary, J. Walter Bradlee, Milton; treasurer, the Hon. Frank A. Fales, Norwood.

The congregation at the Quincy Point church Sunday was delighted with two soprano solos by Miss Goss of Providence, R. I. She is certainly a talented artist.

Henry H. Faxon will occupy a seat upon the platform at the Bryan reception at Mechanic's hall tomorrow evening. He will look a little out of place among so many shining lights of the Democracy.

The gentlemen of the Quincy Point church are to repeat on Wednesday evening their turkey supper of a year ago. It was one of the successes of 1899, and that is enough to cause a large attendance this year.

A week from today and the new officials will assume the management of the city's business. It simply means however, that the new men walk in and the present officials walk out. There will be no interruption in the business.

The failure of the local ice dealers to fill their houses with ice will mean that the supply must be purchased in Maine and shipped from there by rail or water. This would also mean that Quincy people would have to pay about double for their ice this year.

In Faxon Hall, Quincy, Cor. Chestnut St. and Revere Road, Beginning Monday Afternoon, Jan. 29th at 2.30 o'clock and Continuing Every Afternoon During the Week. Doors Open 2 P. M.

THE KING OF HEALERS, PROF. J. P. COFFEY,

Will Positively Appear. He Will Both Startle and Delight You With His Marvelous Powers. 300,000 People In This State Have Seen Him Make the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and the Cripple Dance With Joy by the Laying on of the Hands.

"An Exhibition Surpassing Anything Ever Attempted on the American Stage."

Professor Coffey the great natural healer, will heal the sick, lame, crippled, rheumatic and paralytic, reduce tumors and cure deafness in public in this city.

He will lecture and give his marvelous exhibition, explaining and demonstrating his wonderful power of healing "by the laying on of hands" which has heretofore been conceded only possible to workers of ancient miracles.

All cures in public are made entirely free and nearly everybody in the audience can feel his strange magnetic influence.

He is the only man who has cured any one in People's Temple, Boston, and the only man who has appeared in all the principal cities of this state during the last year. Over 300,000 people in this state alone have seen his wonderful power demonstrated in public. Others try to imitate but always meet with failure.

This gentleman is the most powerful natural healer now living, and has performed more remarkable cures in public than any man in the world, his power seeming little less than miraculous.

Everybody is at liberty to bring those of their own choice to the hall for treatment to that they may witness that every cure which he makes is genuine. They come to him sick, crippled and in pain, and they leave him free from all suffering. By making a few passes with his hand over the body and limbs of the patient all pain is stopped and the sick are healed and often simply by a touch from his hand many who are crippled are enabled to walk. These cures are made openly in public, where the entire audience may witness them.

Prof. Coffey's conception and rendering of his remarkable power of healing, placing it before the public in graphic lectures and occult experiment, is most happily wrought and romantically told, a sentiment of profit running through every word and act, often evoking the wildest merriment, and then again, producing the most profound solemnity.

These lectures and demonstrations are of the most wonderful character—they will excell anything ever attempted before in public, filled with serious and pathetic scenes as well as with wild and tragic events; the unlooked-for-strange and startling situations many times out-rival the wildest conception.

He is the greatest as well as the strangest of all entertainers. He brings to this city the very Mecca of gladness and miracle.

An exhibition of the rarest purity and of the most wonderful phenomenal results, which startles the public, and thrills the Christian heart, conveying a lesson of historical truth outstripping all romance, carrying the audience back nearly 1900 years to the time of ancient miracles.

Over two million people have seen Prof. Coffey cure on the public platform those who have been sick, deaf, lame and decrepit for years, many times by only a single treatment; patient after patient who had lost all hope of being restored.

None should miss this opportunity of seeing and hearing this man, who comes with such remarkable healing in his hands and whose successful demonstrations have caused such world-wide investigation by the most learned physicians of every school and in every land.

Here men and women who had been helpless cripples for a score of years are made well and strong in a few moments, and weak and suffering people recreated into strong and robust men and women at the magic touch of this great man, this mighty healer, whose touch is health, and who is inspired to do this great work of curing afflicted humanity by the laying on of hands.

No part of the person will be denuded, not even the outer garments removed. These patients, although among the oldest and most confirmed cripples and invalids, and with but this seemingly so simple treatment the most of them will declare themselves cured; in nearly all cases all pain will be instantly stopped; the crippled will throw away their canes and crutches, the deaf will hear, while the sick and debilitated will receive renewed life and vitality.

At these demonstrations all treatments are given ENTIRELY FREE, without money and without price, proper cleanliness of both person and raiment being the only requisite to insure the kindest consideration.

Press Notices.

Marvelous as it may seem, bordering on the miraculous, as it certainly would appear, nevertheless there are men and women in this city who have to credit their complete restoration to health to Prof. Coffey's modern method of curing diseases by hand manipulations. It is hard to disbelieve the honest expressions of hundreds of truthful men and women. Especially so, when nothing is to be gained by telling a falsehood.—Boston Herald.

"Of all the divine or magnetic healers we have seen or heard Professor Coffey is the fairest, frankest and most interesting.

Whatever prejudice may exist among men of the present day as to the efficacy of curing diseases without medicine is being dispelled by Prof. Coffey like fog before the hurricane and his "Method" is being heralded throughout the world as one of the most wonderful scientific discoveries of this or any other age.—Lynn Item.

Nobody can form any idea of the miraculous cures performed by Prof. Coffey in the opera house unless they witnessed them. It was your privilege. You were invited free of charge. The Professor treated many cases in public in this city without a single failure. No one was in the least injured, and all received much benefit, many marvelous cures being made. A man on crutches for years was cured in a few moments of time simply by this man passing his hands over the limbs of the patient.—Salem News.

Some people thought that many of the wonderful cures performed by him in Odd Fellows' hall this week were miracles.—Lowell Citizen.

NOT A GOLD FIELD.

Quincy Man Returns from La Gloria Disgusted.

Thomas G. Clare of Atlantic, who was one of the party who made the trip to Cuba to view the plot known as La Gloria, has returned home and his report will not be received with much enthusiasm by the many Quincy people who have either purchased, or made deposits for the purchase, of stock in this section. Mr. Clare says that he was not one of those who had purchased or agreed to purchase land at La Gloria, but was simply a pleasure trip. On the boat, however, in which he made the trip, there were many, both men and women, who had invested, and out of the passenger list there were but five who had not paid some money.

He was not favorably impressed with the land at La Gloria. There was however much good land in Cuba, which would be a good investment. The land at La Gloria, he says, is good land after you get there, but the rub comes in getting there. There are no means of transportation of any kind, and the only way to reach it was to walk, and when you come to walk about five miles through mud and slush knee deep, what enthusiasm there was over the land was killed.

Of those on the trip with him, Mr. Clare says they were a lot of sadly disappointed people who thought when they had invested they had struck the short road to riches. Mr. Clare's report will not be received with much enthusiasm by those in Quincy who have invested their hard earned cash, and there are many.

They Stood the Test.

Frank Daniels made an experiment last week at Wallack's, New York, well calculated to set at rest all arguments as to the most valuable form of advertising. Speaking of it, the comedian said: "As everybody with eyes must know theatrical organizations pay out a fortune every year for advertising. This advertising takes many forms—newspaper, bill boards lithographs in windows, elevated railroad stations, postal cards, street cars and a hundred and one other things supposed to catch the eye of the public.

"There was a pretty warm argument the other night in my dressing room over the best form of advertising. I didn't take part because I knew it would result as I had heard the same argument result many times before.

"But the next day I consulted my manager, Kirke La Shelle, and we concluded to test the thing by the only reliable means. So that night, between the acts, ushers distributed among the audience slips with a brief printed statement setting forth the disputed question and politely asking the recipient to indicate by a check mark, in the list of various advertising forms employed, which one had attracted him to the performance—the ad in the newspaper, the bill boards, window lithographs or something else.?

"Well, the people seemed to take kindly to the idea, and the response was most liberal. Eleven hundred slips were handed to the ushers after the next curtain, and of that number 901 showed that that many of the 1100 had been attracted by the newspapers solely. Henceforth," the comedian concluded, "the newspapers will get ten-elevenths of all the money Manager La Shelle sets aside for advertising purposes."

—Wednesday is the last day under the rules for the introduction of new business into the Legislature. The number of bills is already in excess of last year.

—George McNiff of Avon was killed on the railroad in that town Sunday evening.

THE CITY AUDITOR'S ANNUAL REPORT.

Expenditures of Over $800,000.00 Made by the City Departments During the Year 1899—A Balance of $44,554.92 on Appropriations.

The last report of John O. Hall as City Auditor has just been made public. It was issued last week and sent to the Department officials. It shows the total appropriations for 1899 to have been $662,581.25, of which $618,026.33 has been expended, leaving a balance of $44,554.92. The balance Jan. 1, 1899, was $41,545.78. In addition to the above expenditures there was expended in 1899, on account 1898, the sum of $188,304.40, making the total expenditures of the year $806,330.73.

The appropriation for Streets in 1899, which was originally $22,000 has been increased by transfers receipts to $27,707.30, and showed a balance of $706.55 on Jan. 1.

Every cent of the $29,500 for water construction was expended and but $103.40 of the $9,000 for water maintenance remained Jan. 1.

The sum of $9,629.78 was expended for removal of snow, $8,000 for permanent sidewalks, etc.

None of the $5,000 appropriated ofr the Cranch Hill school house land, or the $2,200 for the new Hook and Ladder truck and but little of a few other appropriation, but in most cases the balances are very small and often entirely exhausted, as will be seen:

A TELLTALE CHECK

It May Get an Atlantic Boy into Trouble.

When the Atlantic depot was broken into and robbed on the night of Jan. 20, there were other things taken besides the $25 in money, of which nothing was said at the time, as it was thought by keeping quiet they might lead to the identity of the party or parties who did the job. These were a number of rebate checks, such as are received by passengers paying fare on the cars. These checks had been redeemed and cancelled. Last Saturday a young fellow who gave his name as Edward Kerrigan, aged 13 years, presented himself at the Atlantic ticket office with one of the stolen rebate checks for his fare cents. The agent immediately recognized the check and held the boy until the police arrived. To Officer Bary the boy said his father had given him the check to get the money on. Officer Barry took the boy before his father, who at first denied knowing anything about it, but later said that the boy had found it in the street. The boy will probably be taken into court by the railroad officials.

There are large districts in China whefe labor is so cheap that it can hardly be reckoned on a money standard. Thousands of Chinese laborers live on a little more than a handful of rice or so a day, and yet even then there are thousanqs of unemployed practically starviug.

☞President Hadley of Yale wishes social ostracism to be accorded to every capitalist "who operates the trust against the public good." So do we all, but the question is. "Can we finite beings decide what will and will not eventually work out pro bono publico?" Many very good and very thonghtful men see in the trust the first step towards a commercial millennium.—Ploughman.

"Housework is hard work without Gold Dust"

TO CLEAN NURSERY BOTTLES

After the bottle has been used, rinse it thoroughly in warm water; then fill with warm water containing a teaspoonful of and let it stand, shaking every now and then. If rubber tube is used let it remain also in the water. Rinse through clean water several times. Gold Dust is much more effective than soap to clean them, as it removes all specks and motes clinging to the sides of the bottles.

COPPER RIVER VALLEY

Contains Highly Mineralized Deposits, Which Are Awaiting Development.

A Practical Railway Route May Be Established.

District Heavily Timbered and Agricultural Resources Are Most Encouraging.

Washington, Jan. 29.—The chief topic treated in an important report by Captain Abercrombie, who commanded the Copper river exploring expedition in Alaska, is the laying out of the great trans-Alaskan military route from Port Valdez, Alaska, to Port Egbert, on the Yukon. While engaged in this work the officer was charged to take note of the mineral resources of the country, of its adaptability for agriculture and stock raising and the fuel and food products for man and animal.

Captain Abercrombie arrived at Valdez, the starting point of the expedition, on April 21, being received by a motley crowd, which had just come across the Valdez glacier from the Copper river valley. He found that hundreds of people were dying of starvation and scurvy in the Copper river country. The people at Valdez were in a most pitiable condition, being crowded in miserable huts. There were no facilities for bathing; most of the sufferers had scurvy, and not a few had frostbitten hands, faces and feet. The tops of old rubber boots and strips of gunny sacks made shoes and socks for many of them. The stench was intolerable, and 70 percent of the inmates of the huts were mentally deranged. This was common to those whom a fear of scurvy had driven over the glacier, where so many had perished by freezing to death.

Old railroad and trail builders were the men selected by Captain Abercrombie to build a military road, and they started from Valdez April 29 and proceeded to the mouth of Keystone canyon. The harbor at Valdez, owing to the proximity of the Japanese current, is accessible at all seasons of the year to ships of any size, except about one-half mile at its head. The only feasible site for a railroad terminates a narrow strip of land three-quarters of a mile broad extending up the Lowex river some five miles and south of a small stream flowing from Robe lake.

From that point there are two feasible routes; one east of Marshall pass, at the elevation of 1700 feet and down the Tasnuna to the Copper river valley; the other turning north, crossing the mountain range and Thompson pass 2600 feet high, thence down the Teikhell river valley through the swampy pass at the head of the Knata, thence down the Tonsina into the Copper river valley. Captain Abercrombie believes that the future for a railroad through this section of Alaska is very promising, owing to the presence of large zones of heavily mineralized copper deposits, the development of which, he says, undoubtedly will yield a local tonnage of great volume. He states that the proximity of tie and bridge timber and the absence of any great engineering features would render railroad construction a comparatively easy problem.

Edward Gillette, a member of the expedition, contributes an important chapter to the report on the feasibility of establishing a practical railroad route up the Copper river valley. He draws a comparison between the route from Seattle to Skagway with the Valdez route, to the advantage of the latter. He shows that while the distance from Seattle to Skagway is 1050 miles, as against 1250 miles from Seattle to Valdez, this difference is practically offset by the unimpeded passage of the outside route. Then vessels are not required to pass through some 400 miles of water claimed by a foreign country, and Valdez is much nearer by railroad to the Forty-Mile country. Insurance rates on the inside route are also double those on the outside routes.

Mr. Gillette describes in detail the route from Valdez to the Yukon country, elaborating a rough outline given by Captain Abercrombie. He believes that the development of the country in the future probably will necessitate the construction of both lines from the northern end of the Keystone canyon through Thompson pass and by Marshall pass. He recommends that that line be constructed on a three-foot gauge in the interest of economy and rapidity of construction, arguing that the narrow gauge would fully meet the needs of the country. The report makes a comparison of the projected Valdez road and the existing railroad from Skagway over White pass to Lake Bennett, showing that the maximum grades are much less; that the curvature is less, and that the Valdez highest elevation is fully 300 feet less than White pass road. The snow slides from which the White pass suffers can be practically eliminated from the Valdez route by the peculiar formation of the country and the careful placing of the line. The point is also made that the projected route would lie entirely within United States territory.

He fixes the probabe cost at $752,500 or $22,521 per mile, the estimate being from 25 to 50 percent higher than rates in the United States. A direct line from Valdez to Port Egbert, on the Yukon, would be 310 miles long, and 350 miles would afford all the diversion required for the line. The report refers to the trade of central Alaska as an unknown quantity, but dwells at length upon the reputation the country has of possession of vast deposits of copper ore.

In conclusion, the report treats of the agricultural resources of the country, showing that the soil is productive, that vegetables and hay can be raised, that there is plenty of timber, and that hardy farmers from Norway and Sweden would farm as successfully in the Copper river valley as in their own country. The country also contains coal of good quality and marble of various colors.

NO TRACE OF THE CREW.

Schooner Nausett Wrecked on Noyes Beach During a Storm—Other Marine Disasters.

Providence, Jan. 29.—Schooner Nausett went ashore some time during Friday night at Noyes Beach, four miles east of Watch Hill, and is a total loss. She was supposed to have a crew of two or three, but only two were noticed on board of her when she was riding out the gale Friday. The crew are believed to have perished, although no bodies have been recovered. The finding of women's and children's clothing indicates that there may have been passengers aboard.

The schooner passed Quonocontaug life saving station Thursday afternoon. At night, when the fog lifted, she was anchored in the race off Watch Hill light, and she remained there Friday. Two men were seen in the morning to take in the reefed mainsail. At dark the boat was still there, but had not set anchor lights. The wind was blowing hard from the westward, and was increasing, until it nearly equalled the blow of Nov. 27, 1898. The midnight patrol saw the boat, but in the morning she was gone. No lights had been seen nor any signals of distress.

Saturday morning a farmhand found wreckage on the beach, and at 4 o'clock in the afternoon the dog watch at Watch Hill station found wreckage for miles along the shore. A watch was kept all Saturday night, but there were no signs of bodies.

Captain Davis went out to the wreck yesterday, but found only rotten timbers, spars and sails held by rigging. On the shore were broken pieces of the deck and cabin house, parts of two skiffs, an old trunk with the top gone, partly filled with sand, part of a child's toy cart, a woman's straw hat, undergarments for a child 10 years old, but no papers.

All the wreckage would not fill an ox cart, but half a dozen farmers were there with carts eager to pick up anything of value. It is thought that the cargo was of oysters. Captain Davis thinks that during the heavy blow the crew tried to get out of a tight fix by running the boat ashore, for the wind would have carried her to Block island.

The boat was built in New Haven in 1863. The sea is very rough and the patrol is on the lookout for bodies.

St. John's, Jan. 29.—The continuance of the storm makes it impossible to obtain definite information as to the identity of the vessel which went ashore on Jan. 17 on Foxtail point. Much apprehension is felt among the shore folks at the Bay of Islands, as it is feared that more than one vessel has been lost.

Gloucester, Mass., Jan. 28.—The sand schooner Charles F. Atwood of Lynn foundered off Milk island bar, inside of Thatcher's island, Saturday. Her crew succeeded in reaching Rockport. The Atwood was an old boat, having been built in 1866, and was owned principally in Lynn.

Halifax, Jan. 29.—Brigantine Herbert Rice, from West Indies, reports having lost two of her crew in a squall off Yarmouth on Friday last.

Buffalo Priest Silenced.

Buffalo, Jan. 29.—Rev. George Zurcher, pastor of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, who has been at war with the local church authorities for some time, was yesterday suspended by Bishop Quigley, required to vacate his pulpit and the parochial house, and virtually silenced. Not long ago Father Zurcher was obliged to recant statements printed in his book "Monks and Their Decline," a publication reflecting on the Jesuits and their attitude toward the liquor question. His suspension, however, is traceable to a sermon in which he declared that some priests mislead their people in exacting money offerings for masses on All Souls' day.

A Terrible Death.

New York, Jan. 29.—An electric shock almost instantly killed Charles Nord, a waiter in a Bowery cafe, last night. Nord attempted to lift an arc light that had fallen from its support and hung suspended about three feet from the sidewalk and seized the iron framework with both hands. As the electric current, several thousand volts, shot through his body the man wriggled and twisted as if in deadly combat with the hissing lamp. But the struggle ended quickly and Nord dropped over dead. Several waiters who ran to his assistance were knocked over, but they finally managed to extricate the body.

Tanners Remain Out.

Lowell, Mass., Jan. 29.—The striking employes of the local branch of the American Hide and Leather company held a mass meeting yesterday, at which vigorous addresses were delivered. At the meeting of the Trades and Labor Council the idea of having police officers about the tannery was condemned. A committee of five was appointed to assist the strikers by every honorable means.

THIS WEEK IN CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 29.—There is no program mapped out for the house this week. The Indian appropriation bill has been reported and the consular and diplomatic appropriation bills are in preparation. It is expected that these bills will occupy the major portion of the week.

Senators Bacon and Tillman have given notice of speeches during the present week upon the Philippine question, but beyond these notices no indication has been given of the probable course of events in the senate during the week.

The currency bill continues to hold the right of way, and it is not improbable that it will be made the subject of more or less speechmaking. It is also quite certain that during the early part of the week there will be a change in the elective offices in the senate, and that in accordance with the decision of the Republican caucus of last week Mr. Bennett will be installed as secretary and Mr. Ramsdell as sergeant-at-arms. Senator Jones of Arkansas will continue in executive session his effort to secure reconsideration of the Samoan treaty, but this motion will be resisted by the Republicans. There is a tacit understanding that the Quay contest will not be taken up until after the disposition of the currency bill.

Bishop Satterlee's Recommendation.

New York, Jan. 29.—Bishop Satterlee of Washington preached in Trinity church yesterday, in support of his plea for the establishment of a national cathedral in the capital. "While the Roman Catholics," he said, "have established great Catholic universities, the Methodists have universities, and the Baptists the Columbian university, the Episcopal church, the latest in the field, moves toward the establishment of a national cathedral in the national capital, as a witness before the whole country of Christian unity with an angelican witness." Bishop Satterlee said that the Episcopal church is peculiarly fitted to build a national cathedral, because it combines in itself Protestant and Catholic tendencies.

Killed Wife and Two Children.

Cincinnati, Jan. 29.—In an "over the Rhine" tenement yesterday, Charles Bartruff, a tanner, murdered his wife, his son, Carl, aged 5, and his daughter, aged 3, and then tried to set the house on fire by overturning the hot stove and piling furniture on it. The skulls of all the victims were crushed with a blunt instrument. Bartruff remained in the burning room until arrested by the police. He suffered from dementia. The boy, Carl, was an imbecile.

Willing to Head Populist Ticket.

Austin, Jan. 29.—The Populists of Texas publicly announce that W. J. Bryan will accept the nomination of that party for president if it is tendered him. A circular letter outlining the plan of action for the coming campaign has been issued by Chairman J. H. Foster, who claims to secure his information and the propositions outlined direct from the national headquarters.

Mercier Wins Senate Seat.

Paris, Jan. 29.—The election of 99 senators has resulted in a practical rout for the nationalists, only three out of their 30 candidates being elected. The nationalists made a great show of military men. Of these Generals Mercier and Lambert alone succeeded, both commanding large majorities. General Mercier was the principal nationalist candidate.

Poisoned by Gas.

Hazleton, Pa., Jan. 29.—Gas escaping from a defective stove in the home of Stephen Kandolf of Honeybrook, while all the members of the family and six boarders were asleep, caused the death of Mrs. Kandolf and almost suffocated all who were in the house. Mr. Kandolf and two boarders are in a serious condition, but will probably recover.

Held on Embezzlement Charge.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 29.—Charles L. Foote, charged with embezzling funds of the Fall River Co-operative bank and of Lincoln & Hood, insurance agents, is in custody here, having been brought here from Chicago by local inspectors. He will be placed on trial at the February term of the superior court.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The cold wave has extended southward into Texas, where freezing temperatures and snow are reported. A storm of marked strength has developed off the south Atlantic coast. In New England snow will probably continue today and tomorrow. Along the New England coast the winds will be brisk from the east, and on the southern New England coast easterly gales will occur.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Ladysmith Garrison Must Give Up Hope For Aid.

Boers Have Strong Positions on Every Side of City.

Some Reports Place Killed at Spion Kop as High as 2000.

Kruger Has Not Asked For Peace, and the Transvaal Will Want New Territory.

London, Jan. 30.—All eyes are now turned on Ladysmith. The surrender or capture of the unfortunate garrison is looked for at any moment.

Rumors have been current that, at the suggestion of General Roberts, General White had been signalled by heliograph to either surrender or endeavor to cut his way out of Ladysmith, just as he thought best.

The complete failure of General Buller's relief movement means, of course, that Ladysmith is left to its fate. That it is possible for the town to hold out any longer is doubted. Last week it is said that General White signalled that he was in the most desperate straits, and that the relief column could not come a moment too soon.

It is stated, too, that General White felt so confident that Buller would relieve him that during the week preceding the disaster at Spion kop he dealt out what stores remained in increased quantities, as he then calculated that he had about enough to last at that rate until Buller arrived.

The war office refuses to say whether or not General White has been asked to try to cut his way out or surrender, but the general feeling is that there is nothing else for him to do. In any case he is placed in an awful dilemma. A surrender would be a further great humiliation for England, though it is pointed out that the garrison could suffer no loss of honor or prestige because of the heroic stand it has made.

On the other hand an attempt by White to cut his way through would mean, it is thought, the destruction of perhaps half his command and the inevitable capture of the remainder.

Military experts say that it would be an utter impossibility for General White to cut his way out under the present conditions, and considering the great strength of the Boers on all sides of him. It is pointed out that the only time when he had a possible chance was when General Buller was attacking the Boer positions on the Tugela, last week.

The fact that not a move was made by the garrison at that time is pointed out as showing how close the Boer investment was. In fact, it is stated that the Boers felt so confident of their strength and their ability to drive Buller back that they did not withdraw a man or a gun from the forces investing Ladysmith.

As matters stand now, the Boers have strong positions on every side of Ladysmith. No matter at what point General White attempted to get out he would be pounced upon and crushed by overwhelming forces.

Rumors grow regarding awful British losses in the fighting at Spion kop. Some reports have placed the number of dead as high as 2000. General Buller has not sent any complete list, the only list sent being of the officers killed and wounded.

The Times has the following heliograph message via Modder River from Kimberley, dated Jan. 26: The bombardment continues. It is now directed toward the inhabited portions of the town rather than the fortifications. Between midnight and 4 p. m. yesterday 145 shells were fired. They seem to have been of Transvaal manufacture, not bursting widely. One child was killed and four people injured.

The public burns with impatience that something be done; but there is nothing to do but wait on the preparations. Oceans of ink are poured out in advice. Orators are at work in the provinces telling the people that England has "set her teeth in grim determination to see it through."

The thing on which everybody seems agreed is that more men must go. Twenty thousand two hundred and twenty-two men and 155 guns are at sea. Eleven thousand infantry and 9000 cavalry, including 5000 yeomen, are practically ready to embark. Therefore the government, without doing more, can place at the disposal of Lord Roberts 40,000 additional men and 155 guns. The further purposes of the war office are supposed to embrace somewhere in the neighborhood of 50,000 more men. As the indication is that candidates will be rather scarce, the war office will issue orders for those reservists who were found unfit at the previous mobilization examinations to report for further examination. Applicants for cavalry service are still freely offering as yeomanry.

General Buller's operations have cost 912 men, so far as officially reported within 10 days. Applying to the 206 Spion kop casualties reported yesterday the rule of proportion, the losses of officers indicate probably 500 casualties yet to come. The total casualties of the war, compiled from official reports, are 9523, nearly a division. Of these 2485 are killed, 4811 wounded and the rest prisoners.

The aggregate British home troops in South Africa number 116,000, the Natalians 7158 and the Cape Colonials 21,000.

To the Berlin correspondent of the Associated Press, who interviewed him yesterday, Dr. Leyds made the following statement:

"I know nothing about the reported missions of either Mr. Macrum or Webster Davis. Nor, to the best of my knowledge, is either the bearer of a message of peace. There are no movements under way on our part to induce President McKinley to intervene between Great Britain and the Transvaal. As I do not at present have direct communication with Pretoria, I do not know what Montague White's mission is, except to establish diplomatic relations with the United States.

"All this talk about peace is sadly premature. Great Britain surely will not succumb now. Neither will we. While we are talking here it may be that a decisive battle is being fought there, for I presume Lord Roberts has withdrawn the troops from around Ladysmith and is massing them for a formidable coup."

Dr. Leyds repeated his former declaration that the Boers, when concluding peace, would want back part at least of the territories which England "stole from the Boers." He rather expects also that a harbor south of Mozambique will go to the Transvaal "for our legitimate extension," he added. "We need free access to the sea." He asserted emphatically that one condition of peace would be the recognition of the absolute independence of the Transvaal.

Berlin is certainly very much excited over Dr. Leyds. He is overwhelmed with invitations. His apartments at the Palace hotel, where the Transvaal flag is flying, are besieged day and night by crowds, including contractors and mining speculators, as well as fine ladies, gentlemen of the court and army officers, who wish to congratulate him upon the Boer successes or to offer their services.

The opposition leaders in parliament have decided upon Lord Edmund Fitzmaurice to move an amendment to the queen's address, involving the vote of censure. The amendment will be of a comprehensive character, virtually convicting the government of want of knowledge, foresight and judgment in the management of South African affairs since 1895, and in the preparations for war. It is supported by several prominent members of the opposition identified with Lord Rosebery's views.

The delight of foreigners and the jeers of the continental press are reproduced in the British papers and wound the national pride. This harmony of hostility to Great Britain throughout the world, except in the United States, causes uneasiness, and the reflection that international complications may arise at any time. A scheme for a considerable increase in the navy may be brought before parliament by the government.

Sympathy All on Boers' Side.

New York, Jan. 30.—A mammoth pro-Boer meeting was held last night in the Grand Central palace. It was called to express American sympathy for the South African republics, and to raise funds to care for the ill and wounded within the Boer lines. The speakers claimed that Great Britain had forced the war on the Boers, and that the latter were fighting the battle of humanity and liberty. The valor and the soldierly qualities of the Boers were praised. Every mention of the British was greeted with hisses, and a reference to the talk concerning an allinace with England called forth hisses that were continued for fully five minutes. Praises of the Boers and references to the battle of Spion kop were greeted with enthusiastic cheers. Resolutions were adopted expressing sympathy with the Boers, condemning England and requesting President McKinley to proffer his services as an arbitrator between the combatants. Over $5000 was collected at the meeting.

OPPOSITON TO PROPOSED DEAL.

Central Massachusetts Stockholders Will Try to Prevent Leasing of the Fitchburg.

Boston, Jan. 30.—The Globe says: In the existing complications regarding the big projected railroad leases in which all New England is just now interested has been added a new feature. The threat which certain Massachusetts Central interests have recently been making against the Boston and Maine in connection with the proposed lease by the latter of the Fitchburg took material form yesterday in the forwarding to Governor Crane of a letter pretesting against the lease on the ground that, if carried out, it will be likely to adversely affect the interests of the Central Massachusetts stockholders.

The Central Massachusetts, as is well known, is itself leased to the Boston and Maine through the latter's control of the Boston and Lowell, and there is now pending a suit brought last July by the Central Massachusetts stockholders seeking to annul the lease on the ground of unfair treatment of the property by the Boston and Maine.

The first definite move was made yesterday, when the directors held a meeting and voted to send the letter to Governor Crane. This communication, in addition to stating the reasons urged by the Central Massachusetts people for opposing the "deal," also sets forth that the directors have voted to apply to the courts for an injunction against the measure.

It is expected that Governor Crane on receipt of the letter will refer it to the attorney general for such action as he may see fit to take. It is expected that the bill in equity will be filed tomorrow.

President Tuttle of the Boston and Maine has formally renewed his proposition to the directors of the Fitchburg to lease the road for 99 years, but no date has yet been set for a meeting of the Fitchburg directors to act upon the proposition. It is possible that the matter may not be taken up until the date of the next regular meeting, Feb. 13.

Four Lives Were Lost.

Fall River, Mass., Jan. 30.—Schooner Nausett, which was wrecked three miles northeast of Watch Hill station, had on board Joseph F. Marks, captain and owner, of Dighton, Mass.; two sons, William and Edward, aged, respectively, 12 and 10 years, and Thomas Meldin, who was the only assistant the captain had on board, and all of whom were lost. The Nausett was built in 1836 and was of 30 tons burden. She was considered unseaworthy. Captain Marks was the Portuguese who brought suit against Count Valle de Costa, the assistant consul at Boston for Portugal, for damages in the alleged alienation of his wife's affections. The suit has never been brought to trial, although Marks and his wife have been separated ever since the beginning of the suit, some two years ago.

Image to Reappear.

New York, Jan. 30.—The World says: Clarence P. Crane says the idol of Buddha, stolen from Henry B. Foulke, theosophist, at Onset Bay, Mass., in 1897, is to be restored through the Countess Constance Wachmeister, theosophist, next week, and that a shrine is to be built for it in Worcester, Mass., by the Wauchusett branch of theosophists of which A. H. B. Claflin is the head. Crane was once arrested for stealing the image, but was acquitted. Crane will not tell anything of the whereabouts of the image since it disappeared.

Elwell Held For Killing Adams.

Portland, Jan. 30.—The case of William W. Elwell of Buxton, charged with the killing of James T. Adams at Standish, on the evening of Jan. 17, came before Judge Hill yesterday. While all the testimony tended to show that the shooting was accidental, the county attorney argued that even if there was no malice there must have been gross carelessness. Judge Hill held the prisoner for the grand jury. Bail was fixed at $2000, and it was promptly furnished.

An Unlooked For Failure.

Boston, Jan. 30.—Joseph W. Smith, one of the proprietors of Hotel Bellevue on Beacon street, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy yesterday. The hotel has just been built and furnished, and the announcement created much surprise. The firm's liabilities are scheduled at $131,951.10, while the assets are but about $7000. Smith's partner is Joseph Kraft, but the assignment is understood to be on Smith's part.

Got Caught In a Belt.

Gonic, N. H., Jan. 30.—Jerry Richardson, aged 7, was so badly hurt by a belt in the plate room of the Gonic Manufacturing company yesterday that he died a few hours later. Apparently the boy went into the plate room to play. The engineer of the mill heard a thumping noise when the boy's body hit the ceiling and floor and shut off the power. The boy's legs and arms were badly crushed.

To Become Mrs. Buckley.

Milford, Mass., Jan. 30.—A marriage license was issued by the city clerk yesterday to Timothy F. Buckley and Eliza A. Lynch, both of this place. Some time ago Miss Lynch failed to appear at the time set for her marriage to Mr. Canty, and considerable interest was awakened in her change of heart and mind.

Steamer and Thirteen Men Lost.

Bilbao, Spain, Jan. 30.—The Spanish steamer Valle has foundered off the coast, 13 of the crew being drowned.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The edict that banished Roger Williams from Massachusetts in 1635 continues to bother the Bay State more than it does Rhode Island.—Providence Journal.

☞ If Mr. Bryan has a friend in the world, that friend ought to tell him that the east is no place for him at the present time. He will be treated courteously, but his peculiar views are not welcome in this section. Even from the Democratic standpoint, his arraignment of the Republican party is not just arraignment. Mr. Bryan can't talk prosperity out of existence, if he keeps at it day and night.—Fall River Herald.

☞ Every American citizen who has read anything on the subject of the Alaskan boundary dispute believes that the United States should hold every foot of ground to which she is entitled. There is not a dissenting voice to this proposition. And yet some years ago there were a lot of people in the country who opposed and fought the Alaska purchase and accused the government of idiocy, if not criminality, on account of it. The case has a strong parallel at the present time.—Berkshire Eagle.

☞ The Bible trust is the latest combine, and the largest dealers in the country are affected by it. Prices are increased from 15 to 25 per cent. The five great Bible concerns control the trust: The Oxford, the International; the Eyre & Spottiswood, the Cambridge and Thomas Nelson & Sons. The International is the only one strictly American. The subject is a solemn one to contemplate, and at the same time not without its ludicrous side especially when the good, old hymn is recalled—"I'm glad salvation's free."—Milford Journal.

☞ Representative Carey of Haverhill is striving to secure the passage of a bill through the legislature which provides for the repeal of the so-called Dubuque law. The talk against this measure has been attended with a lot of flap-doodle about the miseries of the poor and the Shylockian methods of creditors. The News has kept a pretty close watch on the operation of the law, and we question if there have been any hardships wreaked upon debtors who are really unfortunate. Some notorious deadbeats and bummers, according to all accounts, have been compelled by the law, to act the part of honor. They were commanding good wages, but refuse to pay honest bills, until the Dubuque law showed them that robbery in a sugar-coated form could not be committed with impunity, where the debtor had money, but defied the creditor. A law that works to this end is a salutary one, and it deserves to be kept on the statute books. And, on the whole, we imagine that a majority of the legislators will take precisely this view of the Dubuque bill, in placing upon it anew the seal of their endorsement.—Salem News.

PARKWAY TAKING.

Land at Atlantic and West Quincy Taken.

The prospects are that in the early spring a gang of men will be at work on the Quincy parkway, which is to run from the Neponset bridge to the Blue Hills Reservation. That the boulevard is an assured fact is evident, as a number of property owners along the route have received notices from the Metropolitan Park commission that their land has been taken.

The most of these letters bear a date near January first. All of the property owners whose land it is proposed to take have not, however, received notice as yet, from the fact that the price for the land has not been quite agreed to.

Enough, however, have received notices to leave no doubt but what the Park Commission mean business.

How Adams Fought.

It has been said of the late Charles Francis Adams that "his career in England from 1861 to 1868, must be cited among the foremost triumphs of American diplomacy." It is upon this part of his life that the great diplomat's son has thrown new and interesting light in his "Charles Francis Adams," which will appear shortly in the American Statesmen Series, published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. As a public school boy in England, in 1809, Charles Francis Adams had often, with his fists, to defend his country, then hated by the English as never before or since: and as minister to the court of St. James, 50 years later, when polite society and the governing classes were openly hostile to the United States, he had to use his tongue and pen with more power than he had ever used his fists. He had to handle and dispose of the difficult questions arising from the capture of the Confederate commissioners, Mason and Slidell, the negligence of Lord Palmerston's government in allowing the Alabama and other Confederate cruisers to sail from British ports to prey upon American commerce, and the ever manifest desire of Napoleon III, to persuade Great Britain to join him in an acknowledgment of the independence of the Confederacy.

It is of this period and these matters, and of his father's connection with them as custodian, not only of his country's interests but of her very safety, that the son has prepared a most interesting and valuable account. It is an "inside view" of affairs as they were at the British court and capital, and shows in new aspects the dogged determination and frankness of Adams, diplomatic tools which, later Bismarck also used. Telling the truth, issuing ultimatums and sticking to them were as effective in diplomacy then as they are now!—Boston Advertiser.

Prof. Coffey at Faxon Hall.

Prof. J. P. Coffey, who is widely known as "the king of healers" is in Quincy for a brief period. He gave his first talk and public demonstration of his wonderful powers Monday afternoon at Faxon hall. Prof. Coffey does not believe in dosing the system with nauseous mixtures but believes that want of exercise and stimulation of the blood are the primary foundations of all ailments, and that if the blood is stimulated as it should be, health follows. This he accomplishes by simple laying on of the hands, thus transmitting the magnetic power in his body to that of the patient.

An audience of nearly one hundred greeted the professor Monday and in that number were many who had baffled the skill of physicians. Prof. Coffey first gave an interesting talk on sickness, explaining the causes and how he cured by the laying on of hands. At the conclusion of his address he extended an invitation to all who desired treatment to come forward onto the platform and receive it free.

No second invitation was needed, and fifteen men and women took seats upon the platform. Their ailments were varied: One lady had been lame for three years, another had neuralgia in the neck an still another, had been deaf for twenty years; while among the men were those who were suffering from rheumatism, blindness, heart trouble and deafness. Each were given a few minutes treatment, the professor explaining each case fully. He did not claim to make a permanent cure in a minute but would stop their ailments from growing worse and set an improvement in motion. He further said that the patients would feel better and would notice a marked improvement on the morrow. In each of the cases treated the patients expressed themselves before leaving the platform as feeling better.

Prof. Coffey will be at Faxon hall every afternoon this week and at other times at his office, 24 Chestnut street.

Valberta Coffiey, the four year old son of Prof. Coffey, entertained and surprised the audience with his violin selections, playing "Blue Bells of Scotland" with variations, "The Palms," and other numbers, accompanied by his mother on the piano.

NEW CITY FINANCES

Mayor Cuts Departments, and Aldermen Cut Mayor.

Mayor Gould of the new city of Melrose recommended the following appropriations to the aldermen on Monday:

Fire department $11,500, health department $2,281, insurance $600, interest $26,000, Melrose hospital $1,000, Memorial day $200, military aid $300, public works $11,500, poor department $8,000, public library $2,800, and dog tax, highways $20,000, public parks $400, sidewalks $2,500, street lights $11,000, city hall expenses $1,000, engineering for sewerage $3,000, salary of city clerk $1,200, assistant city clerk $600, collector $1,000, collector's clerk $600, engineer of public works $2,250, assessors $300 each, clerk of assessors $900, overseers of the poor $300, inspector of buildings $150, cattle inspector $150, public schools $72,000, soldiers' relief $1,250.

The mayor stated that the total appropriations recommended amount to $191,336, while the amount asked for was $204,605. The appropriations last year as a town were $191,391. He recommended that no addition be built to city hall this year, and that it would be prudent for the aldermen not to exceed the appropriations recommended. If this amount is not exceeded the tax rate will be $16.90 on $1,000 against $17 last year.

The appropriations were referred to the finance committee.

The mayor also recommended that his salary be $1,000 while the aldermen passed an ordinance making it only $500.

An order providing for the borrowing of $100,000 for improving the highways was passed to a second reading.

Braintree's New Pastor.

Rev. George E. Whitehouse of Cheshire has accepted the call from the Baptist church of Braintree and is expected this week. The Globe says:

Mr. Whitehouse was born in Cumberland, Me., May 1, 1868. When he was two years old his parents moved to Cumberland Mills (now the city of Westbrook, Me.,) where he lived till he was 19 years of age. After finishing his studies in the public schools, he secured a position with a paper manufacturing company.

During his employment there he studied telegraphy and in 1887, he entered the employ of the Portland & Ogdensburg railroad (now part of the Maine Central system,) at Glen, White mountains, N. H. Later he was employed by the Boston Maine, Boston & Albany and New York, New Haven & Hartford roads. For a short time during his service as telegraph operator he was stationed at the main office of the Western Union in Boston.

In 1892, Rev. Mr. Whitehouse went to Rhode Island where he made preparations to enter the Newton theological institute. He was graduated from the latter institution in the class of '96. In November of that year he received and accepted a call to become pastor of the Baptist church at Cheshire, Mass., where he proved most acceptable to the people. During his pastorate he has greatly added to the importance of the church society and has accomplished many improvements in the church property. To show their appreciation of his work among them, his parishioners tendered him a happy surprise at Christmas and presented to him a valuable gold watch, $50 in gold and many other gifts.

Everyone Should Witness These Wonderful Scenes, for They Are the Talk of the Entire Country.

His Magic Touch Makes the Blind to See, the Deaf to Hear, the Crippled to Walk, and the Sick and Suffering to Rejoice and Call Down Blessings on His Head.

Prof. Coffey began his course of marvelous healing clinics and afternoon talks in Faxon Hall, Monday, at 2.30 o'clock, and will continue every afternoon this week. The hall was well filled with an appreciative audience. Quite a number of remarkable cures were made in a few minutes' time.

The professor is a man of fine personal appearance, with a refined and intelligent face and a remarkably pleasing personality.

He has the face of a kind and good man, open, frank and rather broad. It carries a pleasant expression, which always meets you. His forehead is high and his features are regular. He wears a close, thick beard and moustache. He is a quiet, gentle, unassuming man, whose every act seems to betray his keen desire to help the suffering without thought of himself. Silently, patiently, and without ostentation he has toiled, bringing health and happiness unto thousands, until his "works have found him out," and fame, as it always comes to genius, is his.

He is a typical American, king of his profession, descended from a powerful magnetic ancestry, who have been prominent in the Revolutionary war, the war of 1812, the Mexican war and the war of 1861. The professor has enjoyed a large and lucrative practice in the principal cities of the world.

It is true that this man does not claim or pretend to be able to cure everybody and every disease, but to the closest observer it seemed that every person treated was cured and that this man was bringing health and happiness to the homes of thousands of people.

One of the patient was a lady suffering from partial deafness, noises in the ears, and rheumatism. She was relieved of all pain in less than two minutes, and could hear a whisper easily.

The next was a lady suffering from a complication of diseases. The professor gave her general treatment and in just two minutes she was greatly relieved.

The next was a man partially blind, and rheumatic. The professor had him waltzing around the stage in a few minutes, and he said his sight was much relieved.

An old gentleman of 84 had his hearing restored in a few minutes, all the stiffness of age removed, and as he left the stage remarked that he was ten years younger.

A woman who claimed to have been deaf for twenty-five years, hearing no sound with one ear at all for that time, was helped so that she could hear a friend speak to her from the audience, and could hear quite distinctly with the ear that had been soundless so long.

A man paralyzed on one side so that it was with apparent difficulty that he could use the arm and legs, found after treatment that he could use the limbs readily.

The other cases treated were in the same line, all the patients apparently being greatly benefited.

Professor Coffey has offices at 24 Chestnut street, Quincy, where those who are able and willing to pay may go and be cured. Hours from 9.30 A. M. to 7.30 P. M., daily, except Sunday

The Woman's Auxiliary Entertain the Young Men.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. gave a men's social at the Association rooms Monday evening, the object being to afford an opportunity for the members of the auxiliary to become better acquainted with the members of the association. About seventy-five men were present and a thoroughly enjoyable evening was passed. During the evening a pleasing musical was given during, which the following numbers were rendered:

Duet, "Spanish Dances," Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Hall.
Song, "Creole's Love Song," Mr. Bonney.
Reading, Miss Lowe.
Song, "The Skipper," Mr. Bonney.
Reading, Miss Lowe.
Duet, "Midsummer's Nights Dreams," Mrs. Hunt and Mrs. Hall.

Later in the evening Galen Vinton Bowditch entered the hall and was prevailed upon to render two of his choice selections.

Tables were arranged in the large hall and progressive games were enjoyed. Refreshments were also served by the refreshment committee of the auxiliary.

Bridge at Mattapan.

Jonathan B. S. Bartlett, petitioned the Legislature on Monday to require the city of Boston or the Metropolitan park commission to connect Blue Hills parkway in Milton with Mattapan square in Boston, and rebuild the bridge over the Neponset river.

A petition of John Woodbury, secretary, authorizing the board of metropolitan park commissioners to grant locations to street railways in the metropolitan reservation was referred to the committees on metropolitan affairs and street railways sitting jointly.

FEWER MARRIAGES.

There Were Less Last Year Than the Year Before.

There were recorded in Quincy during the year 1899 just 211 marriages. This was 38 less than the year before, when there was a phenomenal gain, but at the same time a good gain over 1897. The total by months are summarized below for the years 1899, 1898, 1897, 1892 and 1888:

	1899.	1898.	1897.	1892.	1888.
Jan.	14	14	14	8	11
Feb.	14	8	8	9	6
March	7	6	6	12	2
April	16	15	15	10	10
May	8	11	11	13	9
June	29	31	31	32	14
July	12	20	20	8	13
Aug.	16	10	10	14	5
Sept.	26	23	23	17	21
Oct.	26	20	20	25	19
Nov.	30	21	21	24	23
Dec.	13	19	19	17	11
	211	249	198	189	144

It will be seen that two months of 1888 had more marriages than 1899, viz. May and July, but with over 200 marriages a year Quincy is safe and bound to grow.

None of the people married were colored. But 65 of the 422 were born in Quincy while 206 were foreign born. The number born in the United States was 216.

Dodge, Jr., for an act to establish a memorial park to Daniel Webster and to preserve the Webster homestead and burial place at Marshfield. The legislation provides that the state shall acquire the Webster homestead by purchase. It is now owned by Walton Hall formerly of Quincy.

Hotel Fire.

Passengers on the 9.50 car for Quincy Point, Monday night, discovered a fire in the hall of the Quincy House on Washington street. The car stopped and several passengers rushed in and aroused the family and put out the fire. The fire was caused by a lamp exploding and was fortunately discoved before it had made much headway.

REPLY TO THE SENATE.

Gage's Dealings With the National City Bank Are Further Explained.

British Vice Consul at New Orleans Is Under Fire.

Decision Not to Reconsider Vote by Which Samoan Treaty Was Ratified.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Secretary Gage yesterday transmitted to the senate his reply to the resolution asking further information as to his dealings with the National City bank of New York. He states that he believes he fully answered the resolution in a previous report on the same subject.

He fails to find in the treasury department any record of an answer to A. P. Hepburn, and he recalls a conversation with Mr. Hepburn relative to such a letter. He believes no agreement was made by the department with any persons with reference to the subject matter of said letter. The secretary calls attention to the necessity which arose for disposing of a large sum of money. He found that the National City bank could readily qualify to receive a large amount, by the deposit of public bonds, and the bank became the original recipient and distributor of the money, which amounted to $58,448,223, received from the settlement of Pacific railway debt. As fast as other banks qualified a share of the fund was transferred to them.

The secretary believes his action averted a disturbance which might have spread throughout the whole commercial and industrial world, and caused great disaster and distress to laboring classes by throwing them out of employment by closing factories and mills. He believed the action was best for the general interests of the people. He declared that there are no communications of any sort in reference to his letter to James Stillman, president of the National City bank. He denies that a conference ever took place between him, Mr. Stillman and J. Pierpont Morgan in Philadelphia.

He said the department had no means of preserving conversations, but that there had been none which were not fully set forth in his previous report to the senate. In conclusion he said: "The treasury department has at no time held any bond in trust for the Standard Oil company, nor for any interest other than for the depository bank."

Senator Mason (Rep., Ills.) arose soon after the senate convened, to a question of privilege, and sharply attacked the British government and the British vice consul at New Orleans, because of an interview in which the vice consul had assailed Mr. Mason for the position he had taken in behalf of the Transvaal republic in its war with Great Britain. Mr. Mason attacked not only the consul, but the policy of Great Britain in levying war upon an inferior nation.

Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.) thought the consul's purported remarks so serious that the matter ought to be investigated by the government, but, at the same time, he deprecated any attack upon Great Britain, with the people of which the American people ought not only to live in peace, but as loving and devoted friends.

Mr. Lodge (Rep., Mass.) sharply arraigned the British consul for his utterances against a United States senator, and believed it ought not lightly to be passed.

Mr. Tillmann (Dem., S. C.) delivered a forceful and quite characteristic speech on the Philippine question, in which he maintained that this government ought to extend to the Filipinos the right to govern themselves, the United States guarding them against the aggression of other nations.

The senate, in executive session, by a vote of 21 to 38, decided not to reconsider the vote by which the Samoan treaty was ratified. The injunction of secrecy was afterwards removed from the vote.

The senate committee on privileges and elections heard a number of witnesses on minor points involved in the charges against Senator Clark of Montana. The protestants withdrew all intimations against J. K. Toole, who withdrew from the Montana contest for United States senator under circumstances which the protestants at first were inclined to consider suspiciously favorable to Mr. Clark. The prosecution also declined during the day to put two witnesses on the stand who had been summoned at their instance, because the men had talked unsatisfactorily since their arrival in Washington. Both ex-Senator Edmunds and Mr. Campbell said it would be unfair to both sides to call the witnesses to testify.

The bill for the reorganization and improvement of the weather bureau, which includes provision for pensioning disabled and aged employes of the service, received a black eye in the house. The bill was bitterly fought by the opponents of civil pension rolls, on account of the life tenure provision it contained, and it was side-tracked on a test vote of 57 to 73. Although the speaker ruled that it remained unfinished business, when the house was again in committee of the whole, the opponents of the measure believe the action of yesterday kills it.

The early portion of the day was devoted to a lively scrimmage over the Sulzer resolution to investigate Secretary Gage, which the committee on rules recommended should be sent to the ways and means committee, as the latter committee has the response of the secretary in its possession. There was no opposition to the proposed action, but Mr. Richardson (Tenn.) and Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) used it as a text for renewing their attacks on the secretary. Mr. Gage was defended by Mr. Hopkins (Ills), Mr. Hill (Conn.) and Mr. Dalzell (Penn.).

Bryan Is Trying to Sow the Seeds of Democratic Doctrine.

Says Opponents Are Favored by the Newspapers.

The Money Question, Trusts and Imperialism Are Given Consideration.

Providence, Jan. 30.—William J. Bryan arrived here at 8:05 o'clock last evening and was driven at once to Infantry hall, where an immense crowd had gathered. He was accompanied by Mayor Green of Woonsocket and Mayor Fitzgerald of Pawtucket. At the hall he was introduced to the members of the state committee of Rhode Island and to a delegation from Boston.

Mr. Bryan spoke three times yesterday, at Pawtucket and Woonsocket in the afternoon and this city in the evening. As Rhode Island is just on the eve of a gubernatorial campaign, which will close with an election in April, Mr. Bryan's coming is timely for the Democratic party.

His chief address last night is considered the first of a series of rallies arranged by the Democratic state committee in its effort to carry the state. Moreover, as the legislature meets today, the gathering brought together prominent men of both parties from all over the state.

The speech of the evening, the third delivered by Mr. Bryan within six hours, like the two previously given, was listened to by an audience that taxed the capacity of the hall to the utmost. There was plenty of music and enthusiasm. Congressman Lentz, who is a member of Colonel Bryan's party, also made a speech at the meeting here.

Congressman Lentz devoted considerable attention to the position of the administration toward the Philippines, assailing it in vigorous terms.

The audience rose en masse as Mr. Bryan was ushered upon the platform and introduced. Mr. Bryan said that the trouble with our people in the east is that they are not as well supplied with the newspapers which deal rightly with the people as our opponents are, and our opponents are all the time talking as if there was but one side to this question, and that there was complete acquiescence on the part of the people to the Republican policy. Men differ as to the relative importance of the questions now before the people. Lincoln warned his countrymen against the approach of a monarchical system which frightened him. He said it was an attempt to put capital upon an equal footing with labor in the construction of government. Lincoln represented the Republicans of his day; Hanna that of today. And the gulf between Lincolnism and Hannaism is as wide as the gulf that separated Lazarus in Abraham's bosom from lives in torment.

"Do you call the last election a victory for the gold standard? I deny that it was. The Republican party did not vote for the gold standard, because in its platform it said that it would do what it could to restore bimetallism by international agreement. It made no promise. Secretary Gage's communication to the senate, giving letters from the national banks and the financial bill now before congress show clearly the predominant idea of the Republican administration. The scheme is favoritism."

In regard to trusts, Mr. Bryan said: "Some Republican papers declare that the trust is a good thing. Mr. Hanna has declared that there are no trusts; that there are no bad trusts, and that if they are bad we can take care of them. The people had not begun to feel in 1896 the effects of the trusts, but I think they do now. If conditions continue the time is not far distant when one corporation will own all the cotton mills, the iron mills and the woolen mills. This consolidation is going on in every branch of business and it has recently been suggested that we ought to have central banks with branches. The Republican party dare not push this just at present, because the people could not stand it. The tendency of the Republican party is towards the encouragement of these great aggregations of wealth."

Mr. Bryan then stated what in his mind is the remedy for the continued growth of trusts—the limiting of trust licenses by the federal government and the confinement of their operations to one particular state, and also the absolute elimination of water.

Turning his attention to imperialism, Mr. Bryan stated that President McKinley said that he had no doubt that congress would supply to the Philippines a government that would bring them blessings.

Mr. Bryan reviewed at some length the arguments he had previously made on this subject, and in speaking of his claim that the white people would not live and work in a tropical climate, said: "If you think the English like to live in India let me remind you that even now, when England needs more soldiers in South Africa (and God grant that she may need more than she can ever send) she cannot send over to India to get soldiers. Do you think England went to India to educate them? Even now, after all her years of occupation, less than 5 percent of the whole population can read and write, and there is not a native paper in India that supports the English government.

"If we prosecute a war of conquest we will not teach the Filipino to write lest they should read the Declaration of Independence for themselves. As we settle the Philippine question this shall we determine, whether this nation shall stand before the world as an exponent of this broad principle of the doctrine of life, the scruples and blessings of self-government.

"I want to warn you that if we enter a carcer of conquest and hold the doctrine that this is a divine right, the day is past when this nation will ever lift its voice in behalf of liberty here or anywhere else in the world."

THE PUGILISTIC ARENA.

McPartland Is Knocked Out by Mathews McGovern Puts Ward to Sleep.

New York, Jan. 30.—A right-hand lead, landing fairly on the jaw, knocked Kid McPartland down and out in the first round of what was to have been a 20-round bout at catch weights last night at Brooklyn. Matty Matthews, the kid's adversary, landed the blow. There was nothing to it up to the moment that Matty sent his right to the mark. Both men were in splendid condition and weighed about 140 pounds each.

McPartland, a moment before he entered the ring, said that he would surely win. The men started in at a speed which looked too fast to last. McPartland bored in and rushed his man, using both hands. His landing with the right on Matthews' wind was a surprise to everybody, as McPartland has always been classed as a left-handed fighter. His new tactics, however, failed to avail him to any extent, as he ran into straight right-hand smashes on the jaw which knocked him down, his head hitting the floor of the ring with a resounding smash. McPartland was out and done for without any doubt, although Referee White went through the formality of counting him out. Time of round, 1 minute 33 seconds.

Baltimore, Jan. 30.—Terry McGovern knocked out Jack Ward of Newark last night in 2 minutes and 5 seconds. The men were booked to go 20 rounds. They went at it hammer and tongs from the start. Ward landed a right and left on the jaw, without a counter. In a clinch Mac sent his right to the kidneys, and a moment later a left on the stomach, and a right on the tip of the jaw put Ward to sleep.

Youngstown, O., Jan. 30.—Frank Bryan of Brooklyn was awarded the decision on a foul in the first round of a bout with Jack Farrell of Wilmington, Del., here last night. The decision was unsatisfactory to the crowd and the men finally agreed to resume. Farrell beat his man to the floor repeatedly, and in the third round Bryant's seconds threw up the sponge.

Denver, Jan. 30.—"Kid" Parker of Denver knocked out "Kid" Boyle of Chicago last night in the fifth round of what was to have been a 10-round go.

Buffalo, Jan. 30.—Eddie Connelly of St. John and Jack Daly of Wilmington, Del., fought 20 rounds to a draw here last night. The bout was rather time.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 30.—The annual telephone bill, drafted by E. B. Collender, came into the house yesterday through a petition presented by Mr. Engstrom. Its novelty lies in the call for a single commissioner and the inclusion of telegraph companies in the provisions of the act. Gas orders and bills flow in steadily, the latest demanding service for the city of Boston at 50 cents a thousand or less.

The "anti-bucket-shop" bill of the big Boston brokers made its appearance by petition in the house.

Mr. Donahue begged the house to reconsider rejection of his order authorizing the committee on taxation to investigate the operation of the law requiring the collection of poll taxes. Mr. Selfridge opposed reconsideration and entered upon a categorical statement of the question. Reconsideration prevailed, 96 to 86, and the order was adopted.

In the senate, Mr. Chamberlain offered a bill to provide that the authority of school superintendents to grant permits to children under the age of 16 to work in factories and mercantile establishments be limited to work done during school hours, thus permitting such work before and after school, on Saturdays and in vacations.

The senate receded from former action, and referred the Marine park tower petition to the commitee on mercantile affairs in concurrence with the house. It had previously sent it to metropolitan affairs in non-concurrence.

Mr. Ross offered the petition of the city of Boston that it may borrow $1,000,000 for schoolhouses, to be expended in 1900, and $500,000 annually thereafter for four years, to be devoted to the same purpose.

Mr. Washburn presented the petition that the state acquire the homestead and burial lot of Daniel Webster at Marshfield, by purchase or otherwise, and make a memorial park of them.

Violated an Injunction.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Herman Clay, one of the United Metal Workers engaged in the recent strike at Winslow Bros.' factory, was yesterday sentenced to 60 days in jail for violation of an injunction issued by Judge Holden, restraining the strikers from interfering with the non-union workers. The charge against Clay was made in connection with the labor troubles which resulted in the killing of Edward A. O'Connor, a union workman, on Jan. 23.

Weather Conditions and Forecast.

The cold wave which reached the Atlantic and gulf coasts Sunday night and Monday was the most extensive and, in the southern states, the most severe cold wave of the present season. A storm of marked strength has advanced from a position off Hatteras north-northeastward to the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, attended by high northeasterly, shifting to northwesterly, winds on the middle Atlantic and New England coast. The weather will moderate slightly in the New England states. Along the New England coast the wind will diminish in force from the west and shift to south.

Postponement In Moore Case.

Santiago, Jan. 30.—The supreme court, which began the hearing on appeal from the decision of the court of first instance in the case of Frederick T. Moore, accused of embezzling $53,000 from the National Bank of Commerce of Boston, has decided to postpone further consideration of the affair until March. Popular opinion thus far has been strongly opposed to a confirmation of the decision of the court of first instance to turn Moore over to the Americans.

New York, Jan. 30.—The Methodist preachers' meeting yesterday adopted a resolution "That the Methodist ministers of New York extend the most hearty Godspeed to Rev. Charles M. Sheldon's edition of the Topeka Capital and devoutly hope that it may offer such an exalted object lesson in Christian journalism that the secular press of the country as a result may be raised to a higher plane of ethical purpose."

Paris, Jan. 30.—The strike of carpenters engaged on the exposition buildings came to an end yesterday in consequence of a decision by an arbitration committee in favor of the strikers. Didn't Accomplish Their Purpose.

Attleboro, Mass., Jan. 29.—Two men attempted to rob Henry Hayward, clerk of the Park hotel, of $500 late Saturday night, but did not succeed. One robber concealed himself in the reading room, where the light had been extinguished, and the other, from the exterior, rang a call from the side entrance. Hayward answered the bell, but there was no one at the door. As he turned back he was attacked and felled with a sandbag, which caused a severe contusion of his skull. He was not knocked out, however, and began to shout, at which the robbers fled.

Sweet butter can't be made in a sour churn. The stomach is a churn. A foul stomach fouls the food put into it. When the food is fouled the blood made from it is fouled also. Foul blood means disease. Cleanse the churn and you have sweet butter. Cleanse the stomach and you have pure blood. The far reaching action of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is due to its effect on the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases that begin in the stomach are cured through the stomach.

"Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has proved a great blessing to me," writes Mrs. Ellen E. Bacon, of Shutesbury, Franklin Co., Mass. "Prior to September, 1897, I had doctored for my stomach trouble for several years, going through a course of treatment without any real benefit. In September, 1896, I had very sick spells and grew worse; could eat but little. I commenced to take Dr. Pierce's medicine and in a short time I could eat and work. I have gained twenty pounds in two months."

Buying a Piano by Renting It.

There are advantages in our Rental Purchase Plan that are worth serious consideration. Briefly stated, we rent pianos and by agreement apply all rent toward purchase. If you don't want to pay all cash, our Rental Purchase Plan will solve the problem. A little cash down, and monthly or quarterly payments running through two or three years, and you own the instrument. If you will write us, we will send catalogue, prices and full description of our Rental Purchase Plan.

KENTUCKY'S CONTEST

Culminates In Attempted Assassination of Mr. Goebel.

Shot Down on the Capitol Grounds at Frankfort.

Rifle Ball Fired From the Window of a Building Near By.

Location of Perpetrator of the Deed Concealed by Using Smokless Powder Cartridges.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31.—State Senator Goebel was shot and badly wounded at 11:10 yesterday morning. The wildest excitement was instantly created in the town, and within 10 minutes after Mr. Goebel had been shot the streets were filled with men carrying rifles and revolvers.

Harland Whittaker, a farmer from Butler county, the home county of Governor Taylor, is now in jail at Louisville, charged with the crime. There is no direct evidence against Whittaker, and he was placed under arrest more because he was caught around the capitol building when the shots were fired than for any other apparent reason. He denies in the most positive manner that he had any connection with the shooting, or knew anything about it. He was running toward the scene of the shooting when he was arrested.

Mr. Goebel was on his way to the senate chamber in company with Colonel Chinn and Warden Lillard of the Frankfort penitentiary. Mr. Lillard was a few feet in advance of Goebel and Chinn, who were walking side by side, Goebel being on the right and Chinn upon the left.

From the outer edge of the capitol grounds to the steps of the capitol building, the distance is about 300 feet. Two-thirds of this had been passed, and the men were walking slowly, when suddenly a shot rang out from a large three-story building which stands feet east of the capitol building. This building is used for offices by nearly all the leading officials of the state, Governor Taylor and the secretary of state having rooms on the first floor. As the shot was heard, Goebel gave a quick involuntary exclamation of pain, and made an effort to draw his own revolver. His strength was unequal to the task, however, and he sank upon the pavement. With great rapidity several more shots were fired, the bullets striking the brick sidewalk close to where Goebel lay. None of them touched him, however.

A crowd of men was quickly around Goebel. He was losing much blood and was carried to the office of Dr. Hume. He was laid on a sofa, while Dr. Hume made a hasty examination, pronouncing the wound to be of a nature that must cause death in a short time. Goebel, who showed great fortitude and courage throughout, smiled weakly as he heard the verdict, and feebly rolled his head from side to side in token of dissent from the opinion expressed by the physician.

The bullet which struck Mr. Goebel was fired from a window in the center of the third-story of the office building just east of the capitol. That window was raised about eight iches from the sill to permit an unobstructed passage for the bullet when Mr. Goebel should come within range. The window was left open, no effort having been made to close it. Not another window in the building was opened, nor were there any places where bullets had been fired through them.

That the shooting was the result of a carefully laid plan is without question. The assassin had evidently taken his stand at the open window, and waited until his victim was in full sight before firing.

Ever since the influx of mountaineers last week, a large number of them have been sleeping in the upper part of the state house. It is not known, however, that any of the men did the work, or that they had any knowledge of the premeditated crime. There has not, so far, been discovered the slightest direct evidence pointing to any man.

The man who fired the shots concealed his location by using smokeless powder cartridges. A score of persons were where they had a full view of the side of the building from which the firing was done, and all declare that not a sign of powder smoke was visible.

A physician from Senator Goebel's bedside at 3:10 a. m. says there has been no change in his condition for two hours, but that he is in a precarious condition. Other information is that should his wound prove fatal it will be this morning.

Whittaker was arrested as he came down the steps on the east side of the state office building, directly below the window from which the shots had been fired. In an instant he was surrounded by a group of men, many of them with drawn revolvers. He made no attempt to escape and submitted quietly to a search, which was quickly made, the proceeds being three revolvers and one big knife. An examination of the revolvers showed that none of the cartridges had been used and there was no powder smut on any part of his weapons, proving conclusively that he could not have used any of his three revolvers. In addition to this the shots were from a rifle and from a smaller weapon.

Whittaker was led away and placed in jail while a guard was placed at the outer entrance to keep out all people who had not direct connection with the institution.

While William Goebel lay at the point of death the contesting boards, which for two weeks had been listening to the evidence in his contest for the governor's chair, declared him entitled to the seat.

The boards having in charge the contests between Goebel and Taylor for governor and Beckham and Marshall for lieutenant governor, met last night to consider the evidence submitted to them and prepare their report to the legislature. By a strict party vote of 10 to 1 William Goebel was declared to have been legally elected governor of Kentucky.

The Beckham-Marshall contest was then voted upon and a strict party vote of 9 to 2 settled this matter. Each one of the members of both committees announced that he had made up his mind as to the merits of the case and voted promptly as his name was called.

Deed of a Madman.

New York, Jan. 31.—Geenie Lucani, an Italian laborer, while asleep in his apartments, was hacked to death yesterday by Frank Merini. The two Italians had lived together for three years. Lucani's skull was crushed by many blows with an axe, the arms were broken, the wrists and chest gashed and cut, in fact nearly the whole of the upper part of the body of Lucani was mutilated and chopped. Merini, after killing Lucani, destroyed the furniture in the room with the blood-besmeared axe, and, while so engaged, was taken by the police. Asked why he killed Lucani, he merely said: "I killed him because he was asleep. That's all." The man is thought to be mad.

Dr. Hale's Resignation Accepted.

Boston, Jan. 31.—Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale's resignation as pastor of the South Congregational church was formally accepted at a meeting of the church society last night and Rev. Samuel A. Eliot was called to succeed him. Dr. Eliot is a son of President

REV. EDWARD EVERETT HALE.

Eliot of Harvard university, a graduate of Harvard and prominent in Unitarian affairs. Dr. Hale was made pastor emeritus of the church, and resolutions voicing the cordial relations existing between the retiring pastor and the society were adopted.

Aldermen Elect a Chairman.

Boston, Jan. 31.—The deadlock which has existed in the board of aldermen since the new year came in over the chairmanship of the board was broken by the election of Michael J. O'Brien to that office, the vote standing 7 for O'Brien and 6 for James H. Doyle. The result was a decided surprise. The Republicans have been desirous of electing some man other than Doyle because he represented the Democratic "board of strategy." The board again elected Frank J. O'Toole city clerk in non-concurrence with the common council. Edward J. Leary, the present incumbent, was elected city messenger, and the nomination of Bertrand T. Wheeler, as superintendent of streets, was unanimously confirmed.

BRYAN AT THE HUB.

Eastern Silver Democrats Are Classed Among Heroes.

Ex-Governor Altgeld and Congressman Lentz Also Make Addresses.

Boston, Jan. 31.—William J. Bryan has visited Boston four times in his public career. The first time was to deliver a lecture, the second time was as the candidate of the Democratic party, his third visit was at a Jefferson banquet two years ago. Each of these previous occasions the Nebraskan was accorded rousing receptions, great audiences greeted him, but it remained for yesterday, his fourth visit, to usher him in under entirely different auspices. On previous occasions there were thousands who went to hear him who did not support his position, but this time the demonstrations of approval were so market that Mr. Bryan remarked that there were remarkable gains all along the line. It is estimated that there were 10,000 persons in Mechanics' hall last night.

The doors of Mechanics' hall were thrown open at 7 o'clock and every seat was taken long before 8, the time the meeting was called to order. The hall had been elegantly decorated with bunting, national colors and state shields. At the head of the immense stage stood a large canvas painting of Mr. Bryan labelled "The people's choice." Prominent Democrats from several of the New England states occupied seats in the rear of the chairman.

The meeting was called to order by Secretary McNary of the state committee, who introduced the chairman of the evening, A. C. Drinkwater of Braintree. After making a few remarks, Mr. Drinkwater announced as the first speaker George F. Williams. Mr. Williams was received with three cheers and a tiger. During his address he expressed sympathy with the Boers, a sentiment that was vociferously applauded.

The next speaker, ex-Governor Altgeld, was accorded a hearty reception by the great audience.

Ex-Governor Altgeld mentioned George Fred Williams as a possible secretary of state, which made the audience cheer the Dedham statesman.

The reference was made in regard to the incident of seizing American vessels in Delagoa Bay, and said it would not happen if the government had a man like Williams in the place of Hay.

Mr. Altgeld declared that the men and the women who earn their bread by the sweat of their brow find themselves confronted with economic and industrial conditions under which they will have their bread taken from them by fingers that never earned an honest dollar. It will require earnest men to deal with those problems.

To-day he said, we find that all of the great [illegible] their bed in the Republican camp. They are managed by shrewd men, and we are warranted in assuming that they have made their bed there because they feel that over there they are among their friends.

Mr. Altgeld severely lashed the administration on the Philippine question, saying that the president had blood on his hands. His reference to affairs in South Africa brought forth wild cheers for Kruger. He closed by declaring that Secretary Hay was a purchasing agent for England.

The third speaker, Congressman Lentz of Ohio, was warmly received. He said that Abraham Lincoln was not hooted by the Republican party today, and that the Bryan Democrats were celebrating the anniversary of Lincoln's birth. Mr. Lentz made a bitter attack on the Philippine policy of the president, declaring that "it seems we have got to learn the lesson of Bunker Hill over again and possibly at the expense of gunpowder."

While Mr. Lentz was speaking Mr. Bryan entered the hall. He was greeted by the vast audience rising to its feet and cheering for several minutes. At the conclusion of Mr. Lentz's address, Chairman Drinkwater introduced Mr. Bryan, who was unable to make himself heard for some time.

The first part of his remarks was addressed to Republicans, who were informed that the party had changed its principles since the days of Lincoln. Later he took up the subject of imperialism, the gold standard and trusts, assailing each along lines already indicated in his speeches. He charged the Republican party with making good times for the speculators without paying proper attention to the production of wealth.

"They say that we are in it now and cannot get out," said Mr. Bryan. "I deny that statement. We are in it but we can get out if we want to. Let us treat the Filipinos exactly as we are treating the Cubans. Then we will be out. If the senate had passed the Baker resolution the matter would have been settled right then. I say, do now what we ought to have done in the beginning. Let us announce to the world—let us say the the Filipinos, we have bought out the Spanish title; stand up, be free; then say to the other nations, hands off. Let them live and work out their salvation."

Mr. Bryan spoke for nearly two hours, holding the audience until the last. He gave equal attention to trusts and imperialism, expressing his views on silver in connection with the former. He paid a glowing tribute to the bravery

Skating Ruined.

Jackson's Field, Atlantic, which afforded so many children opportunity to skate, was a sorry sight Tuesday morning. This weather could not have been better, and the school children took their skates to school so that they might have longer time to exercise in their favorite pastime, but alas! some ruthless hand had removed the dam, and the field afforded only a wee bit of ice, miserably uneven. The disappointment on all sides is keen, and it is hoped that he who did the deed will think better of his action and prepare the field speedily for the next cold snap.

SCHOOL CALENDAR.

School Committee Adopt One for Year 1900.

Opposition to Seventeenth of June as Holiday.

Sub-committees Appointed—Financial Report, Etc.

The regular meeting of the School Committee was held Tuesday evening, every member of the board being present.

Miss Haley of the Quincy school was granted a two weeks' leave of absence.

The High School Alumni was granted the use of High school hall for Friday evening, March 9.

The financial statement to Jan. 30, was as follows:

Salaries,	$7,695.00
Fuel,
Janitors,	530.15
Transportation,	88.35
Books, supplies and sundries,	225.36
Evening schools,	218.90
	$8,757.76

HOLIDAYS.

Mr. Merrick moved that June 17, not be included among the holidays.

In support of this he said that the schools were being made a sort of football as for holidays. They were used by the children for having a good time playing in the mud. In Charlestown it was a holiday but in Quincy the children would spend their time on the streets. We are not called upon to do it, and it was not best for the children. It was also near the end of the term and the time could be ill afforded.

Dr. Hallowell thought Mr. Merrick's deduction a fair one, but as true of the 19th of April as the 17th of June.

The same argument would be equally as good for one as the other.

The motion was lost and it was voted that the 17th of June be one of the holidays. Mr. Merrick voting in the negative.

VACATIONS.

Dr. Record opposed the two weeks' vacation in the spring. He thought it would be better to have one week then and an additional week in the summer. He so moved.

Miss Adams said many teachers who live out of town would hardly like to pay their expenses for one week. She could personally favor the motion but for that.

Dr. Hallowell thought an intermission of two weeks would be more useful in the spring than an additional week in the summer.

Dr. Record's motion was lost.

CALENDAR FOR YEAR.

The following calendar was then adopted:

First term: Tuesday, January 2, to Friday, March 30.

Second term: Monday, April 16, to Wednesday, June 27.

Third term: Tuesday, September 4, to Friday, December 21.

In the afternoon, after the business meeting, Dr. D. A. Sargent of Harvard will give an address on "The Place of Physical Training in the School and College Curriculum."

Principal W. A. Baldwin of Hyannis Normal School will speak on "Physical Training in Massachusetts Normal Schools." These speeches will be followed by discussions under the leadership of Supt. H. W. Lull of Quincy.

Presentation to City Band.

Tuesday evening the members of the City band and their associates of the literary club were surprised and presented with two and a half dozen chairs, an elegant oil heater and $9 in money by members, wives and lady friends. D. T Drummond made the presentation in a neat and complimentary speech and J. Smith and William Dickie, president, of the Band and Literary society briefly and suitably replied. After which a sumptuous collation was served, supplied by the ladies. A few games of whist were then engaged in, Mrs. Robertson and Mr. J. Robbie carrying off the two prizes. The balance of the evening was spent in dancing to the music of the band. The affair was a genuine and pleasant surprise to the bandsmen who have been making strenuous efforts of late to furnish and decorate their handsome and commodious quarters on School street. The evening was spent most enjoyably by all present.

WHAT DO THE CHILDREN DRINK?

Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called GRAIN-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grades of coffee but costs about 1-4 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

It is true that this man does not claim nor pretend to be able to cure everybody and every disease, but to the closest observer it seems that every person treated was cured and that this man was bringing health and happiness to the homes of thousands of people.

One of the patient was a lady suffering from partial deafness, noises in the ears, and rheumatism. She was relieved of all pain in less than two minutes, and could hear a whisper easily.

The next was a lady suffering from a complication of diseases. The professor gave her general treatment and in just two minutes she was greatly relieved.

The next was a man partially blind, and rheumatic. The professor had him waltzing around the stage in a few minutes, and he said his sight was much relieved.

An old gentleman of 84 had his hearing restored in a few minutes, all the stiffness of age removed, and as he left the stage remarked that he was ten years younger.

A woman who claimed to have been deaf for twenty-five years, hearing no sound with one ear at all for that time, was helped so that she could hear a friend speak to her from the audience, and could hear quite distinctly with the ear that had been soundless so long.

A man paralyzed on one side so that it was with apparent difficulty that he could use the arm and legs, found after treatment that he could use the limbs readily.

The other cases treated were in the same line, all the patients apparently being greatly benefited.

Professor Coffey has offices at 24 Chestnut street, Quincy, where those who are able and willing to pay may go and be cured. Hours from 9.30 A. M. to 7.30 P. M., daily, except Sunday.

A CONFERENCE.

Granite Cutters of New England Ready.

And the Manufacturers Are Said to be Agreeable.

The Former Said to Have Selected a Committee.

There is a little gleam of light looking toward an early settlement of the difficulty in the granite industry, which it is hoped will bring forth good results. One of the first things necessary to reach an agreement or settlement is to get the two bodies together. Up to the present time no joint meetings of manufacturers and cutters have been held, for the reason that the former's case was in the hands of the New England Association, and the cutters claimed that the eight-hour, $3-a-day cause was incorporated in their constitution so that they could do nothing. Everybody knows, however, that if the two bodies are bound to reach an agreement that agreement will be reached, constitution or no constitution.

The cutters of New England have recently taken the initiative in the matter, and meetings of all the branches have been held, and action taken, on the appointing of a committee to meet a like committee from the New England Manufacturers' Association for discussion of the question that is uppermost in the minds of all cutters and manufacturers.

Just how many this committee consists of is not known, but the Quincy cutters have one representative who is said to be ex-Councilman John Russell.

As far as can be learned, no date for the conference has been fixed, but it is said that the New England Association will readily agree to a conference.

This is the first step toward an adjustment of the difficulty, and the result of the conference will depend largely upon what power has been delegated by the cutters to their committee. If they are empowered to settle then there is not much question but what matters will be adjusted inside of twenty-four hours after the meeting. If, however, the committees have no power to settle, but are to simply ask for a proposition which must be first submitted to the branches and then to the National Association, it will be impossible to reach an agreement before the first of March

Burns Anniversary.

The 141st anniversary of the Scottish Bard, Robert Burns, as celebrated by the Clan McGregor Bicycle Club, at its headquarter in Doble's hall on Tuesday evening. The affair was a decided success. The programme was elaborate, consisting first of a whist party. The prizes were won by Mrs. W. Turner and Mrs. George Robertson for ladies; gentlemen, Mr. John Campbell and William Milne. Adjournment was then made to the dining hall, where a sumptuous repast in the shape of a turkey supper was prepared. Mr. Peter Kerr of Boston delivered an address on Burns, which was received with great applause.

Several of the poet's favorite songs were rendered in good style, after which the gathering assembled in the hall where dancing was continued until three o'clock. The management was by Chief Souden and the following were the committee of arrangement: George Craig, John Kennedy, Thomas Raleigh, James McLeod, Alexander Michael, George Robertson and William McIntosh.

TODAY'S COURT.

JEWEL PRESENTED.

Installation of Officers of Carrie E. Ruggles Rebekah Lodge.

Odd Fellows hall, Wollaston, was the scene of a very pleasant occasion Monday evening, it being the installation of the officers of Carrie E. Ruggles Rebekah lodge, I. O. O. F., of Wollaston.

George L. Gill, Rebekah lodge of Quincy and Steadfast lodge of Weymouth were there as invited guests, and many members from Amana, Azar and Reliance lodges, of Braintree, Milton and Neponset, helped swell the numbers to over one hundred and fifty.

The installation ceremony was performed by S. D. G. M. Miss Grace Mitchell and suite, who did it in a very creditable manner. At this time a very pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a past grand's jewel to Past Noble Grand Bertha McLeod. This was done by Brother Franklin Jacobs in behalf of the lodge, in a few well chosen remarks. He told how Sister McLeod had gained the esteem and respect of the lodge by her fairness and good judgment, and added that whenever she looked at the jewel to remember that there was ever strong and willing hearts and hands to help and cheer her in times of need. Sister McLeod responded in a very fitting manner, and said that she had tried to do her duty, and that she would always treasure the jewel as a remembrance of those who stood by her in storm and calm. The jewel was an elegant piece of jewelry suitably engraved.

The lodge was then closed and all repaired to the banquet hall, where a turkey supper was served, and at a late hour the visitors departed, wishing the lodge a successful term.

The officers installed were as follows.

A NEW PRESIDENT.

Quincy Grocers Association Elect a Councilman.

The annual meeting of the Quincy Grocers' Association was held Tuesday and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President, George H. Wilson; Vice President, S. F. Newcomb; Treasurer, John W. Nash; and Secretary, Osborne Rogers.

It was voted to hold the annual banquet Wednesday evening, Feb. 14.

George H. Wilson, the new president, is almost too well known to need any introduction to the Quincy public, as he has been identified with the grocery and provision trade all his life. First with his father until the latter's demise and since that time for himself. He is not only well known to the grocery and provision trade in general throughout New England, with whom he is popular, but he is also well known in fraternal circles and especially among the members of the United States Volunteers who entered service for the war with Spain, with whom he is extremely popular for the active and energetic part which he took in seeing to it that the boys while in camp were kept well supplied with those luxuries which they had been accustomed to when at home but which the government does not furnish.

He has always taken an active interest in the affairs of the Quincy Grocers' Association, and was one of the early movers for that organization of that association, which has been productive of so much good in protecting them from the dead beats of the country. Aside from this Mr. Wilson was last December elected a member of the Quincy City Council from Ward One. While it is yet early to see his worth as a legislator those who know him predict that he will make a valuable addition to that body and that his business experience will be of great value to the city.

Granite Railway Officers.

The Granite Railway Company has elected these officers: President, John A. Lamson; Vice president, Harold J. Coolidge; treasurer, J. Albert Simpson; directors, John A. Lamson, Harold J. Coolidge, Robert B. Williams, Otis H. Luke, William S. Patten, T. Francis Meany, George Louis. William B. Sewall retires from the presidency and directory.

RACING A FARCE.

When a Yacht Can Win Championship Without a Rival.

At a recent meeting of the Yacht Racing Association of Masachusetts this rule was adopted: "A yacht shall be awarded a first, second or third place and an association pennant, whether she has defeated a competitor or not" This rule becomes operative this coming season.

This is one of the strongest arguments advanced as to why the Quincy Yacht club should withdraw from the Association.

In plain English it means that it is possible for a yacht without defeating a single competitor to win the Association championship of her class; and fly the cock-of-the-walk pennant; that a "walkover," a thing which every yachting organization bars out, entitles a yacht to the maximum per centage towards the championship,—100 per cent.; that any old tub which begins early in the season and assiduously follows the circuit many pull out a championship; and it is the first time that the sailing of one boat over a course has been recognized as constituting a yacht race Such a rule makes yacht racing a farce.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WASHING WOOLEN BLANKETS

The theory now is, that blankets must be washed instead of dry-cleaned to be healthy. To have your blankets as soft as new, make a soapy suds in half a tub of warm water by using one-half cup of and soak a blanket in it for half an hour; then simply move it around and rub the soiled spots; rinse in warm water of the same temperature as the one in which you wash it, hang up in a warm place or sunshiny outdoor air and see what a soft, white blanket you will have.

PICKLES vs. DRUGS.

Pickles are all right in their place but a man may understand selling pickles thoroughly and still make a very poor showing in his knowledge of drugs and medicines. I do not find time to extend my business outside of the limits of the legitimate drug business. I would make a very poor artist in the sale of pickles, but with my 20 years experience as a druggist, 11 of which I have spent in Quincy, I point with pardonable pride to the fact that I have today the largest, best appointed and most complete drug store in this city. It has been my constant endeavor to please every customer entering my store, and my success in my chosen profession can not but convince me that my efforts are appreciated by the people of Quincy.

HOME GUARD NEEDED?

Fears That Neutral Powers May Take Advantage.

Scarcity of Information as to Movements In South Africa.

Parliament Does Nothing Toward Lightening the Oppressive Gloom.

London, Jan. 31.—It is now known that the cabinet devoted much of its discussion on Saturday to the mobilization of the fleet. Nothing was settled except that, until further security to the home coasts was obtained by naval preparations, the eighth division shall not be sent to South Africa.

On Monday the admiralty issued orders that the channel squadron, instead of leaving Portland this week for Gibraltar, as previously directed, shall assemble on Feb. 5 off Eddystone and proceed to Bantry for a fortnight's exercises off the Irish coast, thus keeping in home waters for a time. This decision to delay the eighth division at a time when reinforcements are so urgently required may only mean that transports are not yet available, and that the division will embark when the shipping is ready.

The mobilization of reserve warships, if such a course shall be determined upon, would be of the utmost importance. There is nothing in the intelligence possessed by the public to cause the cabinet's prolonged discussion of this matter; and the inference is that the fleet may be mobilized as a general warning to other countries to keep their hands off the Transvaal question, or the ministry may have definite knowledge that the neutral powers purpose to take some advantages elsewhere, while England is busy in South Africa.

One thing is certain. Ten thousand men, all ready to go to South Africa, are detained for reasons of which the public has no knowledge. There is talk of 47 militia battalions being embodied. These are all of the militia not previously warned. A sharp lookout is being kept on volunteers for the various South African regiments.

The Daily Chronicle says: Three suspicious characters were rejected by headquarters in one regiment Monday. Two were unmistakably of Boer origin. The third, whose English is faulty, had been a German officer.

Such scraps of information as can be gathered regarding the movements of the armies in the field seem to indicate that the relief of Ladysmith has been abandoned for the present, and that a concentration of the British for an invasion of the Free State is in progress. In addition to General Kelly-Kenny's movement, General Brabant [illegible] repairs [illegible] Cazing than an additional [illegible] of the Cape colonials, has arrived at Sterkstroom.

Spencer Wilkinson, reviewing the military situation in The Morning Post, says: There is again a remarkable scarcity of information about what is taking place in the theater of war. There must be more than 100 war correspondents at the front; but they are kept silent.

The column under General Kelly-Kenny has occupied Thebus, about 50 miles by railway from Colesburg, where General French is operating, and about 45 miles from Stormberg Junction, where the Boers opposed to General Gatacre are believed to be. The strength of General Kenny's column is not told, but as that officer commands the Sixth division, the whole of which has reached Cape Town, and as there is no word of any part of it having gone to Natal, the probability is that the column is identical with the division.

At any rate it is to be hoped that this is the case, and that the last has been heard of breaking up divisions into fragments. The dispatch of this column, if as must be presumed, it is strong enough for independent operations, portends a great deal.

In the first place it means that the campaign in Natal is to be left to take care of itself, for, if the Sixth division is at Thebus, there is no other force at Cape Town capable of turning the balance in Natal. Ladysmith, then, is not to be relieved. Its garrison must hold out as long as possible, or make a desperate attempt to fight its way out, unless, indeed, General Buller, with such forces as he has there, is a third time to drive back the Boer army. This decision implies that the war will be prolonged, and that the Boers are to be given time to push their advantage in Natal. They will try to overcome General White's force and to take the offensive against General Buller, whose army they would, in that case, perhaps, be able to hold by putting several parts of their own mobile force in positions on his front, flanks and rear. General Buller would keep them occupied as long as his supplies and ammunition lasted.

During these operations the British forces in Cape Colony and the reinforcements on the way would be collected into an army to march through the Free State. If that march could be rapid enough to produce an effect on the mind of the Boer commander-in-chief, while General Buller's force is still occupying him, the plan might lead to a decisive result, but there can hardly be a start for another month, and a march through the Free State must take a month at least. It is not easy today to foresee what can happen in Natal by the end of March.

Meanwhile the mission of General Kelly-Kenny does not altogether explain itself. It seems a little strange that the new column should not first have been sent to the assistance of General French, who has hemmed in a force of Boers, but finds them reinforced from the north. Anything like a division added to General French's force ought to enable him to destroy the Boer forces with which he is dealing, by completing his circle around them, and then to gradually close it in upon them.

The formation of a fresh column while this kind of concentration was possible looks like a continuation of the old policy of dispersion instead of concentration. General Kelly-Kenny will have to mend the railway bridge at Strinsburg, as he moves eastward, and his advance continued, he will enter a hilly, and perhaps, difficult country.

None of the speakers at the opening of parliament yesterday is considered to have risen to a height befitting the gravity of the situation. Sir John Tenniel's cartoon in Punch represented Lord Salisbury as addressing the cabinet council and saying, "Never mind what we say, gentlemen; but let us all say the same thing." The feeling is that the ministers failed in this apparently simple matter. While Lord Salisbury professed ignorance regarding the Boer strength and armaments, Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne declared that these were accurately known.

But not one of the ministers had a word of enlightenment to offer regarding either the past or the future; and the leads of the opposition, while perfectly ready to attack and criticise the government, had no suggestion to advance matters in South Africa, nor an alternative policy to expound. Mr. Chamberlain preserved a discreet silence, although throughout the speeches of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Mr. Balfour he displayed unusual excitement, embarrassing both by frequent comments. He kept turning toward Mr. Balfour during Sir Henry's speech with suggestions for argument, to which Mr. Balfour did not seem to respond with much enthusiasm. Mr. Balfour's speech was a repetition of his rather flippant orations outside the house. Lord Salisbury was pale and looked careworn. Lord Lansdowne seemed also very much depressed.

The solemn air which seemed to pervade the upper chamber was in strong contrast with the dazzling surroundings of the occasion. Many ladies were dressed in mourning, which gave a sad tone to the scene. Lord Roseberry's speech was the only one which made a strong impression; and it is interpreted in many quarters to indicate a readiness, in the event of a change of ministry, to assume the burdens of the premiership.

So far as the house of commons is concerned the debate there never reached a high level.

The general tone of the morning paper editorials is that the reopening of parliament has afforded little or nothing to give the country assurance or to relieve a heavy load of anxiety.

Bay State Legislature.

Boston, Jan. 31. — Representative Mellen has presented in the house the petition of Frances W. Fitch, formerly of Lowell, for the removal of Justice Edgar J. Sherman of the superior court, alleging misconduct in a case of the petitioner against Mariette R. Jefferson in 1898. Dr. Herbert Jefferson signs a statement which is submitted, finding the statement of the petitioner in regard to the motion to set aside a verdict to be according [illegible] his understanding. Judge Sherman is charged in the case in point with indulging in "unseemly levity and boundless loquacity."

The gypsy moth investigation opened yesterday. It is expected that it will take the rest of the week to present the case of the commissioners.

Yesterday was the heaviest day of committee hearings since the organization of the legislature. James Means and others were heard by street railways on their bill to permit the use of existing street railway tracks and, if necessary, independent motors for an electric freight line between Brockton and Boston. Socialists Carey and MacCartney were heard by railroads on their petition for legislation assessing the total cost of the abolition of grade crossings upon the railroad companies. The railroad counsel present declined to reply to their arguments or to ask questions.

Today is the last day upon which petitions and bills may be filed with the clerks, under the rules, and a terrific grist has accumulated.

The caskets containing the bodies were landed at the docks and taken to an undertaker's under an escort of artillery. No funeral services will be held here.

of the American volunteer in every contest in American history, but deprecated in severest terms the desire for a larger standing army.

Mr. Bryan spoke in high terms of the steadfastness of the Democrats of Massachusetts to the Chicago platform. He said that the eastern Democrat who stood by the Chicago platform had to exhibit heroism that was not required of the Democrat of the west and south. He knew, he said, how the newspapers in the east have day after day declared that the doctrines of that platform were dead; how they have ridiculed and made fun of the one question that was paramount in the last campaign; their editorials, he declared, did not interest the masses, but seemed to please those who wrote them.

"When you get near enough to the trusts to see who stand behind them, he said, "you will see the same great money magnates as stood behind the gold standard, and behind imperialism and militarism; you will see the same money magnate who put the dollar above the people. The money is still an unsettled question, and it will be in the next campaign, only there will be other things. We kept the Republican party busy with the Chicago platform, but it was nothing to the industry they will have to show with the platform this year."

FUTURE OF THE PHILIPPINES.

Senator Bacon Discusses His Resolution and Favors Independence of the Archipelago.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Senator Bacon of Georgia yesterday spoke on his resolution referring to the Philippines, providing after the termination of the insurrection for the independence of the archipelago, under the protectorate of the United States.

He maintained that the United States owed as much to the Filipinos as it did to the Cubans, to whom, by resolutions of congress, self-government had been promised, and he strongly urged that his resolutions, declaring it to be the intention of this government to confer the right of self-government upon the Filipinos, be adopted as a means not only of terminating the war, but of extending to a struggling people justice and freedom.

He declared that to hold the islands as a subject colony involves a revolution in our system of government. He said he did not plead the cause of the Philippine people, but that of the American who did not wish the government to become an imperial government, holding vassal and subject colonies. The Philippines, he said, would always be a weak spot, and in case of any complications with foreign powers and to defend them would require so large a naval force that the Atlantic coast would have to depend upon its land defenses. He believed the permanent retention of the islands would cost annually more than $100,000,000, and declared that the pretence that the Philippines are necessary to our trade in the Orient is a delusion and a snare.

The senate passed a measure giving to the city of Nashville the cannon from which was fired the first shot in the Spanish war by the cruiser named for that city.

The British consul whose alleged statement figured so prominently in the deliberations of the senate Monday completely repudiates the criticism of Senator Mason attributed to him.

The house was in session only a little over an hour, and business of minor importance was all that was transacted.
